Rushed Wildly to Escape Falling Houses.

Awful Earthquakes Occur at Guatemala City.

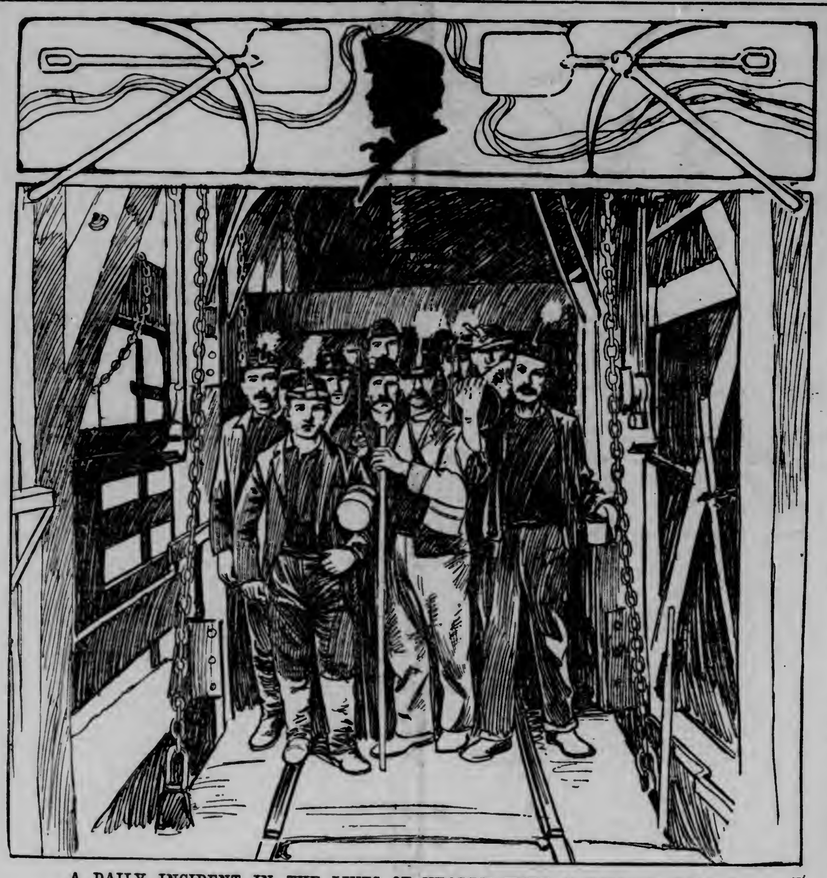
Guatemala City, Republic of Guatemala, May 8.—For nearly a week earthquakes tumbled down cities, towns and villages on the western slope of the Sierras in this republic.

On the night of April 18, at the capital, a blinding flash of lightning followed by a thunder storm and torrents of rain, all in the space of a very few minutes, caused the people in the streets to rush for shelter. In an instant, however, the earthquake was upon them.

Rushing frantically into the darkness and through the flooded streets, anywhere away from the straining rafters and crackling walls, ran the multitude, crying, praying and a few trying to singe the "Salve Regina." The following shocks were less severe, and by 10 o'clock many of the inhabitants were wandering about, examining the walls of the cathedral of Santa Theresa la Recollecion and other churches, which were more or less damaged.

News soon began to come in from the hill country where Quesaltenango is located. This, the second city of the republic, suffered by far the most. Hundreds of residences and public buildings were either totally destroyed or seriously damaged. The very narrow streets, often not over three or four yards wide, and the irregular manner in which the town is built, served to make death traps of the houses, so that, although not half of the debris has yet been removed, fully 200 bodies have been recovered, and many persons were badly injured. Fire as well as flood added to the horror of the night, with the result that many people have gone insane and others have committed suicide. Amalitan, San Juan, Escuintla, Santa Lucia, Utalatan and several other smaller towns have been partly ruined. Still, very few lives, considering the extent of the disaster, have been lost.

The sessions of the national congress at Guatemala City have been suspended. The meetings of the national commission for the Louisian purchase exposition, which Commissioner Chandler attended by special invitation, were continued without interruption for two hours, though the earthquake shocks made the large chandeliers of the palace swing like pendulums over the heads of the commissioners. Approximately 50,000 people have been left homeless, and public as well as private subscriptions are being raised to prevent the poor people from starving.



A DAILY INCIDENT IN THE LIVES OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION MINERS.

If a strike is ordered by President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America 147,000 anthracite coal workers will be affected. More than 300,000 bituminous coal workers may also be involved.

Going down the shaft in the "cage," or elevator, is a daily incident of work in the mines. The man at the extreme right of the picture has a can of powder on his shoulder and a light on his hat several inches from the can.

WILLING TO ARBITRATE

Miners Make a Proposition to the Operators.

The Expected Strike May Yet Be Averted.

Scranton, Pa., May 8.—The executive committees of the three districts of the anthracite field, representing all of the members of the United Mine Workers in that territory, resumed its secret conference soon after 9 a. m. Strong influences are at work among the miners to prevent a strike, as it is realized that a tie-up at this time means a long struggle and the consequent paralyzing of business.

President Mitchell wields the same power of influence over the miners that he has hitherto exercised, and it is conceded that the question of strike or no strike depends almost entirely on his final decision.

At 10:10 a. m. the executive committee took a recess until 1:30 p. m. President Mitchell issued the following statement:

"The executive committees of the Anthracite Mine Workers' organization have proposed that all questions at issue between themselves and the anthracite coal mine operators be submitted to an impartial board of arbitration, such board to be selected by the industrial branch of the National Civic federation. This proposition has been submitted to the operators by wire."

The statement was issued by President Mitchell after he had been in communication by long distance telephone with unknown persons. He also received numerous telegrams.

During the recess Mr. Mitchell said the committees are awaiting replies to the proposition embodied in his statement. It is believed here that a means of settling the questions involved without resorting to a strike, has been arrived at.

FORESTERS' OFFICERS

Elected at the Annual Meeting of the High Court Held at St. Paul---Session Is Over.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the Minnesota high court of Foresters closed last evening with an entertainment and dance at Central hall. Before the entertainment representatives from the St. Paul court exemplified the first degree in Forestry.

At the afternoon session the following officers were elected: High ranger, L. F. Cole, Minneapolis; high vice ranger, D. F. Doyle, Stillwater; high secretary, B. R. Sweetland, Minneapolis; high treasurer, A. M. Eddy, St. Paul; high physician, J. E. Campbell, South St. Paul; high chaplain, Mrs. E. W. Entriken, Brainerd; high archer, Mrs. G. H. Grant, Stillwater; inner woodward, Mrs. Ida Parks, St. Paul; outer woodward, G. T. Woolsey, St. Paul; high auditors, J. B. Fowler, Hamline, and D. M. Cameron, Little Falls.

James Schoonmaker and T. J. Dion, of St. Paul, Grant Evans, of Minneapolis, and G. H. Grant, of Stillwater, were elected delegates to the meeting of the supreme court to be held at Duluth in July. The reports of retiring officers showed the order to be in excellent condition. There are now 1553 members in Minnesota, a gain of 35 per cent during the year. Secretary Sweetland stated that the receipts of the year were $1241 and the disbursements $1093.

C. & N. W. TRAIN WRECKED

Des Moines, May 8.—A Chicago & Northwestern train was wrecked at Ames at 1 o'clock this morning. An unknown tramp was killed and Mail Clerk Griffin, of Des Moines, was seriously injured.

Mail Clerk Graves, of Chicago, was buried under mail sacks and badly bruised and Mail Clerk Alexander Turk, of Chicago, had his hand and arm injured.

Considerable mail was water soaked and destroyed. The overland limited from the West and other through trains were sent via Carroll and Tama on the Sioux City & Iowa division. A soft roadbed is supposed to have been responsible for the wreck.

INTERCOURSE CUT OFF

San Domingo, Santo Domingo, May 8.—The United States minister, William F. Powell, owing to the situation of affairs here, has suspended all intercourse with the revolutionary government and is preparing to leave San Domingo for Hayti, to which country he is also accredited.

The change of government here has put a stop to the steps taken by Mr. Powell to arrange a settlement of the claims of the Dominican Improvement company, of New York, against Santo Domingo. These claims were being favorably considered by the government which has just been overthrown, and were in a fair condition for settlement.

The Dominican congress has been dissolved and a provisional government has been formed as follows: Gen. Horaccio Vasquez, supreme chief of the revolution; Juan Francisco Sanchez, minister of foreign affairs; Emiliano Tejerad, minister of finance; Mijuel A. Pichardo, minister of war and marine; Rafel Justino Castillo, minister of posts and telegraphs; Jose Maria Cabral Baez, minister of justice; Jose Francisco Guzman, minister of public works; Casimiro Cordero, minister of the interior and of police.

In accordance with a decree of the chief of the revolution, the laws passed and the decrees issued by competent local authorities are to remain in force until the promulgation of the new constitution.

A number of political exiles have already arrived here.

HETTY MAY CARRY A PISTOL

New York, May 8.—Hetty Green, the noted woman of finance, has been granted a permit to carry a revolver by the police department of this city. Mrs. Green applied for the permit a week ago to Capt. Stephen O'Brien of the Leonard street station, and it was on his recommendation that the permit was given. Capt. O'Brien's report on the application says Mrs. Green declared she was in the habit of carrying large sums of money, stocks, bonds and jewelry. She also said it was her intention to secure pistol permits in all the large cities in which she does business.

PAID FORTY MILLIONS CASH

St. Paul, May 8.—Officers of the Northern Securities company were asked in New York today about the statement made in answer to United States Attorney General Knox's suit, that $40,000,000 in cash has been expended by this company in the purchase of Great Northern and Northern Pacific shares.

Col. Clough, vice president of the Northern Securities company, said that it was found necessary to pay cash for some of the lots of stock purchased by the holding company and that the $40,000,000 was applied for such purchases.

DELIVERY NEXT YEAR

Cleveland, May 8.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: The booking of a large tonnage of structural shapes and plates for delivery next year is the new feature of the iron market in the week. For several months most structural mills have been sold up for 1902, and it is now evident that deliveries originally contracted to be made this year will be carried over to 1903. The business closed by Pittsburg mills the past week for next year is estimated at 50,000 tons. Week by week, with eight months of the year ahead, the character of the iron trade in 1903 is being determined. The situation in plate mills is not entirely clear. It would seem that the brunt of the steel shortage is to fall on the plate trade, and that after the large producers have filled their engagements in shapes and open hearth bars, they will not have steel sufficient to run their plate mills full. A meeting of plate manufacturers will be held in New York next week, but it is believed the 1.00 cents basis will be reaffirmed, in spite of the sales at $2 to $4 a ton higher from Eastern mills. The sales of both shapes and plates for 1903 have been on the basis of present pool prices. Sheets are the one line of finished material in which the mills are not sold for months ahead. In spite of the difficulties of independent sheet mills in getting material, they are by no means an eligible factor in the market, particularly on galvanized sheets. The bar trade is quiet and it will probably be months before any heavy buying is done. The differential $4 a ton over steel bars is calculated to restrict the sale of bar iron, and in time to affect the prices of gray forge iron and mill scrap, which are both relatively high. The steel scarcity promises to continue for months. Imports, while increasing, are only a small factor, and to a considerable extent enter into drawback export material. Some sales of German steel are reported in the Chicago district below the prevailing Pittsburg basis.

TO DISSOLVE

The Well Known Firm of Nave & McCord.

Chicago, May 8.—A special to the Chronicle from St. Joseph, Mo., says: The announcement is made that the numerous interests of the firm of Nave & McCord, which for more than half a century have been promoters of various large business enterprises throughout the West, will be dissolved. Samuel Nave, one of the partners, died recently, and by the change all of the interests held by him will be assumed by James McCord, who is now an octogenerian. Wholesale and jobbing houses of this firm are located in Omaha, Kansas City, Topeka, Wichita, Hutchinson, Pueblo and Denver. The firm is interested in many banks, and owns many cattle ranches in Texas, Colorado and New Mexico.

CARNEGIE CONSOLES

The People of Great Britain on the Shipping Combine and Tells Them It Will Not Hurt Them.

London, May 8.—Andrew Carnegie, who sailed from New York, April 30, on the steamer St. Louis, arrived here today and promptly proceeded to console Great Britain on the subject of the shipping combine, by saying there was no cause for alarm.

"To combine the shipping traffic," said Mr. Carnegie, "is a big order. There is free right-of-way on the ocean, and the tramp steamers are always with us. The Merger may give regular daily sailings to passengers, which would be advantageous. I am not in the navigation syndicate, having retired from business and reformed, so I cannot advise you as to the exact character and bearing of the combine. But, in my opinion, the combine is purely a matter of money making. There is no question of patriotism in trade. It does not care a fig for a flag. It is dividends that count. Of course, and a peaceful, industrial victory is the every citizen worth a cent wishes his own country to be first in everything, only genuine one. Victory through war generally costs more than it is worth. If Great Britain continues her costly wars for shadowy ascendency in distant parts and the United States develops her industrial army, there can only be one result—Great Britain will have the shadow and the United States the substance."

"I think there is no prospect of early legislation to permit British-built ships getting American register. The Americans have resolved to become a maritime power commercially, and will soon be able to build ships quite as cheap as Great Britain. At first the shipping combine will give the present owners higher returns; but regarding the later prospects I do not care to prophesy. The people of the United States are in sympathy with the new trust."

"It seems to be a triumph for the flag and all patriotic Americans, which means all Americans, are naturally pleased. Besides, we have an idea that we can manage all things better than any one else, and there is ground for this belief."

Concerning trusts generally, Mr. Carnegie said: "No one will long be allowed to enjoy exceptional returns. Counter combinations will be formed and competition and quarreling will follow."

When asked by a reporter of the Westminster Gazette, regarding President Roosevelt's attitude, Mr. Carnegie said: "If President Roosevelt thought any trust was calculated to conflict with the welfare of the nation, he could be relied upon to protect the people, but except in the case of the railroads, I do not think legislation will be needed. Congress may fix the railroad rates before long."

After a reference to the booming of the steel combination, saying the United States was too prosperous to have any surplus stocks of steel for shipment abroad, and alluding to the development of other lands, Mr. Carnegie reiterated to the interviewer his belief that Great Britain in future would form a state in the American federation.

"You must some day," he said, "turn your face to your kin beyond the sea. You are not to be a European power in the future, but are to join with your own race in the West. Fortunately the feeling toward the old home was never so cordial as now and race patriotism has taken root."

A BIG STRIKE EXPECTED

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today all union bricklayers in town were reported not at work.

Last evening the Trades' council ordered out every man working on any job in which a member of the builders' exchange had anything to do.

This appealed to nearly every new building in the city, including the new capital. Two of the members of the Builders' exchange, it is said, have crews at work by paying the men at work the union scale. They made a secret arrangement to keep working for a few days longer.

The carpenters this morning voted to remain out.

The Teamsters' union last evening resolved that, unless the bosses settle the strike before Saturday they would tie up everything before Monday.

The bakers will go out Saturday, demanding $2 per week more and no night work.

Prominent labor men still predict a general strike. "You may expect to see a general strike in full blast on Monday morning," said one of the men today. President O'Leary of the core makers is in the city trying to settle the differences between the foundrymen and the core makers.

EQUILIBRIST HAS BAD FALL

Nashville, Tenn., May 8.—While 5000 persons were watching the feat of Achille Phelion at the Eagles' carnival last night the equilibrist fell from the cable at the top of the spiral tower and plunged headlong to the platform beneath.

He clutched frantically at the cable and wires as he fell, but failed to grasp either.

His head struck a ladder on the platform, fracturing the bones in the right side of his face. It is feared his injuries are fatal.

LONG TRIP OF A LIFE BOAT

Melbourne, May 8.—A lifeboat, containing the first officer and three men of the British ship Boveric, has arrived at Fremantle, Western Australia, after having sailed 1500 miles to report that the Boveric lost her propeller when 1500 miles from Fremantle and was in need of assistance.

KILLED AT A CAROUSAL

Cincinnati, May 8.—Mrs. George W. Herget was killed last night during a carousal at her home in Dayton, Ky. Her husband, William Thornton, Frank Kent, Thomas Shields and William Murray alias Ford Mattox, have been arrested on the charge of murder. Herget is the son of a wealthy distiller, who died at Pekin, Ill., two years ago, leaving him an inheritance in trust. His monthly remittance reached him yesterday, and Thornton, Kent, Shields and Murray were his guests.

At 1 in the morning the police were attracted by screaming, and found Mrs. Herget lying prostrate in her yard, badly stabbed. She died soon after reaching the hospital, without being able to make a statement. The five men were taken from the house, but none of them could talk until noon today. The dead woman's maiden name was Mary Sellinger, of Clyde, Ohio. They had no children.

ARE LEGALLY MARRIED

New York, May 8.—Great consternation among the members of Jewish societies at Yonkers has been the outcome of the recent Purim ball. During the evening 100 couples went through a mock marriage ceremony. Now the rabbi who officiated is said to have declared that the couples so married are bound in the eye of the church and therefore in the eyes of the law. The young people are at their wits' end to decide whether they are really married. Some of those interested in the matter declare that the man who started the story did so from a selfish motive—that he has a family of eight daughters, all of whom were "married" at the ball. Several of the rabbis are expected to have a consultation and their collective decision is to settle the matter.

MANY MEN DESTITUTE

Port Townsend, Wash., May 8.—Two steamers have arrived from Skagway—the City of Seattle and the Dolphin. On board the City of Seattle was Governor John G. Brady, of Alaska, who is on his way to Ashland, Ore., to join his family.

Reports brought by the steamers from Skagway say there is an army of idle men at White Horse, and many of them are destitute. They walked from Skagway and shipped their luggage by train and they neither have money to get their luggage out of the warehouse nor to purchase meals; and the situation is growing more serious as recruits are daily arriving.

Advices from Dawson under date of April 27 are to the effect that the country is drenched with water. Sluicing has commenced and from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 in dirt is ready to wash.

HAY WANTS FLETCHER'S SEAT

Minneapolis, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene G. Hay, district attorney under Harrison, has filed a certificate of candidacy for the Republican nomination for congress.

J. A. Peterson filed his certificate some weeks ago, and with Congressman Fletcher there will be three candidates in the field.

Mr. Hays' campaign was started at the Lincoln banquet of the Fourth Ward Republican club, and since then he ha smade many addresses in different parts of the city. Tuesday night he addressed the Fifth Ward Republican club, and took a position in favor of reciprocity and tariff concessions to Cuba. He is a protectionist, but declares that in this instance freer trade will not work injury to any American interests.

WILLING TO ACCEPT TERMS

St. Paul, May 8.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: It is learned upon excellent authority that as a result of a conference between C. W. Whitley, Northwestern manager of the American Smelting and Refining company, Former Governor Hauser, a heavy stockholder thereof; Phil Bowden, of Denver, representative of the Western Federation of Labor, and a local member of the strikers' committee last evening, the former two telegraphed the officials of the smelter trust in New York, recommending that the terms of the strikers be accepted. These terms are simply for the recognition of the labor unions formed among the 600 employes of the East Helena smelter now on strike. It is believed this suggestion will be approved by the officials of the company and operations resumed at once. Many mines closed because of the strike will also resume.

PLEASED WITH HIS RANCH

St. Paul, May 8.—A Miller, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Though they had never met before, Miss Mary Knopnell, who arrived from Pitt, Neb., was so well pleased with F. Joseph Koech and his one thousand-acre ranch that the two got a license to marry at once.

Judge Gaft writes that he will be here tomorrow to hear the preliminaries in the Judge Pusey divorce case.

Awful Earthquakes Occur at Guatemala City.

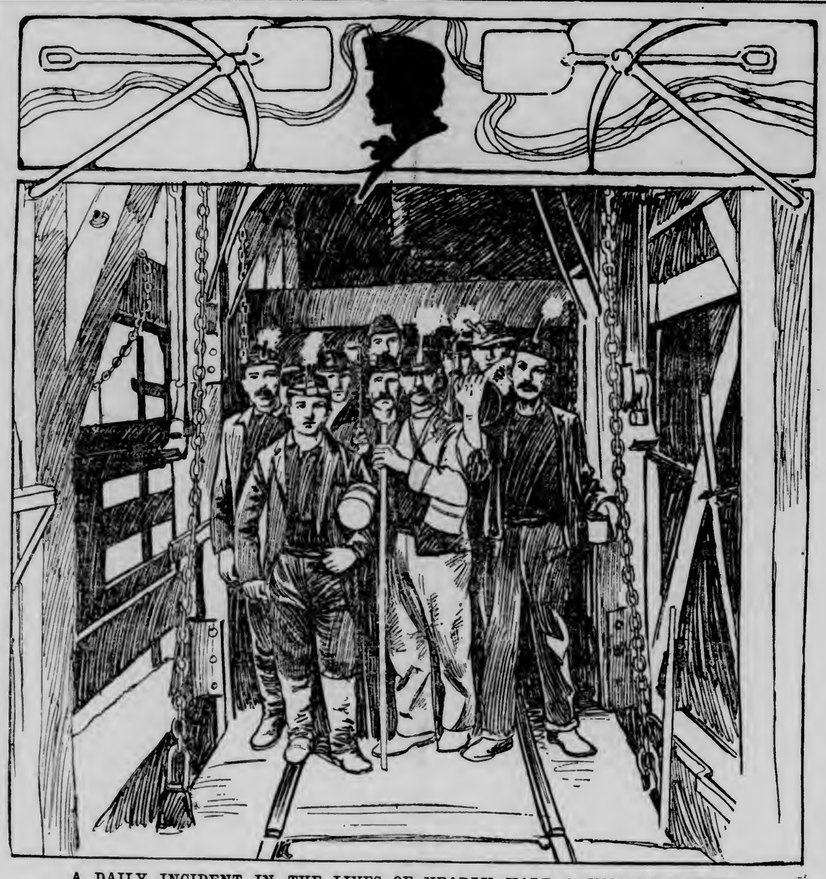
Guatemala City, Republic of Guatemala, May 8.—For nearly a week earthquakes tumbled down cities, towns and villages on the western slope of the Sierras in this republic.

On the night of April 18, at the capital, a blinding flash of lightning followed by a thunder storm and torrents of rain, all in the space of a very few minutes, caused the people in the streets to rush for shelter. In an instant, however, the earthquake was upon them.

Rushing frantically into the darkness and through the flooded streets, anywhere away from the straining rafters and crackling walls, ran the multitude, crying, praying and a few trying to singe the "Salve Regina." The following shocks were less severe, and by 10 o'clock many of the inhabitants were wandering about, examining the walls of the cathedral of Santa Theresa la Recollecion and other churches, which were more or less damaged.

News soon began to come in from the hill country where Quesaltenango is located. This, the second city of the republic, suffered by far the most. Hundreds of residences and public buildings were either totally destroyed or seriously damaged. The very narrow streets, often not over three or four yards wide, and the irregular manner in which the town is built, served to make death traps of the houses, so that, although not half of the debris has yet been removed, fully 200 bodies have been recovered, and many persons were badly injured. Fire as well as flood added to the horror of the night, with the result that many people have gone insane and others have committed suicide. Amaltlan, San Juan, Escuintla, Santa Lucia, Utalatan and several other smaller towns have been partly ruined. Still, very few lives, considering the extent of the disaster, have been lost.

The sessions of the national congress at Guatemala City have been suspended. The meetings of the national commission for the Louisian purchase exposition, which Commissioner Chandler attended by special invitation, were continued without interruption for two hours, though the earthquake shocks made the large chandeliers of the palace swing like pendulums over the heads of the commissioners. Approximately 50,000 people have been left homeless, and public as well as private subscriptions are being raised to prevent the poor people from starving.



A DAILY INCIDENT IN THE LIVES OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION MINERS.

If a strike is ordered by President John Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America 147,000 anthracite coal workers will be affected. More than 300,000 bituminous coal workers may also be involved.

Going down the shaft in the "cage," or elevator, is a daily incident of work in the mines. The man at the extreme right of the picture has a can of powder on his shoulder and a light on his hat several inches from the can.

Miners Make a Proposition to the Operators.

The Expected Strike May Yet Be Averted.

Scranton, Pa., May 8.—The executive committees of the three districts of the anthracite field, representing all of the members of the United Mine Workers in that territory, resumed its secret conference soon after 9 a. m. Strong influences are at work among the miners to prevent a strike, as it is realized that a tie-up at this time means a long struggle and the consequent paralyzing of business.

President Mitchell wields the same power of influence over the miners that he has hitherto exercised, and it is conceded that the question of strike or no strike depends almost entirely on his final decision.

At 10:10 a. m. the executive committee took a recess until 1:30 p. m. President Mitchell issued the following statement:

"The executive committees of the Anthracite Mine Workers' organization have proposed that all questions at issue between themselves and the anthracite coal mine operators be submitted to an impartial board of arbitration, such board to be selected by the industrial branch of the National Civic federation. This proposition has been submitted to the operators by wire."

The statement was issued by President Mitchell after he had been in communication by long distance telephone with unknown persons. He also received numerous telegrams.

During the recess Mr. Mitchell said the committees are awaiting replies to the proposition embodied in his statement. It is believed here that a means of settling the questions involved without resorting to a strike, has been arrived at.

FORESTERS' OFFICERS

Elected at the Annual Meeting of the High Court Held at St. Paul---Session Is Over.

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the Minnesota high court of Foresters closed last evening with an entertainment and dance at Central hall. Before the entertainment representatives from the St. Paul court exemplified the first degree in Forestry.

At the afternoon session the following officers were elected: High ranger, L. F. Cole, Minneapolis; high vice ranger, D. F. Doyle, Stillwater; high secretary, B. E. Sweetland, Minneapolis; high treasurer, A. M. Eddy, St. Paul; high physician, J. E. Campbell, South St. Paul; high chaplain, Mrs. E. W. Entriken, Brainerd; high archer, Mrs. G. H. Grant, Stillwater; inner woodward, Mrs. Ida Parks, St. Paul; outer woodward, G. F. Woolsey, St. Paul; high auditors, J. B. Fowler, Hamline, and D. M. Cameron, Little Falls.

James Schoonmaker and T. J. Dion, of St. Paul, Grant Evans, of Minneapolis, and G. H. Grant, of Stillwater, were elected delegates to the meeting of the supreme court to be held at Duluth in July. The reports of retiring officers showed the order to be in excellent condition. There are now 1533 members in Minnesota, a gain of 35 per cent during the year. Secretary Sweetland stated that the receipts of the year were $1241 and the disbursements $1093.

Des Moines, May 8.—A Chicago & Northwestern train was wrecked at Ames at 1 o'clock this morning. An unknown tramp was killed and Mail Clerk Griffin, of Des Moines, was seriously injured.

Mail Clerk Graves, of Chicago, was buried under mail sacks and badly bruised and Mail Clerk Alexander Turk, of Chicago, had his hand and arm injured.

Considerable mail was water soaked and destroyed. The overland limited from the West and other through trains were sent via Carroll and Tama on the Sioux City & Iowa division. A soft roadbed is supposed to have been responsible for the wreck.

INTERCOURSE CUT OFF

San Domingo, Santo Domingo, May 8.—The United States minister, William F. Powell, owing to the situation of affairs here, has suspended all intercourse with the revolutionary government and is preparing to leave San Domingo for Hayti, to which country he is also accredited.

The change of government here has put a stop to the steps taken by Mr. Powell to arrange a settlement of the claims of the Dominican Improvement company, of New York, against Santo Domingo. These claims were being favorably considered by the government which has just been overthrown, and were in a fair condition for settlement.

The Dominican congress has been dissolved and a provisional government has been formed as follows: Gen. Horacelo Vasquez, supreme chief of the revolution; Juan Francisco Sanchez, minister of foreign affairs; Emiliano Tejerad, minister of finance; Mijuel A. Pichardo, minister of war and marine; Rafel Justino Castillo, minister of posts and telegraphs; Jose Maria Cabral Baez, minister of justice; Jose Francisco Guzman, minister of public works; Casimiro Cordero, minister of the interior and of police.

In accordance with a decree of the chief of the revolution, the laws passed and the decrees issued by competent local authorities are to remain in force until the promulgation of the new constitution.

A number of political exiles have already arrived here.

HETTY MAY CARRY A PISTOL

New York, May 8.—Hetty Green, the noted woman of finance, has been granted a permit to carry a revolver by the police department of this city. Mrs. Green applied for the permit a week ago to Capt. Stephen O'Brien of the Leonard street station, and it was on his recommendation that the permit was given. Capt. O'Brien's report on the application says Mrs. Green declared she was in the habit of carrying large sums of money, stocks, bonds and jewelry. She also said it was her intention to secure pistol permits in all the large cities in which she does business.

PAID FORTY MILLIONS CASH

St. Paul, May 8.—Officers of the Northern Securities company were asked in New York today about the statement made in answer to United States Attorney General Knox's suit, that $40,000,000 in cash has been expended by this company in the purchase of Great Northern and Northern Pacific shares.

Col. Clough, vice president of the Northern Securities company, said that it was found necessary to pay cash for some of the lots of stock purchased by the holding company and that the $40,000,000 was applied for such purchases.

DELIVERY NEXT YEAR

Cleveland, May 8.—The Iron Trade Review this week says: The booking of a large tonnage of structural shapes and plates for delivery next year is the new feature of the iron market in the week. For several months most structural mills have been sold up for 1902, and it is now evident that deliveries originally contracted to be made this year will be carried over to 1903. The business closed by Pittsburg mills the past week for next year is estimated at 50,000 tons. Week by week, with eight months of the year ahead, the character of the iron trade in 1903 is being determined. The situation in plate mills is not entirely clear. It would seem that the brunt of the steel shortage is to fall on the plate trade, and that after the large producers have filled their engagements in shapes and open hearth bars, they will not have steel sufficient to run their plate mills full. A meeting of plate manufacturers will be held in New York next week, but it is believed the 1.60 cents basis will be reaffirmed, in spite of the sales at $2 to $4 a ton higher from Eastern mills. The sales of both shapes and plates for 1903 have been on the basis of present pool prices. Sheets are the one line of finished material in which the mills are not sold for months ahead. In spite of the difficulties of independent sheet mills in getting material, they are by no means an eligible factor in the market, particularly on galvanized sheets. The bar trade is quiet and it will probably be months before any heavy buying is done. The differential $4 a ton over steel bars is calculated to restrict the sale of bar iron, and in time to affect the prices of gray forge iron and mill scrap, which are both relatively high. The steel scarcity promises to continue for months. Imports, while increasing, are only a small factor, and to a considerable extent enter into drawback export material. Some sales of German steel are reported in the Chicago district below the prevailing Pittsburg basis.

The Well Known Firm of Nave & McCord.

Chicago, May 8.—A special to the Chronicle from St. Joseph, Mo., says: The announcement is made that the numerous interests of the firm of Nave & McCord, which for more than half a century have been promoters of various large business enterprises throughout the West, will be dissolved. Samuel Nave, one of the partners, died recently, and by the change all of the interests held by him will be assumed by James McCord, who is now an octogenerian. Wholesale and jobbing houses of this firm are located in Omaha, Kansas City, Topeka, Wichita, Hutchinson, Pueblo and Denver. The firm is interested in many banks, and owns many cattle ranches in Texas, Colorado and New Mexico.

CARNEGIE CONSOLES

The People of Great Britain on the Shipping Combine and Tells Them It Will Not Hurt Them.

London, May 8.—Andrew Carnegie, who sailed from New York, April 30, on the steamer St. Louis, arrived here today and promptly proceeded to console Great Britain on the subject of the shipping combine, by saying there was no cause for alarm.

"To combine the shipping traffic," said Mr. Carnegie, "is a big order. There is free right-of-way on the ocean, and the tramp steamers are always with us. At first the shipping combine will give the present owners higher returns; but regarding the later prospects I do not care to prophesy. The people of the United States are in sympathy with the new trust."

"It seems to be a triumph for the flag and all patriotic Americans, which means all Americans, are naturally pleased. Besides, we have an idea that we can manage all things better than any one else, and there is ground for this belief."

Concerning trusts generally, Mr. Carnegie said: "No one will long be allowed to enjoy exceptional returns. Counter combinations will be formed and competition and quarreling will follow."

When asked by a reporter of the Westminster Gazette, regarding President Roosevelt's attitude, Mr. Carnegie said: "If President Roosevelt thought any trust was calculated to conflict with the welfare of the nation, he could be relied upon to protect the people, but except in the case of the railroads, I do not think legislation will be needed. Congress may fix the railroad rates before long."

After a reference to the booming of the steel combination, saying the United States was too prosperous to have any surplus stocks of steel for shipment abroad, and alluding to the development of other lands, Mr. Carnegie referred to the interviewer his belief that Great Britain in future would form a state in the American federation.

"You must some day," he said, "turn your face to your kin beyond the sea. You are not to be a European power in the future, but are to join with your own race in the West. Fortunately the feeling toward the old home was never so cordial as now and race patriotism has taken root."

A BIG STRIKE EXPECTED

St. Paul, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Today all union bricklayers in town were reported not at work.

Last evening the Trades' council ordered out every man working on any job in which a member of the builders' exchange had anything to do.

This appealed to nearly every new building in the city, including the new capital. Two of the members of the Builders' exchange, it is said, have crews at work by paying the men at work the union scale. They made a secret arrangement to keep working for a few days longer.

The carpenters this morning voted to remain out.

The Teamsters' union last evening resolved that, unless the bosses settle the strike before Saturday they would tie up everything before Monday.

The bakers will go out Saturday, demanding $2 per week more and no night work.

Prominent labor men still predict a general strike. "You may expect to see a general strike in full blast on Monday morning," said one of the men today. President O'Leary of the core makers is in the city trying to settle the differences between the foundrymen and the core makers.

EQUILIBRIST HAS BAD FALL

Nashville, Tenn., May 8.—While 5000 persons were watching the feat of Achille Phelion at the Eagles' carnival last night the equilibrist fell from the cable at the top of the spiral tower and plunged headlong to the platform beneath.

He clutched frantically at the cable and wires as he fell, but failed to grasp either.

His head struck a ladder on the platform, fracturing the bones in the right side of his face. It is feared his injuries are fatal.

LONG TRIP OF A LIFE BOAT

Melbourne, May 8.—A lifeboat, containing the first officer and three men of the British ship Boveric, has arrived at Fremantle, Western Australia, after having sailed 1500 miles to report that the Boveric lost her propeller when 1500 miles from Fremantle and was in need of assistance.

KILLED AT A CAROUSAL

Cincinnati, May 8.—Mrs. George W. Herget was killed last night during a carousal at her home in Dayton, Ky. Her husband, William Thornton, Frank Kent, Thomas Shields and William Murray alias Ford Mattox, have been arrested on the charge of murder. Herget is the son of a wealthy distiller, who died at Pekin, Ill., two years ago, leaving him an inheritance in trust. His monthly remittance reached him yesterday, and Thornton, Kent, Shields and Murray were his guests.

At 1 in the morning the police were attracted by screaming, and found Mrs. Herget lying prostrate in her yard, badly stabbed. She died soon after reaching the hospital, without being able to make a statement. The five men were taken from the house, but none of them could talk until noon today. The dead woman's maiden name was Mary Sellinger, of Clyde, Ohio. They had no children.

New York, May 8.—Great consternation among the members of Jewish societies at Yonkers has been the outcome of the recent Purim ball. During the evening 100 couples went through a mock marriage ceremony. Now the rabbi who officiated is said to have declared that the couples so married are bound in the eye of the church and therefore in the eyes of the law. The young people are at their wits' end to decide whether they are really married. Some of those interested in the matter declare that the man who started the story did so from a selfish motive—that he has a family of eight daughters, all of whom were "married" at the ball. Several of the rabbis are expected to have a consultation and their collective decision is to settle the matter.

MANY MEN DESTITUTE

Port Townsend, Wash., May 8.—Two steamers have arrived from Skagway—the City of Seattle and the Dolphin. On board the City of Seattle was Governor John G. Brady, of Alaska, who is on his way to Ashland, Ore., to join his family.

Reports brought by the steamers from Skagway say there is an army of idle men at White Horse, and many of them are destitute. They walked from Skagway and shipped their luggage by train and they neither have money to get their luggage out of the warehouse nor to purchase meals; and the situation is growing more serious as recruits are daily arriving.

Advices from Dawson under date of April 27 are to the effect that the country is drenched with water. Sluicing has commenced and from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 in dirt is ready to wash.

HAY WANTS FLETCHER'S SEAT

Minneapolis, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eugene G. Hay, district attorney under Harrison, has filed a certificate of candidacy for the Republican nomination for congress.

J. A. Peterson filed his certificate some weeks ago, and with Congressman Fletcher there will be three candidates in the field.

Mr. Hays' campaign was started at the Lincoln banquet of the Fourth Ward Republican club, and since then he ha smade many addresses in different parts of the city. Tuesday night he addressed the Fifth Ward Republican club, and took a position in favor of reciprocity and tariff concessions to Cuba. He is a protectionist, but declares that in this instance freer trade will not work injury to any American interests.

WILLING TO ACCEPT TERMS

St. Paul, May 8.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: It is learned upon excellent authority that as a result of a conference between C. W. Whitley, Northwestern manager of the American Smelting and Refining company, Former Governor Hauser, a heavy stockholder thereof; Phil Bowden, of Denver, representative of the Western Federation of Labor, and a local member of the strikers' committee last evening, the former two telegraphed the officials of the smelter trust in New York, recommending that the terms of the strikers be accepted. These terms are simply for the recognition of the labor unions formed among the 600 employes of the East Helena smelter now on strike. It is believed this suggestion will be approved by the officials of the company and operations resumed at once. Many mines closed because of the strike will also resume.

PLEASED WITH HIS RANCH

St. Paul, May 8.—A Miller, S. D., special to the Dispatch says: Though they had never met before, Miss Mary Knopnell, who arrived from Pitt, Neb., was so well pleased with F. Joseph Koech and his one thousand-acre ranch that the two got a license to marry at once.

Judge Gaff writes that he will be here tomorrow to hear the preliminaries in the Judge Pusey divorce case.

ANOTHER BAD TRUST

George H. Crosby Urges Action Against the Coal Barons.

Efforts Should Be Made to Have President Begin Fight.

Methods as High Handed as Those of Beef Trust.

George H. Crosby foresees further and greater oppression of the people in the Northwest on the part of the coal combine. Mr. Crosby believes that the people should take action to bring the matter before President Roosevelt in order that action against the coal trust may be taken through the department of justice of the federal government, the same avenue through which the beef trust is being probed and through which railway freight discriminations to favored shippers were stopped.

"I am not an advocate of socialistic methods in any sense," said Mr. Crosby this afternoon. "As long as these combinations pursue a peaceful and just policy, with the people that have to pay them tribute, I have been content to let them go on. A combination has power for good or evil. Some of them are not overstepping legitimate bounds. Others are. The beef trust did, and became so exacting that it has well nigh prevented a large share of this country's population from enjoying what is considered a necessity of life.

"It is evident to me that the coal trust has the same high-handed methods in contemplation. Indeed, I have just accidentally discovered that the plans are not only made, but that the local coal companies have already begun to put them into effect.

"Heretofore, coal has been much cheaper in summer than in winter. In the spring, about the opening of navigation, a decline in price of about 50 cents a ton has been announced for anthracite coal. In the fall, near the end of the receiving season, this reduction has usually been restored. This spring the 50-cent reduction was announced as usual, but already only one month after the reduction was announced, I find that an advance of 10 cents a ton has been made. Moreover, on calling up the agents of one of the coal companies the other day, I learned that the price would probably be advanced 10 cents a ton on the first day of each month.

"The only satisfaction we can get out of the local companies is that there is such a big demand for coal in the East and Middle West that the producing companies would rather not send any of their product up here. They claim they can find a market for it at better net prices nearer home.

"The position of the coal companies is based on the ostensible grounds that the coal carrying roads have not the equipment to get the coal demanded to market. My own opinion is that this impression is created and spread for the sole purpose of justifying the purposes which the coal trust has in view of beating the people. I don't believe there is adequate legitimate ground for the statement that the coal carrying roads are relative shorter of equipment than are the other roads. If they are and have been so long, wouldn't they naturally take steps to increase their equipment? It stands to reason that they have done so. We know that other roads have been able to get additional equipment. The story is fishy in the extreme. It doesn't possess the merit even of being a good story.

"I don't wish to cast any reflection on the local agents of the coal companies. They are all good fellows and good business men. If they have a joint office in a room on the tenth floor of the Torrey building where they meet weekly or daily and decide how their competing companies shall treat the consumers, they are acting wholly and solely on instructions from their superiors.

"It is their superiors that we must get after. There is no satisfaction for us in petitioning or consulting the local companies. We must get at the central corporation—the trust that controls all thes subsidiary corporations. It strikes me that the only course left to us is to strike through the president. He has already shown himself equal to two emergencies of this kind. I believe we should take the matter up through our congressmen and senators, and have them bring the matter to the attention of President Roosevelt. In order to do this the matter should be thoroughly agitated and discussed. There should be concerted action all over the Northwestern country by commercial and other bodies. This coal squeeze affects everybody. It is not only an individual question, but a commercial question. Every class of people and every branch of trade are concerned. We may be able to get along with cereal foods or fish, but we can't get along without fuel in this Northwestern country in winter time, and moreover, we can't get along without coal fuel. I believe that the press and commercial bodies should agitate this matter and not let up on it until the agitation has some effect."

The explanation that is given out by the agents of the coal companies of the monthly partial advance, instead of the advance of 50 cents on Sept. 1, is that heretofore they have borne the burden of the high insurance, the interest on the capital invested in freight and stock and the storage charge. They claim they have heretofore made no charge of this to their retail trade locally, though the wholesale price has always been marked up every month. The late change, it is explained, merely places the retail buyer on the same basis as the wholesale buyer.

The coal agents declare that the cost of insurance on coal averages 5 per cent on the price, owing to the extreme danger of the hazard. They say they have hereofore given the consumer the adavantage of this in order to get as much advantage as possible out of their dock storage capacity for the winter months. By keeping the price low up to Sept. 1 it is claimed local consumers were induced to lay in stocks in anticipation of winter needs, and thus relieve the companies of that much tax on their capacity and cost of carrying so much insurance, or such a large investment in stock and freight.

SAW CURE.

More Testimony Concerning Its Administration to Filipinos.

Washington, May 8.—Isadore H. Dube, of Watertown, Mass., formerly sergeant in Comany A, Fourteenth volunteer infantry, testified before the Philippines committee today. He saw the water cure administered to a native in the presence of Lieut. Conger and Capt. Glenn. He witnessed the burning of houses in the island of Panay. He recalled a case where a woman was put into a guard house with fifteen male prisoners. He said the Filipino prisoners and peaceful natives were treated with great kindness by the Americans.

Sergt. Manning, of Boston, of the same regiment, said the water cure was administered to natives by order of Capt. Grant to secure confession as to the death of Private O'Hearn, who was burned to death. He said there was no doubt of the guilt of the parties in the atrocity. He also testified to the kindness shown to Filipino prisoners.

Senator Patterson requested that the daughter of Sixto Lopez be summoned, but the committee took no action.

ELOPERS CAUGHT

A Wife and Four Children Are Left By the Man.

Three detectives terminated a rather sensational elopement last night.

Merritt Babcock, a prominent jeweler and busines man of Wadena, left a wife and four children to elope with Miss Grace Hewett, a pretty young school teacher of that place.

They reached Duluth last evening a few hours behind a telegram that announced their coming and sought their arrest. A detective was at the Union depot to shadow them.

They decided on lodgings in a small European plan hotel, and the officer reported the location at headquarters. Shortly afterwards Detectives Mork, Irvine and Terry visited the hotel, satisfied themselves as to the description, and placed the elopers under arrest.

Mr. Babcock very angrily told the officers that they were making a mistake for which they would have to answer, and Miss Hewett, who is merely a girl of 18, was guilty of a display of petulance.

She was a very pretty blonde, stylishly gowned, and comes from one of the most respected families in Wadena county. Her liking for Babcock was known to several intimate friends, so when they both mysteriously disappeared yesterday, and it was found that the man had purchased tickets for this city, the father of Miss Hewett did the rest.

Early this morning Sheriff A. L. Ervine arrived from Wadena and started back home with the elopers.

He sits behind the grating at police headquarters wondering why merchants are so inquisitive and detectives so uncharitable.

Harper went into the back room of a Bowery saloon early in the evening and made out four checks on the American Exchange bank, aggregating $333. To these checks he signed the name of "R. Drummond." A glance at the writing was sufficient to tell that the forger had worked long in a sawmill.

He presented one check for $79.25 at Lieberman's clothing store, 407 West Superior street. The merchant was suspicious, and took the check to Daniel J. Mahoney, teller in the American Exchange bank. He pronounced it a forgery, and the police quickly had Harper in custody.

The Bowery art gallery arrested Tuesday for indecent exposure proved to be a rather expensive exhibition for Charles M. Forrest and Alphonse La Turneau, proprietors of the saloon in which it was arrested.

Both men were compelled to pay fines of $50 and costs. The pictures will be removed from the machine and destroyed, after which the machine, which is said to be worth over $100, will be returned to the saloon men.

Just as a reminder that the health department is not making idle threats when it announces that arrests will be made if property owners refuse to heed the department's warnings against unsanitary conditions, H. Johnson, of 2532 West Superior street, was arrested this morning. He had potato pealings and other garbage about his premises twenty-four hours after the health authorities had served notice of removal upon him.

OSTEOPATHY

The Osteopath has been called the poor man's doctor, because this method reaches the seat of the disease and corrects its cause, thus stopping the dribbling expense for prescriptions and patent nostrums, that, like the poet's brook, "go on forever." The Branch Minneapolis Institute of Oestopathy. 512-14 Torrey building, never publish the names of their patients, but the doctors will furnish to all who will call a list of persons cured who can be consulted.

AGREEMENTS

Made Between the Parties to the Shipping Combine.

London, May 8.—The Associated Press has received copies of the shipping combine agreements. They are called "Provisional agreements for the purpose of the acquisition, on or before Dec. 31, 1902, of the White Star, Dominion, American and Atrantic transportation lines, to be organized under the direction of the venders, to the satisfaction of the bankers, namely, the Morgans, under the laws of the state of New York, or such other state as shall be selected."

The venders, Ismay, Imrie & Co., Mills & Co. (Dominion line) and Messrs. Widener, Griscom & Bernard Baker, receive, as consideration for all their capital stock, $120,000,000, of which $50,000,000 is preferred stock, cumulative at 6 per cent, and $60,000,00 common stock, limited to 10 per cent, and also $50,000,000 in collateral trust 4½ per cent debentures.

The White Star line's acquisition is ante-dated to June 1, 1901, the combine, or corporation, as it is termed, taking all the line's profits from that date. The White Star line shares are exchanged on the basis of ten times the net profits made by that line in 1901. The arrangement made with the Dominion line is similar to that made with the White Star line, but on the net profits for 1900.

The American and Atlantic lines are lumped in one valuation at $34,158,000, subject to $19,636,000, of the American line bonds.

ARE GUSHING.

Oil Gushers at Beaumont Are as Strong as Ever.

A Beaumont dispatch yesterday reported that the recent earthquake in Guatemala had affected the oil fields so that 500 gushers had ceased to gush and it would be necessary to pump the oil. This is a mistake, as advices received in Duluth today direct from Beaumont show that the gushers have not been affected in any way. Neither are there 500 gushers at Beaumont; the total is less than one-half that number.

F. W. Kugler, agent here of the Export Oil and Pipe Line company, sent a dispatch to J. C. Mischler, formerly of this city, inquiring as to the report that the gushers had ceased. Mr. Mischler replied this morning as follows:

"Beaumont, Tex., May 8.—To F. W. Kugler, Duluth, Minn.: Yesterday three new gushers. Test on three old ones, with a dozen flowing to tanks, shows pressure practically as strong as ever. J. C. MISCHLER."

The trial box proves its power over rheumatism, and is free to all. Address: JOHN A. SMITH, 4279 Germania Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis.

IRON ORE MOVEMENT

Minnesota Ranges Furnished Half the Total For April.

Easily Possible to Reach Twenty-Five Million Ton Estimate.

The Facilities Are Sufficient to Handle That Tonnage.

The iron ore movement from Minnesota ranges last month was equal to practically about one-half the total movement from all Lake Superior ranges. Unofficial figures on the shipments from all ports foot up about 2,000,000 tons. This aggregate includes a small movement from the Clergue mines in Canada. The movement was surprisingly large in April. Very few vesselmen or iron men would have predicted April 1 that so much tonnage could be moved, with all interests so unprepared for beginning shipments much before May 1.

It is considered that the same speed of movement continued the rest of the season up to Dec. 1 would take down the lakes from the Duluth and other districts about 23,000,000 tons. But, of course, the movement has already gained a great deal since May 1, and will continue to grow gradually to a much higher total. The months in the latter half of the season will show a better record because many new Mesaba mines that have not yet joined the shipping list will get rail connections with the docks and begin sending forward their product.

The largest gain it is believed will be made from the Mesaba mines. Last month the big open pit propositions were unable to send forward much ore because of trouble with frost. At the same time the mines on the old ranges had no local troubles, and were prepared to ship out ore from stockpile or shaft as fast as dispatch of vessels would permit. The greatest gain, no doubt, will be from the Eastern Minnesota docks at Allouez bay, though this will hardly begin largely until a little later in the summer.

If Joseph Sellwood's estimate of a movement of about 25,000,000 tons from Lake Superior is reached, and Mr. Sellwood is considered one of the best authorities on the subject, the April movement was quite essential, for it will leave 23,000,000 tons to move during the seven remaining months of the season.

There is said to be no question of the ability of the ore-carrying roads to handle their end of that volume of business with ease. Mining superintendents report that there has been no difficulty whatever in getting sufficient labor on the ranges, so that will not affect the situation. Some bearing on the situation may be offered by the ability of some of the new properties to become shippers as soon as their owners hope for.

It is claimed that from the shipping docks to the furnaces, the outlook is more promising for a large movement with ease than ever before. In the first place, thirty large vessels have been added to the lake fleet since last season. More are due to come out of the yards soon. In view of the fact that the fleet available last year kept the receiving docks on lower lakes pretty well choked all last season, it is believed that the real key to the situation is down below.

For the facilities on Lake Erie, it is claimed that cars are more plentiful. More ore will be shipped through Toledo than ever before, the capacity of the docks there having been largely enlarged. The same is true of Huron. If the ore can be gotten away from the receiving docks fast enough, there may be further surprises in store for everybody concerned in the business.

PULLMAN EMPLOYES

To Form Union to Better Their Condition.

St. Louis, May 8.—The Post-Dispatch says: A movement has been quietly started in St. Louis for the organization of Pullman conductors and porters, and circulars setting forth the necessity for such a union are now being prepared. It is reported further that the conductors are dissatisfied with their present wage schedule, and it is supposed when the organization is perfected will make a demand on the company for an advance ranging from $5 to $10 per month.

AFTER THE TEMPLE

L. N. Scott, Twin City Manager, Said to Want It.

A Local Party Also Reported to Be Considering It.

Deals Said to Be Still In the Formative Stage.

Negotiations that have been proceeding for a year past looking toward the rebuilding of the Temple theater have become a little more active since E. Z. Williams retired from the Lyceum. Mr. Williams owns a one-third interest in the Temple building and theater site and salvage. He has used this interest to protect the Lyceum against competition. Now, however, that he is out of the Lyceum and has no intention of re-entering the theatrical business, it is said he is willing to see a deal made with a view to making the old theater a revenue-earning proposition.

At least two deals have been on for some time past for the lease of the Temple theater site for a long period. One of the parties figuring is a local man. The other is admitted to be a manager having a string of at least several theaters. The latter is reported to be L. N. Scott, of St. Paul, manager of the Metropolitan theaters in the Twin Cities, and who owns a bill-posting business in Duluth. While both deals are said to have been progressing well of late, it is declared by Mr. Alexander that neither has reached the imminent stage. It was said this morning by a party on the inside that the deal at present most likely to be closed was with an outside party, who now has several houses.

The old Temple had several advantages over the Lyceum as a money-making proposition. The first of these was an advantage of about 200 in seating capacity. The Lyceum seats a few more than 1200, while the old Temple seated about 1400—not 1000, as has been stated. The larger seating capacity at the Temple was due to a closer arrangement of the seats. The Lyceum has roomy, individual chairs, while the Temple was seated with the usual bench or row type, and the rows were much more closely arranged. Then, the stage being smaller and the "fly" mechanism necessarily less elaborate, the cost of running the stage was much less. In view of this lower cost of operation, in addition to the much smaller investment, it has always been considered of late years that the Temple, if rebuilt, would become a popular cheap-price house exclusively. If Mr. Scott were interested in it, however, he would probably seek to book a general line of attractions, the same as he does in the Twin Cities.

As near as can be learned, however, there is no truth in the report that the negotiations for the property are to be closed today or that anybody has practically closed a deal.

CONSPIRACY

G. F. Porter Alleges In Case Against Seelye and Others.

A transcript of the case of George F. Porter against Charles Seelye, Maggie A. Seelye, Ella M. Seelye and William Douglass, was filed in the United States court today. The case has been transferred from the district court of Hennepin county on petition of the defendants. The defendants, Maggie Seelye, Ella Seelye and William Douglass are members of the Chippewa Indian nation and reside on the Winnebigoshish reservation at Bena.

The plaintiff charges that a conspiracy has been entered into by the defendants to defraud him and he has asked for restraining orders to prevent them from drawing funds now held back by the United States Indian office for dead and down timber cut on the reservation, until the rightful possession of the money is decided by the court.

The plaintiff alleges that in 1898 he entered into a copartnership with Charles E. Seelye under the name of the Pokegama Log and Lumber company, to do a general timber land logging and lumber manufacturing business in Northern Minnesota; that the plaintiff was to look after the office and business of the firm at Minneapolis and Seelye was to look after the firm's interests in the camps. He claims that later the firm branched out into a general mercantile business, but that the business which was established on the reservation was in the name of M. A. Seelye & Co., with the understanding that Maggie Seelye was to have no interest whatever in the business, but thatt it was to be run in the interests of the Pokegama Log and Lumber company. He further alleges that the firm entered into contract, under the laws of the United States with Maggie Seelye, Ella Seelye and William Douglass to cut and log their timber for which the defendants were to receive 25 cents per 1000 feet.

The plaintiff alleges that Charles E. Seelye never put any money into the business, that all the obligations were personally met by the plaintiff, and that when finally the outstanding obligations amounted to $35,000 the plaintiff sought to secure a settlement of the partnership business and sale of its equipment in order to pay the firm's debts, but that Charles Seelye refused to give up the papers and contracts or surrender any part of the camp equipment.

It is further alleged that Charles Seelye went through bankruptcy and became released from his obligations, and that when the plaintiff sought to recover the mercantile stock on the reservation, Maggie Seelye, wife of Charles Seelye, asserted her right to the property, and the Indian agent would not allow the plaintiff or officer of the law on the reservation to make a seizure. The plaintiff claims that there is about $18,000 due on the dead and down timber contracts that have been fulfilled, and that the money is now in the hands of the United States Indian office. He alleges that the conspiracy has been formed by the defendants to get about $11,000 of this amount and defraud him of the vest of the property belonging to the Pokegama Log and Lumber company. He says that Charles Seelye, who is the only person to influence the rest of the defendants to give up their unlawful claims, is now in jail and unable to reach them, and he asks the court to restore to him the funds and property he claims, and restrain the defendants from disposing of any of the property until the court settles the question of ownership.

In the petition for the transfer of the case the defendants claim that the money now withheld by the Indian office has accrued to them under the laws relating to the cutting of dead and down timber on the reservation, and that the plaintiff alleges to have acquired their rights for a nominal sum. They have furnished bond to appear at the United States circuit court for trial.

CRAIG FARM

One hundred and forty-seven thoroughbred Angora goats and fifty head of registered sheep, were received in Duluth this morning, consigned to the Jean Du Luut stock farm in which C. P. Craig and others are interested.

The stock was unloaded from the cars at Lake avenue and driven out through the city to the farm on the East Duluth and Lester river road. Naturally the goats proved to be a great attraction.

The little animals have a long silkish hair that is highly prized for the manufacture of mohair and other dress goods. This hair is worth $1 a pound when twelve inches in length and many of the goats received this morning have hair already ten and eleven inches in length.

Their introduction in this part of the country is purely an experiment, but Mr. Craig and others interested in the stock farm project believe that the experiment will prove a great success. The goats came from a farm near Dubuque, Iowa.

The fifty sheep received were very highly bred animals, being registered. They were bred in Southern Minnesota. Three more carloads of sheep are expected in the near future.

The stock farm to which they are consigned consists of 4242 acres of good grazing land almost within the city limits. At present there are twenty-six head of blooded horses on it.

"WHITE WINGS" APPEAR.

Street Cleaning Force Adopts White Suits.

The street cleaning force of the department of public works appeared today in white uniforms for the first time.

Besides giving a neater appearance to the men the new uniforms protect them from being run down by teams, the white attracting the attention of drivers quicker than ordinary clothing.

The uniforms are of canvas and were made by a local tent making firm.

A CHANGE.

Frank McCreary Becomes Superintendent of Stevenson Mine.

Frank McCreary, for several years past agent for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company, has been appointed superintendent of the Stevenson mine. This property is owned by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., and is one of the largest open pit mines in the world. M. Trewathella, who has been superintendent of the mine, has resigned to go West. Mr. McCreary has already retired from the coal company's employ, and has gone to Hibbing to enter upon his new duties. He will be succeeded here with the Philadelphia and Reading by T. Z. Collins, who has been connected with the office of the company in Superior.

News of the appointment will be received with surprise by the friends of Mr. McCreary generally, and he has a very large circle of them. The matter has been kept very quiet by him, and, moreover, he has never had any experience in the mining business. Mr. McCreary, however, was for a number of years engaged as foreman and superintendent with the contracting firm of Wolf & King, and in that capacity gained a wide experience in the handling of men on work involving the moving of earth and rock, which will be in line with his new duties.

The great importance and responsibility of the new position, occasioned by the extent of the great Stevenson mine, makes the action of the Corrigan-McKinney people in the appointment considerable of an innovation. It has drawn attention to the fact that the mining world is short of operating men. It is not only on the iron ranges but in the far West, Southwest and Northwest that the almost incredible development work that has been going on in mining has called for more mine superintendents than could be created in the normal way. The deep, hard ore mines still depend largely on the practical miner—the man that has mined ore himself. But the steam shovel iron mines are going out of the business for their operating managers.

It is said that the mining companies are finding it absolutely necessary to go to other branches of business nowadays for practical mining superintendency. The supply is unequal to the demand, and with so many more new properties opening and to be opened on the Mesaba range it is freely predicted that there will be much more action taken along the same lines as that of Corrigan-McKinney.

GRAND JURY

Returns Five Indictments and Releases Two Men.

The grand jury organized yesterday afternoon with L. J. Hopkins as foreman, and today it was busily engaged. This morning it ground out and returned five indictments, and reported that it found no bill against R. W. Johnson and Fred Brooks, charged with forgery.

Two indictments were found against James Brown for forgery in the second degree. He is accused of forging two time checks at McKinley, April 18, one for $27.15 and the other for $26.75, and disposing of them to J. B. Carlisle and H. J. Millbrook.

M. J. Tantas was indicted for an unmentionable crime against nature and for burglary in the third degree for breaking into a stable.

Alexander McIntosh was indicted for forgery in the second degree for disposing of a forged time check for $22.31 to A. B. Loutzenleiser in Duluth, April 1.

DAY FOR DIVORCES

William J. Webb, who got a divorce in district court this morning from Elizabeth K. Webb, on the ground of cruelty, told the court that his wife consorted against his will with a man of bad character that lived next door, and that during two years she visited the bad man at his house and he visited her at hers. The admission that he had allowed this go on called forth a query from Judge Dibell.

"Well, now," said the court, after Webb had made this statement, "which is the larger man, you or the other fellow?"

"Well," said Mr. Webb, "I guess I am the biggest."

Webb charged his wife with cruelty, not only because she consorted with this bad man freely, but because she went away and left him to take of the children all alone several times, a month at a stretch. Among the items of cruelty that he mentioned were the following:

Telling him that she cared more for the other fellow's little finger than she did for his whole carcass.

Striking him with the stove poker.

Breaking several plates on his head.

Frequently striking him in the face with her fist.

He got the divorce he asked for.

This was divorce day in district court, and all three judges put in most of the morning hearing applications of that sort.

Mary A. Henry, aged 41, got a divorce from Andrew W. Henry, aged 52, on the ground of cruelty. Among other things she charged that her husband fired a revolver into the room in which he supposed she was sleeping. She said the bullet struck in the wall three inches above the head of their son, who was sleeping in the room.

Harriet F. Priest was granted a divorce from August F. Priest on the ground of desertion.

Karlie F. Harritta asked for a divorce from Merla M. Harritta on the ground of desertion. He claimed that he left his wife in the old country when he came to America, and that she refused to follow him. Also, that a babe was born to her several years after he left. The case went over to this afternoon for more testimony.

Lizzie Blanchard's application for a divorce from Clovis Blanchard was partially submitted, and the balance of the testimony will be heard later. She sued for divorce on the ground of desertion and cruelty. She said he locked her out of the house when they were living in Minneapolis, so she came to her mother in Duluth.

Selma Hughes failed to get a divorce from James Hughes on the ground of desertion and cruelty, as the court thought there was not evidence enough on which to base a decree. She said Hughes married her in Cleveland last November for what money she had, and then treated her cruelly.

The case of Lenora Moorman against Orlando M. Moorman, for divorce on the ground of cruelty, was submitted yesterday afternoon.

In the case of Dominic Laginestra against Vita Marie Laginestra it was the defendant that got the divorce. Dominic claimed that he came to this country from Italy to make a home for himself and his wife, and that she refused to follow him. She came back with an answer in which she said that he refused to send her money to come over on, and when she did come he refused to receive her. She charged him with committing adultery with one Mary M. Campagna, and she had him there, because she was able to show that he was arrested for it and fined $100. She got a divorce and an order for $50 attorneys' fees.

Annie Blake, aged 32, was granted a divorce from Harry Blake, aged 33, on the grounds of desertion two years and a half after they were married. Minnie Nisusula, aged 32, got a divorce from Henry Nisusula, aged 30, on the same ground. It was less than a year between marriage and desertion in this case.

Desertion was also the ground on which Isabella Persons got a divorce from Johannes Persons, and in this case they walked together less than four months.

About a year was all Minnie Legard and G. O. Legard were able to stand of each other, and this morning Mrs. Legard got a divorce from G. O., he having followed the directions contained in his initials at the end of the year.

WAS DOING HIM.

The "Hold Up" Man, Coffee.

Few people know how many persons are made sick and kept sick by coffee drinking. A trained nurse relates her experience with a number of different persons. She says: "Quite a long time ago I discovered that coffee was the cause of violent palpitation of my heart and frequent sick headaches, and attacks of indigestion, so I quit coffee and went on to hot water, not knowing then of Postum Food Coffee.

"Quite a while after I quit coffee my husband began to complain of coffee coming up in his mouth more or less during the forenoon, and it made it very disagreeable for him. One day I said, 'Suppose we try that Postum Food Coffee which is advertised so much.' So we did, and I prepared it according to directions. The beverage proved delicious and we liked it so much and it agreed with us so well we have used it for over two years now.

"My palpitation of the heart, headaches and indigestion have gone altogether. It is very easy to make by boiling fifteen or twenty minutes, with a small piece of butter put in the pot to prevent it boiling over.

"My cousin, who is a telegraph operator, had nervous dyspepsia, having to stay from work every few days. He gave up the use of coffee and commenced using Postum, and since that time he has not been troubled with dyspepsia.

"One woman told me she had suffered with indigestion for three years. She drank nothing but tea. I made Postum for her and showed her how to make it. She liked it and now uses it in her family regularly and is well and happy.

"I could name a dozen or more similar cases." M. N. Clark, 322 Ogden avenue, Chicago, Ill.

INSPECTION

Of Baggage Will Be Made Much More Agreeable.

Washington, May 8.—Secretary Shaw today issued regulations governing the inspection of baggage of incoming passengers at the ports of the United States. The secretary also has prepared a circular which will be distributed among passengers on all outgoing steamers giving information as specific as possible as to the rates of duty on goods usually purchased abroad by tourists; what articles may be brought in free of duty, etc.

Another circular issued today will be distributed at sea among incoming passengers containing forms of declarations and other information of which travelers usually are in more or less ignorance.

Another circular is addressed to collectors and other officers of the customs giving them particular instructions as to the examination of baggage and the courteous treatment of passengers.

Ladies desiring to have their baggage examined privately will be granted the privilege whenever the steamship company has provided a suitable place. Several of them have promised to make this provision.

Alleges Misrepresentation.

L. C. Sannicola has begun suit in district court against R. V. Simmons, claiming that he did him up on a business deal. He says that Simmons represented to him that he had incorporated a stock brokers' concern, with twenty-five shares of $100 each, that two prominent Eveleth business men had bought $500 worth of stock each, that another wanted the same amount, but that he would rather let Sannicola in on the ground floor. Sannicola bought, and got what he thought was a stock certificate, but which, he says, was valueless. Later he says Simmons got $500 more and a note for $400. He says Simmons misrepresented the matter to him, and he seeks to recover $1000 and the note. Baldwin & Baldwin are the attorneys.

CHANGES.

Railroads Keep Shippers Guessing With Alterations In Rates.

The Wisconsin Central has given notice that it will withdraw at once the rate of $2.15 on steel rails from Chicago to Duluth. The tariff will be restored to the former figure—$2.50 a ton. The concession of 35 cents a ton was made for the benefit of the range and logging roads here. So much railway building has been done here for a number of years that a movement of rails has been in progress that seemed to warrant the lower rate.

A rumor is current today that the lake lines are about to announce a 15½-cent tariff on East bound export flour, Duluth to New York. This would conform to the 20½-cent tariff which has been applied to export business out of Minneapolis since the 5th. Up to this afternoon no official information had been received that the rate had been put in, but advices were early expected.

It takes more than a Philadelphia lawyer to keep track of freight tariffs nowadays. So many changes are made in published tariffs that the ticker system ought to be employed to keep shippers posted. A reduction to 9 cents in the flour rate from Duluth to Chicago and Milwaukee is no sooner announced than the report comes from Chicago that the Western lines have gotten together and restored the rate to the old figure of 12½ cents, though it apparently hasn't been issued in published tariff form yet.

Moreover, it seems that the 9-cent rate is sort of a back number, in view of the report that the lake lines have been quoting 7 cents per hundred weight to the same points on the same business. In order to get business to Lake Michigan points, it is necessary for the railways to meet the lake line quotations. In order to protect the Minneapolis shippers, the Minneapolis-Chicago roads must also meet it. Whether the lake lines have been induced to join in the advanced rate is not known.

By-Laws Amended.

The members of the Duluth Boat club met last evening and amended the by-laws so as to give the directors of the club the right to amend the constitution. The object is to allow the issuance of life membership in the club.

No conditions under which these will be granted have been decided upon but it is understood that there are a number of men who will avail themselves of the privilege and the subject will be taken up by the board.

WANTED BY SALT LAKE.

DAY FOR DIVORCES

William J. Webb, who got a divorce in district court this morning from Elizabeth K. Webb, on the ground of cruelty, told the court that his wife consorted against his will with a man of bad character that lived next door, and that during two years she visited the bad man at his house and he visited her at hers. The admission that he had allowed this go on called forth a query from Judge Dibell.

"Well, now," said the court, after Webb had made this statement, "which is the larger man, you or the other fellow?"

"Well," said Mr. Webb, "I guess I am the biggest."

Webb charged his wife with cruelty, not only because she consorted with this bad man freely, but because she went away and left him to take of the children all alone several times, a month at a stretch. Among the items of cruelty that he mentioned were the following:

Telling him that she cared more for the other fellow's little finger than she did for his whole carcass.

Striking him with the stove poker.

Breaking several plates on his head.

Frequently striking him in the face with her fist.

He got the divorce he asked for.

This was divorce day in district court, and all three judges put in most of the morning hearing applications of that sort.

Mary A. Henry, aged 41, got a divorce from Andrew W. Henry, aged 52, on the ground of cruelty. Among other things she charged that her husband fired a revolver into the room in which he supposed she was sleeping. She said the bullet struck in the wall three inches above the head of their son, who was sleeping in the room.

Harriet F. Priest was granted a divorce from August F. Priest on the ground of desertion.

Karile F. Harritin asked for a divorce from Maria M. Harritta on the ground of desertion. He claimed that he left his wife in the old country when he came to America, and that she refused to follow him. Also, that a babe was born to her several years after he left. The case went over to this afternoon for more testimony.

Lizzie Blanchard's application for a divorce from Clovis Blanchard was partially submitted, and the balance of the testimony will be heard later. She sued for divorce on the ground of desertion and cruelty. She said he locked her out of the house when they were living in Minneapolis, so she came to her mother in Duluth.

Selma Hughes failed to get a divorce from James Hughes on the ground of desertion and cruelty, as the court thought there was not evidence enough on which to base a decree. She said Hughes married her in Cleveland last November for what money she had, and then treated her cruelly.

The case of Lenora Moorman against Orlando M. Moorman, for divorce on the ground of cruelty, was submitted yesterday afternoon.

In the case of Dominic Laginestra against Vita Marie Laginestra it was the defendant that got the divorce. Dominic claimed that he came to this country from Italy to make a home for himself and his wife, and that she refused to follow him. She came back with an answer in which she said that he refused to send her money to come over on, and when she did come he refused to receive her. She charged him with committing adultery with one Mary M. Campagna, and she had him there, because she was able to show that he was arrested for it and fined $100. She got a divorce and an order for $50 attorneys' fees.

Annie Blake, aged 32, was granted a divorce from Harry Blake, aged 33, on the grounds of desertion two years and a half after they were married. Minnie Nisusula, aged 32, got a divorce from Henry Nisusula, aged 30, on the same ground. It was less than a year between marriage and desertion in this case.

Desertion was also the ground on which Isabella Persons got a divorce from Johannes Persons, and in this case they walked together less than four months.

About a year was all Minnie Legard and G. O. Legard were able to stand of each other, and this morning Mrs. Legard got a divorce from G. O., he having followed the directions contained in his initials at the end of the year.

Alleges Misrepresentation.

L. C. Sannicola has begun suit in district court against R. V. Simmons, claiming that he did him up on a business deal. He says that Simmons represented to him that he had incorporated a stock brokers' concern, with twenty-five shares of $100 each, that two prominent Eveleth business men had bought $500 worth of stock each, that another wanted the same amount, but that he would rather let Sannicola in on the ground floor. Sannicola bought, and got what he thought was a stock certificate, but which, he says, was valueless. Later he says Simmons got $500 more and a note for $400. He says Simmons misrepresented the matter to him, and he seeks to recover $1000 and the note. Baldwin & Baldwin are the attorneys.

INSPECTION

Of Baggage Will Be Made Much More Agreeable.

Washington, May 8.—Secretary Shaw today issued regulations governing the inspection of baggage of incoming passengers at the ports of the United States. The secretary also has prepared a circular which will be distributed among passengers on all outgoing steamers giving information as specific as possible as to the rates of duty on goods usually purchased abroad by tourists; what articles may be brought in free of duty, etc.

Another circular issued today will be distributed at sea among incoming passengers containing forms of declarations and other information of which travelers usually are in more or less ignorance.

Another circular is addressed to collectors and other officers of the customs giving them particular instructions as to the examination of baggage and the courteous treatment of passengers.

Ladies desiring to have their baggage examined privately will be granted the privilege whenever the steamship company has provided a suitable place. Several of them have promised to make this provision.

CHANGES.

The Wisconsin Central has given notice that it will withdraw at once the rate of $2.15 on steel rails from Chicago to Duluth. The tariff will be restored to the former figure—$2.50 a ton. The concession of 35 cents a ton was made for the benefit of the range and logging roads here. So much railway building has been done here for a number of years that a movement of rails has been in progress that seemed to warrant the lower rate.

A rumor is current today that the lake lines are about to announce a 15½-cent tariff on east bound export flour, Duluth to New York. This would conform to the 20½-cent tariff which has been applied to export business out of Minneapolis since the 5th. Up to this afternoon no official information had been received that the rate had been put in, but advices were early expected.

It takes more than a Philadelphia lawyer to keep track of freight tariffs nowadays. So many changes are made in published tariffs that the ticker system ought to be employed to keep shippers posted. A reduction to 9 cents in the flour rate from Duluth to Chicago and Milwaukee is no sooner announced than the report comes from Chicago that the Western lines have gotten together and restored the rate to the old figure of 12½ cents, though it apparently hasn't been issued in published tariff form yet.

Morpover, it seems that the 9-cent rate is sort of a back number, in view of the report that the lake lines have been quoting 7 cents per hundred weight to the same points on the same business. In order to get business to Lake Michigan points, it is necessary for the railways to meet the lake line quotations. In order to protect the Minneapolis shippers, the Minneapolis-Chicago roads must also meet it. Whether the lake lines have been induced to join in the advanced rate is not known.

By-Laws Amended.

The members of the Duluth Boat club met last evening and amended the by-laws so as to give the directors of the club the right to amend the constitution. The object is to allow the issuance of life membership in the club.

No conditions under which these will be granted have been decided upon but it is understood that there are a number of men who will avail themselves of the privilege and the subject will be taken up by the board.

WANTED BY SALT LAKE.

Salt Lake, May 8.—A movement has been started among prominent sporting men of this city to organize a club and offer a purse of $20,000 to Jeffries and Fitz to meet there in a 20-round contest during the Elks' national convention in August.

CONSPIRACY

G. F. Porter Alleges In Case Against Seelye and Others.

A transcript of the case of George F. Porter against Charles Seelye, Maggie A. Seelye, Ella M. Seelye and William Douglass, was filed in the United States court today. The case has been transferred from the district court of Hennepin county on petition of the defendants. The defendants, Maggie Seelye, Ella Seelye and William Douglass are members of the Chippewa Indian nation and reside on the Winnebigoshish reservation at Bena.

The plaintiff charges that a conspiracy has been entered into by the defendants to defraud him and he has asked for restraining orders to prevent them from drawing funds now held back by the United States Indian office for dead and down timber cut on the reservation, until the rightful possession of the money is decided by the court.

The plaintiff alleges that in 1898 he entered into a copartnership with Charles E. Seelye under the name of the Pokegama Log and Lumber company, to do a general timber land logging and lumber manufacturing business in Northern Minnesota; that the plaintiff was to look after the office and business of the firm at Minneapolis and Seelye was to look after the firm's interests in the camps. He claims that later the firm branched out into a general mercantile business, but that the business which was established on the reservation was in the name of M. A. Seelye & Co., with the understanding that Maggie Seelye was to have no interest whatever in the business, but thatt it was to be run in the interests of the Pokegama Log and Lumber company. He further alleges that the firm entered into contract, under the laws of the United States with Maggie Seelye, Ella Seelye and William Douglass to cut and log their timber for which the defendants were to receive 25 cents per 1000 feet.

The plaintiff alleges that Charles E. Seelye never put any money into the business, that all the obligations were personally met by the plaintiff, and that when finally the outstanding obligations amounted to $35,000 the plaintiff sought to secure a settlement of the partnership business and sale of its equipment in order to pay the firm's debts, but that Charles Seelye refused to give up the papers and contracts or surrender any part of the camp equipment.

It is further alleged that Charles Seelye went through bankruptcy and became released from his obligations, and that when the plaintiff sought to recover the mercantile stock on the reservation, Maggie Seelye, wife of Charles Seelye, asserted her right to the property, and the Indian agent would not allow the plaintiff or officer of the law on the reservation to make a seizure. The plaintiff claims that there is about $18,000 due on the dead and down timber contracts that have been fulfilled, and that the money is now in the hands of the United States Indian office. He alleges that the conspiracy has been formed by the defendants to get about $11,000 of this amount and defraud him of the rest of the property belonging to the Pokegama Log and Lumber company. He says that Charles Seelye, who is the only person to influence the rest of the defendants to give up their unlawful claims, is now in jail and unable to reach them, and he asks the court to restore to him the funds and property he claims, and restrain the defendants from disposing of any of the property until the court settles the question of ownership.

In the petition for the transfer of the case the defendants claim that the money now withheld by the Indian office has accrued to them under the laws relating to the cutting of dead and down timber on the reservation, and that the plaintiff alleges to have acquired their rights for a nominal sum. They have furnished bond to appear at the United States circuit court for trial.

CRAIG FARM

One hundred and forty-seven thoroughbred Angora goats and fifty head of registered sheep, were received in Duluth this morning, consigned to the Jean Du Lhut stock farm in which C. P. Craig and others are interested.

The stock was unloaded from the cars at Lake avenue and driven out through the city to the farm on the East Duluth and Lester river road. Naturally the goats proved to be a great attraction.

The little animals have a long silkish hair that is highly prized for the manufacture of mohair and other dress goods. This hair is worth $1 a pound when twelve inches in length and many of the goats received this morning have hair already ten and eleven inches in length.

Their introduction in this part of the country is purely an experiment, but Mr. Craig and others interested in the stock farm project believe that the experiment will prove a great success. The goats came from a farm near Dubuque, Iowa.

The fifty sheep received were very highly bred animals, being registered. They were bred in Southern Minnesota. Three more carloads of sheep are expected in the near future.

The stock farm to which they are consigned consists of 4242 acres of good grazing land almost within the city limits. At present there are twenty-six head of blooded horses on it.

"WHITE WINGS" APPEAR.

Street Cleaning Force Adopts White Suits.

The street cleaning force of the department of public works appeared today in white uniforms for the first time.

Besides giving a neater appearance to the men the new uniforms protect them from being run down by teams, the white attracting the attention of drivers quicker than ordinary clothing.

The uniforms are of canvas and were made by a local tent making firm.

A CHANGE.

Frank McCreary Becomes Superintendent of Stevenson Mine.

Frank McCreary, for several years past agent for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company, has been appointed superintendent of the Stevenson mine. This property is owned by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., and is one of the largest open pit mines in the world. M. Trewartha, who has been superintendent of the mine, has resigned to go West. Mr. McCreary has already retired from the coal company's employ, and has gone to Hibbing to enter upon his new duties. He will be succeeded here with the Philadelphia and Reading by T. Z. Collins, who has been connected with the office of the company in Superior.

News of the appointment will be received with surprise by the friends of Mr. McCreary generally, and he has a very large circle of them. The matter has been kept very quiet by him, and, moreover, he has never had any experience in the mining business. Mr. McCreary, however, was for a number of years engaged as foreman and superintendent with the contracting firm of Wolf & King, and in that capacity gained a wide experience in the handling of men on work involving the moving of earth and rock, which will be in line with his new duties.

The great importance and responsibility of the new position, occasioned by the extent of the great Stevenson mine, makes the action of the Corrigan-McKinney people in the appointment considerable of an innovation. It has drawn attention to the fact that the mining world is short of operating men. It is not only on the iron ranges but in the far West, Southwest and Northwest that the almost incredible development work that has been going on in mining has called for more mine superintendents than could be created in the normal way. The deep, hard ore mines still depend largely on the practical miner—the man that has mined ore himself. But the steam shovel iron mines are going out of the business for their operating managers.

It is said that the mining companies are finding it absolutely necessary to go to other branches of business nowadays for practical mining superintendency. The supply is unequal to the demand, and with so many more new properties opening and to be opened on the Mesaba range it is freely predicted that there will be much more action taken along the same lines as that of Corrigan-McKinney.

GRAND JURY

Returns Five Indictments and Releases Two Men.

The grand jury organized yesterday afternoon with L. J. Hopkins as foreman, and today it was busily engaged. This morning it ground out and returned five indictments, and reported that it found no bill against R. W. Johnson and Fred Brooks, charged with forgery.

Two indictments were found against James Brown for forgery in the second degree. He is accused of forging two time checks at McKinley, April 18, one for $27.15 and the other for $26.75, and disposing of them to J. B. Carlisle and H. J. Millbrook.

M. J. Tantas was indicted for an unmentionable crime against nature and for burglary in the third degree for breaking into a stable.

Alexander McIntosh was indicted for forgery in the second degree for disposing of a forged time check for $22.31 to A. B. Loutzenleiser in Duluth, April 1.

WAS DOING HIM.

The "Hold Up" Man, Coffee.

Few people know how many persons are made sick and kept sick by coffee drinking. A trained nurse relates her experience with a number of different persons. She says: "Quite a long time ago I discovered that coffee was the cause of violent palpitation of my heart and frequent sick headaches, and attacks of indigestion, so I quit coffee and went on to hot water, not knowing then of Postum Food Coffee.

"Quite a while after I quit coffee my husband began to complain of coffee coming up in his mouth more or less during the forenoon, and it made it very disagreeable for him. One day I said, 'Suppose we try that Postum Food Coffee which is advertised so much.' So we did, and I prepared it according to directions. The beverage proved delicious and we liked it so much and it agreed with us so well we have used it for over two years now.

"My palpitation of the heart, headaches and indigestion have gone altogether. It is very easy to make by boiling fifteen or twenty minutes, with a small piece of butter put in the pot to prevent it boiling over.

"My cousin, who is a telegraph operator, had nervous dyspepsia, having to stay from work every few days. He gave up the use of coffee and commenced using Postum, and since that time he has not been troubled with dyspepsia.

"One woman told me she had suffered with indigestion for three years. She drank nothing but tea. I made Postum for her and showed her how to make it. She liked it and now uses it in her family regularly and is well and happy.

"I could name a dozen or more similar cases." M. N. Clark, 322 Ogden avenue, Chicago, Ill.

HEADS OF THE ORDER

Duluth Maccabees Will Banquet High Officers at Spalding.

Supreme Commander D. P. Markey Will Be Guest of Honor.

Maj. Gen. Scott and State Commander Chellew Also Here.

Tonight at the Spalding the Maccabees at the head of the lakes will give a large banquet and will have as their guests the head of the order, Dr. D. P. Markey, of Port Huron, Mich., supreme commander; Maj. Gen. Scott, of Cleveland, of the Uniform Rank, and State Commander I. N. Chellew. It will be a very large affair and at least 300 are expected to be in attendance.

J. P. Peterson, commander of Duluth tent No. 1, will introduce the toastmaster, George R. Laybourn, and the toasts and speakers will be as follows:

Address of welcome—Hon. George J. Mallory, of West Duluth.

Response of welcome—C. H. Crownhart, of West Superior.

"Our Order in Minnesota"—State Commander I. N. Chellew, of St. Paul.

Flaaten's orchestra will play at the banquet.

Before the banquet a reception for Supreme Commander Markey will be given in the parlors of the hotel, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Dr. D. P. Markey, of Port Huron, Mich., supreme commander, and I. N. Chellew, of St. Paul, state commander of the Maccabees, arrived at the Spalding this morning. They will be joined later in the day by Maj. Gen. Scott, of the uniform rank of the order. Gen. Scott makes his headquarters in Cleveland. He conducts the uniform rank branch separately from the other departments, and the grand or supreme officers of the other branches have no jurisdiction in his deportment. Gen. Scott comes to Minnesota with the purpose of developing his department of the order.

Dr. Markey said this morning that the order was growing very rapidly. "The growth in membership is not confined to any one locality or state," said Dr. Markey. "Last month Illinois made the best showing in respect to the gain of 9326 made in the membership of the order. The month before we gained most largely in New York state, and previously Ohio had done the best. We consider, however, that in proportion to its population Minnesota has and is holding its own in good shape. Last month Minnesota gained over 200 in membership, which would be an exceptional increase in the membership of many fraternal beneficiary organizations all over the country. Our gain of 69,000 last year is greater than the total membership of any one of half the fraternal beneficiary organizations in the country. The membership of our branch of the order is now 285,000, though the aggregate membership of all four branches—the Maccabees, Ladies of the Maccabees, Michigan order and the uniform rank—is now 600,000."

Dr. Markey paid a neat compliment to the work of State Commander Chellew in organizing the state.

Mr. Chellew said that while he was here he would make preparations for active renewal of the work of increasing the membership of the order in this county.

"St. Louis county, however," said Mr. Chellew, "has about 2500 Maccabees, which is the largest membership the order has in any single county in the state. The past year we have been devoting special effort to the development of the order in St. Paul and Minneapolis, and the largest gain in membership has been there. We now have 9000 members in the state, which is a good showing, considering that the order is comparatively so new in Minnesota. The first and second lodges of the Maccabees to be inaugurated in Minnesota were formed in Duluth."

Improving Nation's Capital.

For some time past plans have been under preparation for the beautifying of the city of Washington. The commissioners in charge have visited many European cities, and the result of their search has been embodied in a series of plans, which will make our capital the most beautiful city in the world. In selecting a family medicine, however, it is not necessary to search the world over, because Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the famous American remedy, is recognized as the best remedy nature and science have been able to produce. It has over fifty years of cures to its credit of such ailments as sick headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness and liver and kidney troubles. When you need a medicine for these ailments, don't fail to try the Bitters.

AT WEST DULUTH

The farm house occupied by M. P. Doyle, the contractor, on Bay View Heights, burned to the ground shortly after 7 o'clock last evening. The house was a frame structure and burned so rapidly that none of the contents were saved and it was only by hard work that Mr. Doyle and his men saved the barns and adjoining buildings. Mrs. Doyle was getting lunch for the ten or twelve men employed by her husband and had started a fire. In some manner the fire was communicated to the rafters and the house was only a few minutes in burning. Mr. Doyle owns a home on the heights, but has been renting the farm property for the past few years and living there. The loss on the house and contents is not covered by any insurance. Mr. Doyle has taken up residence in his own house.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

One of the West Duluth street cars jumped the switch at Thirteenth avenue west this morning and tied up all the service west of the Point of Rocks for about half an hour.

Charles Johnson, an employe at the St. Louis mill had the fingers of one hand badly mangled in a chain yesterday. The chain was being used to move some cars and Johnson in some way had his hand caught in the tackle.

It is rumored that the St. Louis mill will begin next week to operate nights as well as days, but this is not yet confirmed. The gang saw at the mill was started this morning for the first time this season and from now on matters will be quite lively at the mill.

Charles Petruschke has gone to Omaha in connection with the large order for boxes that he recently closed with a packing house. Mr. Petruschke is already making some improvements to his plant in the way of enlarging it. A new concrete engine bed is being put under the engine.

A son was born last evening to Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Saunderson, of Forty-sixth avenue west and Onoota street.

George Harrison, Northern Pacific telegraph operator at the West End junction, is on the sick list.

Miss Etta Erick has accepted a position with one of the down town restaurants.

Mrs. Thomas Govett has returned from the range, where she went to attend the funeral of her father, Mr. Nettle.

Twenty-two West Duluth young men have organized an athletic association and will fit up club rooms and a gymnasium. The initiation fee is 50 cents and the monthly dues will be the same amount. The organization will be called the West Duluth Athletic club.

Herman A. Schreck has decided to close up his meat market business in this end of the city and will remove to Lake City. Mr. Schreck says that he will go where he can buy his beef from the farmers and will run a business independent of the beef trust.

Somebody attempted to get into M. J. Filiatrault's undertaking room by the rear entrance the other evening. It is not known whether the prowler was intoxicated or whether he was on felony bent. He was scared away by the noise made when the proprietor got up to investigate.

More complaints are being made by rental agents of damage done to vacant property by mischievous boys. About once or twice a year it becomes necessary for the property owners to have some of the youngsters arrested and fined for their mischief, as an example for the rest, and it is getting about time that more arrests should be made.

E. G. Wallinder has gone to the Twin Cities on a visit.

Henry Breen has gone to Grand Marais on a business trip.

FEDERAL CALENDAR.

Cases That Will Come on at May Term.

The calendar for the term of the federal court which opens in this city next week is as follows:

Marion Douglass vs. George T. Potter.
George E. Desmond vs. Hamilton M. Peyton and Levi A. Barber.
Edward Hines Lumber company vs. A. W. Comstock and W. B. Comstock.
Arthur J. LaFramboise vs. Interstate Traction company.
The United States of America vs. the Union Towing and Wrecking company.
Henry Snyder vs. the Glenmont Lumber company and A. A. Harper.
Theodore Roy vs. the Northern Pacific Railway company.
The United States of America vs. Thomas R. Foley.
The United States of America vs. Warren Potter and Patrick Casey.
The United States of America vs. T. R. Foley Lumber company, two cases.
The United States of America vs. Davidson Steamship company.

Motion and demurrers will be heard in the following cases:

Philip Blais vs. the United States of America.
Duluth Match company vs. Levi E. Ewing, M. H. Alworth, as president and O. H. Simonds as secretary of the Duluth Match company.
Duluth Match company vs. Levi E. Ewing.
Frank W. Eaton, Nikaniss, Richard Fagan and Margaretha Lonstorf vs. the Midway company, James Belden and Charles W. Hilliard.

In the last named case a motion will be argued to remand it back to the court of Lake county, from which it was transferred to the United States circuit court. The suit was brought to quiet title to what is known as the "Belden forty" acres, which was not included in the recent supreme court decision in the famous "section 30" case.

The actions brought by the United States against T. R. Foley, Warren Potter and Patrick Casey are for alleged timber land trespass for which the government seeks to recover damages for timber removed by the defendants.

The actions of the government against the Towing and Wrecking company are for damages done the Duluth ship canal piers through collisions of the defendant company's tugs or boats in tow. The government's action against the Davidson Steamship company is to recover damages for injury done the breakwater at Two Harbors by the steamer Shenandoah, which ran into the new extension last summer.

LAW IS UPHELD.

Albany, N. Y., May 8.—Judge Earle, referee in the matter of constitutionality of the New York state franchise tax law, declared the law constitutional on every point. The decision is still to be passed upon by the appellate division of the supreme court and the court of appeals.

MUST STAND TRIAL.

New York, May 8.—Emma Fisher, the young governess who tried to kill Baby Georgia Simons, of Yonkers, and then shot herself because she feared the child was to be taken from her care and given to someone else, has been declared sane and will have to stand trial on the charge of attempted murder.

A $15,000 Purchase of the Season's Choicest Merchandise

Bought at big reductions and Priced for your buying below any and all competition.

You remember the amazing bargains we gave you last fall after buying Arnold, Constable's surplus stock of high class dress goods?

Think of it—better—yes, five times better. The bargains are so marvelous that we must explain, else you'd have reason to think there was something wrong with the goods.

ARNOLD, CONSTABLE & CO., OF NEW YORK, U. S. A.,

Are universally known as importers, wholesalers and retailers of the highest class of merchandise and we are among their most favored customers. Each season they close out their surplus stock at cost or less—they are willing to take the losses in order that they may show an entirely new stock the following season—and thus it is that we secured from them an immense quantity of Dress Goods, Silks, Wash Goods and Linens at prices which admit of no competition.

Do you wonder how we can offer the goods now? Well, just remember that the season in New York is six weeks to two months earlier than here—that's why.

Shop around your home stores—post yourself on their stocks—bring samples of the best bargains you can find in all Duluth—compare them with what we offer you—we positively assert here are unprecedented money's worths in high-class merchandise in the season's most desirable styles.

Just a few examples to illustrate the unparalleled bargain giving.

$5.00 For $7.50 Waist Patterns—Fifty new and very swell waist patterns of silk and linen—absolutely every thread pure silk or linen—every pattern "different" and exclusive in style. These are the handsomest waistings brought out this season—and the swell shops in the East are selling them at $3.00 the yard. There are none like them elsewhere in Superior or Duluth. We offer you choice of fifty exquisite patterns. Fine and wide—2½ yards make a waist—you can never wear it out—regular price would be $7.50—our price per pattern only $5.00—save $2.50 the pattern.

Suits, Costumes and Wraps

Uncommon styles — but common prices.

Such a difference between the elsewhere stocks and ours—and all the difference is in our favor!

We have told you before—and your fashion books have said the same thing—that the clingy, light-weight materials were the only correct fabrics for spring costumes—and they are!

But what other store hereabouts can show anything like an assortment costumes made of them? Shop around the other stores—then come here and see six costumes of the favored fabrics to every one you'll find elsewhere.

Not only that, you'll find that price for price there is most value for the money here every time.

We give you "extra style without extra price"—as proof of this we quote our unequalled values in stylish, man-tailored suits at $10.50, $12.50, $15.00, $16.50, $18.00, $20.00 and $25.00.

And the Silk Raglans at $15.00, $20.00, $25.00!

And the nobby Jackets at $5.00, $7.50, $10.00, $12.50 and $15.00.

And the swell Cloth Raglans at $10.00, $14.50 and $18.00!

Four striking examples of our remarkable values follow:

$7.50 for stylish, full-length raglans, made of good Oxford gray covert cloth, yoke front and back, trimmed with black satin piping, worth $10. Our price $7.50.

$15.00 for beautiful Etamene suits, the season's most favored fabric—in either blue or black—jacket lined with black taffeta silk—cuffs and lapels of black peau de soie—skirt has large flounce and is lined with nearsilk; an extraordinary bargain at $15.

$15.00 for silk Raglans—Two splendid styles of women's black taffeta silk raglans, one style plainly tailored, the other trimmed with beurre lace, not $20 as elsewhere, but choice at $15.00 each.

$12.50 for silk-lined Etamine Skirts—superb skirts of very fine etamine cloth—made with extra wide graduated flounce over a drop skirt of fine black taffeta silk—and instead of $16.50, our price is only $12.50.

QUEEN'S CONDITION

Continues to Be Satisfactory According to Physicians.

The Hague, May 8.—The bulletin on the condition of Queen Wilhelmina, issued this morning at Castle Loo, the attending physicians say: "There was no increase in the patient's temperature yesterday evening. Her majesty had a good night and her condition this morning gives cause for satisfaction."

Prince Henry has telegraphed his mother (the Grand Duchess Marie of Mecklenburg-Scherwin) that the queen's condition is satisfactory and that she has no fever.

The prince consort this morning attended Ascension day services at the church in Apeldorn. This is taken as a reassuring sign in regard to the queen's condition.

DOUBLES DONATION.

Carnegie Pleased With Award of His Scholarships.

London, May 8.—At this morning's session of the Iron and Steel institute it was announced that the Andrew Carnegie scholarships to carry on researches in metallurgy for this year have been awardede to a Mr. Campbell, of New York; to three Englishmen, to a Parisian, and to a resident of Berlin. Three scholarships were awarded in 1901, but Mr. Carnegie was so gratified with the results then obtained that he doubled his donation.

POLISHERS STRIKE.

Cleveland, May 8.—Four hundred union metal polishers went on strike here today because their employers refused to grant a nine-hour working day. As a result a number of shops were closed. Several of the larger concerns granted the demand of the men and are not affected.

SIX HUNDRED CARS

Ordered For New York's Rapid Transit Subway.

New York, May 8.—Contractor McDonald has given orders for the construction of 600 cars for the rapid transit subway now being built in this city. The cars are to be finished in mahogany. They will be fifty feet long. Each car will have a seating capacity of fifty-two passengers. The windows will be small and it will be impossible to raise them, but there will be perfect ventilation from pipes placed overhead. The cars will be of the vestibule variety.

Orders have already been sent in for the electric motors and several will be ready soon for trial. Although the subway will not be entirely completed until a year from next Christmas, officers of the company plan to operate trains along a part of the line late next fall.

STARVING TO DEATH.

Former Senator Roach In a Serious Condition.

New York, May 8.—Former Senator William N. Roach, of North Dakota, who has been ill several days at his home in this city, will, it is feared, pass away very soon.

As the result of an operation complications have followed, the worst being that he can take no nourishment. His stomach has collapsed and he is now practically starving to death.

ORDER RESTORED.

Comparative Quiet Exists In Russian Provinces.

London, May 8.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Associated Press, after a personal investigation of the situation in Southern Russia, writes from Moscow, under date of Saturday, May 3, as follows: "Comparative order has been restored in the governments of Poltava and Kharkoff, but the peasants are only outwardly quiescent, believing that the grant of a division of the lands will be effected during the coming autumn, leaving the hardy land owners only twenty acres and a yoke of oxen each."

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Banishes

Nervous Prostration, Hysteria and Sleeplessness.

Any intelligent man or woman can easily detect victims of nervous troubles by taking a ten-minute walk on any of the crowded streets of our cities or towns. The observer will note countenances full of fever'sh anxiety, harassed looks, unsteady hands, faltering steps, twitching muscles, pallid faces and startled, anxious looks when unusual noises are made. Such people are, without doubt, victims of nervous prostration, hysteria or insomnia. The whole system suffers—the brain, the spinal cord and the sympathetic system.

It is unnecessary to dilate minutely on the causes of nervousness. Business cares and disappointments, haste after riches and honors, social and household worries, sexual and alcoholic excesses, watching and anxiety, and loss of near and dear ones, all contribute to the breaking down of the nervous organism of men and women.

In earnest words we set before this afflicted class the truth that Paine's Celery Compound affords a speedy and sure cure for all forms of nervous diseases. The great medicine is a perfect restorer of nerve force and power; a sure builder and strengthener of the weak and debilitated system.

Paine's Celery Compound has enabled thousands in every city and town of our land to renew and invigorate their health and keep their places in business and in society. In all large centers where nervous diseases are common, the best physicians prescribe Paine's Celery Compound with continued success.

A few bottles of nature's health restorer used during the month of May will completely banish all nervous disorders, by giving new nerve force, purer blood, better digestion, normal appetite and refreshing sleep. In a word, Paine's Celery Compound will give you the full powers of robust manhood and true womanhood.

Sault Traffic In April and Comparison With Former Years.

The traffic through the Sault during the month of April this year exceeded the entire business of the canal during the seasons of either 1882 or 1883, and it was not until 1887 that there was a season in which the volume of traffic through the Sault canal doubled that of April of this year.

This is especially remarkable because of the fact that ordinarily the April traffic is exceedingly light, and that in many seasons it amounts to nothing at all.

The freight passing through the American and Canadian canals during April of this year, as compiled at St. Mary's Falls, amounted to 2,322,579 tons, and the entire business of the canal in the season of 1882 was 2,029,521 tons and in 1883 it was 2,267,105 tons. The season business shows an almost steady increase from 2,029,521 tons in 1882 to 28,406,065 tons in 1901. The figures for the year named and those intervening are as follows:

1884	2,874,057	1894	13,195,990
1885	3,256,628	1895	15,062,589
1888	6,411,423	1898	21,234 664

Senior Entertainment.

The sparring match which will be pulled off in the course of the senior annual musical and dramatic entertainment at the high school Friday evening, will be an interesting event. Fred Johnston is to be one of the participants. His reputation as a pugilist puts all doubt that great amusement will be had from the event aside. Besides this fistic encounter the program of the entertainment includes some of the finest of the new operatic music and a thoroughly laughable two-act farce. From all indications the entertainment this year will be one of the best that has ever been given by a graduating class at the local high school.

Steamer Belle P. Cross Blossoms Out In New Dress.

Rebuilt with a larger carrying capacity and resplendent in a new coat of paint, the steamer Belle P. Cross, owned by Clow & Nicholson, whose blunt nose and high rounded stern has for years been a familiar sight in the Duluth harbor, will go into commission again next Monday. During the coming season she will be put in the tie and timber trade between Duluth and the north and south shore points.

The improvements that have been made on the steamer during the past winter amount to about $6000. She has had a new keelson 80 feet long, with sister keelsons, new lining, shelving, new decks and deck beams, new frames and stanchions of oak, a covering board, windlass, bits, bulwarks, new hull planks, an oak stem, in fact, nearly all new material has been put in above the water line. The steamer's original dimensions were 135 feet over all, 26-foot beam and 12 feet in depth. Her original carrying capacity was 298 tons. Clow & Nicholson have widened the boat in the rebuilding process so that her capacity will be increased by about 50,000 pounds. She will be measured and given a new rating sometime this week.

The old steamer Belle P. Cross is one of the oldest steamers now in active service on the lakes. She was built in Trenton, Mich., in 1870. There are a few propellers now running that are three or four years older, and a small number of tugs about the same age, but it is doubtful if there is another boat so familiar to the vesselmen along the shores of Lakes Superior and Huron and the St. Clair river.

The Cross was built for Hawgood & Avery, of Cleveland, and is said to have laid the foundation for the fortunes of that firm which now controls a large fleet of modern boats. The Cross towed logs and lumber on Lakes Huron and Erie for nearly twenty years and Capt. H. G. Inman, manager of the local tug office says that as a boy, on the shores of Lake Huron, he can remember the old Belle P. Cross passing with as many as six lumber laden schooners in tow. Thirty years ago the lumber rates were high and the earnings of a boat the size of the Cross were considerable. Capt. Robards, now master of the steamer S. S. Curry, was master of the Belle P. Cross for nearly eighteen years.

Since she first slid into the waters the Cross has had a varied career. After Hawgood & Avery had run her for years, they sold the steamer to Capt. B. B. Inman, of this city. Capt. Inman had the boat in the lake trade for a number of years until, in the fall of 1896, the Cross was numbered among the boats that were burned in Capt. Inman's yards. The fire took place after the decision had been reached that the Belle P. Cross had seen her best days and she had been dismantled of her machinery, the engines being placed in the tug G. A. Tomlinson, which a few years afterward was sent to South Chicago.

After lying abandoned in the harbor for a short time the hull of the Cross was sold at a sheriff's sale to Capt. Con Flynn. For a long time she was the bone of contention in a puzzling legal fight for a large number of bills had collected against the boat and the claimants were at loss as to whether they should follow the machinery or the hull with their claims.

Capt. Flynn finally disposed of the hull to Clow & Nicholson, who, after an investigation that showed the hull, built of Michigan blue oak was about as good as when the boat was first launched, refitted her, and this winter made more extensive improvements until the steamer is now considered even more seaworthy than before.

Clow & Nicholson have leased 100 feet of dockage at the foot of Fifth avenue west, purchased the warehouse at the foot of the dock which was formerly owned by the Howard Transportation company, and have made the building the office and warehouse for the Belle P. Cross and the excursion steamer Newsboy. Capt. Duncan Clow is now in Detroit to bring the Newsboy to Duluth. She will arrive about the last of the month. The Newsboy is licensed to carry 500 passengers on a long run.

ARE ACTIVE.

Building Operations at the West End Progressing Well.

West End people are pointing with no small degree of pride to the building activity in that portion of the city at the present time, particularly on Twentieth avenue west. At the foot of Twentieth avenue L. M. Johnson is completing a new 2-story frame building 100 feet long, fronting on Michigan street. The lower floor is to be used by him as a feed store and the upper floor has been arranged into flats for rental purposes.

At the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Second street, C. J. Anderson will have soon completed his apartment building containing flats for about ten families. Mr. Anderson bought the old Mission church property that occupied the corner, rebuilt it, put a stone foundation under the building and veneered it with brick. He has made it a very attractive piece of property.

There is more building activity in church circles at the West End than in any other part of the city. The congregation of the Second Baptist church, at the corner of Twentieth avenue west and First street is putting up a new stone and brick building.

J. F. Fredin has been awarded the contract for the foundation, which amounts to $2000.

Thecongregation of the Swedish Methodist church, at the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Third street, is planning on a new foundation for the church building that will cost in the neighborhood of $2000 or $2500.

There is considerable talk that the Bethany Lutheran congregation, whose wooden church building is located on the northwest corner of Twentieth avenue west and Third street, will also rebuild this season with a handsome brick structure. Estimates of the cost of a new building have been asked for, but no definite steps have yet been taken toward rebuilding.

MEET ON DIAMOND

Duluth and Minneapolis Central High Schools Will Come Together.

Baseball Teams Will Play at Driving Park Next Saturday.

Duluth Boys Are Confident of Their Ability to Win.

Saturday afternoon one of the most important baseball games of the local high school season will be played. Duluth will meet the Central high school, of Minneapolis. The Minneapolitans have a great reputation, having won from most of the scholastic teams about the Twin Cities and several times made good showings in practice games with the University.

Duluth also has an excellent team and as great a reputation. She has already beaten the Nelson-Dewey high school of Superior by a score of 57 to 1, and the Ironwood high school team 18 to 0.

It is reported that the Minneapolitans who will come here for the game on Saturday have heard the stories of these two games and are thoroughly alive to the fact that if they will they will have to play one of the best games of their lives. They have been putting in some extra practice hours preparing to defeat the local players.

The Duluth boys have a pitcher in the person of Capt. Cummings who is without a peer in the interscholastic circles of the Northwest, and they are confident that with his always enigmatical twirling, they will be able to give the Twin City men a dose of about the same medicine that they administered to Ironwood last week.

Certain it is that the game will be a battle royal between the two best high school teams in Minnesota. Enthusiasm boils over among the local supporters of high school athletics, and now that special interest is attached to the high school team, for it is probably the only one that Duluth will have in the field this year, owing to the failure of the regular city team to materialize, an immense crowd is expected to be out at the driving park at 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon to witness the struggle.

Duluth was beaten by the Minneapolis school last fall by a score of 12 to 0 in one of the best football games ever witnessed on the local field. This is the chance to pay off the old score that the local high school men have been ardently desiring for the last few months.

DOUBT IT.

Odin Halden's Friends Do Not Credit St. Paul Story.

The St. Paul Dispatch last evening published a pretty political tale about St. Louis county's candidate for state auditor, as follows:

"The latest political story to come from Duluth is that Odin Halden and S. G. Iverson, rival candidates for the state auditorship, have reached an understanding by which Halden is to become a candidate for clerk of the supreme court, receiving the backing of the Iverson supporters, and that if return Halden's friends will support Iverson for the auditorship. The reason for this, as given by a Duluth man, is that the farmers of the state would never consent that the auditorship should go to St. Louis county, where the iron, steel and shipping interests of the state are centered, but that they would not object to allowing that county the clerkship of the supreme court, or some other office that would have nothing to do with the taxation of the mining properties. Whether anything is to come of the deal or not, time will tell, but it is favored by a number of Duluth politicians."

Mr. Halden is in St. Paul and could not be seen about this story today, but his friends say that they doubt very much if such an idea has occurred to him, though it may have occurred to others.

MANGLED.

Michael Kucharik Torn to Pieces By Train Near Virginia.

Michael Kucharik was run over by a Duluth, Missabe & Northern passenger train near Virginia yesterday afternoon and instantly killed. His remains were horribly mangled. Engineer J. H. Laubach of the passenger train says that Kucharik deliberately threw himself in front of the engine, but the dead man's friends say that he tried to cross in front of the train and failed.

According to Mr. Laubach's story, the train had just left Virginia and reached a spot a mile from the station where miners passing from Virginia to one of the mines use the track for a footpath. Two men were standing about twenty feet from the road, and as they were out of all possibility of danger, the engineer paid no attention to them. Suddenly Kucharik broke away from his companion, John Kapril, and rushed toward the track. Running up the grade, he stumbled and fell headlong directly in front of the train. The engineer reversed, but though the train stopped quickly for the speed at which it was going, Kucharik was ground up beneath the wheels. His companion put his hands before his face, shrieked, and ran away screaming. Mr. Laubach believes that it was a case of deliberate suicide.

A telegraphic story of the killing from Virginia says that the men were walking along the track on their way home from the Auburn mine, and that they stepped off to get out of the way of the train, but that Kucharik did not get away in time.

Kucharik, who was employed at the Auburn mine, leaves a wife and child. He was an Austrian and a member of the Catholic Slavonic union, in which he carried $1000 insurance.

ASPHALT PAVEMENT A FAILURE.

ON THE MARITAL SEA.

His Voyage Was Very Short and Tempestuous.

St. Paul, May 8.—William Bishop, after enduring cuffs and kicks to secure Hannah Heineman for his wife, now announces, after a wedded life of eight months, that they have separated, and that he will not be responsible for her expenses.

The Heinemans live in the Marlowe flats, Maria avenue. One Sunday evening last August, while Bishop was wooing, he was summarily ejected from the building by the girl's father and ordered to keep away. His persistency won the girl however, and they were married and settled in the home of the parents.

Yesterday Bishop decided to move. Mrs. Bishop declined to go with him. Wherefore this announcement.

NASTURTIUM TO COME BACK.

New York, May 8.—W. C. Whitney's English derby candidate, Nasturtium will it is reported, be shipped back to the United States on the steamer Minneapolis. Great hopes had been held for the winning of the classic event by an American-bred animal; but, soon after Nasturtium's arrival in England several months ago, he developed lung trouble. Mr. Whitney is said to hold small expectations of ever racing him again.

BRITISH TRAIN DERAILED.

London, May 8.—Lord Kitchener reports another accident, on May 7, to a train bound from Pretoria to Pietersburg, Northern Transvaal. The cars weer derailed at a curve and an officer and ten men were killed.

High Beef A Benefit

Keener Brain

come from

Grape-Nuts

Try a chance and "cut out out" meat for breakfast.

Our word for it you will feel "Fit as a Lord" in a week's time by breakfasting on Grape-Nuts and cream, a little fruit and perhaps one or two soft eggs.

If you try this experiment, you will always bless the day of high beef that waked you up.

There's a reason why Grape-Nuts furnishes power to the body and brain. The food contains selected parts of the field grains that furnish phosphate of potash in a natural state that can be assimilated by the human body, this joins with the albumen of food and forms the soft filling of the brain and nerve centers.

Feed skillfully and you can do things.

The greatest brain workers in America eat Grape-Nuts.

Ask one or two, they'll tell you.

You meat eaters who are ailing in any sort of way might take a valuable hint from the following statement of Chief Chemist Wiley, of the Agricultural Department, in the Daily Press from which we give the following extracts:

There is no doubt of the fact that meat-eating is not essential to human life, and that men can be well nourished without resorting to flesh diet.

"I think the statement may be accepted without question that, as a rule, we eat too much, not only of meat, but of all forms of food. The question of limiting the diet is placed primarily not on the principle of economy, but on the requirements of hygiene.

"At the early breakfasts which Americans are wont to indulge in, that is, a hearty meal before going to their daily work, the omission of meat is to be earnestly advised.

"It is well known that men who are nourished very extensively on certain cereals are capable of the hardest and most enduring labor. Meats are quickly digested, furnish an abundance of energy soon after consumption, but are not retained in the digestive organism long enough to sustain permanent muscular exertion."

You will feel the energy of Grape-Nuts longer than any meal of meat.

Remember Grape-Nuts food costs about one cent per meal for each person and all grocers sell it.

MODERN WOODMEN

Banner to Be Presented to Duluth Camp at Armory.

Large Attendance From Camps Outside the City Expected.

Gov. Van Sant Is to Be Present---The Complete Program.

Duluth camp No. 2341, of the West End, which won the state banner from St. Paul in the membership contest during the past year, will celebrate the event at the Armory, this evening, in elaborate style. The camp has a membership at the present time of 1144, the increase during the past year being 500 members.

The event is one that the West End Woodmen have been planning for a long time, but before now were not able to secure the Armory. They have sent invitations to every Woodman camp in the Northwest to assist in the celebration, and assurances have been received from West Superior, Old Superior, West Duluth, Proctorknott, New Duluth and nearly all of the range towns that large delegations will attend. Governor Van Sant is also among those who have promised to attend.

The state banner has been held by one of the St. Paul camps for several years, and it is a matter of pride to Duluth Woodmen that it is coming to the northern part of the state. The presence of the banner in the Northwest is sure to stimulate a brisk rivalry among the camps for increased membership another year.

The banner presentation exercises this evening will include a literary and musical program, followed by dancing. The program is as follows:

March—"A Signal From Mars"...E. T. Paul

THROUGH A TRESTLE.

Big Mogul Engine Plunges Into the Bay.

A mogul engine belonging to the Northern Pacific company went through a trestle work at one of the terminal elevators at Old Superior yesterday afternoon, and plunged into the waters of the bay. The big engine now lies nearly submerged in eight feet of water.

The engine, which was one of the largest and heaviest at the head of the lakes, was hauling several cars of wheat to the elevator, when the trestle work began to sway under the heavy locomotive and suddenly gave way, the engineer and fireman having time to jump to the nearest timber work. None of the cars went through the trestle. Owing to its great weight, a special wrecking apparatus will have to be sent from the Northern Pacific shops at Brainerd to raise the engine.

FIRST TIME.

Mrs. Tomas Palma Has Never Before Visited Cuba.

New York, May 8.—"I leave many friends behind, but I go to a country full of them," said Mrs. Tomas Estrada Palma, the first lady of Cuba, who starts today on the steamship Havana for the new republic.

"I was not born a Cuban, I have never even been to Cuba," she added. "But I know what my husband has felt, has hoped all these years. When he left me to go there as the president he kept saying: 'I am sure I'm dreaming.'" Mrs. Palma's home here has been in Central Valley, N. Y., where her husband for many years conducted a school. Her eldest son, Jose, remains at Columbia university. Her other five children will accompany her to Cuba.

FAMILY AGAINST HIM.

Wealthy Ranchman In Texas Is Murderously Assaulted.

El Paso, Tex., May 8.—John Graham, a wealthy ranchman, lies dangerously wounded at his home, seven miles west of the city, in New Mexico. His wife, his 16-year-old daughter and his daughter's friend, "Jim" Crow, are inmates of the county jail. They are charged with attempting to murder him.

Graham was beaten into insensibility by the prisoners according to his story, and bound to the Southern Pacific railway track to be mangled by the first passing train. An hour later he recovered consciousness and escaped.

Crow fled from the sheriff of Las Cruces into the hills, but, heavily armed, was captured yesterday by four officers. He was with his sweetheart and her mother when arrested and offered no resistance.

Graham declares that his family, aided by Crow and a negro, attempted to murder him to get his property.

Congress May Adjourn Next Month.

The question of adjournment is again a matter of conversation among the members of congress and the consensus of opinion seems to be that some time during the latter half of June congress will cease its labors. Senator Allison thinks that about June 15 will see the finish of the present session. Other senators are of the opinion that congress will complete its labors in time to adjourn by June 10. Senator Platt of New York said he would be agreeably surprised if congress adjourned before July 1. There is no doubt that if the Democratic senators, who at the present time are engaged in stirring up the administration and the war department in connection with the war in the Philippines decide that they have collected sufficient campaign material and stop talking and bring the Philippine investigation to a close, congress can easily complete its work by June 15, the time set by Senator Allison. Nearly all of this year's appropriation bills have passed the house and a number of them have been acted on favorably by the senate. Old timers say that never in their experience was the work of congress so well advanced at this period as it is this year. The men who have charge of the great money measures in the senate say they can put them through in short order. It is the opinion of many that the Republicans have no idea of putting through their Philippine government bill at this session, and that the leading senators of the party brought it up in order to prevent any legislation on the Nicaragua canal. It is just possible that Senator Teller's resolution for the appointment of a commission to investigate conditions in the Philippines may be agreed to. There is nothing in the present condition of things in the senate to prevent an adjournment by the middle of June. Both the Democrats and the Republicans are at heart anxious to get away from Washington and return to their respective districts.

Will Secretary Root Resign?

The fact that Secretary of War Root has given up his house at Washington has started anew the rumors that the secretary intended to resign on account of the decision of the president not to retire Gen. Miles. There is no doubt but what the secretary is very much displeased by the latest decision of President Roosevelt. When the secretary left for Cuba it was with the distinct understanding that Miles was to be retired. The people and the press of the country expected that this action would be taken; indeed, it was officially announced from the White House that the president had decided to retire Gen. Miles. Senator Hoar and two or three of Gen. Miles' senatorial supporters called at the White House and protested against his retirement. Greatly to the surprise of the officials of the war department, the president changed front completely, and shortly afterward it leaked out from the White House that the Miles matter was held up, and that no action would be taken. Secretary Root was astonished and indignant when he heard this. It is said he had claimed to the president that the present status of affairs at the department was intolerable, and that he found it impossible to hold any communication whatever with the general commanding the army, and that the relations between them had been for a long time strained almost to the breaking point. However, it is stated that the surrender of his Washington home by the secretary has nothing to do with the Miles controversy. The simple facts are that the house, which commands a rental of some $8000, was leased by the secretary last May for one year. When the time arrived for renewing the lease, he decided that, as his family were soon to leave Washington for their seaside home and be absent nearly of quite half the coming year, it would be a more sensible plan to surrender the house and take the chances of finding the same house vacant or another equally suited to his needs in the fall. While this is undoubtedly the solution of the house question, the fact remains that Secretary Root feels that he has not been upheld and may resign at any time.

THE ST. PAUL ELECTION.

The sweeping victory gained by the Democrats in the city of St. Paul may be regarded as due entirely to local issues, and yet there were many who believed that on those issues the Republicans would win. Possibly the dissatisfaction of the people arising from the high cost of living, brought about by the beef trust and other combines, turned some votes to the Democratic side, as the Republican party in congress has failed to legislate in any way to relieve the situation and is therefore held responsible for the high prices. Robert A. Smith's popularity, of course, had much to do with the result of the election. This is the sixth time that the people of St. Paul have elected Mr. Smith as mayor of their city, and he must feel much pleased with this remarkable expression of confidence. He has never experienced the sting of defeat—an unusual record. The people believe in the honesty and ability of "Bob" Smith, and apparently the majority are willing that he shall remain mayor as long as he desires to hold the office.

City Treasurer Bremer again proved himself a whirlwind as a vote-getter, his majority exceeding 4000. The defeat of the old city comptroller, J. J. McCardy, is a surprise. His successful opponent is Louis Betz, who ran against him two years ago, when Betz was declared elected on the face of the returns by a slender majority, but McCardy won out on a recount. This time Betz has nearly 300 majority, and a recount would not change the result. McCardy has been comptroller for many years and has been a capable official. Both branches of the city council will now be Democratic—the first time this has happened for a dozen years. A singular feature of the election was the triumph of the Republican candidates for municipal judges, who ran thousands of votes ahead of their ticket.

MOODY AND THE NAVY.

As soon as the new secretary of the navy, William Henry Moody, becomes a little more familiar with the surroundings of his office he will be heard from. He has some decided ideas of his own concerning naval affairs which he will proceed to execute. He wants to see a strong American navy, and will use his best endeavors to increase the strength of that of this country. Mr. Moody entertains positive ideas about the duties of naval officers, and it is in regard to this matter that his administration promise to furnish surprises. He believes that the place for a naval officer is at sea, and after he gets well settled in his new position a general clearing out of officers who are performing clerical and civilian duties at the department and the various navy yards may be looked for.

The new secretary does not think that all officers should be at sea, for he recognizes the fact that it is essential to the perfect education of a navy man that he should have experience in the management of certain lines of departmental business affecting the service. To this extent, therefore, he will not object to the presence of naval officers at the department and the other shore stations, but he will not encourage or tolerate the wholesale assignment to shore details of officers with pulls. Naval duties for naval men is the motto of Mr. Long's successor, and in carrying out this policy he will overturn the customs and practices of many years past.

Mr. Moody will find abundant opportunity for reform in this direction, for it is a notorious fact that there are dozens of officers at the department and at the navy yard in Washington performing duties that properly belong to $1000 clerks. Secretary Moody is a man of strong will, with a reputation earned in the house for insisting on the correction of wrongs and abuses when once convinced that wrongs and abuses exist. Consequently it is predicted that he will have the courage and persistency necessary to successfully combat the powerful pull of naval officers who are now ensconced in clerical positions at the department and elsewhere. It will be a gratifying change.

THE ARMY BILLS.

The hopes of the war department officials, from Secretary Root down, for what they are pleased to term army reform, are blasted for this season of congress at least. When the session began the plan was to have the bill for the consolidation of the staff put through the senate and the bill for federalizing the militia put through the house, so that the two would not get in the way of each other, and that there would be no rivalry between committees, which is often the secret of failure of programs excellent in themselves and well appreciated by the people. In the house there is a separate committee to handle bills affecting the militia, as distinguished from bills affecting the United States army. This committee took very kindly to the scheme of militia reform recommended by Secretary Root, made this its own, and reported its bill with commendable promptness.

Nothing more was done with the bill, however, as it was deemed inadvisable to push it ahead until the staff consolidation bill had been started equally well on its course by the senate committee on military affairs, the plan being to have the two bills pass their respective chambers and cross each other in the corridor at about the end of the session. No one could then foresee Gen. Miles' appearance before the senate committee in contemptuous hostility to the Root plan, or the peculiar group of circumstances surrounding that incident, or its dramatic sequel. But it came, and following closely was the Gardener report in the interests of reform administration in the Philippines. This proved too much for those who were friendly to the bill, and blocked the way completely for legislation. Even members of the senate committee who were not positively opposed to it felt that they, too, had something at stake in this matter, and that the overloaded condition of the military topic calendar afforded abundant excuse for abstaining from further activity in behalf of the Root bill.

There was the army appropriation bill, the fortifications bill, the West Point academy bill, the consideration of a number of executive nominations, etc., going to make up a very lively session, if due attention were paid to all the subjects. As nobody was pressing for the passage of the Root bill, except Mr. Root, and as the Miles' incident and the Gardener report had for the moment obscured his supremacy in the public mind, it was thought best to let this business stand unfinished. And there it is today, and there it will probably remain.

THE STATUS OF SPAIN.

"The Situation in Spain," as depicted in the May number of the North American Review, by Sydney Brooks, who recently spent several months of observation in the peninsula, is far from reassuring to the friends and well-wishers of the young king who is about to be crowned. For three years and more Catalonia has maintained determined resistance to the payment of the national taxes. Again and again the wealthiest and most progressive province of Spain has hissed its own national anthem, and greeted the "Marseillaise" with cheers. The tours of the young king two summers ago through the northern districts had to be abruptly broken off, so cool was the welcome offered him in the first few towns visited. Since the close of the Spanish-American war Spain has been in a state of troublous unrest. Barely a week has gone by without its record of riots and random shootings, of violent strikes, of cities in a state of siege, of suspensions of constitutional guarantees in province after province. More than once the capital itself has been placed under martial law, and from all over the country have come reports of demonstrations against the octroi duties, against the priesthood, against the payment of national taxes. The question, is the throne on the eve of being shaken by revolution? Mr. Brooks says, is by no means fantastic. Mr. Brooks does not reckon Carlism among the serious dangers:

"Carlism, indeed, has ceased to be a cause and sunk into a mere cult. From thirty to fifty years ago, Europe had a semi-Byronic attachment for the fortunes of the Legitimists. The hero of the novels of the period had usually done a little fighting for the Carlists; the heroine was not infrequently a nurse in the Carlist service. Something of romance and aristocratic flavor hung round the banner of the pretender. It was the gentlemanly and high-bred thing to be a subscriber to the Carlist funds, and whenever the pretenders took the field they could always rely on the active support of English and continental free lances of birth and standing. All this has now vanished; the nobility have outgrown their whim, and Carlism, like everything else, has fallen under the grip of speculators, religious and financial. These, with a muster of Spanish grandees, make up the elements that now compose Don Carlos' 'court,' and a very curious sight they offer to one who chances upon them on the continent—the dull face and overgrown figure of the pretender, and hovering around him, now a soft-footed, obsequious priest, now a courtly Spanish nobleman, now a flashy bediamonded 'financier' of Semitic origin and usually French nationality."

A revolution in Spain at this time, resulting in the overthrow of the present ruler, would probably mean the establishment of a republic, and strange as it may seem to Americans, probably with Gen. Weyler as president.

There is a tariff upon beef cattle of 7½ per cent, so that a steer worth $50 in Canada would be worth $63.75 if brought to the United States. Every pound of fresh meat imported must pay a tax of 2 cents and the government of the United States thus protects the beef trust by law. Now it will pay attorneys and other officials for prosecuting the very institution which it has built up.

Dr. Patton, formerly of Duluth, and now preaching at St. Louis, said the other day that "we have more liberty than we know what do with." Whereat the Post-Dispatch remarks: "This may be true, but we do not care to give any of it to the Filipinos."

The immigration into the United States during the first four months of 1902, was 178,604, which is 30,099 larger than for the corresponding period in any past year. This is the result of our prosperity and the desire of foreigners to get a slice of it.

The sugar trust seems to be different from the rest. It appears to have nothing to conceal. It is so sure of its position that when called out on the carpet it invariably assumes a what-are-you-going-to-do-about-it air.

It is said that in the southern extremity of Lower California, no rain has fallen for three and a half years. And yet other places talk of drouth when no rain falls for a month.

Cattle are plentiful in Mexico and Canada, but the high tariff wall keeps them out. Pull down the wall, and end the beef trust's power to hold up the people!

The wisdom of postponing the St. Louis World's fair until 1904 is admitted generally. The postponement should ensure complete readiness on the opening date.

Gen. Bell's order of "retaliation" on Filipinos, whose sole offense was a desire for independence may demand another court-martial.

May not the high price of meat and other trust-controlled necessaries of life account in part for the Democratic landslide at St. Paul?

THE PAPER OF THE HOME

Unequalled Value of the Evening Paper As An Advertising Medium—Why It Is Superior to the Morning Paper in That Particular.

(Correspondence of the Indianapolis News.)

New York, April 23.—On invitation of the board of directors of the American Association of Newspaper Publishers, M. Lee Starke, New York representative of the Indianapolis News,, read before that body an interesting paper on "Daily Newspaper Space as an Investment."

After dwelling briefly upon the advantages of advertising in daily papers rather than in magazines, and pointing out the growing trend of many from magazines, Mr. Starke dwelt upon the value of the afternoon newspaper as an advertising medium, saying:

"Analyzing still farther, and going to the logical and ultimate conclusion from premises that cannot be disputed, I confidently assert that the best daily newspaper is the afternoon paper. Authorities of high standing and greatest success among the leading advertisers of the United States agree that approximately seven-eighths of the supplies and furnishings purchased for consumption in the home are bought by the feminine head of the family—and obviously inseparable from this fact is the axiom that the daily newspaper that goes to and finds a welcome in the home is manifestly the most effective medium.

The most successful advertisers eloquently express their conviction on this point by spending the bulk of their appropriation in the afternoon newspaper—which is not read alone by the member of the family who, as a rule, does little shopping excepting for his own personal requirements, nor hastily read and then thrown aside, with only in rare cases so much as a glance at the advertisements. The policy of these large advertisers is explained by the fact that they find the afternoon paper produces better results than does the morning paper, for it goes into the hands of the most responsive to their announcements, and who, moreover, has a keen and constant interest in the publicity that appeals to the home and the family.

"To sum up I believe I can claim, without successful contradiction, that in the average community the evening paper has the largest home circulation, prints the most local news, commands the most responsive class of readers, most satisfactorily makes business for the advertiser—and, indeed, that from every viewpoint, the home evening daily is the king of all advertising mediums.

Some Opinions From Authorities.

"To substantiate the contention that the daily newspaper is a more valuable and effective medium than the magazine, and that of daily newspapers the evening edition is the superior, these quotations from advertisers of experience and judgment are submitted.

"The busy housewife has no time to con over the advertisements in the morning paper. If she has, she cannot arrange her housework in a moment, so that she can go down town to take advantage of the bargains offered. When she reads of bargains in the evening paper, however, she makes preparations to start early next morning; and a large percentage of those early morning shoppers who struggle for the first places at the bargain counter, are the readers of the evening paper, and not, as might be supposed, the readers of the morning paper.

Evening Paper the Best.

"If you must discuss the matter, why not also use the arguments of the evening newspaper man—that his paper gives the people the day's news from twelve to fourteen hours ahead of the morning papers, and that he delivers his papers to the readers at the time of day when they have the greatest leisure and time to read, i. e., at the supper table and around the evening lamp? He would also tell you that the business men read the evening papers more thoroughly than they do the morning papers, buying a copy on the street before they start for home at the end of their days' work; peruse it thoroughly during the tiresome street car trip to their homes, and then hand it over to the family. He would also tell you that the average housekeeper has only time in the early part of the day to glance over the headlines in the morning papers, to get the principal news items, and then the paper is cast aside, while the evening paper, with the full day's news, reaches the home at the most convenient time or day, and is read from beginning to end, advertisements included.

Edition With Larger Circulation.

"There is no doubt that the evening daily is the daily for the advertiser. It comes into the home after the merchant's work is done, and he can sit down and study it—and his competitor's ads—to his utmost satisfaction. The good wife has time to look over its columns, and the same order of things holds good in the home of the mechanic and laborer. The morning daily is laid one side by the busy merchant, at his store, and the busier housewife at her home. The laborer or mechanic has no time to read it before he goes to work, and is not allowed to read during working hours. You can always depend upon it that the evening daily has the larger circulation for these very reasons, and is, therefore, the better medium.

The People Who Must Be Reached.

"A paper issued in the morning does not get into the homes or is not read by the working classes—and these places and people must be reached by a paper, to make it powerful as a factor and valuable as an advertising medium. It is the evening paper, purchased by the man or delivered by the boy, that reaches the home. And in the quiet of the home at evening it is carefully read by the family."

WHEN JENNIE LAUGHS.

A light foot flits adown the stair,
A burst of laughter trills the air;
She comes; her merry music swells
Like carol from deep wildwood dells,
Or chime from dreamland's airy bells,
When Jennie laughs.

In sunlight at my study door
Her slender shadow flecks the floor;
An instant, tip-toe poised, she bides
To scan if aught her presence chides;
She nods—and laughs!

Her white arms round my neck she slips,
She prints a warm kiss on my lips;
What sweet persuasive art she brings
As, nestling to my heart she clings,
And, softly as a linnet sings,
She pleaus—and laughs!

I try to frown—a sheer pretense!
I quote wise saws—a fraud prepense
To keep my lovely captive there!
But frown, doubt, scruple, maxim fair—
E'en rules of logic—melt in air,
When Jennie laughs!

Who could resist that pleading face?
Who daunt ...at timid, winsome grace?
Long ere her pretty plea be done,
Long ere my cross-play mood be gone,
She knows right well her cause is won—
And so—she laughs!

The gracious charm, the witching wile,
The subtle power of tear and smile,
The spells that sway the hearts of men,
All blend their potent magic, when—
Her mother's living self again!—
My Jennie laughs!

God bless the child! As off she goes,
Her gleeful soul in song outflows;
The old house—yes, the old world, too—
With light and gladness thrill anew,
And life takes on a brighter hue
When Jennie laughs.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Trust a woman to trust a man.

It makes a woman awfully lonesome not to have something once in so often to sit down and have a good cry over.

A woman will marry a man for himself and learn to love his riches afterward, but she seldom marries him for riches and learns to love him for himself.

If men did not get into trouble and have women stand by them they would never know what it is about women that makes men sometimes want to die for them.

There was never a rich old skinflint who at some time in his life would not give all his gold to have one minute of the joy of a happy boy who doesn't know a dollar from a penny.

Distance Lends Enchantment.

Chicago News: Most of us would rather be looking at the train through a telescope when it was breaking a world's speed record than be riding on it.

Game Two Can Play At.

Philadelphia Record: Fair play is a jewel. What if the exclusion of Chinese immigrants from the United States should be met with a demand for the exclusion of American missionaries from China?

Embowering the Home.

Brooklyn Eagle: It adds to the homelike character of a city to embower its houses in maples and elms, to give hiding places for the birds, and it adds to coolness and salubrity as well as beauty to provide shade against the blistering days of summer.

Dreams and Visions

By Martha S. Gislow.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst).

"Uv cose I b'leeve in dreams, dat's er fac," said Mammy. "Ter be sho' I does, an' I b'leeves in visiums, too, fer I is had mo' den one visium to come true. But de mos' pertic'lar visium I is ever had ter come true is erbout de twinzes. You see, I nussed all de chilun, but when de twinzes come erlong I not only nuss dem, but I had Sis' Riah an' Rhody to nuss too. Dey was dat foolish ober dem babes, I had to watch 'um day an' night. Yassum, dey was de under-nusses. I was had uv de nuss'ry, you see, an' we had er sep'rate nuss for all de babes, besides dey mammy. We had plenty uv babies at Hazlewood. Lawd, passum; lots uv 'um, but de twinzes was de fav'rites uv 'um all. Some folks doan b'leeve in dreams, but I does, an' I b'leeves in visiums, too, kaze er vissium I had uv dat littles' twin is done come true. Miss Ma'y an' Miss Marfy, dey was de twinzes. Miss Ma'y was er fat baby, an' Miss Marfy was er lean baby, an' Miss Ma'y had er roun' face an' Miss Marfy she had er long one. Dey was des 'zackly erlak, 'cepen dat Miss Ma'y was big when dey wus bawn an' Miss Marfy was little, an' Miss Ma'y was putty, an' Miss Marfy she warn't. Dey was de 'musingis' babies I ever seed. Fum de day dey was bawn dey sing lak de birds in de trees, an' when dey 'gun to grow big ernuff to hab dey pictur taken, Miss Ma'y she loved ter cook an' stay in de kitchen foolin' wid biskit dought an' both'in' Sis' Ann mos' ter def to get her bake cakes an' make pies. But Miss Marfy she loved ter set by der bookcase in de libberry lookin' at de picters an' makin' b'leeve she could read. When I took dem twinzes out ter play in de garden Miss Ma'y she'd take her sho' 'nun doll erlong an' play like er reasonable chile, while Miss Marfy would perten' dat she was er big lady an' would dress up wid flowers an' perten' dat she was talkin' to sho' 'nuff peopies behin' de trees.

"Why, dem two twinzes was er study an' er mist'y to me. I said ter Sis' Ann many er time, 'Sis' An,' says I, 'I b'leeve dat de treet an' talkin' to de flowers, an' lookin' up de road fer de prince.' 'Er what?' say Sis' Ann. 'Er prince,' I ses, 'dat littles' twin ain' got no mo' sense den ter b'leeve dat er sho' 'nuff prince is gwine come an' git her, an' she ses so ev'd day, callin' herself er princess an' pintedly b'leevin' dat she sees kings an' queens in de bushes an' under de rose trees.'

"I sutny did feel wor'ied 'bout her, an' one day I set under de trees watchin' 'em play, an' I hayrd de littles' twin des er talkin' an' er talkin,' an' den I see her bow lak de ladies do in de dance, an' all uv a suddint hit seemed to me, I musser fell ersleep an' dreemed, for I seed de whole life uv dat chile, what's done come true, spread out befo' me in a visium, hit seemeed lak I could see sho' 'nuff kings un' queens what dat chile was talkin' ter, but hit seemed ter me I see her way over yonder, 'cross de water in gre't big houses, bigger den de white folks' house. It was dese hyar houses dey calls palaces, an' hit seem lak I seed dat littles' twin stan'in' erlonc befo gre't piles uv peeples, an' I see 'um clap dey han's an' I see 'um cry, 'an' it seem lak dat littles' twin done growed big an' done git almos' as putty as de bigges' twin. You see, honey, while dem twinzes was des 'zackly erlike, one uv 'em was er heap puttier dan de yother an' er heap bigger an' er heap stronger, dat's why we call dem littles' twin an' de bigges' twin.

"We never did 'spec' ter raise dat littles' twin; why dat littles' twin was dat weak an' poo'ly of er 'skeeter lit on 'er han' an' sting 'er, she'd hol' her han' up to me des so, an' say 'skatch, Mammy, skatch.' Well, I declar' hit was funny, an' I usen ter laugh at 'er an' say, 'I des b'leeve you is de lazies' chile I ever seed—yo too lazy ter scratch yo' own han'; I des b'leeve you'd ax me ter bat yo' eyes fer you ef I could, an' ter eat fer you, too—dat you would.' An' den I feel sorry fer 'er kase she's so little an' no 'count, an' I'd take her up in my lap an' scratch her little han' an' sing 'er ter sleep. She sho' was er delicatesome chile an' now you can't hardly tell de littles' twin fum de bigges' twin, an' dat chile we never 'spected ter raise is done s'prised us all. She is done been befo' de kings an' queens des lak I seed her in my dream—dat she is. We is all so proud uv 'er we kin hardly hol' in, an' Miss Ma'y, dat bigges' little twin, is de proudes' uv us all. Why, chile, she reads me all de letters fum across de water, an' tells me all de news, an' shows me all de picters in de papers. Dat chile ain' got no wings, but she is been all over de country, an' ercross de water, an' stood des lak I seed in my dream, befo' de kings an' de queens, an' I seed 'er myse'f in de big op'ry house, when de peoples was fus' cryin' an' den lafin', an' I toted home de flowers in my own arms what was give 'er. Lawd, yassum! She is writ stories an' books an' songs an' bless Gord, ef dat chile ain', done tole all dem queens an' peoples all erbout de tales I is done tole 'er uv de plantation days, an' she kin stan' up dar right befo' 'um an' take off her ole mammy so 'zackly lak myse'f, dat I mos' die lafin', an' I sees 'er takin' off yother folksses, too, des de same way, an' er bowin' an' makin' b'leeve she's talkin' to folkses on de flatform, an' yo' kin mos' see 'um right dar befo' you. Dat chile is ermist'y. She lectures fer all de big folkses in New York. She is singed fer Queen Victory, an' sho' 'nuff princes, an' she's been in cassels an' big houses des lak I see, an' my dreams an' my visiums is all comed true. To be sho', I b'leeves in dreams an' visiums—dat I does. To be sh' I does."

On One Condition.

I like to hear them score the men who make the prices high;
I yearn for better terms whene'er it comes my turn to buy,
And I am generous enough to want my fellow man
To have a change to purchase on an advantageous plan.
For railroad iron, clothes and meat the cost is far too great;
I hope that justice very soon will get the matter straight.
I want the prices lowered quickly as it can be done
In every line of traffic—that's to say, excepting one.
For I have a snug investment that is paying dividends.
And in that single instance my severity
unbends;
There are so very many of importance in the list,
That this enterprise of mine can be o'erlooked and never missed.
I want reform both far and near, reform
both last and first;
But I insist that we reform the other fellow first.

AN EMBARRASSING THEME.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: A Nebraska man wrote his own funeral sermon, and, as the modesty of the average Nebraska man is well known, it may be assumed that he treated his subect in an impersonal and extremely delicate fashion. And yet it is difficult to imagine a more embarrassing theme under the circumstances. The tendency to overpraise might not be strong, and yet there would surely be a desire to set one's self in as good a light as possible at this last appearance on any stage. Nevertheless, it can scarcely be imagined that the maker of the sermon could have any desire to imitate the effort of that clergyman who paid a wonderfully flattering tribute to a man who had made himself notorious by his parsimony and by his entire lack of sympathy for his fellow men. The dead man's partner in business was present at the services and during the sermon was observed to rise and step forward to the casket. Somebody asked him later what prompted him to do this. "Why," he replied, "I was afraid I had made a mistake and got into the wrong house."

SUBPOENAS SERVED

On Merger People to Appear at Washington.

St. Paul, May 8.—United States Marshal Grimshaw has received for service on the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific Railroad companies subpoenas, issued by the clerk of the United States supreme court, requiring them to appear at the next term of court at Washington, D. C., and answer the complaint in the action brought against them and the Northern Securities company by the state of Washington. The subpoenas were secured by Attorney General Douglas at the request of Attorney General Stratton of the state of Washington. The subpoena on the Northern Securities company will be served in New Jersey, where the company is organized. The railway companies and the Northern Securities company will now be required to appear at the next term of the federal supreme court and answer to the complaint.

COUNTRY DAIRIES

Health Department Would Inspect Those Shipping Milk to Duluth.

Reports From All Over the State Indicate Necessity For It.

Department Is Keeping After Dairies In the City.

An inspection of country dairies that ship milk to Duluth is now sought by local health authorities.

The inspection of city dairies inaugurated by the health department last winter has resulted in a much higher rating in milk tests, but the milk that comes in from the country is said to be very inferior to Duluth milk. This is shown by daily tests of the state food inspector.

The local authorities desire some way to compel the country dairies to keep their stock and stables clean, and from reports all over the state there is ample cause for complaint on the part of city consumers of country milk.

Dr. Brimhall, the head of the veterinary department of the state board of health, has reported a very marked increase of tuberculosis in swine during the past year, and is inclined to attribute it to the feeding of hogs from skimmed milk from tuberculosis cows.

It is said that the cream taken from this milk is sold largely to the city trade. During the month of April the state veterinary department made an examination of 727 cows, and of this number 108 were condemned on account of tuberculosis.

At present it is said that the cities have no way of compelling a thorough inspection in the country districts, but it is proposed that Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul unite in an effort to have the present laws amended as soon as possible.

The work of cleaning up the Duluth dairies is progressing, notwithstanding the fact that the cows are all out in pasture now. The dairymen will be required, during the present summer, to prepare for more sanitary conditions next winter.

The health department will require a thorough whitewashing of the interior of all stables, and in many instances the placing of new floors and more sanitary drainage.

There is considerable talk of offering a series of cash prizes to the dairymen that can have their stables and stock in the most healthful condition during the entire winter season.

COAL MEN.

Illinois and Wisconsin Dealers to Visit Head of Lakes.

The Illinois and Wisconsin retail coal dealers have chosen a time when coal is selling at a reduced price, and when the attention of the populace is centered on the exactions of the meat trust to go a-visiting. They will be in Duluth about June 15 on the handsome steamer Manitou, which has been chartered for the round trip between Chicago and Duluth. The Retail Coal Dealers' association of Illinois and Wisconsin is the name of the organization, and the trip will occupy eight days.

The party will leave Chicago June 13, and it will visit the north and south shores of Lake Superior and the copper country of Michigan. A special train will carry the plutocrats into the copper mining district, and the underground workings of the mines will be exhibited. No plans have yet been made for the Duluth visit, and it is not known how long the stay here will be. This is the third annual excursion of the retail coal men on the Manitou, which goes upon her regular season's schedule June 21.

AT THE HOTELS

W. W. Browne, of Biwabik, is at the McKay. Mr. Browne says that while the mines at Biwabik are working, there is much less doing than had been anticipated, particularly at the Biwabik property, where thus far the season's operations have been limited to stripping or preparatory work. Shipping operations there have not begun yet. About eighty men only are employed, when it was expected 350 would be working by this time. The other mines are smaller properties. The Duluth is employing about seventy-five men, and the Hale about sixty, while the Kanawha is being placed in condition to ship.

Among the iron range people who are stopping at the St. Louis are J. S. Mandel, of Biwabik, James Smith and J. B. Mason, of Ely, and John Brown, of Two Harbors.

All the hotels are pretty well filled up just now. There seems to be no particular cause, except that perhaps the commercial travelers are pretty well bunched in the territory at present. General transient business, including that of a more local character, is also active.

Six Shriners from Virginia, were at the McKay yesterday on their way to St. Paul. They were J. A. Meyer, W. H. Eaton, H. G. George, J. A. Kennady, D. W. Elmquist and W. R. Wasson.

Benjamin Smith and W. H. Davidson, of Mankato, are at the St. Louis to attend the Modern Woodmen's celebration at the Armory this evening.

The Spalding's register this morning bears the following names: G. H. Atkin, Chicago; I. Pfteed, Philadelphia; A. Stuart, Detroit; A. E. Macartney, St. Paul; H. K. Hudvorsen, Minneapolis; A. Oliver, New York; W. A. Mitchell, Chicago; A. Dallman, New York; A. C. Bell, Denver, and J. B. Ellwood, Chicago.

At the McKay are: T. H. Burns, La Crosse; Edward Christopherson, St. Paul; W. E. Dunn, Mountain Iron; C. Swentson, Appleton; Mrs. W. Merrill, Two Harbors; L. C. Hart, Eau Claire; J. H. Gardner, Aberdeen; J. A. More, Philadelphia; David Ogilvie, St. Paul, and M. H. Townsend, Minneapolis.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Of Daughter of a Minister In New York.

New York, May 8.—The sudden death on Saturday of Marianna F. Mason, the 22-year-old daughter of the Rev. John Mason, who is the pastor of the Orchard Primitive Methodist church in Oakland street, Green Point, is surrounded with mystery. An autopsy made by Dr. Charles Wuest, the coroner's physician, disclosed traces of an irritant poison in the young woman's stomach. The family are at a loss to know whether it is a case of suicide or accidental poisoning. When Dr. Wuest was questioned tonight he expressed the opinion that death had been caused by carbolic acid.

Miss Mason was the organist in her father's church and a teacher in the Sunday school. On Saturday night she complained of having a sore knee, and said she had hurt it on a nail in the factory. After household remedies had been applied the irritation seemed to be allayed, and Miss Mason reclined on a lounge in her room and read a book.

When the mother went to the room later in the night she found her daughter dead in bed. Dr. Gilmartin was called and refused to issue a death certificate, and the coroner's office was notified. It was the belief of the family that the girl had died from heart trouble.

The Rev. Mr. Mason said tonight that the first intimation of the presence of poison in his daughter's body came to him through the undertaker. He could not explain where she got poison, or why she should take it if she did.

Uncommon Colds.

"It is just a common cold," people say, "there's no danger in that." Admitting their statement, then there are uncommon colds, colds which are dangerous; for many a fatal sickness begins with a cold. If we could tell the common cold from the uncommon we could feel quite safe. But we can't. The uncommon variety is rarely recognized until it has fastened its hold on the lungs, and there are symptoms of consumption.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures coughs, bronchitis, "weak" lungs and other diseases of the organs of respiration. It increases the supply of pure, rich blood and builds up the emaciated body.

"I took a severe cold which settled in the bronchial tubes," writes Rev. Frank Hay, of Nortonville, Jefferson Co., Kansas. After trying medicines labeled 'Sure Cure,' almost without number, I was led to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took two bottles and was cured, and have stayed cured. When I think of the great pain I had to endure, and the terrible cough I had, it seems almost a miracle that I was so soon relieved. That God may spare you many years and abundantly bless you is the prayer of your grateful friend."

If you ask your dealer for "Golden Medical Discovery" because you have confidence in its cures, do not allow yourself to be switched off to a medicine claimed to be "just as good," but which you did not ask for and of which you know nothing.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure dizziness and sick headache.

SEVEN ARE DROWNED

Craft Run Down and Sank By a Tugboat.

Only Four Survivors of a Sunday School Party.

Toledo, Ohio, May 8.—Seven young persons, members of a Sunday school class of the First Baptist church, were drowned in the Maumee river just below the city last night as the result of the naphtha launch Frolic, on which they were taking a pleasure ride, being run down by the tug Arthur Woods, of the Great Lakes Towing company's fleet.

The launch is owned by Joseph W. Hepburn, of this city, who invited eleven young people to take an evening ride with him. They started out on a trip to Lake Erie early in the evening and were returning when the accident happened.

Mr. Hepburn, Miss Clara Marks, Arthur Marks and Miss Grace Lowe are the only survivors. Mr. Hepburn states that he saw the lights of the approaching tug and thinking it was bound straight down the river, turned to the east. When nearly abreast of the launch the tug suddenly turned to the east in order to make the dock at Ironville, and before the launch could get out of the way it was struck by the tug and turned over and sunk about 100 feet from the dock. Mr. Hepburn caught hold of the side of the tug and the Lowe girl grasped his leg and both were pulled on the tug. The Marks girl was picked up from a cushion on which she floated. Arthur Marks also was fortunate enough to grab a piece of wreckage and was picked up by those on the tug. The other seven members of the party were drowned and the river is being dragged for their bodies. The tug brought the rescued to this city.

Capt. Al. Fitts was in charge of the tug and says that the launch showed no lights and that he was not aware of its presence until the tug struck her.

A RICH CARGO.

Valuable Consignment of Raw Silk From the Orient.

Tacoma, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamship Olympia, just in from the Orient, brings in a cargo valued at $250,000, of which $107,000 is raw silk. This is one of the largest single consignments of raw silk ever received on this coast. It is all destined for mills in Eastern states. No new crop tea is expected until the Olymia's next trip from the Orient.

AUCTION AT AITKIN.

Choice Real Estate to Be Sold Next Saturday.

Aitkin, Minn., May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Nothing is being talked of so much in Aitkin as Hungerford's auction sale of real estate in this and adjoining towns, which is announced for Saturday, May 10. That the choicest business and residence lots and adjacent lake front property, for which there has been a keen demand for years, should now be placed on the market and knocked down to the highest bidder, is sufficient to cause not a little comment. Aitkin is the Mecca towards which hundreds are making their pilgrimage this week. Many are already on the ground inspecting the property. Saturday in Aitkin will be a gala day, the town full of visitors attending the auction, and the High School band entertaining the crowd with good music.

Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, under whose supervision it has been manufactured continuously for over thirty years."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

IN MICHIGAN

Trial of Freeman For Forgery Has Been Commenced.

Menominee—The work of choosing a jury for the Freeman forgery case started Wednesday. Fifty talesmen had been summoned and forty-three were examined before a jury could be secured. The judge then put the jurors under the care of Deputy Sheriff Carley and instructed him not to allow anyone to communicate with them. The trial began in the afternoon, the judge warning the newspapers not to express the least opinion on the case before its finish or he would bring them up for contempt.

Ishpeming—E. E. Scribner, superintendent of schools at Dunkirk, N. Y., has accepted the superintendency of the Ishpeming schools, succeeding D. D. Mayne.

Michigamme—The body of Abel Levin, one of four drowned in the lake here last November, was recovered today by the life saving crew of Portage Entry.

Sault Ste. Marie—The construction of a $20,000 residence for F. H. Clergue, promoter of the big industries in this section, has been commenced at the Canadian Soo. The house will occupy a commanding site overlooking both Soos, the rapids and St. Mary's river for several miles.

Manistique—It is officially announced that the Federal Tannery company has decided to locate a big tannery here. Representatives of the Pennsylvania trust have secured large tracts of hemlock adjacent to this city and the new industry is assured of bark for many years to come. The subsidiary corporation which will operate the plant has been incorporated with $200,000 capital. At Ontonagon, it is likely a large tannery will be established by Milwaukee men, who recently visited that section.

Iron Mountain—Nicholas Paulic, charged with stealing a woodshed, which he demolished for kindling wood, has been convicted and fined $5 and coats. The case against Ignace Paulic, charged with stealing a picket fence for the same purpose, has been postponed for a week.

Houghton—The Ruelle docks and warehouse at Houghton may be sold. J. H. Rice, of the Houghton National bank, is negotiating for their purchase from Mr. Ruelle, and if they are secured, Carl Rice, a brother of J. H. Rice, will be put in charge of them and will conduct the business as now. The docks and warehouse for a general dockage and warehouse business were built about three years ago by Messrs. Ruelle and Dube, of Houghton. Mr. Ruelle buying out Mr. Dube's interests a short time ago, but retaining Mr. Dube as manager. The property is among the best on Portage lake and the site is a good one. The business has been profitably conducted.

THE DAKOTAS.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—In a street fight at Viborg about midnight Tuesday night Anton Sorenson, a laborer living at Viborg, was perhaps fatally stabbed. William Peterson and his son Charles, farmers living a few miles from town, are charged with inflicting the injuries. How the fight started is not known. The knife which was used was found on the street this morning surrounded by pools of blood. If Sorenson dies, as appears likely, Peterson and his son will be charged with murder.

Yankton—Keihm, a fireman on the Northwestern passenger train on the Yankton & Centerville branch, was seriously injured by the lubricating glass blowing up in his cab while at Centerville. He will lose his left eye and may not recover. He was married only three weeks ago.

Armour—A racing circuit, including the town of Armour, Chamberlain, Plankinton and Scotland has been formed, and other towns will no doubt come in later. These towns always have races each year and they believe by organizing into a circuit better horses and results can be had. The Armour races will take place June 4, 5 and 6; Chamberlain, June 12, 13 and 14; Plankinton, June 18, 19 and 20. The dates for Scotland have not been fixed.

Deadwood—Paul N. King, absconding commissary clerk for Frank S. Lusk, the Elkhorn contractor, has been captured at Denver and will be brought back. King was left in charge of Mr. Lusk's office and business here while the latter was in California. On returning to Deadwood Mr. Lusk found that his clerk had been gone several days, having taken with him $100 in money, two checks for $900 and $2000 respectively, and a lot of underwear and clothing belonging to Mr. Lusk. King was arrested on a description sent from Deadwood. He at first denied his guilt, but the detectives found him wearing underwear marked with Mr. Lusk's initials, and he then confessed. He will be tried in Deadwood.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—County Physician Baldwin made the startling discovery that smallpox had been prevalent in a settlement north of Kensal about two months, and no physician had been called or quarantine established. The residents were not aware of the dangerous character of the disease. Six families had been afflicted. Recently in Kensal the postmaster noticed a small boy whose face seemed to be broken out. He asked the father of the boy what was the matter with the lad, and he replied that it was "only smallpox." This led to a visit from Dr. Baldwin.

Grafton—The board of education met for organization. John L. Cashel was re-elected president for the tenth time, and Charles A. Harris secretary for the fourteenth consecutive term. Committees were appointed and other routine business transacted.

The G. A. R. has arrangements under way for Memorial day. Attorney E. R. Sinkler has been selected as the orator.

Fargo—W. E. Ruthruff has been committed to the insane asylum. Ruthruff was formerly a well-known farmer and invested heavily in some wild-cat mining schemes. Two or three years ago he created a sensation in Minneapolis at the time the Kettle-Curlew company went to the wall. He was confined in a private sanitorium for several months.

STYLISH SPRING COSTUMES

Dainty Theater Bodice of Liberty Silk Over Taffeta.

With the signs of approaching warm weather our heavy and much trimmed satin and peau de soie waists are found too uncomfortable and we long for lighter garments to wear to the theater. A very dainty waist is of pale blue liberty silk over taffeta of the same shade and is trimmed with ribbon-run beading. It has something of a bolero effect, as the lower part consists of plaited chiffon which blouses slightly over the belt. An attractive chiffon jabot completes the garniture. The stitching is all done with Corticelli silk. When finished this makes a very attractive waist.

COKE DANDRUFF CURE

Does one thing--and does it well

It is a well known fact among the medical profession that baldness in seventy-five per cent of the cases brought to their attention is caused by dandruff. We do not guarantee to grow hair on a bald head, although in many instances the continued use of Coke Dandruff Cure has surprised and delighted the purchasers by starting a new growth of hair in its original color. WE DO GUARANTEE it to absolutely cure any case of dandruff, which, of course, at once stops the hair from falling, and we will refund the money if it fails.

A good article is always imitated—a poor one never—Beware of spurious preparations sold as Coke Dandruff Cure. The genuine was never known to leave the hair greasy and sticky. It contains no oil or anything that will injure the hair or scalp. Buy the genuine of your druggists.

To meet a popular demand, we have placed a special fifty-cent size bottle on the market in addition to our regular $1 00 size.

DIRK

Wielded By the Irate Father, Who Chased His Son.

Huntington, W. Va., May 5.—Harry, the 16-year-old son of William Tweel, a Syrian merchant, dashed into police headquarters screaming "Murder!" and "Save me, somebody!" Close in his wake was the irate father, armed with a deadly looking dirk knife.

No sooner had the boy reached the arms of City Jailer Stephenson than the irate Syrian was upon him, and was about to plunge the glittering steel into the boy's heart, when the jailer and two policemen succeeded, after a desperate hand-to-hand conflict, in disarming Tweel senior and throwing him into jail. Tweel wanted his son to clerk in the store, and on the lad's refusal the father resorted to the dirk. Women on the street almost fainted at the sight of the father with dirk in hand pursuing the lad.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

As the result of the death of 6-year-old Collin McDougall, at Atlanta, Ga., which is claimed to have been caused by sewer gas poisoning, Victor Nuttall, aged 11, was arrested today charged with the murder of the boy.

The Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company and the Lake Shore Railroad company have agreed to exchange traffic between Cleveland and Detroit and other Michigan lake ports.

Fire early Wednesday morning destroyed seven stores and one residence, among them being three of the largest buildings at St. Edwards, Neb. A number of persons in the Egan block, which was partially burned had narrow escapes. Escape by stairways was cut off and they were compelled to climb down an electric light pole.

The street railway situation in Chicago took on a more threatening aspect Wednesday night when employes of the North and West sides demanded that a strike be called immediately because some of their number have been discharged.

The officials of the Cleveland baseball club announce that they will institute legal proceedings against "Dummy" Taylor, who left that team to join the New York National league club.

Five men have been killed in Floyd county, Ky., by Constable Reedy and a posse, as the result of the murder of Sol Osborne and Bud Little two weeks ago. James Tompkins and Walter Jones are said to have been two of the men killed, but the names of the other three are not known. According to reports the men engaged in a desperate fight with the posse and were shot to death while resisting capture.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company.

New York, May 7.—The report of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company for the year ending Dec. 31 was made public today. It placed the mining and manufacturing profits at $1,640,105. Other incomes of $85,522 made the total income $1,725,638. There was expended during the year for new construction at Ensley steel works $636,405; at Pratt works, $46,370; at Bessemer rolling mill, $12,670, and at other plants, $64,208. The company capital stock consists of $22,552,800 common and $248,300 preferred.

MRS. DAVIS DENIES

That She Is Going to Marry Spanish Don.

New York, May 8.—Mrs. Cushman K. Davis, widow of United States Senator Davis, of Minnesota, emphatically denied yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria, that she was en route to Europe to wed Don Abazuza, formerly Spanish secretary for the colonies. The evening paper which prints the denial quotes Mrs. Davis as saying: "I am not engaged to Don Abazuza, as dispatches from St. Paul have stated, even if I were, I would not go abroad to marry him. One whom I would marry would have to come to me. I am going to Europe, but the trip is merely for pleasure."

HER CHILD IS FOUND

He Had Persuaded Mother He Could Cure a Paralytic.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 8.—N. R. Travers, an agent employed by the Collier Publishing company, is in a decided jam, if the story told by Mrs. Virginia Duble, a wealthy Southern woman, is correct in its details. It not only brands him with trifling with the tenderest feelings of a mother, but places him in the attitude of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Mr. Travers was absent, and, consequently, could make no denial, while his wife was in no condition to furnish an explanation of her husband's conduct.

In the line of his duty Mr. Travers goes about the country soliciting subscriptions, and last March found him working near New Orleans. While thus engaged he one day ran across the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duble, who lived upon a plantation. He had an opportunity to call at the house frequently, and in this way acquired a certain familiarity with the family. Mrs. Duble had a little daughter, Sallie, who, although only 5 years of age, is a paralytic. Being the only child, the parents were willing to go to almost any extremes to have her benefited. One specialist after the other was visited and thousands of dollars were expended, yet Sallie Duble could only get about by wearing an iron brace on her leg, while one of her arms was withered andp inched beyond hope.

Once while Travers was at the house Mrs. Duble mentioned that she intended taking the child to St. Louis, in the hope of securing her relief. Travers at once began to throw cold water on the arrangement, said he was a graduate of osteopathy, ventured the assertion that he could cure the child and went on to relate the cures that he had made. Mr. and Mrs. Duble were anxious to have the child cured and were willing to pay handsomely for the treatment. Travers told them it would be necessary to take the girl to hi streatment room in the Rand hotel, Cincinnati, which he represented as luxuriously furnished. Finally he won the family over; it was settled that he was to take Sallie to Cincinnati, under an agreement by which Mrs. Duble was to pay $25 monthly in advance for board and treatment and $500 should a cure be effected.

Travers left New Orleans April 2, and Mrs. Duble wrote almost every day and received the most encouraging answers. Recently she wrote that she could no longer stand the separation from her child, and expressed a determination to come to Cincinnati. By return mail she received a letter from Mr. Travers, saying the expense would be altogether unnecessary, for Sallie was almost well and her presence here might retard matters.

This suggested to Mrs. Duble that something was wrong, and she at once started for Cincinnati, arriving here at noon. Taking a cab at the station she at once drove to the Rand hotel. She was greatly surprised to find the hotel different from what it had been represented, and was still more startled when the clerk told her that Travers never lived there. He, however, had called there frequently for mail, and Mrs. Duble was referred to the Collier Publishing company. There she learned that Travers was out of the city and that his wife was a patient in the Presbyterian hospital. Mrs. Duble at once visited the hospital, but Mrs. Travers was not found. She had been a patient in the institution, but recently returned to her home in May street. Then there was a long drive to Mrs. Travers' boarding house, only to learn that her babe was not there.

Mrs. Travers said her husband had placed the child at some hospital, but she could not tell which one. It was near a big park, she said. At the news Mrs. Duble broke down and cried. She was a stranger in the city, and all manner of thoughts ran through her head concerning the child. Nothing was left for her but to make the rounds of the various hospitals in the city, which was done. At the City hospital, in almost the last cot visited, the mother at last found her child.

It was found that "Sallie Duble" had been placed in the hospital on the morning of April 5, the very day upon which the Traverses arrived in Cincinnati. Travers had submitted his name as guardian of the child. Then the story of how the child was to be cured, if at all, dawned upon Mrs. Duble. The scheme to get her money was also revealed. The doctors had thrown the child's iron braces to one side and in their place was a plaster cast which seemed to be doing some good. The little withered arm showed no improvement.

Mrs. Duble said that she will swear out a warrant for the arrest of Travers, charging him with defrauding her.

TEN THOUSAND REBELS

Pekin, May 7.—Bishop Favier, the French vicar apostolic in China, has received information to the effect that 10,000 armed rebels, with several cannon, are participating in the revolt at Cheng Ting Fu, Chi Li province. It is considered doubtful if Yuan Shi Kai, the governor of Chi Li, has sent a sufficient force to cope with the rebellion. The bulk of the government forces, with ten Gatling guns, is due to arrive at the scene of the disturbances today. The leader of the uprising is a military mandarin, who killed his family before raising the flag of revolt, so as to prevent their punishment in the event of his failure.

SORROWS

Of a Song Writer Who Rashly Made a Contract.

New York, May 8.—The women friends of Harry Von Tilzer, the song writer, who is responsible for "I'd Leave My Happy Home for You-ou-ou" and forty-nine other "vocal gems," would better not send him their letters by mail lest they should pass under the unsympathetic eyes of the chief correspondent of Shapiro, Bernstein & Von Tilzer, music publishers, at 45 West Twenty-eighth street.

Early last month the song writer received the following note, written with purple ink on lilac-colored paper, sealed with rose-colored sealing wax:

"Harry, if you'll leave your ha--y home for me tonight and meet me in our old New Hampshire home I'll be your Lady Hottentot. LULU."

Von Tilzer was shocked, not at the note, but at the fact that it was two days late in reaching him and that it had been opened. In his excitement he dropped two minor thirds which he had been about to insert in the most sentimental part of a new balad. Without picking up the thirds he departed presto prestissimo for the postoffice.

His only request to Postmaster Van Cott, recited in a breathless staccato, was that thereafter all his mail, in whatever key it might be written, should be transferred to his private office at 42 West Twenty-eighth street. From the postmaster he learned that as he had duly authorized the firm of Shapiro, Bernstein & Von Tilzer to receive all his mail, and as he had promised not to divert it from their office, nothing could be done for him.

What Von Tilzer said when he found himself outside the postmaster's door could neither be sung nor played. His next measure was to harmonize Lawyer Max D. Steur with his own vibrations of wrath. Together they appeared before Supreme Court Justice Blanchard, Steur singing the principal aria, and Von Tilzer furnishing an obligato with so much success that a writ was procured calling upon Maurice Shapiro and Louis Bernstein to show cause why they should not be restrained from introducing disharmonic chords into Tilzer's life melody.

At the hearing before Supreme Court Justice McLean, Von Tilzer began with a recitation explaining how he had sold out his twenty-one-hundredth part of the total stock of Shapiro, Bernstein & Von Tilzer, a corporation, and given them permission to open his mail for awhile, but not forever. Duets, quartets and sextets by Tilzer, Staner, Shapiro, Bernstein and various members of the law firm of House, Grossman & Voorhaus followed.

Justice McLean at last declared that as Von Tilzer had given them the right to do so, his former partners could go on receiving and opening his mail ad infinitum. As a cadence, he added that Von Tilzer would have to bear the cost of $10 accompanying the litigation. The last chord almost broke Von Tilzer's heart.

Late last night it was reported that Von Tilzer had just sent away the following note:

"Lulu: For heaven's sake sing your messages by wireless telegraphy. I am at C. A false note is nothing compared with a lost one. Life is full of discords. Chromatically yours,

"HARRY."

SODA WATER

Played on Fire and Bake Shop Was Saved.

Findlay, O., May 8.—Late developments have shown that the fine Columbus bakery in this city was saved from destruction by extraordinary measures during the Saturday night conflagration.

With the rear of the block all in flames and the doorway fringed in a blaze, one of the employes had the presence of mind to pick up a soda tank and play the effervescent contents upon the fire. The result was magical, and the flames were driven back until the firemen reached a foothold.

ENJOYED A STEAK.

Burglars Objected Because They Couldn't Find Salt.

New York, May 8.—Here is a note found by John Wendt, a resident of the Bronx, in the dining room yesterday morning. The house had been entered during the night by burglars and the dining room showed that the intruders had a merry time:

"Dear Madam: We want to congratulate you on your excellent taste in the selection of beefsteak. This steak was the finest we have ever had, but please see that the salt is handy when we come again, as the flavor of all meat is greatly improved by the judicious use of salt."

The burglars had lighted the gas stove and cooked a steak for themselves. Several empty dishes and wine glasses showed that there were at lenst three in the party.

BLOOD POISON

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

THESE ARE YOUR SYMPTOMS:

On account of its frightful hideousness, Syphilitic Blood Poison is commonly called the king of venereal diseases. It may be hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous like decay of the flesh and bones.

OUR ELECTRO-MEDICAL TREATMENT improves the patient from the beginning. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones, and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

We do not treat all diseases, but we cure all we treat; we treat men only and cure them to stay cured. We cure to stay cured Varicocele, Stricture, Lost Manhood, Atrophied or Shrunken Organs, Syphilitic Blood Poison, Nervo Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney, Urinary Diseases, and all associate diseases and weaknesses of men. We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men, and to which countless tongues gladly testify? If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully.

ORDER TO RETALIATE

That Was Issued By General Bell In Last December.

Only Way to Protect the Lives of the Soldiers.

Victim For the Execution to Be Selected By Lot.

Washington, May 8.—Secretary Root yesterday submitted to the senate an answer to the resolution of May 1 calling for copies of any orders issued by Gen. Bell relative to reconcentration in Batangas and of the orders issued by Gen. Smith to Maj. Waller, set up by the latter in his defense before the court-martial. The secretary also was asked to state whether these orders were approved by Gen. Chaffee or by the war department, when they were known in the department and when countermanded.

In reply the secretary submitted two orders by Gen. Bell, dated Dec. 8 and 9 last. In the first Gen. Bell refers to the treachery of the natives, to their use of infernal machines, and to their constant violation of all the rules of civilized warfare. Therefore he declares that he is reluctantly obliged to avail himself of the right of retaliation under the regulations, and to deal severely with persons who commit the acts denounced in general order 100. He said: "The reckless expedients adopted by the enemy, especially the policy of intimidation and assassination, leaves to the brigade commander no other means of protecting either the lives of his subordinates, or those of peaceful or friendly citizens, or the interests of his government against the repetition of barbarous outrage, except the enforcement of the penalties enforced by the above cited laws of war. The brigade commander, therefore, announces for the information of all concerned that wherever prisoners or unarmed and defenseless Americans or natives friendly to the United States government were murdered or assassinated for political reasons, and this fact can be established, it is his purpose to execute a prisoner of war under the authority contained in sections 59 and 148. This prisoner of war will be selected by lot from among the officers or prominent citizens held as prisoners of war, and will be chosen when practicable from those who belong to the town in which the murder or assassination occurred."

The secretary explains that the order referred to was approved by Abraham Lincoln, and that the orders mentioned in the resolution and in Bell's order of Dec. 13, were in strict conformity with the letter and spirit of this famous order, which he says "was a contribution to civilization of great and recognized value."

Another order transmitted is one by Maj. Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, dated Manila, March 24, 1902, upon the condition of the natives collected in the concentration camps, by which it appears that they were well fed, healthful and contented.

The secretary denies knowledge of any order issued by Gen. Smith to Maj. Waller, such as was referred to in the court-martial, and he encloses his orders for Gen. Smith's trial; based upon newspaper publications, as confirmed by Gen. Chaffee. He declares that all of Gen. Smith's written orders relative to Samar already have been printed by the senate, and that all are in strict conformity with general order 100.

In conclusion, the secretary submits dispatches from Gen. Chaffee of late date reporting extensive surrenders of the insurgents and the reopening of the ports to trade as proof of the success of the policy embodied in the written order.

INDIAN OUTBREAK.

Yaquais Kill Whole Family Near Guayamas, Mex.

El Paso, May 8.—William Brown, a traveling freight agent, who has just returned from Guayamas, Mex., tells of another outbreak of the Yaqual Indians.

"About twelve miles north of Guayamas was once the favorite ground of the Yaquais," said Mr. Brown. "Once in a while they make a run back to the old place and wreak vengeance on the Mexican settlers. Last Friday night a marauding party arrived from the mountains and the Mexican settlers took to the hills but one family was headed off and a desperate battle ensued. The family consisted of a man, his wife and mother and two children. The man kept the Indians away until he fell, severely wounded. His mother and one babe had been killed before he fell. With his wife supporting him he attempted to crawl away with the remaining child and next morning reached a little station on the railroad. Soldiers rushed to the scene of the fight, but the Indians had fled.

DECISION

Tacoma, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Chapman has rendered his decision in the case of the Assyrians from Duluth. The court gives Charles Etol title to one box only of the rugs seized by Sheriff John Hartman on advices from Duluth and holds the entire balance of the 700 rugs found in his possession subject to sale to satisfy the judgment held by Jouraly Abalan against her former husband Habeeb Abalan. Jouarly's judgment was obtained in a Duluth court and was for alimony. As Lawyer Hall came all the way from Minnesota on the case it looks as if Jauraly will realize but little, if anything, out of the sale, after she settles with her lawyers. Habeeb had assigned the rugs to Etol and they were shipped to Tacoma.

DIRK

Wielded By the Irate Father, Who Chased His Son.

Huntington, W. Va., May 5.—Harry, the 16-year-old son of William Tweel, a Syrian merchant, dashed into police headquarters screaming "Murder!" and "Save me, somebody!" Close in his wake was the irate father, armed with a deadly looking dirk knife.

No sooner had the boy reached the arms of City Jailer Stephenson than the irate Syrian was upon him, and was about to plunge the glittering steel into the boy's heart, when the jailer and two policemen succeeded, after a desperate hand-to-hand conflict, in disarming Tweel senior and throwing him into jail. Tweel wanted his son to clerk in the store, and on the lad's refusal the father resorted to the dirk. Women on the street almost fainted at the sight of the father with dirk in hand pursuing the lad.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

As the result of the death of 6-year-old Collin McDougall, at Atlanta, Ga., which is claimed to have been caused by sewer gas poisoning, Victor Nutall, aged 11, was arrested today charged with the murder of the boy.

The Detroit and Cleveland Navigation company and the Lake Shore Railroad company have agreed to exchange traffic between Cleveland and Detroit and other Michigan lake ports.

Fire early Wednesday morning destroyed seven stores and one residence, among them being three of the largest buildings at St. Edwards, Neb. A number of persons in the Egan block, which was partially burned had narrow escapes. Escape by stairways was cut off and they were compelled to climb down an electric light pole.

The street railway situation in Chicago took on a more threatening aspect Wednesday night when employes of the North and West sides demanded that a strike be called immediately because some of their number have been discharged.

The officials of the Cleveland baseball club announce that they will institute legal proceedings against "Dummy" Taylor, who left that team to join the New York National league club.

Five men have been killed in Floyd county, Ky., by Constable Reedy and a posse, as the result of the murder of Sol Osborne and Bud Little two weeks ago. James Tompkins and Walter Jones are said to have been two of the men killed, but the names of the other three are not known. According to reports the men engaged in a desperate fight with the posse and were shot to death while resisting capture.

There was expended during the year for new construction at Ensley steel works $636,405; at Pratt works, $46,370; at Bessemer rolling mill, $12,670, and at other plants, $64,268. The company capital stock consists of $22,552,800 common and $248,300 preferred.

MRS. DAVIS DENIES

That She Is Going to Marry Spanish Don.

New York, May 8.—Mrs. Cushman K. Davis, widow of United States Senator Davis, of Minnesota, emphatically denied yesterday afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria, that she was en route to Europe to wed Don Abazuza, formerly Spanish secretary for the colonies. The evening paper which prints the denial quotes Mrs. Davis as saying: "I am not engaged to Don Abazuza, as dispatches from St. Paul have stated, even if I were, I would not go abroad to marry him. One whom I would marry would have to come to me. I am going to Europe, but the trip is merely for pleasure."

HER CHILD IS FOUND

He Had Persuaded Mother He Could Cure a Paralytic.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 8.—N. R. Travers, an agent employed by the Collier Publishing company, is in a decided jam, if the story told by Mrs. Virginia Duble, a wealthy Southern woman, is correct in its details. It not only brands him with trifling with the tenderest feelings of a mother, but places him in the attitude of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Mr. Travers was absent, and, consequently, could make no denial, while his wife was in no condition to furnish an explanation of her husband's conduct.

In the line of his duty Mr. Travers goes about the country soliciting subscriptions, and last March found him working near New Orleans. While thus engaged he one day ran across the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duble, who lived upon a plantation. He had an opportunity to call at the house frequently, and in this way acquired a certain familiarity with the family. Mrs. Duble had a little daughter, Sallie, who, although only 5 years of age, is a paralytic. Being the only child, the parents were willing to go to almost any extremes to have her benefited. One specialist after the other was visited and thousands of dollars were expended, yet Sallie Duble could only get about by wearing an iron brace on her leg, while one of her arms was withered ando pinched beyond hope.

Once while Travers was at the house Mrs. Duble mentioned that she intended taking the child to St. Louis, in the hope of securing her relief. Travers at once began to throw cold water on the arrangement, said he was a graduate of osteopathy, ventured the assertion that he could cure the child and went on to relate the cures that he had made. Mr. and Mrs. Duble were anxious to have the child cured and were willing to pay handsomely for the treatment. Travers told them it would be necessary to take the girl to hi streatment room in the Rand hotel, Cincinnati, which he represented as luxuriously furnished. Finally he won the family over; it was settled that he was to take Sallie to Cincinnati, under an agreement by which Mrs. Duble was to pay $25 monthly in advance for board and treatment and $500 should a cure be effected.

Travers left New Orleans April 2, and Mrs. Duble wrote almost every day and received the most encouraging answers. Recently she wrote that she could no longer stand the separation from her child, and expressed a determination to come to Cincinnati. By return mail she received a letter from Mr. Travers, saying the expense would be altogether unnecessary, for Sallie was almost well and her presence here might retard matters.

This suggested to Mrs. Duble that something was wrong, and she at once started for Cincinnati, arriving here at noon. Taking a cab at the station she at once drove to the Rand hotel. She was greatly surprised to find the hotel different from what it had been represented, and was still more startled when the clerk told her that Travers never lived there. He, however, had called there frequently for mail, and Mrs. Duble was referred to the Collier Publishing company. There she learned that Travers was out of the city and that his wife was a patient in the Presbyterian hospital, Mrs. Duble at once visited the hospital, but Mrs. Travers was not found. She had been a patient in the institution, but recently returned to her home in May street. Then there was a long drive to Mrs. Travers' boarding house, only to learn that her babe was not there.

Mrs. Travers said her husband had placed the child in some hospital, but she could not tell which one. It was near a big park, she said. At the news Mrs. Duble broke down and cried. She was a stranger in the city, and all manner of thoughts ran through her head concerning the child. Nothing was left for her but to make the rounds of the various hospitals in the city, which was done. At the City hospital, in almost the last cot visited, the mother at last found her child.

It was found that "Sallie Duble" had been placed in the hospital on the morning of April 5, the very day upon which the Travers arrived in Cincinnati. Travers had submitted his name as guardian of the child. Then the story of how the child was to be cured, if at all, dawned upon Mrs. Duble. The scheme to get her money was also revealed. The doctors had thrown the child's iron braces to one side and in their place was a plaster cast which seemed to be doing some good. The little withered arm showed no improvement.

Mrs. Duble said that she will swear out a warrant for the arrest of Travers, charging him with defrauding her.

Pekin, May 7.—Bishop Favier, the French vicar apostolic in China, has received information to the effect that 10,000 armed rebels, with several cannon, are participating in the revolt at Cheng Ting Fu, Chi Li province. It is considered doubtful if Yuan Shi Kai, the governor of Chi Li, has sent a sufficient force to cope with the rebellion. The bulk of the government forces, with ten Gatling guns, is due to arrive at the scene of the disturbances today. The leader of the uprising is a military mandarin, who killed his family before raising the flag of revolt, so as to prevent their punishment in the event of his failure.

VALDEZ BANISHED.

Manila, May 7.—Senor Valdez, editor of Mian, as a result of the second libel suit brought against him by Benito Lagardo, the Filipino member of the United States commission, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

SORROWS

Of a Song Writer Who Rashly Made a Contract.

New York, May 8.—The women friends of Harry Von Tilzer, the song writer, who is responsible for "I'd Leave My Happy Home for You-oo-oo" and forty-nine other "vocal gems," would better not send him their letters by mail lest they should pass under the unsympathetic eyes of the chief correspondent of Shapiro, Bernstein & Von Tilzer, music publishers, at 45 West Twenty-eighth street.

Early last month the song writer received the following note, written with purple ink on lilac-colored paper, sealed with rose-colored sealing wax:

"Harry, if you'll leave your ha—w home for me tonight and meet me in our old New Hampshire home I'll be your Lady Hottentot. LULU."

Von Tilzer was shocked, not at the note, but at the fact that it was two days late in reaching him and that it had been opened. In his excitement he dropped two minor thirds which he had been about to insert in the most sentimental part of a new balad. Without picking up the thirds he departed presto, prestissimo for the postoffice.

His only request to Postmaster Van Cott, recited in a breathless staccato, was that thereafter all his mail, in whatever key it might be written, should be transferred to his private office at 42 West Twenty-eighth street. From the postmaster he learned that as he had duly authorized the firm of Shapiro, Bernstein & Von Tilzer to receive all his mail, and as he had promised not to divert it from their office, nothing could be done for him.

What Von Tilzer said when he found himself outside the postmaster's door could neither be sung nor played. His next measure was to harmonize Lawyer Max D. Steur with his own vibrations of wrath. Together they appeared before Supreme Court Justice Blanchard, Steur singing the principal aria, and Von Tilzer furnishing an obligato with so much success that a writ was procured calling upon Maurice Shapiro and Louis Bernstein to show cause why they should not be restrained from introducing disharmonic chords into Tilzer's life melody.

At the hearing before Supreme Court Justice McLean, Von Tilzer began with a recitation explaining how he had sold out his twenty-one-hundredth part of the total stock of Shapiro, Bernstein & Von Tilzer, a corporation, and given them permission to open his mail for awhile, but not forever. Duets, quartets and sextets by Tilzer, Staner, Shapiro, Bernstein and various members of the law firm of House, Grossman & Vorohans followed.

Justice McLean at last declared that as Von Tilzer had given them the right to do so, his former partners could go on receiving and opening his mail ad infinitum. As a cadence, he added that Von Tilzer would have to bear the cost of $10 accompanying the litigation. The last chord almost broke Von Tilzer's heart.

Late last night it was reported that Von Tilzer had just sent away the following note:

"Lulu: For heaven's sake sing your messages by wireless telegraphy. I am at C. A false note is nothing compared with a lost one. Life is full of discords. Chromatically yours,

"HARRY."

SODA WATER

Played on Fire and Bake Shop Was Saved.

Findlay, O., May 8.—Late developments have shown that the fine Columbus bakery in this city was saved from destruction by extraordinary measures during the Saturday night conflagration.

With the rear of the block all in flames and the doorway fringed in a blaze, one of the employes had the presence of mind to pick up a soda tank and play the effervescent contents upon the fire. The result was magical, and the flames were driven back until the firemen reached a foothold.

ENJOYED A STEAK.

Burglars Objected Because They Couldn't Find Salt.

New York, May 8.—Here is a note found by John Wendt, a resident of the Bronx, in the dining room yesterday morning. The house had been entered during the night by burglars and the dining room showed that the intruders had a merry time:

"Dear Madam: We want to congratulate you on your excellent taste in the selection of beefsteak. This steak was the finest we have ever had, but please see that the salt is handy when we come again, as the flavor of all meat is greatly improved by the judicious use of salt."

The burglars had lighted the gas stove and cooked a steak for themselves. Several empty dishes and wine glasses showed that there were at least three in the party.

Important Change of Time.

BLOOD POISON

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

THESE ARE YOUR SYMPTOMS:

On account of its frightful hideousness, Syphilitic Blood Poison is commonly called the king of venereal diseases. It may be hereditary or contracted. Once the system is tainted with it, the disease may manifest itself in the form of scrofula, eczema, rheumatic pains, stiff or swollen joints, eruptions or copper-colored spots on face or body, little ulcers in the mouth or on the tongue, sore throat, swollen tonsils, falling out of the hair or eyebrows, and finally a leprous like decay of the flesh and bones.

OUR ELECTRO-MEDICAL TREATMENT improves the patient from the beginning. Our special treatment for Blood Poison is practically the result of my life work, and is endorsed by the best physicians of America and Europe. It contains no dangerous drugs or injurious medicines of any kind. It goes to the very bottom of the disease and forces out every particle of impurity. Soon every sign and symptom disappears completely and forever. The blood, the tissue, the flesh, the bones, and the whole system are cleansed, purified and restored to perfect health, and the patient prepared anew for the duties and pleasures of life.

We do not treat all diseases, but we cure all we treat; we treat men only and cure them to stay cured. We cure to stay cured Varicocele, Stricture, Lost Manhood, Atrophied or Shrunken Organs, Syphilitic Blood Poison, Nervo Sexual Debility, Rupture, Kidney, Urinary Diseases, and all associate diseases and weaknesses of men. We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men, and to which countless tongues gladly testify? If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully.

ORDER TO RETALIATE

That Was Issued By General Bell In Last December.

Only Way to Protect the Lives of the Soldiers.

Victim For the Execution to Be Selected By Lot.

Washington, May 8.—Secretary Root yesterday submitted to the senate an answer to the resolution of May 1 calling for copies of any orders issued by Gen. Bell relative to reconcentration in Batangas and of the orders issued by Gen. Smith to Maj. Waller, set up by the latter in his defense before the court-martial. The secretary also was asked to state whether these orders were approved by Gen. Chaffee or by the war department, when they were known in the department and when countermanded.

In reply the secretary submitted two orders by Gen. Bell, dated Dec. 8 and 9 last. In the first Gen. Bell refers to the treachery of the natives, to their use of infernal machines, and to their constant violation of all the rules of civilized warfare. Therefore he declares that he is reluctantly obliged to avail himself of the right of retaliation under the regulations, and to deal severely with persons who commit the acts denounced in general order 100. He said: "The reckless expedients adopted by the enemy, especially the policy of intimidation and assassination, leaves to the brigade commander no other means of protecting either the lives of his subordinates, or those of peaceful or friendly citizens, or the interests of his government against the repetition of barbarous outrage, except the enforcement of the penalties enforced by the above cited laws of war. The brigade commander, therefore, announces for the information of all concerned that wherever prisoners or unarmed and defenseless Americans or natives friendly to the United States government were murdered or assassinated for political reasons, and this fact can be established, it is his purpose to execute a prisoner of war under the authority contained in sections 59 and 148. This prisoner of war will be selected by lot from among the officers or prominent citizens held as prisoners of war, and will be chosen when practicable from those who belong to the town in which the murder or assassination occurred."

The secretary explains that the order referred to was approved by Abrahaan Lincoln, and that the orders mentioned in the resolution and in Bell's order of Dec. 13, were in strict conformity with the letter and spirit of this famous order, which he says "was a contribution to civilization of great and recognized value."

Another order transmitted is one by Maj. Gen. Lloyd Wheaton, dated Manila, March 24, 1902, upon the condition of the natives collected in the concentration camps, by which it appears that they were well fed, healthful and contented.

The secretary denies knowledge of any order issued by Gen. Smith to Maj. Waller, such as was referred to in the court-martial, and he encloses his orders for Gen. Smith's trial, based upon newspaper publications, as confirmed by Gen. Chaffee. He declares that all of Gen. Smith's written orders relative to Samar already have been printed by the senate, and that all are in strict conformity with general order 100.

In conclusion, the secretary submits dispatches from Gen. Chaffee of late date reporting extensive surrenders of the insurgents and the reopening of the ports to trade as proof of the success of the policy embodied in the written order.

INDIAN OUTBREAK.

Yaquais Kill Whole Family Near Guayamas, Mex.

El Paso, May 8.—William Brown, a traveling freight agent, who has just returned from Guayamas, Mex., tells of another outbreak of the Yaqual Indians.

"About twelve miles north of Guayamas was once the favorite ground of the Yaquais," said Mr. Brown. "Once in a while they make a run back to the old place and wreak vengeance on the Mexican settlers. Last Friday night a marauding party arrived from the mountains and the Mexican settlers took to the hills but one family was headed off and a desperate battle ensued. The family consisted of a man, his wife and mother and two children. The man kept the Indians away until he fell, severely wounded. His mother and one babe had been killed before he fell. With his wife supporting him he attempted to crawl away with the remaining child and next morning reached a little station on the railroad. Soldiers rushed to the scene of the fight, but the Indians had fled.

Tacoma, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Chapman has rendered his decision in the case of the Assyrians from Duluth. The court gives Charles Etol title to one box only of the rugs seized by Sheriff John Hartman on advices from Duluth and holds the entire balance of the 700 rugs found in his possession subject to sale to satisfy the judgment held by Jouraly Abalan against her former husband Habeeb Abalan. Jouarly's judgment was obtained in a Duluth court and was for alimony. As Lawyer Hall came all the way from Minnesota on the case it looks as if Jauraly will realize but little, if anything, out of the sale, after she settles with her lawyers. Habeeb had assigned the rugs to Etol and they were shipped to Tacoma.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST
Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—

SAFE—

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

DOAN'S Kidney Pills

CURE Sick Kidneys—Cure every Kidney Ill Cure Kidney "bad backs." Ever have a bad back? A back that ached like a toothache? A back so lame and painful all day, so weak and played out at night, that life was one long drawn out misery? Any backache is bad enough, but Kidney backache has its danger and should never be neglected. Backache is the Kidney's warning. Neglect it and many serious troubles follow. Profit in time by the experience of people you know. Here is the best of evidence.

Duluth Proof.

Second Street West.

Mr. G. Henry Lesage, of 713 Second street west, with offices in 401 Palladio building, says: "As a result of a cold settling in my kidneys, I suffered for a long time with heavy, dull aching pain across the small of my back. Plasters and other remedies seemed to relieve me temporarily, but did not remove the trouble. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I determined to try them, and procured a box at the Duluth Drug company's and used them. A few days sufficed to entirely remove the trouble, and since that time I have had no bother at all. I now rest well nights and rise in the morning feeling refreshed."

West Third Street.

Mr. R. Stenens, of 1010 West Third street, carpenter, says: "Years ago I hurt my back, and ever after I had trouble with my kidneys, such as severe aching pains through the small of my back. I could not rest comfortably at night, and often was so lame and sore I could hardly get out of bed in the mornings. I was painful for me to stop and lift anything heavy. I used plaster after plaster, besides a host of different remedies, but none of them did me any permanent good. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and procured them from the Duluth Drug company, and began taking them. I was soon convinced they were doing me good and continued their use. The kidney secretions which before were very highly colored, distressing and annoying, soon became regular and normal, and the aches and pains left me."

Get what you ask for. Get DOAN'S. Don't accept something "just as good." Most druggists sell Doan's Kidney Pills and will give you what you call for. Some may endeavor to substitute an article they make more profit on. Insist on having the genuine. Price, 50 cents. Manufactured by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

DOAN'S Kidney Pills

CURE Kidney and Bladder Ills—Cure annoying Urinary troubles which interfere with daily duties, disturb your rest at night, which are forerunners of dangerous Diabetes and early symptoms of Bright's disease. When the Kidneys fail in their work—when their fibrous filters become clogged, urinary troubles follow. Watch the uninary discharges—when unnatural in color—when passage is painful, infrequent or too frequent, it's time to help the Kidneys or look out for Rheumatism, Dropsy, Diabetes, Bright's Disease. Don't experiment, take a remedy tried and tested by people you know.

Duluth Proof.

First Street.

Mrs. C. H. Bradley, of 109 First street, says: 'For two or three years my kidneys bothered me a good deal, and the usual home remedies gave me but very temporary relief. I had a heavy aching pain across the small of my back, and it was painful for me to stoop. I could not rest comfortably nights and in the morning rose tired and unrefreshed. I was also bothered a great deal with nervousness. The kidney secretions were irregular and unnatural and deposited a sediment. I went to the Duluth Drug company's store and procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I had taken only a few doses when I felt better and by the time I finished the prescribed course of treatment it was unnecessary to continue taking the remedy."

West First Street.

Mr. J. Vaughn, of 532 First street west, says: "I had constant dull aching through my loins and a catarrhal condition of the bladder. The kidney secretions were irregular, distressing and annoying, the sediment varying from a light color to that of brick dust. Any one position became irksome and on getting up in the morning I felt tired and depressed. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recomended and procured a box at the Duluth Drug Co's store, and used them. The first few doses relieved me and I was soon entirely rid of the trouble."

THE DRINK PROBLEM

Tackled In Mexico, Where Intemperance Is Increasing.

Saloons Were First Introduced When Railroads Came.

Temperance Wave Now Sweeping Over the Capital.

Mexico City, May 8.—It begins to look as if a strong popular temperance movement here would result in favor of closing the pulque shops of this capital from Sunday noon to the following midday. The better class of wage-earners have taken the matter up and will petition the governor of the federal district to put in force the 24-hour closing regulation, which, it is believed, would tend not only to the improvement of the public morally, but to prevent the observance of the ancient custom of "San Lunes," or St. Monday. Notoriously, great numbers of wage-earners squander their week's pay in the drinking shops on Sundays and are unfit to go to work on Monday. This observance of "St. Monday" is not only common in Mexico, but to British towns and cities as well.

Alcoholism has become a public curse in this city: there were never so many bar rooms, liquor "joints" and low "figones" as at present. Almost every grocery store nowadays has its bar-room, of which it is said there are 410 in the city, all paying a stiff license tax, but all making a fair amount of money.

Then there are many low resorts for the working classes, where they can waste time and money, and the net result is poverty on a most appalling scale, crimes of violence and deaths from alcoholic congestion. Physicians are outspoken in denunciation of the growth of the liquor habit, and say that the "American mixed drinks" are ruining the physique of young Mexico. The Yankee barroom has followed the Yankee missionary, and has done as much harm as the latter has done good. Fifteen years ago there was hardly a "bar," properly so called, in this city; today it is the commonest and apparently the best paying industry.

The first American bars came with the establishment of railway intercourse with the big Northern republic; formerly there were cafes in the French and Spanish style, where one sat down to lunch or to take a drink; whisky was almost unknown, and the seductive cocktail was an unheard-of thing. One could get at tequila shops a drink of the native firewater, but young men were not generally addicted to alcoholic beverages.

One of the highest officials in the country said recently: "We must deplore the introduction of the American habit of taking mixed drinks; it fills our streets with undesirable barrooms which are obnoxious to ladies and gentlemen."

There has been some talk in the papers of adopting the "high license" system, thus doing away with the greater part of the barrooms and getting quite as much aggregate revenue from the drinking places as now. One of the greatest curses of the barrooms is the tempting of young lads out collecting bills or running errands for business houses.

One sees them flocking into grocery store barrooms, where the sagacious Spaniard has copied the American bar in all its details. Lately, in a small interior city, was noticed this sign stretched across the front of a big establishment: "American drinks; all styles." A very common sign is: "American Barroom." The Spanish word is "cantinta," but everybody now knows what "barroom" means. Cocktail is transformed into the still recognizable "coctel." Mint julep sometimes masquerades as "mintzhuiep."

At this great altitude, where the nervous system is under a continual strain, the custom of taking ardent liquors is sure to induce quick degeneracy. The heart beats faster here than at sea level, and does not stand the goading of strong drink. The doctors and the police unite in ascribing to the increase of the liquor habit many new forms of disease and growth of crime.

Pulque taken in moderation and with meals is a useful and nourishing beverage. It is nature's own tableland tonic. But, abused in the pulque shops, where as early as 7 o'clock in the morning one sees street porters and artisans emptying glasses, holding a litter or more, it is stupefying and degrading in its effects. Pulque will never be legislated out of existence, but probably public opinion will bring about a proper regulation of its ale. It is no more harmful than mild beer when taken with dinner. And as it makes blood fast, and helps out the rather scanty alimentation of the lower classes, it has made for itself a permanent place in the dietary of the masses.

Beer of excellent quality is brewed here, and its increased use is to be regarded as a true step in the direction of temperance. Mexican beers are pure and well made, and the brewers are generally prosperous. You see the great beer vans with powerful horse, or else great Spanish asses, drawing them about. If it comes to the regulation of the liquor business the government will probably try to encourage the use of beer, still too expensive, at 10 cents a small glass, for the wage earners.

Poor men are fond of beer, and when they celebrate some special event they like to be seen taking their bottle of "Toluca Pilsner," "Carta Blanca" or other favorite brands. In some shops a bottle of good beer is old for 18 cents, occasionally for a little less.

One cause of the growth of the drinking habit is undoubtedly the high cost of food. Provisions nowadays are very dear. Beef cattle are being exported to Cuba by the thousands, and mutton, too, grows more expensive. People ill-fed will surely take to alcohol. Then, too, the good old-fashioned Mexican cooks are growing scarcer, what with the new demand for women in the modern factories. The average cook nowadays is thieving, untaught, and, knowing her value, leaves without notice.

The Mexican people deplore the custom of newly arrived foreigners of "spoiling servants with too high pay," and there is ample ground for this complaint. One has to go far into the interior to find the old-fashioned, loyal and fairly skilled servants.

What the country needs is cooking schools, laundering schools and the like for poor women. Servants' wages are rising, being nearly double what they were ten years ago. A good cook can, with her board and room and wages, do really better in a private family than in a factory. But nowadays the usual result of "modern progress" is noted in the demand for "independence." Servants will tell you that in "la fabrica" (the factory) they have set hours, long, it is true, but when the day's work is done nobody can "boss them."

A Mexican lady said the other day: "The foreigners and the public schools have upset everything. Servants get to reading the penny papers, and put on airs; the old deference to their masters and mistresses is disappearing. The Yankees have given us many good things, but they are spoiling our old and peaceful and well-ordered scheme of living." This is somewhat exaggerted, but, as I have often said, the "new wine in the old bottles" is raising the dickens here in Mexico.

So we have here the drink problem and the servant question, and ought to realize that we are now in the foremost line of progress and of that civilization which has for its net result the dissemination of class hatreds, discontent, and the decay of reverence and respect.

DIED IN JAIL.

Old Man Who Was Innocent of Charge.

Louisville, Ky., May 8.—"Call case No. 50," said Judge McCann in the city court this morning. On the docket beside the number was "William Watts, drunkenness."

Bailiff Bosler called No. 50 repeatedly, and then went to the prisoners' cage. Passing through the throng of prisoners he found an old man lying on the floor dead. The policeman who had arrested Watts identified him. He had passed away in the cage while waiting to answer to the charge against him.

"Your honor, this man has gone to a higher court," said Mr. Bosler, and the case was stricken from the docket.

The pathetic feature of the case is that the old man, who was picked up on the street, had fallen from weakness and illness, and was not drunk. He spent the night in the jail. In the morning the true state of affairs was discovered, and he would have been given proper attention as soon as the court formalities had been gone through.

When it was discovered that the old man was dead several of the negro women were frightened so they fainted, while others dropped to their knees and prayed.

GEMS

Were Offered By His Wife For McKenna's Release.

Akron, Ohio, May 8.—Another chapter was added to the sensational romance of the marriage of Thomas McKenna to Lydia White, the sweetheart of his employer, Thomas Paddock, a wealthy liveryman, when Paddock caused the arrest of McKenna on the charge of assault, and the bride of two weeks ago, who has been missing since the day after the wedding, alleging that she had been detained at the home of her sister in Cleveland against her will.

McKenna claims he did not even see Paddock at the time of the alleged assault and that he is being held in jail because it was found that his wife had come back from Cleveland and it was decided to put him where she could not see him.

McKenna has a suit for $10,000 pending against Paddock for alienating his wife's affections.

BOY HERO

Held Two Men at Bay and Saved Father's Life.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 8.—Charlie Warsaw, aged 10, of Townsend, Va., is the hero of the hour in that little city. By coolness and bravery seldom found in children he managed to save his father's life by holding at bay with a revolver two men who had come with the alleged intention of slaying his parent. These men are said to be Maje Wilkins and Tom Grandin, now under arrest, who are alleged to have harbored ill-feeling against the elder Warsaw because the latter had discharged them from his employ.

They came to Warsaw's house at night, it is said, and in trying to lay hands on the father awakened the son.

The boy reached for a pistol and pointed it at the two alleged intruders. They laughed at the youngster, but when the boy poked the weapon squarely in their faces they hesitated. Feeling himself then master of the situation, young Warsaw commanded one of the men to surrender the Winchester that he was carrying, and the fellow lost no time to comply. The boy hero awakened his father, and on his approach the two men beat a precipitate retreat.

FIGHTING THE TRUST.

St. Louis, May 7.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Jefferson City, Mo., says: Quo warranto proceedings on an application for a writ of ouster against the meat packing companies composing the "big four" will be the next step in the fight of the state of Missouri on the beef trust. The result of the proceedings if successful, will be to debar the companies from carrying on business in this state.

KASSON RECOVERING.

Washington, May 7.—John A. Kasson, the special plenipotentiary under whose directions the pending reciprocity treaties were prepared, is in Garfield hospital in this city, recovering from an operation. Although well along in years, he sustained the severe operation of laparotomy last Wednesday and is convalescing rapidly.

THE SUGAR INQUIRY.

Broker Buys More For the Independent Refiners.

Washington, May 7.—Manuel Roda, a sugar broker, testified before the senate committee on relations with Cuba today. He said he bought more sugar for the independent refiners than for the trust. He said Germany fixed the price of sugar. In February and March there was a reduction on Cuban sugars below the Hamburg price because the supply is greater than the demand. The Cuban sellers would receive all the benefit of a reduction of duty by the United States, he said. If no reduction was made there might be a panic in Cuba as those who have made advances on sugar would pull in their loans.

Mr. Brison, commissioner of deeds of Havana, testified that many large and small plantations in Cuba are owned by Americans. As a rule the Spaniards control the sugar production by holding mortgages on plantations. Brison also said that the peons or colonos, who grow the sugar on the plantations, would not derive any benefit from an increase in the price of sugar.

NEW LINE

Of Trans-Pacific Steamers Is Being Planned.

San Francisco, May 7.—The Chronicle says: Plans are being quietly pressed in the East for the creation of a new trans-Pacific steamship line between San Francisco and Hong Kong. It is intended to have a number of freight and passenger carrying steamers running in connection with the proposed Canton-Hankow railroad, which is just building in China. One million five hundred thousand tons of steel rails for this new Chinese railroad will form the nucleus of the traffic on which to establish a new ocean line of steamers.

BABY'S VOICE

Is the joy of the household, for without it no happiness can be complete. How sweet the picture of mother and babe, angels smile at and commend the thoughts and aspirations of the mother bending over the cradle. The ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so full of danger and suffering that she looks forward to the hour when she shall feel the exquisite thrill of motherhood with indescribable dread and fear. Every woman should know that the danger, pain and horror of child-birth can be entirely avoided by the use of Mother's Friend, a scientific liniment for external use only, which toughens and renders pliable all the parts, and assists nature in its sublime work. By its aid thousands of women have passed this great crisis in perfect safety and without pain. Sold at $1.00 per bottle by druggists. Our book of priceless value to all women sent free. Address

ADVANCE IN WHEAT

Small Amount of Export Business Done In Duluth.

Flax Business Fairly Active and Fall Options Decline.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 8.—The wheat market started out at a small advance and ruled strong throughout the session. The cables were lower, but in view of yesterday's decline in the American markets this was expected and the foreign markets were regarded as comparatively steady. The Northwest receipts continued small and had a bullish effect. On the other hand favorable weather was reported from the wheat country, with the crops making good progress. New York reported 14 loads worked for export. In Duluth the exporters worked about a half dozen loads.

The Liverpool market closed ¼d lower. Antwerp was unchanged. Primary receipts were 176,000 bus, last year, 352,000. Shipments, 336,000 bus; last year, 416,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 388,000 bus.

Corn and oats were stronger in the Chicago market. The former advanced ⅝-¾c and the latter the same. Primary receipts of corn were 232,000 bus; last year, 468,000 bus. Shipments, 468,000 bus; last year, 420,000 bus. Clearances were 19,440 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 101 cars, and at Chicago 23 a total of 124 cars, against 253 last week and 230 last year.

Trading in wheat was light today on the Duluth board and the market slightly stronger. It opened slightly stronger at 75¾c, sold at 75¼c at 9:40, advanced to 75½c at 10:12, fell to 75¾c at 11 and at 11:30 declined to 75¾c at 11 and then jumped to 76c at 12:45, falling back to 75¾c and closing there. This was an advance of ¾-1¼c. Chicago advanced the same and Minneapolis ½c.

Cash sales were practically nothing. July price was offered for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 northern and 4c under for No. 3.

Flax trading was fairly active. Cash and to arrive seed were unchanged, but the fu ures were weaker. September sold 1½c up to $1.48, but closed 1½c off at $1 October closed 1c off.

Rye was up 1c, cash oats 1¾c and the September option in oats advanced ¾c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat, cash, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 75¾c; No. 2 northern, 73¾c; No. 3 spring, 71¾c. To arrive, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 75¾c; May, 75½c; July, 75¾c; September, 73½c. Manitoba, No. 1 northern, cash, 75¾c; No. 2 northern, 73¾c. Oats, cash, 31¾c; September, 30c. Rye, 55c. Flax, cash, $1.45; to arrive, $1.45; May, $1.75; September, $1.46; October, $1.43.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Higher on Stronger Cables.

Chicago, May 8.—July wheat opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c higher at 74⅝c to 74½c on comparatively strong cables. Foreign markets were lower but not as much as had been expected following yesterday's local slump. Weather in general was favorable and statistical journals reported crops progressing well. Receipts were still small. Trade was light and on small liquidation prices eased. July sold at 74⅛c and later steadied a little higher. Local receipts were 23 cars, none of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 101 cars (Duluth only five), making a total for the three points of 124 cars against 253 last week and 230 a year ago.

July wheat declined to 74⅜c and dragged for a time. Then corn strength and reports of good export business started a reaction. July closed firm, ⅜@½c higher at 74⅝c.

July corn opened ⅜c to ½c higher at 61c to 61⅛c on steady cables and sold even a shade higher. Trade, however, was dull early. The leading bull party sold deferred futures moderately and on good crop advices July sold down to 61c. Later there was some covering that brought a reaction to 61c. Receipts were small at 103 cars.

There was little speculation in corn until late, when the bull crowd began putting the price up on the shorts and July sold up from 60½c to 61⅝c, closing firm, ⅝@¾c up at 61¼@⅝c.

Oats were very dull and steady at the opening but eased off on the dip in corn. Crop reports indicated a decided improvement over the early conditions. The premium on cash oats was decreased. July opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at ⅜@⅝c to 35½c, eased to 35c and steadied at ⅜@⅝c. Receipts were 135 cars.

Provisions were quiet but showed good strength early on firmer tone to the hog market. The demand was limited. July opened 5c to 10c up at $17.00 to $17.05 and advanced to $17.07½. July lard 5c higher at $10.15, and July ribs 5c up at $9.57½.

Close: Wheat—May, 74⅝@¾c; July, 74⅝c; September, 73⅝c; December, 74¾c. Corn—May, 60⅝c; July, 61¼@⅜c; September, 59⅜c; December, 40½c. May, (1903), 42c. Oats—May, 42c; July, 47¼@⅝c; new, 36¼c; September, 29⅜c; new, 30¾c; December, 29⅝c; new, 31½c. Pork—May, $17.10; July, $17.25; September, $17.30; January, $17.05. Lard—May, $10.20; July, $10.22½; September, $10.27½; October, $10.37½. Ribs—May, $9.65; July, $9.85; September, $9.70. Flax—Cash Northwestern, 77c; Southwestern, $1.64; May, $1.66; September, $1.45; October, $1.41. Rye—May, 55¾c; July, 56c. Barley—Cash, 45@71c. Timothy—September, $4.12½@5.00. Clover—Cash, $8.35. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, 80¼@81½c; No. 3 red, 80@¼c; No. 2 hard winter, 76@¾c; No. 3 hard winter, 76@¾c; No. 1 northern spring, 78¼@79½c; No. 2 spring, 72¼@74½c. Corn—No. 3, 60¾@61c. Oats—No. 2, 41¾@42c; No. 3, 41½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The whole tone of the market here was stronger. There was some further selling pressure from shorts on the futures early, but it brought no liquidating orders and the market gradually turned firm and worked higher. Export business is light and probably the most of the buying which caused the advance was covering of shorts put out yesterday. Cash wheat was in good demand and there was a sharp narrowing of the May discount. Weather continues favorable for seeding in the Northwest, but there is little if any improvement in the tone of the advices regarding the growing crop in Kansas. The cables were received from those who should be in touch with the conditions none of them indicate more than half last year's crop and some of them as low as a quarter. Price Current says that wheat is maintaining fairly good promise. It seems to us that Missouri is about the only state of which this is true. We are looking for Saturday's report and this is likely to be bullish. We expect it to show a lower condition than the April report.

Cincinnati Price Current: Winter wheat is maintaining fairly good promise. Present weather conditions are favorable. Oats started poorly but have improved and now have fair prospects. Corn is starting auspiciously.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Broad of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, May 8.—The wheat market ruled very firm all day on covering by shorts owing to steady cables from abroad, good cash demand and the strength in May option. The close was firm, May ⅜c, July ½c, September, ⅝c and December ¼c higher than last night. Liverpool reported their market as steady only ¼d lower for the day. Continental markets were also steady. There was a good demand for cash again by millers and for export with fairly large business reported. The seaboard reported a good business there for export. The weather throughout the spring wheat belt continues favorable and the crop reports now coming in are more favorable. Government report which will be issued Saturday is expected to show a decrease in the condition of winter wheat of at least 6 points. Estimated receipts tomorrow, 50 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in corn today and principal feature to the market was covering by shorts. Prices closed July ⅝c. September ¼c higher than last night. Country offerings were moderate. Cash demand reported quiet. Foreign markets were steady. Liverpool closed ½d lower for the day. The weather continues favorable. Estimated for tomorrow, 95 cars.

There was a moderate trade in oats today and the principal feature to the market was covering by shorts especially in the May option, which month after selling as high at 43¾c toward the end of the session reacted and closed at 42c. July and September closed ¾c over last night. Country offerings were moderate, cash demand good and liberal sales were reported. Weather generally favorable for the growing crops. Estimated tomorrow, 160 cars.

Provisions opened strong on higher hogs and lighter receipts and was instantly taken in hand by the leaders and by aggressive buying advanced the market rapidly, closing at best prices of the day. Pork received the most attention and trade was very large in it, outsiders taking profits. Today was an object lesson of the power of the packers and complete harmony is said to exist. It is a rich man's market and when these prices are compared with what our market does not appear attractive. Talk of manipulation does no market any good and commission houses as a rule are not encouraging trade. Estimated receipts tomorrow, 19,000 hogs.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that the bidding in the auction was keen and active, bringing the outlet up to a high number, the bulk of which was heavy horses and drivers. Prices ruled uneven and in many instances below the country cost of horses. Values:

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

The Opening Tendency of the Market Was Upward.

Prices Rose Still Further But Gains Not Maintained.

Slump In New York Utilities on Franchise Tax Decision.

New York, May 8.—The opening tendency of stocks was strongly upwards notwithstanding a few declines in the specialties. There were opening sales of 5000 shares of Reading at 66 to 66¼, compared with 65¾ last night. Louisville rose 1½ and there was heavy buying of Southern Railway at a fractional gain. Advances reached about a point in Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Chicago Great Western and Kansas City Southern. Tennessee Coal dropped 1½ and Northwestern 2.

Prices generally rose well above the opening, but the largest gains were centered in the "pet" stocks and a few of the active leaders which have recently been unusually prominent. These included St. Paul, Reading common and second preferred, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Louisville & Nashville, Metropolitan, Chicago Great Western preferred, Erie, Chicago & Alton, Chicago Terminal Transfer preferred, Wisconsin Central, Fort Worth & Denver City, stamped, Kansas City Southern and Cotton Oil, which improved 1 to 2 points. New York Air Brake dropped 4½. North American, Tennessee Coal and United States Express and Colorado Fuel & Iron profit-taking sales in the coalers, St. Paul and Union Pacific then lowered prices all around and trading became dull.

The referee's decision affirming the constitutionality of the franchise tax caused liquidation in stocks of local municipal corporations resulting in extreme losses of from 1 to 6 points with Metropolitan leading. The general market was not much affected by the selling and when Reading was marked up above 67 the entire market rallied. The local stocks recovered 1 to 2 points and Colorado Fuel cancelled its loss. Prices elsewhere did not recover to the best except in St. Paul and Erie, which rose 1¼ over yesterday. St. Lawrence & Adirondack sold at 52 for 100 shares, compared with 50 yesterday's closing bid and 125, the previous sale on Friday last. International Power sold at 81, compared with 90 on Saturday and 70 bid last night. Bonds were irregular.

The market became very dull. The grangers and Sugar were held near the top, but the coalers and other stocks were inclined to sag slightly. Louisville & Nashville was a point below the best, but Illinois Central gained 1¼. Chicago Terminal rose a point, the preferred 2¾. Snuff and Westinghouse Electric 2.

There were but few changes of importance in prices, operators restricting ventures pending news of the anthracite settlement. International Power rallied 6 points, Delaware & Hudson gained 4½ and DesMoines & Fort Dodge 1¾. Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis lost 4, New Jersey 1¾ and Lackawanna 1½.

There was some unconnected advances during the final hour. Delaware & Hudson rose 5¼ in all and reacted 2¾. Lackawanna rallied 2½ and reacted 1. Canadian Pacific gained 1¾. Rock Island 2¼. Illinois Central and Lead 2. Amalgamated 1¾. Hocking Valley 1¼ and St. Louis & San Francisco 1. New York Air Brake rallied 5½ on a single sale. International Power scored a full recovery and Colorado Fuel rose a point over last night. General Electric lost 3½. Northwestern 4¼ and Wheeling & Lake Erie, first preferred, Iowa Central and International Paper preferred one each. Room traders took profits, causing prices to ease off. The close was dull and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to W. H. Laidley & Co.—While considerable disappointment is felt by bull traders tonight over the feverishness and irregularity of the market, conservative sentiment is optimistic and large operators advise the purchase of good stocks on reactions.

The fact that high money rates are lasting longer than expected is undoubtedly a depressing influence in speculation.

But good authorities on the situation advise the opinion that the stringency is due to temporary causes. They point out that by an unfortunate coincidence the payment for a large amount of new stock, including new issues of Pennsylvania, New York Central and Louisville & Nashville have had to be made since May 1. Thus $5,000,000 additional money had to be borrowed yesterday for Louisville stock. The result of this demand is tight money and moderate liquidation. Argument is made that as New York is the only financial center in the world where money commands more than 6 per cent the present high rates cannot prevail much longer without attracting capital from all directions. Specialists who were active during the day in the more prominent stocks say that in the Southern group the buying was unquestionably in connection with a deal that is about to be completed and which probably involves Louisville & Nashville, Illinois Central, Southern Railway and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, one of the sequels to which will be a 6 per cent dividend rate for the first named stock. In the general list 15 per cent money and strike talk are tradign incidents, the brokers say which have created a new and large short interest in Atchison, Union Pacific, St. Paul, Southern Pacific and the Readings, and there is a theory that the market is in a good position in the event of good news to have a rapid advance on the phenomenal railroad earnings, improving crop conditions and the prospect of the return in the near future of normal rates for money. It is stated that large time loans have recently been made by banking interests to facilitate their stock market plans.

Bache to Edwards, Wood & Co.—The readjustment of the capitalization of Southern Railway upon lines which have already been indicated will be undertaken. This when carried out will involve the retirement of preferred stock in exchange for possibly a 4 per cent bond and the reduction of common by 50 per cent. This would certainly put the common on a storng basis with the likelihood of a regular dividend.

Ridgely to W. H. Laidley & Co.—Yesterday was the third day of the advance and stocks were a sale as I expected. Even if this is a bull market some reaction was due. Strike rumors are very contradictory and strike news will be an important factor on stocks. My advice to buy stocks on breaks and take profits on bulges still holds good. It is the only way to trade in this kind of a market.

I hear that Union Pacific will probably be advanced to 5 per cent at the next meeting and the stock will sell near 125.

The information on Brooklyn Rapid Transit comes from the very best source on the street. I am of the opinion, however, that any bull campaign will be short and that no big movement is in sight either up or down. Trade on a scale and be satisfied with moderate profits.

S. B. Dickinson to W. H. Laidley & Co.—From a source in which we have great confidence we get it that just as soon as money conditions become normal Amalgamated Copper will be taken in hand for a pronounced advance.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Hayden, Stone & Co. to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is quite a bit more cheerful feeling in copper stocks and, money permitting, it is likely that other issues will make their favorites more active at advancing prices. Money, however, is extremely stiff and there is no sign yet of easier conditions. Stocks are still slow of sale, even where there is great activity apparent. We have had good buying orders in Old Dominion from well-posted people. Speculative energy is at a low ebb at the moment in New York as well as in Boston.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: John Stanton in an interview on the copper situation today says: "Copper conditions are better today than they have been for a long time and the future prospect is bright. I am satisfied to let the situation take care of itself for the present."

Houghton to Paine, Webber & Co.: It is rumored that Atlantic has cut the Baltic lode with no hanging wall yet.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The public action of the interview with John Stanton in which he expresses great confidence in the copper situation helped the coppers today. The market was active and strong and in particular Mass advanced on report of consolidation with the Adventure. There was continued good buying of Range and Amalgamated. We feel very bullish on coppers and expect considerably higher prices.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 8.—Cotton opened easy with near months 9 to 10 points lower and far months 4 to 6 points lower on weakness in the English market, good crop reports and large port receipts. Following the call bulls July sold down to 9.11 and August to 8.57. Before 11 o'clock the local market began to show open resistance to further weakness and rallied. Before the close of the first hour July had reached 9.23 and August 9.04.

Cotton spot closed quiet 5 points lower; middling uplands, 9¾; middling gulf, 9¾; sales, none. Cotton futures closed steady at the decline; May, 926; June, 9.0; July, 911; August, 881; September, 841; October, 820; November, 815; December, 813; January, 813.

EXCHANGE TO CLOSE.

Liverpool, May 8.—The cotton exchange here will be closed on May 17, 19, 23 and 24.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 8.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $187,313,607; gold, $95,633,911; silver, $19,246,120; U. S. notes, $7,714,871; treasury notes of 1890, $123,096; national bank notes, $8,620,991; total receipts this day, $1,724,442; total receipts this month, $13,445,044; total receipts this year, $47,685,314; total expenditures this day $1,610,000; total expenditures this month, $12,615,000; total expenditures this year, $411,230,999; deposits in national banks, $123,6?9,368.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 8.—Close: Money on call, firm at 6@9 per cent; closing offered at 6 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4¼@6¼; sterling exchange, weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87¼ for demand and $4.85 for sixty days; posted rates $4.86 and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84½@4.85½; bar silver, 61½c; Mexican dollars, 41¼c. Government bonds, weak; state bonds, weak; railroad bonds, irregular.

SENATORS CONTINUE

To Talk Warmly About Government of the Philippines.

Mr. Burton Has More Praise For Gen. Funston.

Mr. Vest Corrects Lincoln Story at Hampton Roads.

Washington, May 8.—Soon after the senate convened today, Mr. Berry (Ark.) offered a resolution discharging the committee on privileges and elections from further consideration of the resolution providing for an amendment to the constitution that senators shall be elected by the people.

Mr. Burrows (Mich.), chairman of that committee, objected to immediate consideration and asked that it go over until tomorrow. It was so ordered.

At the conclusion of routine business consideration of the Philippine government bill was resumed. Mr. Burton (Kans.) continued his speech begun yesterday, elaborating his eulogium of Gen. Funston. He intimated that it was because he had captured Aguinaldo and had assisted aterially in putting down the insurrection in the Philippines, that the Democratic minority so vigorously criticized Funston. Discussing the war in the islands, Mr. Burton declared that no more cruelty was exercised in the war in the islands than was absolutely necessary. He referred to the battles fought by Irvington in Colorado, which became subsequently an issue in Colorado politics, and of Wounded Knee, where every Indian was killed, entirely, he said, within the regulations of war. Isolated instances of barbarity are incidents of every war.

He referred to the massacre of colored troops at Fort Pillow, which, he said, was an act of a few infuriated men under the command of Gen. Forrest. In that massacre the blood of Union soldiers was shed, not that of Confederates. He also referred to the Mountain Meadow massacre—a massacre "which for hideous atrocity and fiendish devilry" had not been equaled on this continent. He did not charge, he said, the Confederates with the Fort Pillow infamy or the Mormons with the Mountain Meadow massacre, but we must not charge the United States army with isolated instances of atrocity and cruelty in the Philippines.

Mr. Perkins (Cal.) interrupted to offer a resolution declaring that the senate had heard with profound grief of the death of Rear Admiral William T. Sampson, and providing for the appointment of a committee of five senators to join a like committee of the house, to attend the funeral as a mark of respect to the dead officer. The resolution was adopted and Messrs. Perkins, Gallinger, Quarles, Martin and Mallory were named as a committee.

Continuing, Mr. Burton referred to the remarkable speech delivered in the senate yesterday by Mr. Tillman (S. C.). He paid a tribute to the work being done by Booker T. Washington for the colored race, and suggested that if the colored people would follow his advice they would be successful.

At the conclusion of Mr. Burton's speech, Mr. Vest (Mo.) took the floor and denied the oft-repeated story of the Hampton Roads conference between President Lincoln and delegates of the Confederacy, when it was alleged that Lincoln said if he might write the word "Union," they might fill in any other terms. Mr. Vest said that John R. Reagan, the last surviving member of the Confederate cabinet, had denied the story, and he (Vest) the last surviving member of the Confederate senate, could assert that it was not true.

Mr. Vest asserted that Lincoln told the delegates nothing but unconditional surrender would be accepted. The details of that conference were given him by Alexander H. Stephens.

"It will be o[illegible] n short time," said Mr. Vest, "before I shall join the twenty-five colleagues of the Confederate senate who have gone before and in the interest of truth and history I feel it my duty to deny the story that has been circulated."

He said that if Mr. Lincoln had made any such offer, the men who refused it would have been responsible for the fearful loss of life that followed, as the terms gave the South everything they could in reason ask.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 8.—At the opening of the session of the house today the speaker announced the appointment of Mr. Gillett (Mass.) as a member of the committee on appropriations to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Secretary of the Navy Moody.

Without preliminary business the house then proceeded with the consideration of the omnibus statehood bill under an agreement that general debate should close today at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Moon (Tenn.), the ranking minority member of the committee on territories, the first speaker today, earnestly urged the passage of the bill, arguing that the admission of the three territories to statehood would be only an act of simple justice to the people residing therein. The constitutional right of admission, he contended, existed in each case.

Mr. Grosvenor (O), spoke in opposition to that measure. He said the weak point in the bill was that it was an omnibus. The claims of each territory to admission, he argued, should be considered separately. In effect, he declared, this was a log rolling proposition. When the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Knox) said that this was not a political measure, he declared he was contradicting all the facts of history. From the time of the admission of Kentucky, he said, political considerations had goverri in the admission of territories. No one, he said, could deny that Nevada was admitted for purely political purposes.

"Did not the Republican platform of 1900 declare in favor of the admission of the territories?" asked Mr. Stevens (Tex.)

"Yes," replied Mr. Grosvenor, "but I venture to say that hardly a score of men on the floor of the Philadelphia convention knew that Mr. Quigg had smuggled it into the platform."

Mr. Grosvenor avowed that he had voted for the admission of the Dakotas for the same reason that the Democrats had opposed it—because it would strengthen the Republican party.

"Why does the gentleman assume that the three territories would make Democratic states?" asked Mr. Thayer (Mass.). "Are not two of the three delegates Republicans, and would not their admission place four Republicans in the senate?"

"The gentleman is a Democrat," replied Mr. Grosvenor. "Does he say his district is Democratic?" (Laughter.)

"Then they are easily satisfied." (Renewed laughter.)

At the conclusion of Mr. Grosvenor's remarks, the bill was temporarily laid aside to permit Mr. Dayton (W. Va.) to ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution relative to the death of Rear Admiral Sampson and providing that a committee of seven members be appointed to join the committee from the senate to attend the deceased's funeral. There was no objection and it was adopted. The speaker appointed the following committee: Messrs. Dayton (W. Va.), Payne (N. Y.), Grosvenor (Ohio), Watson, (Ind.), Meyer (La.), Hooker (Miss.), and Bartlett (Ga.)

The debate on the statehood bill was then resumed. Mr. Smith, delegate from Arizona, replied to Mr. Grosvenor and spoke of the growth and population of the territory.

NOT MUCH

Knowledge Was Gleaned From Cranborne By Mr. Bowles.

London, May 8.—Thomas Gibson Bowles, Conservative, made several ineffectual attempts in the commons today to draw the parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, Lord Cranborne on the subject of Atlantic shipping combine, the Panama canal, the Danish West Indies treaty and German railroads in Asia Minor. Lord Cranborne's replies did not illuminate the situation. He said no communications had passed between the United States and British governments on the subject of the shipping combine, nor regarding the proposed purchases of the Panama Canal company's right; nor as to the Danish West Indies.

As to the suggestion that J. Pierpont Morgan was a leading member of the syndicate carrying out the concession which Turkey granted to Germany for a railroad through Asia-Minor to the Persian gulf, the government, said, Lord Cranborne had no information to that effect.

STARTS FOR ITALY.

Father of Baby Taylor After His Daughter.

Washington, May 8.—The machinery of the law has been set in motion to secure the return to the United States for trial of Clara Taylor, the Cincinnati woman, who is charged with kidnaping her niece, Margaret Taylor, and is now a fugitive in Italy. Instructions have been sent to the American ambassador at Rome to secure the preliminary detention of the woman, pending the arrival of extradition papers and from that point on the proceedings will be purely routine.

Cincinnati, May 8.—It was announced here today that A. V. Taylor, father of Margaret, had left for Italy to secure his child, a local paper bearing his expenses. Governor Nash is said to have assisted in starting Mr. Taylor, who will be furnished with the necessary papers in Washington.

LOST HIS PAPERS.

Soldier Assaulted and Left In Unconscious Condition.

Chicago, May 8.—Developments today indicate that H. E. H. King, who was attacked last night and found unconscious in military uniform on a doorstep in Wilmette, and who was thought to be a lieutenant of the regular army stationed at Fort Sheridan, is the son of Brevet Gen. H. A. King, retired, of Washington, D. C. Today he made a statement that he was a Cuban war veteran who had suffered expulsion from home by his father because he had been court-martialed and expelled from West Point. The charge of signing false vouchers was brought against him at the military academy by M. A. Elkins. According to his statement King maintained that at the point of a gun he made Elkins retract the charges in writing. This retraction, he says, was stolen from him last night when he was assaulted.

GERST PLEADS GUILTY.

Buffalo, May 8.—Former City Treasurer Philip Gerst, indicted for complicity in the defalcations in his office, which resulted in his bondsmen being forced to make good to the extent of about $40,000, pleaded guilty today and was fined $1000, which he paid. He was then released.

ANGRY

Chicago, May 8.—Street and elevated railroad employes here are much exercised today over the refusal of President Roach, of the Union Traction company, to give an audience to President Bowman, of the Chicago Federation of Labor, relative to the discharge of twenty employes of the traction company ostensibly for joining the new local union of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes. President Roach said he was willing to meet employes of the company who had grievances, but would not talk to labor agitators. Organizers of the new union have been appealed to to force the company to take back the discharged men and today President Bowman said the situation was very grave. The new union numbers nearly 335 men and it is said they will use the present grievance to precipitate a general strike.

ILLINOIS

Republicans Meet In State Convention at Springfield.

Springfield, Ill., May 8.—The Republican state convention opened at 12:15 today under auspicious conditions. Machinery hall at the state fair grounds, which was utilized for the occasion, was unusually well appointed. Much enthusiasm was shown when Congressman Hopkins entered the hall. The applause was renewed when Congresaman Cannon arrived and the third demonstration was accorded Governor Yates.

Shortly after noon, Fred H. Rowe, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order.

The introduction of Congressman Cannon as temporary chairman, was followed by an enthusiastic demonstration. He spoke at length, reviewing the history of his party and glorifying its leaders who have brought it and with it the nation to its present eminence.

After the committees on resolutions, permanent organization, credentials and the new state committee were named, a recess was taken until 2:30 o'clock.

HARD TO DEAL WITH

Are Men Who Bribe Policemen and Then Kick.

Boston, May 8.—In the course of a paper on "A Non-Partisan Administration," delivered before the National Municipal league here today, E. A. Philbin, formerly district attorney of New York, said: "The hardest men to deal with are the gentlemen who will not hesitate to bribe a policeman to make no complaint of crime and then will make a great outcery against the non-enforcement of the law."

Charles Richardson, of Philadelphia, reviewed conditions in that city. E. J. Clement, of the Boston Transcript, discussed "The Boston Situation" and George Sykes, secretary of the committee on local transportation, of Chicago, "The Situation in Chicago."

SWEEPING VICTORY

For the United States In Salvadorean Dispute.

Washington, May 8.—The United States has won a sweeping victory in the matter of the arbitration of the dispute with the republic of Salvador over the claim of the Salvador Commercial company and other citizens of the United States, stockholders in the corporation El Triumfo company (limited), created under the laws of Salvador. Sir Henry Strong and Don M. Dickson, a majority of the arbitration commission have rendered an opinion against Salvador for $573,178.

This sum, by the terms of the opinion is to be paid to the United States for the liquidation of the clams of the American stockholders of the Commercial company, an organization incorporated under the laws of California. Senor Don Jose Rosa Pacas, the Salvadoran arbitrator, strongly dissented from the opinion of the majority.

AGAINST COMPANY.

United States Judge Refuses to Assume Jurisdiction.

Chicago, May 8.—Judge Seaman, of the United States district court, today ruled against the Union Traction company by refusing to take jurisdiction in the suit brought by the company to establish the validity of the Illinois 99-year franchise act. This act passed many years ago, the city officials maintained, had been abrogated by more recent legislation. Traction interests are much exercised over the turn of the suit, inasmuch as many of the principal franchises of the city street railways expire next year in case this bill is not valid. The court allowed the company until Monday to make further answer.

MUCH INTEREST

Among Club Women Over Election of Officers.

Los Angeles, May 8.—The election of officers was scheduled for today at the women's convention, and the hall was crowded this morning when Mrs. Lowe called the delegates to order. The supporters of Mrs. Platt-Decker announced that if she declined to be a candidate for president, in opposition to the regular nominee, they would nominate Mrs. James D. Whitmore, of Denver.

BARROWS IS ARRESTED.

Washington, May 8.—H. A. Barrows, late disbursing officer of the census bureau was arrested today, charged with the embezzlement of $7500 in government funds. The warrant was sworn out by Charles H. Holliday, representing the American Security & Trust company of New York, which went on Barrow's bond.

THE TRACKMEN WIN.

Montreal, May 8.—It is unofficially announced that Chancellor Body, who was appointed arbitrator between the Canadian Pacific railroad trackmen and the company, has awarded the trackmen of the Eastern division a 20 per cent increase. The trackmen's committee is consulting with the officials of the road about arbitration of the other divisions.

MOTION TO DISMISS

Made In Hartley Murder Trial at Faribault.

St. Paul, May 8.—A Faribault, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Shortly before noon the state rested in the Hartley murder trial and defendant's lawyers made a motion to dismiss the case on the ground that the evidence submitted was insufficient to sustain the indictment. Judge Buckham will decide the motion this afternoon.

BEMIDJI PHYSICIAN DEAD.

St. Paul, May 8.—A Bemidji special to the Dispatch says: C. Adamson, a pioneer physician of Bemidji, died at noon today of erysipelas after a short illness. He was a prominent young man and leaves a widow and one child.

LOVES HIS WILD LIFE.

A Typical Frontier Hunter Who Shuns Civilization.

In the wilds of Texas there are still to be found a few settlers who have resisted the encroachments of civilization and retained their primitive ideas of honesty and independence. They represent a class of unique characters, who are only to be found on the outskirts of settlements, where the country admits of scattered habitations, because of ruggedness or occasional spots of arable lands, says the San Antonio Express.

Such a region is found in the vicinity of the Nueces Canyon and its tributaries. This section of Texas embodies one of the wildest and most picturesque parts of the state, and includes some of the loveliest views that the eye of man ever rested upon. Withal, its healthfulness, combined with many other attractive features, renders it one of the most desirable localities for settlement or for a temporary sojourn.

The Valley of the Neuces, threaded by the river and fringed on each side by mountain pinnacles, is settled by a good class of people, who are prosperous and have become thoroughly wedded to their surroundings, which are enhanced by many of the advantages of civilization. But back in the mountains can be found a few of the class who retain the pronounced characteristics of the earlier frontiersmen. It is the intention of this article to introduce one of the fast disappearing types of our American citizenship.

Bill Wells honors Kansas through his nativity, but Texas nurtured all of his better qualities, and the salubrious air of the canyon all the hardiness conspicuous in his nature, as his parents found a home there when he was only 5 years of age. In his youthful years he met with a singular accident which destroyed the sight of one of his eyes. His mother was trying to repair a gunlock with a file, when it slipped, and, as Bill was leaning on her knee, the end of the instrument entered his eye and irreparably destroyed his sight.

In those days agriculture received but little attention, and was confined at most to a few acres of breadstuffs. The supplies for the family were secured through the chase, and as the country was full of game and wild cattle, there was no lack of food, and the pelts contributed to the family's humble needs from distant markets. Doubtless, Bill's educational instructions were received at home, and under the circumstances it is supposed they were limited. At any rate he never aspired to literary distinction, and his reading has been confined for years to the Irish Work and a Texas daily. As a consequence, his politics are governed by those journals, and he is a rank Fenian in his opinions, and takes great interest in political affairs, but no one pretends to question the honesty of his views, however much they may differ on the points at issue. Physically he is rugged, and constitutionally he is fearless. His record as a citizen is clean, and his own integrity is so pronounced that he will subject himself to any inconvenience for an opportunity to testify against a thief; indeed, he once voluntarily rode all the way to Lockhart to aid in convicting one of the fraternity with his evidence.

His uniform dress is a pair of brown duck pants, a jacket and a hickory shirt, while his head is covered with a slouched hat. His accessories are a belt full of Winchester cartridges, to which is attached a long butcher knife, and a canteen for water of a gallon capacity. When thus equipped he is ready at a moment's notice to undertake any expedition. His reputation as a successful hunter is extensive, and he has encountered many thrilling adventures in his sporting combats, particularly with bear, in which line of sport he is so famous that he is known as the "bear hunter." In his pursuit of these animals his great delight, in his more active life, was to explore all the caves he could find, and very often he would encounter a bear, which, with the aid of torchlight, he never failed to kill.

In one of his investigations in the extremetics of one of those subterranean cavities he discovered a large undergrond stream of limpid, cold water, and it was one of his great pleasures to guide parties to its almost inaccessible location, when he delighted in exhibiting its beautiful crystallized and sparkling formations in their curious forms under the red glare of his torch.

It may be inferred that Bill was never addicted to laborious undertakings where manual labor was required. When he married he settled on the headwaters of Montel Creek, in the roughest part of the country, because, as he said, he did not want any close neighbors. There he built a log cabin on the side of the mountain near a spring, from which he irrigated a plot of ground 60 by 40 feet, and planted every year in corn for the squirrels to eat up. There he raised a bevy of children. His only work was hunting and killing wild cattle when they were too wild or too inaccessible to rope. There were great numbers of them in the mountains, and he roped and put his brand on several thousand, which were turned loose, but as they were as wild as before the general public laid an equal claim to them, and in a few years all were extermintated.

On one occasion he chased an Indian several miles in the dusk of an evening, thinking he was after a wild cow, and when near enough he roped the animal. Much to his surprise an Indian jumped off the pony's back and then, before attempting to escape, stabbed the animal several times with his knife. The shock was so unexpected that Bill did not stop to recover his rope or attempt an encounter with the savage, but immediately turned his horse and beat a hasty retreat.

Bill has a fund of stories which he delights in relating, and they, with the addition of his "fetching" song, "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," makes him very companionable and contributes great amusement around the campfires. His many adventures, if properly narrated would give zest to any sportsman's publications.

Bill Wells once made a journey as far as the state of Arkansas for the purpose of disposing of a small farm which had come into his possession by inheritance, and that was his second and last trip away from home. On this trip some one tried to "beat" him out of $5, thinking he was a greenhorn and could be swindled with impunity, but after Bill fully realized the situation he looked the "smart Alex" up, when, drawing his long hunting knife, he made the "sharper" disgorge without wasting any words. It is possible that no combination of circumstances will ever induce Bill Wells to absent himself from his cherished home again. His worldly wealth consists of a few head of cattle, a small flock of goats, and a bunch of hogs, which enables him to secure a subsistence, with additions from the abundance of game surrounding him. Doubtless he will there drift into old age, and be entombed under the shadows of the mountains he has loved so well.

VALUABLE PERQUISITES.

When a cook applies for a place in a restaurant, according to the Philadelphia Record, he says first:

"What's the wages?"

And after he has learned about the wages he goes on:

"Yes," is the answer, or else it is "No," whereupon he resumes:

"Includin' bones?"

An inquisitive person the other day heard a cook asking these strange questions of a restauranteur and the inquisitive person inquired: "What on earth did that cook mean?"

"He ment that he wished to know if he would get the grease and bones as perquisites," the restaurateur explained. "The waste grease and bones of a big eating house amount in the course of a month to a great deal, you know. Here we get monthly 3700 pounds of bones, and they all go to the cook. He sells them at a half cent a pound, and thus they add $4.50 a week to his salary. But the grease here is not a perquisite. I keep it myself. And I get $70 a month for it. It is used in the manufacture of soap."

REFUSE TO ARBITRATE

Coal Operators Decline Miners' Proposal.

Expediency of a Strike Is Being Considered.

Scranton, Pa., May 9.—There was little delay in the convening of the executive committees of the United Mine Workers this morning for the serious work which was cut out for them. Several special delivery letters were received from the operators, which President Mitchell announced in an official statement were declinations to accept the proposal of arbitration. Afterward a number of telegrams also were carried in to Mr. Mitchell. The whole deliberation of the morning was given over to the refusal of the operators of arbitration, together with a canvass of the entire anthracite field in order that there might be a thorough knowledge of the actual conditions which the miners will have to face should a strike order follow.

President Mitchell, at the close of a long and heated debate by the members of the executive committees of the three anthracite districts, announced at 12:30 today that the operators had declined the mine workers' offer to submit the matters in dispute to a board of arbitration, to be named by the industrial department of the Civic Federation. Mr. Mitchell said:

"Replies to our proposition to submit the whole dispute to an arbitration board have been received from President Baer of the Philadelphia and Reading company; Chairman Thomas, of the Erie company; President Truesdale, of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company, and President Oliphant, of the Delaware & Hudson company, all of whom refuse to join us in the adjustment of the differences by the methods we proposed. The executive committees are now considering the chances of success or possibilities of defeat should a strike be declared. A decisive vote will be taken upon the questions this afternoon."

The discussion which followed the reading of the replies of the operators which were received at 11 o'clock continued for an hour and a half, and is said to have been at times acrimonious.

District President Nichols and his associates from the upper coal fields insisted that nothing remained to be done but to declare for a strike and enforce the desires of the miners as expressed at the recent Shamokin convention. District Presidents John Fahey and Thomas Duffy, from the lower coal fields, who have all along opposed a strike, were equally as strenuous in presenting theirs, which were diametrically opposed to those of Mr. Nichols.

The latter declared that to back down in the face of the repeated refusals of the operators to grant concessions and more particularly after they had declined to arbitrate, would be a confession that the united miners were powerless to enforce the demands which had been so spiritedly and repeatedly made.

Presidents Fahey and Duffy answered that the present was an inopportune time to strike; that the organization had numerous fights on its hands in the West and South. They also urged as a reason why a strike should not be ordered that the presidents invited a fight. Notwithstanding that a decisive vote was not reached at this morning's session, President Mitchell's statement that the committees were considering the probabilities of success or defeat in the event of a strike being determined upon, was accepted in some quarters as the forerunner of a "no strike" declaration.

It is certain the vote will be an exceedingly close one, with the probabilities that President Mitchell's will be the deciding ballot.

The wage scale adopted by the convention at Shamokin has not been made public by President Mitchell, but the demands were presented in detail to the operators at the meeting last week in New York.

They include a general advance in wages, averaging 20 per cent, a shorter workday and the weighing of coal wherever practicable. These three demands are considered the most important of those included in the scale and the miners of district No. 1 have repeatedly expressed their willingness to strike at any time for the last named concession.

President Mitchell's proposition which was rejected today, was that the differences between the miners and the operators should be submitted to an impartial board of arbitration to be chosen by the industrial department of the National Civic federation.

New York, May 9.—The president of one of the anthracite coal roads said today that an important message had been received from Scranton today, but he declined to disclose the nature of the communication. Any word of this sort, he said, would have to come from the miners. The same official said that the operators would not treat with a new committee of the Civic federation.

"If the miners want to strike," said he, "the result is inevitable. We will make no further concessions."

BORNE TO THE TOMB

Impressive Funeral of Archbishop Corrigan.

New York, May 9.—A solemn requiem mass for the repose of the soul of the Most Rev. Michael Augustine Corrigan, archbishop of New York, was said today in St. Patrick's cathedral by Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore, in the presence of five archbishops, sixteen bishops and more than 1000 priests of the church. The officiating clergymen were:

Celebrant, Cardinal Gibbons, of Baltimore; assistant priest, the Rt. Rev. Joseph F. Mooney, vicar general; deacons of honor, the Rt. Rev. John Edwards, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and the Rev. Father Colton, of St. Stephens; deacon to the mass, the Rev. Father McGean, of St. Peter's; sub-deacon, the Rev. Father Lavelle, pastor of the cathedral; masters of ceremonies, the Rev. Father James Conelly, of the Church of Our Lady of Good Counsel, and the Rev. Father Thomas F. Myhan, of St. Ann's; preacher, Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia.

Although the funeral service proper was set for 10:30 o'clock, the early masses, at which prayers for the dead were said, were crowded by large congregations. Before 6 o'clock, the hour of the first mass, there were 3000 persons around the cathedral waiting for the opening of the doors. Five masses were said up to 8 o'clock, and as one congregation left the large building another took its place. At the end of the 8 o'clock mass the doors were closed

Naval Ceremonies For Rear Admiral Sampson.

Washington, May 9.—With a pomp and circumstance exceeding that of any naval funeral in this country in recent years, the remains of the late William Thomas Sampson, rear admiral in the United States navy and commander-in-chief of the United States naval forces on the North Atlantic station during the war with Spain, were today laid at rest. Every department of the national government was represented—the executive by the president and cabinet and many prominent officials of the civil service, the legislative by senators and representatives, the judiciary by the United States supreme court and the military and naval services by officers of all ranks. The diplomatic body, accompanied in many cases by their ladies, attended the church services. The military and naval features of the ceremonies were brilliant and impressive. They were conducted under the direction of Rear Admiral Terry, commandant of the Washington navy yard, assisted by Lieut. Henry George, the adjutant general. The funeral escort gathered early. It was composed of the light battery of United States artillery, commanded by Capt. Foote, and drawn from Fort Myer; the naval cadets from Annapolis, 247 strong, a corps that never has paraded in Washington before save when a president was to be inaugurated; a battalion of blue jackets from the North Atlantic squadron, of which Admiral Sampson formerly was commander.

Rear Admiral Terry, commanding the escort, with his staff, assembled at the church at 9:30. The word of command was given and the cadets swung into line, and, headed by the Naval Academy band, marched slowly from the church to the residence of the dead admiral on New Hampshire avenue, about a half mile away. Here the honorary pall-bearers were gathered, headed by Admiral Dewey. The remains, borne on the shoulders of eight stalwart sailors from the U. S. S. Dolphin, were placed in the waiting hearse and escorted to the church. Here the battalion formed in line on the north and silently saluted as the remains were carried into the church and placed on the bier in the chancel. As many people as the large edifice possibly could seat were assembled in the body of the church. The first pew to the right of the central aisle was assigned to the president and his family, and back of them sat the foreign ambassadors. The United States cabinet was in the rear of the ambassadors, preceding in order the ministers from foreign countries. Then came representatives from societies, uniformed army officers, people of high social station and also humble workers in the department bureaus and the navy yard.

To the left of the main aisle the first pew was assigned to the mourners, the members of the Sampson family and their closest friends. The supreme court sat next, and behind them the select committees from the senate and house of representatives, and then many individual senators and representatives.

TERRIBLE CALAMITY

Entire Population of St. Pierre Consumed.

Great Mass of Volcanic Fire Falls on Town.

Paris, May 9.—The commander of the French cruiser Suchet has telegraphed to the minister of marine, M. De Lanessen, from Fort De France, island of Martinique, under date of Thursday, May 8, at 10 p. m., as follows:

"Have just returned from St. Pierre, which has been completely destroyed by an immense mass of fire which fell on the town at about 8 in the morning. The entire population (about 25,000 souls) is supposed to have perished. I have brought back the few survivors, about thirty. All the shipping in harbor has been destroyed by fire. The eruption continues."

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 9.—The British steamer Roddam, Capt. Freeman, which left St. Lucia Wednesday for Martinique, returned there at 5 o'clock yesterday, bringing a report that the town of St. Pierre, Martinique, has been totally destroyed by volcanic disturbances in the island. Almost all the inhabitants of St. Pierre are said to have been killed. The Roddam reports that all the shipping in the port has also been destroyed. The Quebec Steamship company's steamer Roraima is mentioned as lost with all on board.

The Roddam was almost completely wrecked. Her captain was seriously burned and seventeen of her crew are dead.

Portland, Maine, May 9.—News of the catastrophe at St. Pierre, island of Martinique, was of deep interest to the firm of J. H. Hamlin & Co., of this city, which is said to be the only New England house with an office at St. Pierre. Besides dealing in northern lumber, the Hamlins are interested in the sugar industry there, and hold considerable property. Their loss will be heavy.

J. C. Hamlin, the junior member of the firm, says that there were no New England people at the island connected with the house, and he believes that none but natives were killed. He also is of the opinion that no New England or American vessels were in port as the season for shipping lumber, ice and coal is over.

London, May 9.—With the exception of a dispatch repeating the news brought to the island of St. Lucia yesterday by the British steamer Roddam, which announced the total destruction of the town of St. Pierre, island of Martinique, by a volcanic eruption, the English merchants and shippers here having trade relations with Martinique have received no direct news of the catastrophe. Even the Roddam, which was forced to ship her anchors at St. Pierre in order to escape, and which was badly damaged, seventeen of her crew being killed, have not heard from the vessel's captain.

A former resident of St. Pierre now in this city says there were about 1000 white people among the inhabitants of the destroyed town.

Paris, May 9.—M. Bouguenot, a sugar planter of the island of Martinique, received a cablegram this morning from Fort De France, sent by the manager of the Francais factory, announcing that he had "tried to reach St. Pierre, but found the coast covered with ashes and the town enveloped in dust and could not land."

New York, May 9.—There were three passengers on the Quebec Steamship company's steamship Roraima, which is supposed to have been lost with all on board in the harbor of St. Pierre. Those passengers were: F. Ince, Mrs. H. F. Ince and Mrs. Stokes.

All lived in the West Indies. At the Quebec Steamship company's office here no news had been received either from Capt. Muggah, the commander of the vessel, or from any of the West Indian agents of the line.

At the offices of the Danish and French consuls nothing had been heard directly of the present conditions in the destroyed district.

HALDEN

Denies Report He Will Run For Supreme Court Clerk.

St. Paul, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Odin Halden, of Duluth, was in the city yesterday. He emphatically denies the report from Duluth that he will become a candidate for the clerkship of the supreme court. "I am a candidate for state auditor and nothing else," said he.

S. G. Iverson, who was represented as a party to an agreement whereby Mr. Halden was to run for auditor, said: "No matter what rumors are afloat, I have not entered into that combination or any other, and will not."

EXPANSION

Is the Slogan of the New Episcopal Bishop.

Chicago, May 9.—The Rt. Rev. Charles H. Brent, of Boston, the new bishop of the Philippines, has declared himself an enthusiastic national and church expansionist at a banquet given him by the Church club of Chicago. He will sail for his new post from New York May 17.

"I am frank to declare," he said, "that I am with the young men whose visions of trust and responsibility are in the future, and not with the old men who dream of the past and stick to imaginary constitutional traditions. I believe that the nation is more sacred than any constitution.

"The true expansionist is no more of a revolutionist than was Adams or Washington. Let us apply the golden rule to this mighty Philippine problem and expansion will succeed and all will be well.

"The Episcopal church, too, has a new trust and a new duty in meeting the religious phase of the problem, and I am proud to be sent out on the firing line in this noble work."

ALLEGED THIEVES RELEASED

St. Paul, May 9.—A La Crosse, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: The five men on trial here for stealing 20,000 feet of logs have been dismissed by the court after a hard legal battle. The men swore they found the logs in the river and expected to meet the agent of the Mississippi River and Logging company, the owners down the river, and there was no way to show that was not their purpose.

SOUFRIERE VERY MENACING

London, May 9.—The colonial office here has received a dispatch from Sir Robert Llewelyn, governor of the Windward Islands, in the Caribbean sea, dated from Kingston, St. Vincent, yesterday, in which he says that the Soufriere volcano, in the northwest part of the island of St. Vincent, continued in activity. Earth shocks had occurred for a week past, but not actually in Kingston. On Wednesday a big cloud of steam hung over the Soufriere and the people, who were greatly alarmed, were flocking to Chateau Belaire. There were already 400 refugees there who are being fed by the authorities.

There have been two failures before the medical examining board, H. K. Aiken, of Louisiana, defective eyesight, and Gordon H. McCoy, of Annapolis, too light for proportion to height. Seventy-five boys took the examination under the civil service rules on April 15. Of these, forty-two were principals and thirty-three were alternates. Of the principals thirty-four passed. Besides these, four principals had alternates who passed, making a total of thirty-eight appointments filled out of the forty-two, or 90 per cent of the possible number, making the largest percentage passed of any body of candidates ever examined.

AVALANCHE

Kaslo, B. C., May 9.—A snow slide half a mile wide at the Washington mine yesterday killed John Douglas and buried Sandy McDonald and H. Powers under twenty feet of snow. The buried men were rescued alive, though badly injured.

The avalanche also demolished the hotel, store, blacksmith shop and barns and killed twenty head of stock.

SAM THROWS UP HIS JOB

President of the Haytian Republic Resigns From His Office---A Successor Will Be Elected By Congress May 12.

Port Au Prince, Hayti (Thursday), May 8.—Gen. Tiresias Simon Sam, president of the Haytian republic, has resigned his office.

The city of Port Au Prince is quiet.

President Sam was elected April 1, 1896, for seven years, by the two chambers of the Haytian congress in joint session.

He was 61 years old when elected and belongs to a family distinguished in Haytian revolutionary history. He was minister of war under President Solomon, took part in the Hippolyte revolution, was made minister of war and marine under President Hippolyte, and after the death of the latter was elected president.

The Haytian republic is also completely calm. Former President Jiminez, of Santo Domingo, has embarked on board a French steamer and is expected here.

Gen. Deschamps, the former governor of Puerta Plata, Santo Domingo, the last place to surrender to the Dominican revolutionists, who also embarked on a French steamer, has sought refuge at Cape Haytien, Hayti.

DRUNKARD DISFRANCHISED

La Porte, Ind., May 9.—Judge Tuthill, presiding judge in the superior court, has sentenced William Henke to thirty days in the county jail, a fine of $100 and disfranchisement for three years, because of drinking habits. This is the first time in the history of the state that a citizen has been disfranchised for this cause.

MEN GO OUT AT ST. PAUL

The Labor War Between the Building Trades Council and the Builders' Exchange Is On In Earnest.

St. Paul, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The battle is on today between the Building Trades council and the Builders' exchange. All of the workmen affiliated with the Building Trades council are said to have gone out.

The bricklayers notified the Builders' exchange today that no union bricklayers would work longer for any member of the Builders' exchange, who did not observe the rules of the Building Trades council.

Immediately the members of the Builders' exchange decided to advertise for other workmen and prepared notices to be sent newspapers in fifty-nine cities. The men out include carpenters, bricklayers, bricklayers' helpers, steamfitters and hoisting engineers.

Coremakers have settled their strike with the foundrymen.

MASSACRE OF SOLDIERS

At Balangiga Is Described By Former Corporal of the Ninth Infantry---Natives Were Dissatisfied With Work.

Washington, May 9.—William J. Gibbs, of Springfield, Mass., formerly corporal of Company C, Ninth infantry, told the Philippines' committee today the story of the massacre of soldiers at Balangiga. He also described the mutilation of the dead soldiers, and told of the disappearance of one soldier, whom the natives charged with rape, but he said the charge was not believed. He said the natives were dissatisfied because they were compelled to work in cleaning up the place under the supervision of the soldiers. Witness stated that Capt. Connell, who commanded the troops, did not treat the natives right, as he destroyed their supply of food. He said the massacre was deliberately planned, and he judged that boys participated, as he saw a number of them lying about dead. He had not concluded when the committee adjourned.

MISSING MAN COMES BACK

San Francisco, May 9.—William Watterson, an aged shoemaker, disappeared on Oct. 18 of last year. Three weeks later a body found in the bay was identified as his, and as he had $700 in a local bank, the body was buried at an expense of $100. A physician's bill for $300 was also paid. It has just been learned that Watterson is not dead, but has recently recovered from an attack of brain fever, for which he was treated at the city and county hospital.

RIDGEVILLE, O., IS SCORCHED

Napoleon, Ohio, May 9.—The town of Ridgeville, near here, caught fire this morning from an unknown cause and the business portion is practically wiped out. The loss will reach more than $50,000. The fire is still raging.

All comunication with the place by wire has been destroyed.

HERBERT G. SQUIERS. GENERAL EDWARD S. BRAGG.

OUR NEW MINISTER TO CUBA AND CONSUL GENERAL TO HAVANA.

Mr. Squiers, first minister of the United States to the republic of Cuba, has been first secretary of the United States legation in Peking. During the siege he distinguished himself. General Edward S. Bragg, former minister to Mexico and former commander of the famous "Iron brigade" of Wisconsin, is the new consul general at Havana

MILLIONS IN IMPROVEMENTS

Pittsburg, May 9.—The Gazette this morning says: The United States Steel corporation will expend $60,000,000 in making improvements to their present Pittsburg holdings and, instead of building one large tube mill in the vicinity of Pittsburg, three will be erected. The greater part of this money, which has been appropriated, will be spent on the works of the corporation in and around Pittsburg. The plant of the National Tube company, at McKeesport, will not be moved, but will be fully repaired and operated to its capacity."

This statement was made by one of the most prominent officials of the corporation:

"The sites for the new works have not yet been decided upon," he said. "As to the number of new mills we are contemplating building in this section I cannot state definitely. There may be ten, but more likely the number will reach twenty."

A WOMAN GETS B. D. DEGREE

Chicago, May 9.—For the first time in the history of the Congregational church the degree of bachelor of divinity has been conferred on a woman. Miss Florence A. Fensham, of Constantinople, Turkey, was honored with that title at the annual convocation of the Chicago Theological seminary, in the First Congregational church.

The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, was among those who made addresses. Dr. J. H. George, president of the seminary, conferred the degree.

CRASHED INTO A FREIGHT

St. Paul, May 9.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Westbound Northern Pacific passenger No. 11 crashed into a freight whose length necessitated leaving ten cars on the main line, shortly after midnight this morning at Bedford, between Helena and Townsend, knocking a boxcar off the track and smashing the engine. The engineer and firemen escaped injury by jumping. A flagman had been sent back to warn the passenger train, but did not get fairly started before it hove in sight, and so great was its momentum that it could not be stopped in time to avoid a collision. Beyond a severe shaking up no one was injured.

OFFICERS ARE DINED

Supreme Commander D. P. Markey, Is Guest of Honor.

Other Men High In Order Are Here---The Toasts.

About 250 Maccabees representing the head of the lakes tents and the tents from the ranges, gathered at the Spalding hotel last evening to do honor to some of the supreme officers of the order and to bring about a union of the Maccabee interests of the Northwest. It was a very auspicious occasion and one that the local as well as the visiting Maccabees will look back to with a great deal of pleasure.

Supreme Commander D. P. Markey, of Port Huron, was the principal guest of honor, but no less welcome was Maj. Gen. George A. Scott, of Toledo, who is the commander of the uniformed rank of Maccabees. State Commander I. N. Chellew, whose face is familiar to Duluth people, for he was once a resident of the city, was here from St. Paul to add his congratulations, as was State Commander J. W. Brown, of Wisconsin.

The range towns were represented by officers from the various tents or by delegates. Prominent in the gathering were about fifty members of the uniformed rank of Maccabees.

From 8 to 9:30 o'clock a reception was tendered Supreme Commander Markey and the visiting sir knights in the hotel parlors. The reception was followed by the banquet in the big dining room, and it continued until after midnight. The tables were arranged in long rows lengthwise of the room, with the table of honor across the lower end. Flaaten's orchestra occupied the gallery above the entrance to the dining room and furnished delightful music throughout the entertainment.

Toledo, Ohio; State Commander I. N. Chellew, of St. Paul; State Commander J. W. Brown, of Wisconsin; Commander J. P. Peterson, of Duluth tent No. 1; Commander Sidney W. Hanchett, of Duluth tent No. 2; C. H. Crownhart, of West Superior; Hon. George R. Laybourn and Hon. George J. Mallory, of Duluth; E. B. Barnidge, of Tower; R. F. Berdie, of Hibbing; P. E. Dowling, of Eveleth; J. J. Mandel, of Biwabik; Alex Stewart, of West Duluth.

The feast was an excellent one, and after the sir knights had done ample justice to it, Commander J. P. Peterson, of Duluth tent No. 1, with a few well-chosen words, introduced Hon. George R. Laybourn as the toastmaster of the evening. Mr. Laybourn was in a happy frame of mind and filled the office admirably, his preliminary remarks being short, to the point and entirely in keeping with the occasion.

The only disappointment and scource of regret of the evening was that State Commander Chellew could not remain for the toasts, although he was on the list of speakers. Mr. Chellew was compelled to leave on the late train in order to meet a pressing business engagement in St. Paul, and had to leave at the close of the dinner.

To George J. Mallory was assigned the pleasing task of welcoming the visiting sir knights. This Mr. Mallory did with a flow of cordiality that would have dispelled the last vestige of doubt, had there been any, that the guests could have any and everything they wanted. Mr. Mallory and Supreme Commander D. P. Markey are friends of over twenty years' staanding. They were charter members of the same tent in Michigan, and Mr. Mallory took occosion to say many complimentary and pleasing things regarding the work that has been ecomplished in the order by its supreme commander. He extended to the visiting officers the welcome of the St. Louis county Maccabees and to the visiting sir knights from the county the welcome of the Maccabees of Duluth.

C. H. Crownhart, of West Superior, responded to the address of welcome in his usual happy style. He caused much laughter in his preliminary remarks regarding the Duluthian welcome to Superiorites.

"The people of Duluth," said he, "has been welcoming our people from across the bay and counting them in the Duluth directory for many years past. You have long since recognized our mills, elevators, shipyards, etc., as belonging to your city, and have pointed out our industrial institutions to visitors as lying in the outskirts of your city. You used to call us mud-hens, web-feet and bog trotters, but now we are very much pleased to hear you call us brothers."

Mr. Crownhart then expanded on the fraternal benefits of the organization of the Maccabees, its social advantages, and declared that it was doing much in the way of breaking down social barriers between classes, which ought not to exist. The spirit of Maccabeeism, he said, encourages brotherly feeling and frugality, and it insures protection to the widows and orphans of departed sir knights.

the West Superior Maccabees may some time have the opportunity of extending the hospitality of West Superior to the other sir knights in the Northwest.

R. F. Berdie, of Hibbing, one of the pioneers in the Maccabee orgnizations of the range towns, responded to the toast of "Range Fraternity."

Mr. Berdie said every tent on the range was represented at the gathering and he thought that spoke a great deal for the interest and the friendliness of the range Maccabees. He told of the early struggle for existence of the range tents and claimed that at the present time there are more Maccabees on the range, according to the population, than there are in Duluth.

Maj. Gen. George H. Scott talked interestingly for a few minutes about the Uniformed Rank of Maccabees. He said it is an auxiliary of the Maccabee organization and founded for the purpose of benefiting the Maccabee order. He declared the Uniformed Rank to be one of the best advertisers the Maccabees have and said that wherever a division has been established there has been an increased membership in the Maccabee tents. He complimented the divisions of Duluth and West Superior and said that they were considered among the best in the country.

Supreme Commander D. P. Markey was the last speaker of the evening and his toast was "The Maccabees." Mr. Markey expressed the great pleasure that the entertainment had afforded both himself and the other visiting sir knights and expressed his appreciation of the honors that had been heaped on him by the sir knights. He said that he was always glad to come to Duluth and that his only regret is that he did not stay here when he visited the city in 1883 with a view of locating. He congratulated the Maccabees and citizens of the city and the Northwest of the splendid progress that has been made in the past few years in this part of the country and prophesied still more slendid things for the future.

"There is a force at work in this great fraternal order," said Mr. Markey, "that brings you all together in common interests. Your common interests are greater than political differences and in the fraternal air of the tents all political differences are fogotten. It is this spirit that prevails everywhere in the country where there are Maccabees."

Comander Macabee said many nice things of the progress of the Maccabee order in Minnesota and took occasion to compliment very highly the efforts of State Commander I. N. Chellew, Minesota, he said, is among the front ranks of the states in the growth of Maccabeeism.

Mr. Markey declared that he alone

was not responsible for the wonderful growth of the order any more than the governor of Minnesota is responsible for the growth of the state of Minnesota, a growth and progression that has placed her as one of the brightest diadems in the wreath of the states. The responsibility, he said, rests with the individual members. It is the splendid manhood of those comprising the organization, the loyalty and fidelity of the sir knights that have made Maccabeeism what it is today.

The Maccabee organization, said Mr. Markey, will be judged by its humblest member and if the Maccabees wish the organization to promte and maintain its standing it will be to their interests to live up to the principles of Maccabeeism and stand by one another.

After the banquet and toasts a short business session of the Maccabees was held in Supreme Commander Markey's room.

Among the out of town guests were the following: From Vermilion tent, No. 15, of Two Harbors, C. W. Dawson, lieutenant commander; George S. Raper, record keeper, Theo. Lusch, chaplain, C. E. Dawson, J. E. Johnson, Otto Wistrom, J. E. St. George, W. E. Holm, Harry Fieldman, H. C. Larson, J. A. Yernberg, G. A. Hogoboom, deputy commander. From the Cloquet tent came William Kelley, commander; F. P. Heasley, John McSweeney, Joseph Rabideu, S. McLeod, Joseph Fillon, William Robins and William Zimmerman. Carlton tent was represented by Finance Keeper Peters and others. F. Hiltunen represented Hibbing tent, No. 132. Wrenshall was represented by several delegates.

CUSHION SOLE SHOE.

Demonstration of Its Effect on the Foot.

Yesterday there was a rather extraordinary piece of mechanism placed in front of Phillips' Shoe Store on West Superior street, which attracted a good deal of attention and today it will be at the same place, but will ne working. It is one of the most ingenious pieces of mechanism that was ever exhibited in the city. This machine, which is run by electricity, is a demonstrator of a cushion sole shoe known as the Resilia shoe, manufactured by the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather company, of Boston, Mass. The machine has been so perfected that it illustrates the movements of the foot and lower part of the leg of a person in the act of walking and in doing this, of course, shows the effect of such action on the sole and heel of the shoe worn. By thus illustrating the effect, the machine demonstrates the feasibility of the claims made for the cushion sole and heel which it is manufactured to show. For people troubled with tender feet, this cushion sole and heel is a boon, for it fills the long-felt want for shoes that give elasticity to the step and at the same time ventilates the feet and keeps them dry. The theory and practice of the affair can best be explained by asking anybody connected with Phillips' store, and they will be glad to explain it to you.

The ventilation of the shoe is permitted by an open rubber cushion sole, which is ventilated through a hole in the rear of the shoe. This hole is so arranged that when the heel is lifted the air enters and as the heel is put down again the pressure of the foot on the ground drives the air through the sole and up through the top of the shoe, while the hole in the heel closes and keeps the shoe absolutely waterproof. The air passing through the shoe keeps the inside of the shoe dry and does away with the displeasure of perspiring feet. It is claimed for this ventilator that it will cause the shoes to wear twice as long as the ordinary shoe, because it prevents the leather from rotting on account of perspiration and dampness. This seems logical. Take up an ordinary shoe that has been worn to any extent and it will be found that the foot acids rot the leather; but in the cushion sole shoe the air preserves the leather.

Another advantage claimed for this shoe, and which seems reasonable after examining it, is that with the springiness in the sole, it will be just the thing for people in a city like Duluth who have to walk more or less over hard pavements. Philips & Co. would be pleased to have people call and inspect this new shoe which bids fair to create a furore in Duluth, as it has in the East, where it has been worn for the last five years.

High Class Novelty Suits and Costumes.
Hardly a number here today that you saw a few weeks ago. Is it strange that women like to buy their garments here! Fresh novelties keep arriving almost every day of the season—new, "bright," "snappy" styles that make their first appearance at the representative Eastern stores are ushered out here in a hurry and are ready for Duluthians almost before Eastern folks have had a chance to become acquainted with them—and not expensive unless you desire.

BUILDING NEW LINES

Omaha Has Begun Development of New Wisconsin Territory.

Wisconsin Central Has Good Opening to Build to Duluth.

Railway extension in old territory is the order of the day. The newer territory farther West and South is becoming pretty well settled up. The roads in the Middle West have been building short feeders for several years. The Omaha has now begun the development of territory lying between two or more existing main lines. It is building a line from Cumberland, connecting with both of its south-bound lines from Duluth—the Chicago and Twin City—toward Hurley and Ironwood. At present there is a stub of its line running as far southwest from the Gogebic range towns as Osborn. The new line that is now headed northeast from Cumberland will join this stub, and afford another and more direct line to Ashland from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The question would naturally arise, if only the through traffic were to be considered, what would be the need of another line from the Twin Cities to the Gogebic country? It is doubtful if a railroad man could be found to answer that question in anything but the negative. But there seems to be no question but that the road will develop a country that is now pretty barren of railway facilities.

While giving a much more direct route to the Gogebic country, it will afford railway facilities to a large area of country that is now practically without means of getting its products to market, and therefore is practically a wilderness. It is the way or local traffic that the Omaha is said to be largely going after in this new extension, and it is said that its incentive is typical of much that animates railway building today.

A glance at the map of the area shows that there is an exceptionally good opening for the Wisconsin Central to build to Duluth from Greenwood, the present terminus of its Manitowoc line. It would give a short line to Duluth and at the same time would cut diagonally across in an opposite direction the same area that the Omaha is now building through.

There has been considerable talk to the effect that the Wisconsin Central planned to build here from Prentice. Such a line, it was pointed out by a railroad man today, would, however, be much more devious. It is also pointed out that the Prentice route would not tap such a large territory for local business, because of the tendency to run closely to the routes of existing lines of road—just far enough away from established points not to get their business and not far enough away to build up other points.

A great many people think that the failure of the Wisconsin Central and Northern Pacific to make closer traffic relations for Duluth business grows out of the intention of the former to soon have a line of its own into Duluth, and its consequent objection to tying its hands for a term of years. Many think that the Milwaukee made a mistake in tying itself up so completely with the Northern Pacific for an entrance into Duluth.

THE SENIORS.

Fine Program For the Entertainment at High School.

This evening the annual senior musical and dramatic entertainment will be held at the high school Assembly hall. The seniors have been working steadily on the project for some time under the skillful training of A. F. M. Custance, whose proficiency in such matters is well known from his connection with former efforts of a like nature that the high school students have carried through with success.

A long program of unusual merit and originality has been arranged. Almost all of the class will take part in the affair in some capacity or other. The first part of the program will consist of musical and special numbers; the last of a farce entitled "A Rice Pudding," by E. B. Tiffany.

The musical numbers are some of the most popular of the modern operatic selections. Some of them have never been heard in Duluth before. The program is as follows:

PART I.

The famous sextet from "Florodora"..... Members of the Senior Class.
Duet and dance—"I Love to Flirt" ("Electric Spark")..... Blake
Rena Smith and Fred Johnstone.
Humorous sketch—"A Meeting of the Board of Education of the City of Womansville"..... Members of the Class.
Song and chorus—"Yen How and His Six Little Wives," ("San Toy")..... Jones
Sparring exhibition by the champion pugs, Slim Jim and the Turko-Hibernian Terror.....
Duet and chorus—"Chinee Sojee Man" ("San Toy")..... George Suffel, Frank Fee and Chinese Contingent.

PART II.

"A Rice Pudding," a farcial comedy in two acts.....E. B. Tiffany Characters—
John Richards, the elderly husband of a fascinating young wife..... Sumner Smith
Dr. Thwaite, a physician who lacks patients..... Ed. Congdon
Mrs. Richards, young and inexperienced..... Phoebe Cole
Marion, Mr. Richards' clever sister..... Ethel Forsyth
Miss Ellen O'Shaughnessy, from the Emeral Isle.....Esther Searle

The performers have rehearsed faithfully during the last few weeks and have attained an unusual degree of excellence in their production. A feature which, next to the Thespionic element of the program, will attract the greatest attention, is the fistic encounter between Slim Jim and the Turko-Hibernian Terror. This is said to be one of the funniest things ever. The expenses of the graduating class at the high school are always considerable, and it has been the custom for years past to raise the necessary money by giving some such entertainment. Last year the entertainment consisted of two short farces which, it will be remembered, were most creditably handled by scholastic Thespians. The histrionic talent of the present senior class, which is especially strong in good amateur comedians, is equal to if not better than that of the class of 1901. The performance will certainly be well worth seeing.

AMUSEMENTS.

"WAY DOWN EAST."

Tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Lyceum will be given William A. Brady's production of "Way Down East." This bucolic drama is full of heart interest. Its story of wrong to a young and trusting woman and the retribution which overtook the man who betrayed her by a false marriage, is one to stir the blood and thrill through the being. Anna Moore's simple story, her grief and anguish; her spirited denunciation of the man who took advantage of her innocence; her triumph and the prospect of peace and happiness for her as the curtain falls, all go to make up a pretty, unaffected and direct play. Interspersed with the strongest portion of the play there is the comedy side in which characters of a New England village are brought into view.

EMMA NEVADA COMING.

Duluth is to have the great Nevada for a single concert at the Lyceum next Monday night. Mme. Emma Nevada was once called by Ambrose Thomas "the only Mignon." "When Nevada dies," he said, "Mignon will die." This fact will most likely be realized unless some young singer rises to take her place, for she is the last of the great school to which the operas of Thomas, Reilim, Delibes, Meyerbeer and Donnizetti belong. It is of this style of work the New York Tribune referred when it said, in a review of her last appearance in New York: "Such miniature work has never been heard here for years past as Nevada gave us on Sunday night, and by miniature we mean the rounding off and finishing and coloring of tone to its finest and most delicate points. Madame Nevada is entitled, from the character of her work, to be ranked among the best of living singers."

"A MAN OF MYSTERY."

"A Man of Mystery" company appearing last evening at the Sixth Avenue theater is a well balanced dramatic organization. The play caught the popular favor early and when the curtain went down on the first act the applause was loud and long. The climax of the second act brought three curtain calls from the large audience. The third act brought many people to their feet and as the curtain went down on the climax the applause was deafening and the people would not be quiet until four curtain calls had been responded to. The fourth act closed with every one in the house satisfied. It is possible "A Man of Mystery" will be repeated Saturday evening in response to many personal requests.

Alvin Wyckoff as Ned Keene known as "Lucifer" the detective, made a big hit. Percy Herbert as "The Shadow" displayed exceptional ability. Rose Evans is a clever actress and delivered her lines with grace and fine effect. Alice Lundie was exceptionally good as "Flossie" or Florence Glenwood and her emotional work was very effective. Miss Elsie Kaufer was very pleasing. The entire cast was good. Ada Mae Austin as "the fence for de push" in the slum scene kept the audience in constant laughter. Little Ethel Austin in her specialty work between acts is very bright and clever.

"A Wife's Peril," a 4-act society comedy drama, is the bill for this evening and indications point to a large house.

"I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation. I am glad to indorse them," writes Alfred Heinze, Quincy, Ill. Max Wirth.

REVISION OF CREED

Report of Committee to the Presbyterian Assembly.

Mooted Sections of the Confession Touched Upon Lightly.

Those Who Demanded Radical Revision Will Be Disappointed.

New York, May 9.—Those members of the Presbyterian church who have demanded a radical revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith will be disappointed at the report which is to be presented by the committee on revision when the general assembly of the church convenes in annual session at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church in this city on May 18. The revision which the committee has decided to recommend is very mild, and does not touch the text of the sections of the confession over which there has been the most controversy.

It is true that the report makes certain statements in explanation of these mooted sections, making it plain that the church does not hold to the narrow intepretations many have insisted upon as being alone consistent with the text. Certain obviously antiquated paragraphs are to be omitted, and two entirely new sections are to be added. A statement has also been prepared to cover the main points of belief held by the church.

Over the recommendations of this committee there is likely to be one of the most stirring debates that ever engaged the attention of a modern ecclesiastical body. The question will be over altering the creed to which the denomination has adhered since it was adopted at Westminster some 250 years ago.

The ablest thinkers and preachers of the Presbyterian church will be in attendance at the general assembly. If, after their debates, they adopt a revision of the confession, it must then be endorsed by two thirds of the more than 253 presbyteries under the jurisdiction of this general assembly. Those presbyteries must adopt or reject without modification.

The committee on revision has held a number of sessions, and its report has been adopted only after protracted discussion. The formal report will be kept secret until it is presented to the general assembly by the Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, of San Anselmo, Cal. It is possible at this time, however, to learn the general substance of the results of the committee's labors. The resolution under whose authority the revisionists worked, as adopted by the general assembly, held at Philadelphia last year, was as follows:

"A. We recommend that a committee, as provided for by the form of government, chapter XXIII, section 3, be appointed by the assembly.

"B. We recommend that a committee be instructed to prepare and to submit to the next general assembly for such disposition as may be judged to be wise, a brief statement of the reformed faith, expressed, as far as possible, in untechnical terms. The said statement is to be prepared with a view to its being employed to give information and a better understanding of our doctrinal beliefs, and not with a view to its becoming a substitute for or an alternative of our confession of faith.

"C. We further recommend that this committee be instructed to prepare amendments of chapter III and chapter X, section 3; chapter XVI, section 7; chapter XXII, section 3, and section 25, and section 6 of our Confession of Faith, either by modification of the text or by declaratory statement, so as more clearly to express the mind of the church, with added statements concerning the love of God for all men, missions and the Holy Spirit, it being understood that the integrity of the system of doctrine set forth in our confession and taught in Holy Scriptures."

It is considered likely that the "brief statement of the reformed faith" will excite the greatest discussion in the general assembly. The report the committee has prepared includes articles upon the following subjects: God, Revelation, Eternal Purpose, The Creation, The Sin of Man, The Grace of God, Our Lord Jesus Christ, Faith and Repentance, The Holy Spirit, The New Birth and the New Life, The Resurrection and the Life to Come, The Church and the Sacraments, The Last Judgment, Christian Service and The Final Triumph.

It is pointed out by one of the leading ministers in the Presbyterian church that this statement takes up every essential question of the church's creed. While this is specifically not designed as an alternative creed, but purely as a statement to give "information and a better understading" of the church's belief, this statement does not include any extreme doctrines of exclusive election, such as damnation of infants and such other teachings as have been attributed to the Westminster confession.

A sub-committee, consisting of E. W. C. Humphrey and the Rev. Doctors, McGibbon, Fisher, Moffat and Nicolls—five progressive men of the church—drew up this statement. A large amount of time and thought was expended in their work, and it is believed by those familiar with the results that their statement contains a very clear, conservative and broad exposition of the meaning of the Confession of Faith.

The point of difficulty will be this: The "conservative" party of the church, that is, those opposing all revision, fear that in spite of the stated design of this statement it will be generally accepted as an alternative creed, and that within a few years its authority will be so generally acknowledged that the old confession will be shelved completely. This apprehension, it is believed, will provoke decided antagonism to the statement when it is presented.

That the revision committee actually desired to accomplish results, and not, by carrying out pet ideas, frustrate any possibility of having its report accepted, is evident from the very careful and conservative amendments which have been made to the articles of the confession specified in Article C of the assembly's resolutions of authority.

The first chapter revised is Chapter III, relating to the eternal decrees of God. This chapter contains the famous doctrine of predestination and foreordination—generally understood to be the fundamental concepts of Calvinism. The third section of the chapter is the essential one. It reads that "by the decree of God for the manifestation of His glory, some men and angels are predestined unto everlasting life, and others foreordained to everlasting death."

The chapter is to be revised, according to the committee's recommendation, not by any alteration of the text, but by what churchmen call a "declaratory statement." This will be in effect a footnote of explanation. The footnote will not affect the integrity of the doctrine of foreordination and election, but will set forth that the mercy of God is extended to all men; that the Presbyterian church does not indorse any fatalistic doctrine.

The phrase quoted assumes that the eternal decree of election was made before men or angels were created to be elected—the doctrine of supra-lapsarianism. The "order of the decrees" has long been a subject of debate in the church, but the trend of sentiment of recent years has been against this doctrine that the decree of election was made before the fall of man. The declaratory statement, therefore, is understood to make an utterance to the effect that the church does not hold to the doctrine of supra-lapsarianism. The believer is left to interpret the chapter in any other way that he may choose.

Chapter X, section 3, is also to be revised by a simple declaratory statement. This is the famous chapter that contains the section on "infant damnation." In the confession the section under discussion reads: "Elect infants dying in infancy, are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, who worketh when and where and how He pleaseth." The declaratory statement which has been agreed upon merely states that the church does not hold that non-elect infants dying in infancy are damned.

It is believed that so conservative a revision of this section will provoke considerable debate. The very liberal party has maintained that this entire section should be amen to state that "all infants dying in infancy are saved by Christ through the Spirit." Between the liberal utterances and the merely negative one which has been chosen, there is a chasm which excites apprehension from many ecclesiastical quarters.

The committee has decided to revise the text of but three chapters of the confession. The first of these is that of chapter XVI, section 7, relating to the doctrine of "total depravity." The original section reads: "Works done by unregenerated man, although for the matter of them they may be things which God commands and of good use both to themselves and to others, yet because they proceed not from a heart purified by faith, nor are done in the right manner according to the Word, nor to a right end, the glory of God, they are, therefore, sinful and cannot please God or make a man meet to receive grace from God."

The revisionists recommend that the phraseology of this section shall be changed so that it may be stated that while the good works of unregenerate men do not make for their eternal salvation, they are of moral value, pleasing to God, and place the unsaved man on the road to salvation. The original section was adopted by the Westminster convention as a protest against the Catholic doctrine, so persistent at the time, that a man's good works were means of salvation—the doctrine of "supererogation."

Chapter XXV, section 6, is to be revised by eliminating a portion of it. The section reads at present: "There is no other head of the church but the Lord Jesus Christ. Nor can the pope of Rome be in any sense the head thereof; but is that anti-Christ, that man of sin and son of perdition that exalteth himself in the church against Christ and all that is called God.

At the time the Westminster confession was adopted the pope of Rome was making exceptionally vigorous pretensions, and this section was of value only at htat time. The references to the pope are to be left out of the revised confession, the simple statement, "There is no other head of the church but the Lord Jesus Christ," being regarded as sufficient in the light of modern thought.

Another section that is to be omitted is in chapted XXII, section 3. The paragraph now reads: "Whosoever taketh an oath ought duly to consider the weightiness of so solemn an act, and therein to avouch nothing but what he is fully persuaded is the truth. Neither may any man bind himself by oath to anything but what is good and just and what he believeth so to be, and what he is able and resolved to perform. Yet it is a sin to refuse an oath touching anything that is good and just being imposed by lawful authority."

The revision of this paragraph simply omits the sentence beginning "It is a sin to refuse to take an oath." The public courts allow men to give testimony by affirmation, and it is considered to be more in line with modern thought not to hold that a refusal to take an oath is necessarily sinful.

Two entirely new chapters are to be recommended for addition to the confession. One of them treats of the Holy Spirit, and the other is "on the Gospel. At the time of the adoption of the confession the doctrine of the Holy Spirit as a constant comforter had not been fully developed. It is believed that some such doctrine should be made a part of the modern statement of faith.

FOR TRIAL.

Another attempt was made this morning to get the famous Mueller case continued over the term in district court, but Judge Cant denied motions to strike it from the calendar and to continue it.

There was some acerbity shown in the arguments. The motion to strike the case from the calendar was made by George P. Knowles, of West Superior, on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction of the matter. Some time ago the case went to the supreme court on demurrers to two answers by a couple of the numerous sets of heirs. These matters were decided some time ago, and in one of them the mandate from the supreme court has been filed. It has not been filed in the case in which Mr. Knowles appeared, however, and on that ground he claimed the court had no jurisdiction of the case.

Mr. Briggs, representing some of the defendants, intimated that Mr. Knowles might have the missing mandate in his pocket, and suggested that the court make him produce it and file it. He asked Mr. Knowles if he had the mandate in his possession.

"That is none of your——" He began, somewhat brusquely. Then he continued, more suavely: "Pardon me, but it is not my business to answer this question. I shall not do anything to help the opposing side to trial when I am not ready to go to trial myself."

Judge Cant said the case could not be tied up in that way. While the mandate has not been filed, everybody knows the matter has been decided and has read the opinion. He denied the motion to strike the case from the calendar. Then Mr. Knowles made a motion to continue the case because his clients live in Austro-Hungary and it takes a long time to get their depositions back from there. This motion, also, was denied.

The case is for trial by the court, and it will come up later in the term.

IS BEGUN.

Work on Frerker Building Commences---Commercial Club Plans.

Work has begun on the excavation for the foundations for the new Frerker building, which is to be built on Superior and Michigan streets, between the Spalding hotel and the Manhattan building. Contractor Babcock has the job. The contract for the foundation itself will be let next week, and Architect John De Waard says that he expects to let the contract for the superstructure within two weeks. The construction will be slow-burning, but of such a character that the erection of the building will not be delayed by waiting for steel.

The directors of the Commercial club of Duluth held a special meeting yesterday afternoon to consider preliminary drawings of the floor plans of the second and third floors of the building, which had been prepared by Mr. De Waard. On the whole the plans were satisfactory. The chief change to be made was in the location of the kitchen. The directors were insistent that the kitchen should be in the interior of the building, and on the air and light court, rather than on either front. It was a somewhat difficult matter to arrange, but was finally perfected.

In a general way the plans provide for the location of the general dining room, a private or ladies' dining room, a ladies' reception room, secretary's office, kitchen store room and directors' room on the second floor. The secretary's office, ladies' reception room and private dining room will face on Superior street, and the large dining room on Michigan street. On the third floor will be the billiard room, a large assembly room for club meetings, a card room and the buffet.

FEMALE

Burglar Captured In St. Louis In a Man's Garb.

St. Louis, May 9.—May Willard, female burglar, who operated sometimes in male attire and sometimes in female garb, who has served terms in penitentiary and workhouse, is again in the toils of the St. Louis police, and admits that she is guilty of the burglary charges against her.

While May Willard is probably the most confirmed woman thief in St. Louis, there is that about her that wins confidence. She usually frankly admits the crimes charged against her, and when she is serving her sentences she is a model prisoner.

Since she was released from the workhouse last September she adopted the role of burglar, and for convenience adopted men's clothing. She admits that she has robbed many homes in this guise, gaining entrance by the use of skeleton keys.

The keys were found in her possession when she was arrested Tuesday night by Detectives Keely and Cordell at her room at 2357 Olive street. She was in bed at the time of her arrest and dressed in her own clothes. The male clothing that she wore when at work was confiscated by the police.

"They have got me right again," said May Willard to a reporter Wednesday morning, "so what is the use of denying the truth. I don't mind telling all about my methods of work, but my life prior to my first conviction is a closed book. I will not betray my family name, for I came of a good family in Chicago and I have sufficiently disgraced them.

"I first went wrong when I was 14 years old. I guess I am what is called a natural born thief, a kleptomaniac. My people were well-to-do, and there was no necessity for me to steal. I just couldn't help it. When I was first arrested I was sent to the Good Shepherd's in Chicago. When I got out of there I did not go home and my parents lost sight of me. I assumed the name of May Willard and it was not long until I was caught shoplifting. I was convicted and was sent to the Illinois penitentiary at Joliet.

"When I got out I met a traveling man named Simon. He knew all about me and I admitted everything to him. He wanted me to reform. I also wanted to. He thought so much of me and my intentions were so good that he wanted to marry me to reform me. I was willing, and intended to do all that was right.

"We came to St. Louis and we lived in a nice little home up on North Garrison avenue. For six years I was a reformed woman. Then I became a morphine fiend. My husband was away from home a good part of the time and he knew not of my downfall.

"When I realized that I could no longer conceal my condition from him I sold out all our pretty furniture and the six years of honest life that I had lived because of his influence went for naught.

"I rented a room on market street near Fifteenth street and gave myself over to the opium habit. My husband returned. He heard of my downfall, but his love for me did not fail. He searched for me and one day he found me.

"My room was on the third floor. When he entered the room I thought of all he had done for me and how I had repaid him. I ran for a window and cast myself out. I wanted to die. I almost succeeded, for when they picked me up I was unconscious and many bones were broken. My nose was broken and my face so badly disfigured that any claims that I may ever have made to personal beauty were gone for all time.

"It was about two years ago that I had another chance to reform, but I guess I was too far gone. There was a lovely lady, a member of one of the charitable institutions, that used to visit the workhouse, where I was doing time. The woman took an interest in me. I told her I was anxious to reform. She tried to get my sentence shortened, but the officials knew my record and she failed.

"The day my sentence expired she was down there in a carriage. I was released about 11 o'clock and this kind woman took me in the carriage and drove me to her own home. She sent me to a room and excused herself to see about getting dinner.

"She left her watch on the dresser, in plain sight. This was too much. I took the watch and her purse that contained $18 and left. I was in the house less than an hour. Of course I was arrested and she sent me back to prison."

Acting Chief of Detectives Smith will have the woman make the rounds of the pawn shops with his men and will try to recover some of the stolen property. He will also try to prove enough of the burglaries to indict the Willard woman under the habitual criminal act and send her to the prison for life.

DR. WEBER STRICKEN.

Cleveland, May 9.—Dr. G. C. E. Weber, the noted surgeon of this city, who was stricken with apoplexy last night while attending a banquet given in his honr by the Cleveland Medical Library association, regained consciousness today, and there are now some hopes of his recovery. His condition, however, is still said to be critical.

ONE FUNERAL

Will Be Held For the Two Ford Brothers.

New York, May 9.—There was a meeting of relatives of Paul Leicester Ford and Malcolm W. Ford today, at which E. H. Kidder, Mrs. Paul Ford's father, Roswell Steele, Worthington Ford and a sister were present.

Later Worthington Ford said that there would be but one funeral and that the services would be conducted by Bishop Burgess of Long Island, formerly rector of Grace church, Brooklyn, assisted by Rev. Dr. Sayres, rector of St. Thomas' cauich, New York. Immediately after the service the bodies will be taken to Irvington-on-the-Hudson for interment. Dr. Munroe, the Ford family doctor, and Dr. Baruch, who was called in immediately after the tragedy yesterday, said Mrs. Paul Ford had rallied entirely today from the shock. She is still weak but out of danger. Mrs. Malcolm Ford, who secured a divorce from Malcolm W. Ford, four years ago, visited Malcolm Ford's late home and saw her 7-year-old boy, who had lived with his father.

GETS THE BANNER

Camp Duluth, No. 2341, Modern Woodmen of America, enjoyed the fruits of a well-earned victory at the Armory last night.

A year's strenuous, characteristic Duluth hustling brought the camp to the top of the list in the state, with the largest membership of any camp in the state, wresting the distinction away from Minnehaha camp, of Minneapolis. The prize is a gorgeous banner, and last night that banner was presented to the camp with appropriate and enjoyable exercises.

An immense crowd filled the Armory to overflowing. Hundreds were unable to find seats, and the door-keeper checked over 3600 people before the exercises began. There were Woodmen there from the Superiors, from Two Harbors, from Ely, from Towe, from Hermantown and from a number of other head of the lakes settlements. The exercises went off very smoothly, and the credit for it all is due to the following committee of hustlers from No. 2341: W. L. Bernard, M. L. Fraser, N. N. Ole, C. E. Dele, G. P. Miller, Theodore Wold, A. E Halvorsen, A. J. McCulloch, John Rademacher, T. Strand, F. P. Stevenson and C. A. Gregory.

W. L. Bernard presided, and filled his duties in a thorough manner. There were some disappointments because of the inability of Mayor T. W. Hugo, Governor Van Sant and J. Adam Bede, who were on the program, to be present, but the numbers were filled acceptably. The program opened by music from the M. W. A. band, under the leadership of C. A. Gregory. To show that Duluth camp was sufficient unto itself, it produced a band that is all its own, and that is a very creditable organization. It played several numbers during the evening, and its music was voted most excellent.

Clarence B. Miller gave the address of welcome, in place of Mayor Hugo, and he did it gracefully, eloquently and pleasantly. He spoke in behalf of and representing the mayor, and in that capacity he gave the visitors a hearty welcome. He said that it was an auspicious occasion for Duluth camp and for Duluth. He congratulated the Duluth camp on its achievement, and eulogized the fraternal spirit of such organizations as the Woodmen.

W. L. Bernard, venerable counsel of Duluth camp and chairman of the exercises, welcomed the head officers of the state, who were present on behalf of the company to present the prize banner. He said that Duluth camp was very sensible of the honor thus conferred upon it.

A message of regret was read from Governor Van Sant, who sent greeting to the neighbors and royal neighbors of Duluth.

C. E. Dice, past venerable counsel of Duluth camp, told something of the history of the camp and its wonderful growth. He was venerable counsel in the days when it was a struggle to carry it through, when it almost seemed to be breathing its last gasps, and when the camp often waited in vain to complete a quorum of seven at its meetings. The camp was started in June, 1894, with twenty-seven charter members. Jan. 1, 1896, there were fifty members, and a year later there were sixty, the camp having gained almost one a month. Now they are coming in at the rate of twenty a month, and last month there were forty-five new members. The first of this year the camp won the banner with 1089 members, and now there are over 1100. He congratulated the camp on this wonderful growth, and stated that it should be proud of itself and of its deputy, Tom Brian. He thanked the neighbor camps for their presence and assistance.

Benjamin Smith, of Mankato, director of the national organization, then presented the banner to Duluth camp. The banner is a handsome trophy and well worth the effort that landed it. He said that this was a magnificent and auspicious occasion, because Duluth camp has become the banner camp of the state. The Modern Woodmen of America is a fraternal and insurance organization. It is composed of a large body of men banded together for fraternal purposes, in all that the word means. Fraternity is one of the moving forces of the age, and it is the greatest force outside of the church moving man onward and upward. The insurance feature is also a strong one. He told in brief the history of the fraternal and insurance organizations, and stated that the Modern Woodmen of America was the most popular, for the figures show it to be the largest and most rapidly growing of all of them.

He stated that the banner that Duluth camp had won was the result of the desire of the head officers to arouse interest in adding to the membership. State banners were offered, and there is also a national banner that is held in Kansas City by a camp of over 2000 members. The winning of the banner will advertise Duluth all over the state and all over the country, wherever woodcraft is known. Duluth will be known everywhere as the home of the best hustlers in the state. Duluth is a great city, and it has immense advantages. Its shipping is tremendous, and the city stands at the head of an international waterway. The same activity as that displayed by the neighbors of Duluth camp devoted to upbuilding the city will make this one of the greatest communities in the land.

On behalf of the executive council Mr. Smith then presented the banner, and it was unveiled amid great applause.

W. H. Dawson, of Minneapolis, state deputy, was introduced as a pioneer of woodcraft, and he made a humorous little speech in which he congratulated Duluth camp. He organized the first camp of Woodmen in the state and the first camp in Duluth.

Dr. Thomas Lowe, of Slayton, head physician of the state, brought greetings from the oldest camp in the state to the largest one. After expressing his pleasure at being at such an entertainment in such a city as Duluth, he told the history of the starting of the first camp in the state at Slayton by Mr. Dawson in 1886.

Venerable Counsel Fawcett, of Whaleback camp, Superior, congratulated Duluth camp on its success.

E. W. Stark, of Harris, Minn., state advisor, congratulated the camp on its achievement of the banner, and hoped that it would hold the prize as long as Minnehaha camp, of Minneapolis, did.

There was a very pleasing program outside of the speeches. Besides the Duluth camp band, an M. W. A. band from Superior played several selections delightfully. The Orpheus Singing society and the Normanna Singing society each sang numbers and responded to encores, and the admirable blending of the voices of these excellent organizations pleased the audience very much indeed.

Two of the most charming numbers on the program were given by Miss Laura Frankenfield. She read "The Dandy Fifth" and "How the Old Horse Won the Bet." Both were dramatic selections, and they were delivered in a stirring manner. Miss Frankenfield is a most accomplished reader, and she was at her best last evening.

The program closed with drills by the teams of Imperial camp, captained by Maj. Reseke, and Whaleback camp, of West Superior. The drills were done in an admirably precise manner, and they were much enjoyed. Then the hall was cleared for dancing, and until 2 o'clock this morning this amusement held the boards. Music was furnished by Gregory's orchestra.

A CANDIDATE.

Judge Roberts of Superior Would Run For Congress.

Judge D. E. Roberts of Old Superior came out yesterday with the announcement that he would be in the race for the Republican nomination for congressman to succeed Congressman J. J. Jenkins of Wisconsin at the next election. Judge Roberts has been contemplating the step for some time, and it is said that his announcement has been precipitated by the fact that Graham L. Rice, railroad commissioner of Wisconsin, is in West Superior looking over the ground with a view of seeking congressional honors.

Mr. Rice now declares that if Judge Roberts is in the race, he is out of it. The commissioner says that in order to win he must have the solid support of Douglas county, and with Judge Roberts a candidate the vote would be divided. Mr. Rice is not at all backward in declaring that he believes himself to be a stronger candidate outside of Douglas county than Judge Roberts, and his friends will probably use all the influence possible to get Judge Roberts to withdraw.

Shirt Waist or "Tub" Suits.

Owing to the greater diversity of fabrics this season, shirt waist suits will play a mighty important part in the garment fray for the coming spring, because there is thus given the spur of inspiration to designing talent which will result in evolving of productions that American womankind will find irresistible. Last season was but an entering wedge for the shirt waist suit, yet it pried so deep into favor of the general public as to have achieved a success unparalleled in the history of the garment trade.

This season we will keep abreast of the increased demand by offering an exceptionally extensive assortment of "Tub" Suits at prices ranging from—

MAY NOT SETTLE.

Compromise By Superior and Sheriff Sommers Unlikely.

It is reported from Superior that there is now slight possibility of any settlement being effected between the city and Sheriff Sommer of Douglas county. There was talk of a compromise, but any one citizen has it in his power to block all compromising by getting out injunctio·· proceedings, and that citizen in this case is Attorney Lyman T. Powell. Mr. Powell says that the proposition advanced by the sheriff for a settlement is not a compromise, but amounts to a request for a gift from the taxpayers. He says he is opposed to the settlement of any bills except on a legal basis.

The estimated amount that it is said the sheriff will be called on to refund the county for overcharges is about $9000. Some of this amount is for work that the courts have decided the sheriff must do for nothing, and for which he has already drawn the money. The sheriff will fight the matter to the bitter end, and it is claimed that he will tender his resignation immediately on the ground that his $1500 salary will not cover the expenses of the office.

GOSS IS CAUGHT.

Montana Bad Man Taken After Eight Years.

Helena, Mont., May 9.—The old adage that "murder will out" again finds verification in the arrest in St. Louis of a man named Goss, wanted for a crime committed near Castle eight years ago. Chief of Police Travis received a telegram from the chief of police of St. Louis inquiring if Goss was wanted. Not only is he wanted, but there is a reward of $650 for his arrest.

In 1894 there were many robberies in Castle, in Meagher county. Investigation showed some stolen property in the house occupied by Goss and William Gay. Officers approached the house. Gay and Goss deliberately opened fire. Sheriff Rader was killed in the battle and the posse retreated. Then Goss and Gay fled. Four days after the first battle the posse reached their camp and another battle was fought. One member of the posse was killed and again the officers were compelled to retreat. Both outlaws escaped. Although the authorities in all parts of the state were notified, no trace of them was found. One year after the killing Gay was arrested in Arizona. The charge of killing Sheriff Rader was made against him and he was tried in Helena. Gay was hanged in the jail yard here. Goss was never heard from. It was learned that he had relatives in Missouri, and officers of that state were notified particularly to be on the lookout for him, but Goss has always eluded arrest.

PAUL FORD MURDERED

Well Known Novelist Is Killed By His Brother.

Latter Immediately Shoots Himself With Fatal Results.

Refusal of Loan Was Probably Cause of Deed.

New York, May 9.—Paul Leicester Ford, the novelist, was shot and killed yesterday by his brother, Malcolm Webster Ford, writer and athlete, who immediately sent a bullet into his own breast, dying instantly.

The shooting ocurred at 10:20 a. m. in the handsome new mansion which Paul Leicester Ford had built at 37 East Seventy-seventh street, and had occupied for about a year.

At the time of the shooting there were in the house besides the two brothers Mrs. Leicester Ford, Miss Elizabeth R. Hall, the novelist's secretary, and the servants. The novelist was sitting at his desk in one corner of his library, a large attractively appointed room at the back of the house on the second floor. It is supposed he was busily engaged at some literary work. Miss Hall was at her desk in another corner of the room, about thirty feet from Mr. Ford. Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford was in her room at the front of the house on the third floor.

Malcolm Ford called, as he had often done, and went to his brother at his desk. Words were exchanged in a tone so low that Miss Hall could not hear what was said, though she says that possibly she might have distinguished the words if she had been paying any attention to this particular meeting of the brothers. Suddenly there was a report shot and Miss Hall, jumping up, darted from the room. Then, according to the statements of the police, Miss Hall said to herself that she must act more bravely and re-enter the library.

Meanwhile Malcolm Ford had called her. As she turned toward him, he placed his revolver to his heart, fired and fell, dying instantly.

When Miss Hall turned to look at Paul, he was still standing at his desk, but rapidly losing strength. She helped him to a sofa and then ran next door for Paul Ford's physician, Dr. Emanuel Baruch. In less than five minutes Dr. Baruch arrived, and the dying man, still conscious, was carried up to a room beside his wife's and placed on his bed. He spoke to his wife and asked the doctor for his opinion, showing that he expected death and was going to meet it calmly and bravely. A few moments later, about twenty minutes after he was shot, Mr. Ford expired.

The bullet which killed Paul Leicester Ford just grazed the top of his heart and passed through a large artery ascending from it.

The bullet which killed Malcolm Ford was fired with the same accuracy of aim, for it made a wound scarcely an inch lower than the one which killed his brother. In fact, the wounds were almost identical.

Just what disposition of Malcolm Ford's body was made, immediately after the shooting, could not be ascertained, but it appears from the statement of certain persons acquainted with the details of the tragedy, that the body lay where it fell, on a rug in the library, for some time, possibly several hours, so great was the excitement in the house. In fact, the murder and suicide were not known to the coroner until about 2:20 p. m., and not to the police until 4:25 p. m.

Mr. Baruch said that the time between 10:20 a. m. and 2:20 p. m. passed so rapidly that no one in the house realized it. Much of the time was occupied in trying to telephone to the father of Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford, Edward H. Kidder, of Brooklyn, who was the first person to arrive after the physician.

Mr. Kidder refused to make any statement in regard to the shooting except a brief memorandum which was given to the police. In this it was said that the cause of the shooting could only be surmised. Information from other sources makes it appear that Malcolm Ford called to get money from his brother, and meeting with a refusal, shot him.

Dr. Baruch said the murder was a result of temporary mental aberration on the part of Malcolm Ford, due to nervousness and exhaustion.

It is said that there was enmity between the two brothers, and consequent bitterness and that it was of eleven years' standing; that never since the death of their father have they been on intimate or brotherly terms. This alleged theory on the part of Malcolm is said to have been brought about by the fact that the father of the boys disinherited Malcolm and that this action on the father's part was because he did not wish Malcolm to devote himself to an athletic career.

Police Capt. Brown said that Malcolm W. Ford had for some time been causing much uneasiness to the family through evidences of an unbalanced mind and declares that in his opinion he attacked his brother during a period of temporary insanity, then taking his own life.

"The cause of Malcolm Ford's action," said Capt. Brown, "can be explained by inference. For some time past his financial affairs have been pressing him and he has repeatedly asked and received material assistance from his brother. It is presumed that his importuning had been such and his demand so excessive that his brother had been forced to refuse further aid."

Paul Leicester Ford was 37 years old, a novelist of much note, "Janice Meredith," being perhaps his most popular novel. He was married about a year ago to Miss Grace Kidder, daughter of Edward H. Kidder, of Brooklyn. He was the son of Gordon Lesley Ford, of Brooklyn, who died eleven years ago and left an estate of some $2,000,000 divided between his children, with the exception of Malcolm W., who was disinherited by the will. Mr. Ford is the author of "The Hon. Peter Stirling," "The Great K. & A. Train Robbery," "The True George Washington," "The Many Sided Franklin," (which ran serially in the Century); "Tattle Tales of Cupid," "Janice Meredith," which ran serially in the Bookman, 1899, and a collection of short stories. He also edited the writings of Thomas Jefferson in ten volumes; the writings of John Dickinson in three volumes, and numerous other works relating to American history and bibliography. He was a member of the Players' Reform and Grolier clubs, the Century association, and Sons of the Revolution.

Malcolm W. Ford was born in Brooklyn, Feb. 7, 1862. He was educated at the Brooklyn Polytechnic institute. He took up athletes while at school and for a number of years won championships in this country and Canada and in the 100-yard run, 220-yard run and quarter mile, as well as for the 120-yard hurdles, running broad and running high jumps. He was the all-round amateur champion for half a dozen years. He was so passionately fond of athletes that he is said to have neglected everything to devote the time to running and jumping. He married a daughter of Robert Graves, a wall paper manufacturer, but they were divorced. He was a member of the Lawyers' club.

It was decided tonight at a family counter together. The funeral will be held Saturtogether. hTe funeral will be held Saturday morning from the residence. Tonight the bodies were laid out together in adjoining upper rooms of the house.

Malcolm Ford leaves a son of about 7 years.

DISMISSED.

Faribault, Minn., May 9.—Shortly before noon yesterday the state rested and the Hartley lawyers made a motion to dismiss the case on the grounds that the evidence submitted was insufficient to sustain the indictment. Judge Buckham granted the motion and dismissed the defendant.

The scene in the court room was extremely touching. Mrs. Vosburg, the defendant's daughter, and Mrs. Hartley, his wife, came within the rail and embraced and kissed the old man, down whose cheeks the tears streamed.

STORY OF THE CASE.

Miss Pelton was a teacher in the Kenyon city schools, and was en route to her home in Reedsburg, Wis., for the summer vacation. She arrived in Dodge Center, where she was to change cars shortly before 3 a. m. on the day of her death. Having a long wait she went to the Transfer hotel and was given a room by Hartley. Three hours later her charred remains were taken from the smoking ruins of the hotel.

Coroner Harrison was summoned and at once ordered an inquest. According to Hartley's story, he was aroused by Miss Pelton about 2:45 a. m., and gave her a room. He then went back to bed, but being unable to sleep, he rose shortly before 4 o'clock, went out into a summer kitchen at the rear of the house, and lighted a gasoline stove. Returning to the office, he sat down, lighted a cigar and began to read. Falling asleep, he was awakened some time later by smoke, which was filling the room. Finding the rear of the house in flames, he gave the alarm and battered down the door separating his own room, which opened off from the office, from the room occupied by his cook, Mrs. Marquardt, and four children. These people escaped, in part through the door, the rest through the window. He then started for the second floor to warn the guests above, but when almost at the top of the stairs was overcome by the smoke and rolled down to the floor below, where he lay for a time unconscious. Recovering, he went outside, where he found the gluests escaping from the windows, having been aroused by spectators throwing stones through the windows. All escaped without injury with the exception of Miss Pelton.

After the building had become a mass of flame, Hartley informed some of the bystanders that there was a woman in the house, A ladder was at once brought and an attempt made to enter her room, but the flames drove the men back. The walls fell at 5 o'clock, and a half hour later Miss Pelton's remains were taken from the ruins. Hartley admitted the stove which caused the fire sat under a low shelf which must have caught fire if the flames had suddenly shot up, and that during the time he alleges that he rolled downstairs and lay unconscious on the floor, he did not loose the eye-glasses he was wearing and kept the cigar he was smoking in his mouth.

A son of Mrs. Marquardt, who was in the house, denied that Hartley went upstairs at the time claimed, also affirming that there was little smoke in the room from which the stairway opened and that Miss Pelton could easily have been gotten out had her presence been known.

The hotel was a cheap frame structure and heavily mortgaged. Together with the contents, it was insured for $2500, which amount the underwriters have as yet refused to pay.

Great indignation was felt against Hartley by the people of Dodge Center, and many leading citizens made open threats of taking the law into their own hands.

The verdict of the coroner's jury that Miss Pelton met her death through the criminal negligence of Hartley had a quieting effect, and a general disposition was manifested to let the law take its course. Hartley was not arrested, but kept under close surveillance, awaiting action by the grand jury, which met in October. The grand jury returned an indictment charging Hartley with murder in the first degree. He was at once arrested and his trial set for the first week of April, 1902. Dodge county having no jail, he was taken to the jail at Rochester.

The case was called at Mantorville in April, when a change of venue to Rice county was granted.

JULY FIRST

Selected as Date of the Republican State Convention.

St. Paul, May 9.—The Republican state central committee met here yesterday afternoon and decided to hold the state nominating convention in the city Tuesday, July 1, and selected United States Senator Knute Nelson for temporary chairman.

June 24 was chosen as the date for all the county conventions.

The apportionment agreed upon is one delegate for every 250 votes or major fraction thereof cast for McKinley in 1900, with five delegates-at-large from each county. This will give a convention of 1172 delegates. St. Louis county is entitled to forty delegates.

"We were beaten today," State Senator Ole H. Myron, one of those that favored a late convention, said after the meeting. "I believe, though, that within the next ten days there will be candidates in the field against Van Sant. No, I can't say who they will be. I feel certain that neither Heatwole or Collins could be induced to enter the race—'Bob' Dunn, perhaps. There is a man that would be all right," he added, pointing to Tams Bixby.

St. Paul, May 9.—"If I had intended being a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor against Governor Van Sant I would have announced it some time ago," said Tams Bixby yesterday. "I am not a candidate for the nomination and I will not be a candidate. I believe Governor Van Sant will be renominated without opposition. I know of no one who will be a candidate against him."

Tams Bixby broke to this extent the silence he has maintained since he resigned as a member of the Dawes Indian commission. He made the statement after the meeting of the Republican state central committee, which fixed the date of the Republican state convention for July

HOPKINS ENDORSED

Victory For the Administration at Illinois State Convention.

Yates-Hopkins-Lorimer-Northcott Combination Wins Out.

Springfield, Ill., May 9.—The result of the Republican state convention, held here yesterday, was a decisive victory for the state administration and what is known as the "Yates-Hopkins-Lorimer-Northcott" combination. The convention endorsed the administration of Governor Yates and the candidacy of Congressman Albert J. Hopkins for United States senator by an overwhelming majority. The fight against the endorsement was led by Judge L. Y. Sperman, ex-speaker of the house of representatives. The convention was the largest held in an off-year in Illinois for many years, and convened in Machinery hall, at the state fair grounds, at noon. The hall was profusely decorated with bunting and flags and the pictures of former governors and prominent Republican leaders. Congressman Hopkins and Governor Yates were given ovations when they appeared in the hall. State Committee Chairman Fred H. Rowe called the convention to order at 12:15. Rev. F. C. O. Kimball offered prayer. After the reading of the call, Chairman Rowe introduced as the temporary chairman of the convention Congressman Joseph G. Cannon. Congressman Cannon took the stavel, amid a storm of applause, and as soon as the noise had subsided, he addressed the convention.

After the committees on resolutions, permanent organization and credentials, and the new state committee were named, a recess was taken until 2:30 o'clock.

When the convention reconvened the report of the committee on credentials was adopted. The report of the committee on permanent organization was also adopted, and Lieutenant Governor William A. Northcott was elected permanent chairman. Chairman Northcott was escorted to the chair and made an eloquent speech, in which he eulogized Lincoln, Grant, Logan, Tanner and Cullom, and said some complimentary things about Senator Mason.

Judge Elbridge Hanecy of Chicago read the report of the committee on resolutions, of which he was chairman. He was frequently interrupted by applause, especially at the mention of the names of Tanner, Roosevelt and Yates. When the resolution endorsing Hopkins was read there was a tremendous outburst. Judge Hanecy moved the adoption of the report and called for the previous question. Judge L. Y. Sherman leaped to his feet and demanded recognition.

"To what point do you arise?" asked the chairman.

"I arise to present a minority report from the committee," said Judge Sherman, while the anti-administration crowd cheered.

"The chair rules," said Chairman Northcott, "that a minority report is in the nature of an amendment unless it is presented by the chairman of the committee and cannot come before the body except as an amendment.

The chairman then announced the question to be, "Shall the main question now be put?" The roll was called and resulted, ayes 937, noes 561½. The previous question was declared carried amid wild excitement.

The question then arising on the adoption of the report of the committee, Judge Sherman demanded a division of the question under the rules of the house of representatives, and a separate roll call was taken upon the endorsement of the senatorial candidacy of A. J. Hopkins, resulting in the adoption of the endorsement by a vote of 1015½ for and 492½ against. Mr. Hopkins was called out and briefly expressed his thanks.

The report of the committee on resolutions was adopted. The platform condemns all conspiracies and combinations to restrict business, to create monopolies, to limit production, or to control prices, and favors such legislation as will effectually restrain and prevent all such abuses, protect and promote competition and secure the rights of producers, laborers and all who are engaged in industrial pursuits and commerce. It approves the efforts of President Roosevelt to enforce the laws against illegal combinations in restraint of trade, and pledges him hearty support in all his efforts to protect the people from oppressive combinations of capital. A reciprocal trade treaty with Cuba is favored. Chris Mamer, of Chicago, was nominated clerk of the supreme court by a unanimous vote.

The convention adjourned at 8:30 p. m.

Last night Charles G. Dawes formally announced his withdrawal as a candidate for United States senator.

Senator H. E. Mason said: "I will succeed myself as United States senator from Illinois. I have made no fight for delegates. If it was a straight Republican convention it could have nothing to do with selecting a United States senator. Certainly a convention made up by brutally unseating regularly elected delegates and seating those selected by ballot box stuffing and boodle could have nothing in common with Republicanism. The ultimate effects will be to elect me and to defeat Mr. Lorimer for congress."

The consensus of opinion among the delegates is that the action of the convention settles the senatorial contest.

STUDIES IN THE BOOK OF ACTS

PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

International Sunday School Lesson For May 11, 1902.

Acts 12:1-19. "Now about that time Herod the king put forth his hands to afflict certain of the church. And he killed James, the brother of John, with the sword. And when he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to seize Peter also. And those were the days of unleavend bread. And when he had taken him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to guard him; intending after Passover to bring him forth to the people. Peter, therefore, was kept in the prison; but prayer was made earnestly of the church unto God for him. And when Herod was about to bring him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains; and guards before the door kept the prison. And behold, an angel of the Lord stood by him, and a light shined in the cell; and he smote Peter on the side, and awoke him, saying, Rise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands. And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And he did so. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me. And he went out, and followed; and he wist not that it was true which was done by the angel, but thought he saw a vision. And when they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth into the city, which opened to them of its own accord, and they went out and passed on through one street; and straightway the angel departed from him. And when Peter was come to himself he said, Now I know of a truth that the Lord hath sent forth his angel and delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews. And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together and were praying. And when he knocked at the door of the gate, a maid came to answer, named Rhoda. And when she knew Peter's voice she opened not the gate for joy, but ran in and told that Peter stood before the gate. And they said unto her, Thou art mad. But she confidently affirmed that it was even so. And they said, It is his angel. But Peter continued knocking, and when they had opened, they saw him, and were amazed. But he, beckoning unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him forth out of the prison. And he said, tell these things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went to another place. Now as soon as it was day, there was no small stir among the soldiers, what was become of Peter. And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the guards, and commanded that they should be put to death. And he went down from Judea to Caesarea, and tarried there."

Golden Text: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him and delivereth them." Psalm 34:7.

HEROD AGRIPPI.

Every man who touched the life of the infant church in the apostolic age is interesting to the student of the Book of Acts. The Herod family was notable for its blood-thirsty ambition, which even plunged it repeatedly into internecine deeds of crime. The Herod of this lesson was the grandson of Herod the Great. His father was put to death by his grandfather soon after his birth. He was sent to Rome, where he was brought up. He enjoyed imperial acquaintance from his childhood up. This acquaintance did not help him much at first, but later on the friendship of Caligula and of Claudius lifted him from a rash adventurer to the position of supreme power in all Palestine. Among other vicissitudes of his varying fortunes, he was at one time bound with a heavy chain of iron; but when Caligula came to the throne, that emperor bestowed upon him a golden chain equal in weight to the iron one he had worn when bound. He also gave him the tetrarchies of Philip and Lysanias, and the senate conferred on him the honorary title of prefect. In the year 41 A. D., when Claudius came to the throne, Herod succeeded in winning the favor of that ruler, who gave him Smamaria and Judea in addition to his other dominions, so that he then had the same territory to rule that had been under the dominion of his illustrious ancestor, Herod the Great.

While he was very successful in keeping the favor of Rome, he was equally fortunate in winning and holding the good will of the Jews. Two sentences from Josephus will indicate his attitude toward the Jews. "He loved to live continually at Jerusalem, and was exactly careful in the observance of the laws of his country. He therefore kept himself entirely pure, nor did any day pass over his head without its appointed sacrifice." In the town of Dora some young men caused a statue of the emperor to be put up in the synagogue. This enraged Herod and he caused the statue to be removed and the young men to be severely punished. He did everything in his power to uphold the privileges of the Jews against encroachments of Roman power. All of which deeds strengthened his popularity. His intense devotion to things Jewish led him to enter upon his persecution of the church. To what lengths he was willing to go in that direction in order to please the Jews is seen from his actions that are narrated in the twelfth chapter of Acts.

This official persecution of the Christians seems to have occurred in March or April of the year 44 A. D. The apostle James was the first to suffer the violence of this political power. It may seem strange that so little is said about the death of James, but the reason is not far to seek. Stephen's death was followed by far-reaching consequences to the entire church, but the death of James stirred up no new movement and brought no great disaster in its train. Luke did not try to write a biography of all the apostles, but started out to give an account of the development of the church. He, accordingly, rejected many matters of interest because they were not necessary to his purpose.

MAN'S PRISON AND GOD'S ANGEL.

The motive for the seizure of Peter strikes the sensibilities of the present day reader as being a very heartless one. Herod was willing to resort to any means to curry favor with Jews. He was evidently not a man of conscience, but one who would not hesitate to use the foulest means, if necessary, to accomplish his desired ends. In the days of unleavened bread there were many Jews in Jerusalem, which made it a peculiarly favorable time for Herod to impress the people with his loyalty to Judaism. But it was illegal to put a man to death during the days of the feast. Therefore Peter was imprisoned to await the end of the feast and the pend of his life. The time of waiting gave the church opportunity to pray. We are not told that the church prayed for Peter's deliverance, although it seems likely that they must have offered that petition. Perhaps they merely asked God to protect the great apostle, committing him to the care of the Divine Father, and trusting that Eternal Wisdom would do better for him than they could suggest.

No doubt was left of the security of Peter's imprisonment. A guard was set over him. The night was divided into four watches of three hours each, and each watch was kept by four soldiers, two of which were on either side of him and the other two at the door. The time of the imprisonment was about to end. It was the night before Herod had intended to present his prisoner to the people for the execution of their fell purposes. Peter was sleeping the sleep of the just in his prison cell with his guard of sleepless soldiers over him. But there was another eye that slept not, but had given Peter a better guard than Rome could command. It was confidence in the watchful care of his God that enabled Peter to disregard the dangers of the morrow and sleep so soundly that his angelic visitor had to smite him on the side to awaken him. This angel was not "The Angel" so often mentioned in the Scriptures, which means the Son of God himself, but it was a messenger of God sent on a mission of mercy to one of His children. In the New Testament, except in the Revelation, angels are uniformly harbingers of mercy. The angel appeared to Peter clad in the smiling light of heaven. It was a moment of joy to the prisoner, also of haste, for the summons of God must be obeyed without delay.

The angel gave specific directions to Peter about the disposition of his clothing, concluding with the direction to "follow me." The whole procedure was so weird and unusual that Peter could not feel that his sesnes were properly informing him. He seemed to himself to see a vision, but the realities of providence are sometimes more strange than any vision, and they may seem to human intelligence as impossible. There is a vast difference between things that are possible to man and those that are possible only to God. There was no human power in Jerusalem that could have brought Peter out of prison against the will of those in authority. But the angel of God easily led himself outside the prison walls and for a full block along the street; then, when there was no further need for superhuman aid, the angel departed. God helps a man so long as that help is promotive of the man's good, but divine grace never takes the place of human effort. Character can only be built up by the full and free exercise of man's body, mind, conscience and will. In Christian character the grace of Christ supplements, inspires and edifies all efforts and products of human effort that look in the direction of righteousness and spirituality. Peter recognized that it was the Lord's angel that had led him out, but this recognition was not realized until the angel had gone. It is often so with our slow perception of the divine dealings. Angels come and minister to us, but we think them meddlers until they are gone, then we would fain call them back. Happy is it for us if we never fail to perceive, even at a late hour, that the hand of the Lord has been in the events that have transpired.

Peter did not cast lightly aside the things God had wrought, but paused to consider them. Having reassured himself of his freedom, he went at once to his own company of believers. He was constrained to share with them the joy of his miraculous deliverance. Sometimes churches and religious societies set aside special hours for services of praise; and this is well, for man should recognize in his meditations and with thanksgivings and praise the goodness of God in doing so much for man's redemption. Other Christians are also encouraged and stimulated by hearing words of testimony from those who have received any special favor from God.

SLOW TO BELIEVE.

The maid spoken of in the thirteenth verse of the lesson had a Greek name, which is the same as our English name Rose. She was the portress in charge of the wicket or small gate. She responded to Peter's knock, and, on hearing his voice, recognized it at once, and was so excited because of her great joy to know that he had escaped that she forgot to open the wicket to admit him, but ran back to tell the others that Peter actually stood at the gate. The rest did not believe her report, but told her that she was out of her mind. She was confident and persisted in her assertion that it was really Peter, until the company had to yield enough to assume that the girl had seen something that resembled Peter, and so they said, "It is his angel." That does not mean that they thought that his ghost was at the door, but refers to a belief common among the ancient Jews, that each person has a guardian angel which may at times assume his likeness and voice. There is an old Jewish commentary which says that "six hundred thousand of the angels of the presence came down on Sinai at the giving of the law, and each one bore a crown to crown Israel, one for each Israelite." So the believers assembled in that house thought that Peter's guardian angel had come to their gate.

But Peter kept on knocking until he gained admittance, and amazed them all with the reality of his presence, and, still more, with the strange story of his deliverance, which he desired should be told to all the brethren, but especially to James, the Lord's brother. Then he departed and went to some other place, we know not where. His open confession of the mercy he had received from the Lord is a good example for all believers to follow. If God blesses any person, certainly the least thing that person can do in token of his gratitude to God is to openly confess the favor of heaven and thus try to call others to faith in God.

The guard of a prisoner was by the Romans held absolutely responsible for the keeping of him. There is a good illustration of this fact in the sixteenth chapter of Acts, where the jailer at Philippi was about to take his own life because he had discovered that his prisoners had escaped. It is not, therefore, surprising to read that there was a great stir among the soldiers in their effort to find Peter and return him to prison, nor to read further that Herod ordered that the guards should be put to death. It was the ordinary course of his daily routine to do such things, and hence this incident did not at all interfere with his plans to go down to Caesarea.

BOWER REYNOLDS PATRICK.

CLUB WOMEN

Elect Their Officers Amid Scenes of Much Excitement.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—Two things distinguished the last day of the sixth biennial convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs, one being the election of officers and the other the address of the retiring president, Mrs. Rebecca Lowe, of Georgia.

The election, which was full of dramatic incidents, resulted in the acceptance by ballot of the entire report of the nominating committee, as follows: President, Mrs. Dimies T. S. Denison, New York; first vice president, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, California; second vice president, Mrs. Emma Fox, of Michigan; recording secretary, Mrs. Louise Peppenheim, of South Carolina; treasurer, Mrs. Emma Von Vechtein, of Iowa; auditor, Mrs. George Noyes, of Wisconsin; directors, Mrs. Anna D. West, of Massachusetts; Mrs. J. C. Terrill, of Texas; Mrs. Jane Humphrey, of Kansas; Mrs. Lydia Williams, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Samuel Hayes, of Idaho; Mrs. William Elliott, of Maryland; Mrs. W. W. Boyd, of Missouri; Mrs. W. A. Neldan, of Utah.

The scene at the election of the president was the most sensational in the history of the federation. Those who at three biennials have clamored to have Mrs. Platt-Decker, of Colorado, as their leader, were roused to enthusiasm at the mention of her name by Mrs. Gallagher, of Ohio, who made the nominating speech amid intense excitement. Mrs. Decker arose in the gallery, where she sat with the Colorado delegation, and with earnestness declined the honor.

Many of Mrs. Decker's admirers voted for her anyway, the vote standing 667 for Mrs. Denison and 258 for Mrs. Decker.

The election proceeded with more or less disorder, and Mrs. Hamlin, of Minnesota, moved that a committee be appointed to devise some saner way of conducting elections. The motion was carried.

Aside from passing upon minor amendments to the by-laws, the convention settled the charter matter by accepting the report of that committee, while the report of the committee which suggested the erection of a "Hall of Philanthropy" at St. Louis was referred to the board of directors, the convention evidently being overwhelmed by the demand of $100,000 as their contribution toward the plan.

WOMAN RETURNS

To New Ulm After Twenty-Five Years Absence.

New Ulm, Minn., May 9.—Mrs. Ocie Ella Wood returned here yesterday after having been adjudged dead and her estate administered more than a year ago. Mrs. Wood and her husband left New Ulm for California twenty-five years ago and have since resided there. Her relatives gave her up for dead, and when, in August, 1899, her father, Thomas E. Chute, was killed, his estate was divided between three of his children known to be living, and Mrs. Wood's share also went to them. Mrs. Wood, it is said, has fully established her identity, and the judgment of the court will probably be set aside and her claim allowed.

ARRESTED FOR ARSON

Charged With Ruining Furniture of Neighbor With Fire.

Shoes Whose Heels Fit Tracks Found In Her Room.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 9.—Miss Hortense Abromet, who five years ago ranked as the most beautiful girl in Indianapolis and is still remarkably handsome, is under arrest for arson and malicious destruction of property, and in default of $5000 bond is a prisoner at police headquarters. She is a daughter of the late A. Abromet, who, until his sudden death on the street a few years ago, was the best known insurance agent in the state.

The Abromet family are immediate neighbors to Harry B. Marsh, secretary of the Sanborn-Marsh Electric company. Friction arose and Mr. Marsh felt compelled to notify the landlord that unless the lease with the Abromets was canceled he would move his family elsewhere, and the Abromets were preparing to move.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Marsh returned from Chicago, and upon entering their home detected the smell of burned wood and cloth, and examination showed that the torch had been freely applied to the interior, scorching and ruining table linen, bed clothing, fine furniture and bric-a-brac, while the floor was littered with twisted newspapers only partially burned. Examination also showed that fire had been applied at various points in two or three rooms, but at no time was it suffered to get beyond control, and chemicals had evidently been used to suppress it when the situation became dangerous. The damage amounted to several hundred dollars.

Detectives Wallace and Holtz found that a window in the rear had been broken at the top with a stone, permitting the removal of the clasp, so that the window might be shoved up.

There were four holes in the soft ground, fitting the legs of a chair on the Abromet porch, and several indentations showing where some person wearing shoes with French heels had arranged to enter the house. Suspicion pointed to Miss Abromet, and she was sent to police headquarters. Afterward in her room the shoes were found, the heels exactly fitting the indentations in the earth, one earthen imprint even showing where the sole had been repaired. There was other circumstantial evidence pointing to her guilt, and as she had expressed herself very bitterly toward Mr. and Mrs. Marsh, there was no hesitation in committing her in default of bond. The accused gave a brief and emphatic denial to the charge, and at no time could the police break through her reserve. The arrest caused a profound sensation, as the accused is well known. She is 25 years old, and lives with her widowed mother.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Lieutenant Governor Jesse Stone of Wisconsin is growing weaker daily. He takes but little food, and it is only the great vitality which he displays which keeps him up. Physicians state that there is no hope for him, and that it is only a matter of a short time when his system must succumb to the ravages of disease.

The South Omaha Live Stock exchange has adopted a resolution relative to the agitation over the so-called beef trust, and asking the public to withhold judgment pending the investigation now in progress. It says the agitation is hurting the producer, and when the latter is hurt, it is an injury to the foundation on which all prosperity is built.

Dick O'Brien made Dan Creedon, of Brooklyn, throw up the sponge in the second round of their fight at Lewistown, Me., Thursday night. Creedon was out of condition.

Nine men were severely injured, one fatally, in an explosion of a ladle containing five tons of molten copper in the converter of the Washoe smelter at Anaconda, Mont. The accident is supposed to have been caused by cold water coming in contact with the metal. Larry Dower, it is believed, will die from his injuries.

Simpson and Kirkaldy, woolen manufacturers at Woonsocket, R. I., have announced an increase of wages for weavers of 2 cents a yard on all wool backs and 1 cent a yard on silk. The advance was granted as the result of a conference between the management of the mill and a committee representing the employes.

Fire started at 1 o'clock Friday morning in the Highland apartment building at Forty-third street and Lake avenue, and caused a lively panic among the inmates of the eighteen flats in the structure. Many persons were compelled to flee to the street in their night clothes. All managed to leave the building without injury. The damage was about $60,000.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), May 9.—The depression central Thursday morning over Lake Superior has advanced to the New England coast, while the high pressure area that was over Assiniboia has shifted its center to Lake Superior, the rapid easterly movement of both areas causing brisk to high westerly winds and much cooler weather over the lake region and Upper Mississippi valley. Light to killing frosts occurred this morning over Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Red River valley. Light rains fell over South Dakota, Western North Dakota, Montana, Oregon, Washington, portions of Northwest Canada and the eastern lake region, and rain or snow at places on Lake Superior to the eastward of Keweenaw point. The winds in the lake region this morning range from brisk to high northerly. The storm northwest warnings that were displayed at stations in the Duluth district were lowered Thursday evening.

They Oppose Tariff Revision.

If some of the Republican newspapers do not stop talking about "free beef," they will get themselves disliked by the Republican leaders in congress.

Members of congress do not take kindly to the suggestion that the tariff be removed from beef. Republican leaders see in the proposal another breach in the tariff wall, and they are afraid of the consequences. They do not see how they can remove the duty from beef without giving attention to the steel schedule; nor how they can remove the duty from steel without amending the sugar duties; nor how they can remove the protection from sugar without touching up the tariff in some other respects. As a matter of fact they do not want the tariff disturbed in any way, form or manner, at present at least, and in assuming this attitude they are running counter to public opinion.

The Cattle Barons Up In Arms.

The cattle barons of the West are in a heap of trouble over the recent order of the president to tear down the fences and get off the public lands. They claim that this will work a great hardship to them and is entirely uncalled for. When the lords of the grazing grounds, not content with using the public domain as grazing commons, began to fence in the land and to forbid others to trespass on it, the patience of the interior department became seriously taxed. When Secretary Hitchcock reported this to the president, he said: "Put them off." So the ejectment orders went forth; these occasioned a disturbance in the counties of Chaunes, Eddy and Guadaloupe in New Mexico, and stirred up the dust in Colorado and Wyoming, and spoiled the plans of the Interstate Land and Cattle company, and the Cass Land and Cattle company, and of many individual grazers in Nebraska, Kansas, Oregon and Colorado. The cattle raisers have stirred up the senators from their states, and the latter have been storming the White House with tales of the ruin which will certainly fall upon them if the government insists on the order to tear down the illegal fences. They say the cattle companies have contracts to deliver so many head of cattle to the beef trust on certain days, and that if the fences are razed the animals will mix with those of other ranchmen and become lost. But the president says it is not his fault if they have banked on their ability to break the laws with impunity, and it certainly is not. They should be made to comply wth the laws the same as any one else.

Oleo Law Will Make Trouble.

The internal revenue commissioner expects to encounter many difficulties in the enforcement of the obnoxious oleomargarine law and all kinds of trouble. The difficulty will be in distinguishing between the real, unadulterated product of the cow and the output of the oleo factories. It will also be necessary for the revenue inspectors to be able to tell renovated butter from the genuine product, as reworked butter is to be taxed along with oleo. While there was formerly a slight internal tax on oleomargarine makers, it was so small a tax that it was not a matter of vital importance if the tax were not collected. Consequently the inspectors were excused if they failed to discover that a dealer was selling oleo instead of butter. Now, however, Commissioner Yerkes wants the tax of 10 cents a pound on oleo rigidly enforced, so it will behoove the various inspectors to become butter experts.

ASPHALT PAVING.

The Herald published yesterday for the information of those who may have been misled by the talk in favor of an asphalt pavement for East Superior street, an accurate picture of the condition of a leading residence street in San Francisco which has been paved with asphalt for only three years. Certainly no one can honestly say, after viewing this picture, that asphalt is a satisfactory pavement. But the experience of San Francisco is that of every other city which has experimented with asphalt.

One of the strongest claims made by the asphalt trust, in order to induce property owners to favor their high-priced pavement, is that they guarantee to keep it in repair for five or ten years and therefore it is the cheapest in the end. How valuable is such a guarantee may be judged by the experience of other cities. For instance, read the following from the St. Paul Dispatch of last evening:

> "City Engineer Rundlett has called the attention of the board of public works to the deplorable condition of East Sixth and Seventh streets, and the delay of the contracting company responsible for the repairs to do anything in that line.
> "East Sixth is in a particularly bad condition on the strip from Cedar to Sibley. In front of the Metropolitan Opera house there are many holes that fill with water after a rain and remain for many hours in a muddy state that is a disgrace to the appearance of the city and a menace to public safety.
> "East Seventh, from Wabasha to Kittson, is as bad or worse. For several blocks it does not drain properly and the rain remains in pools for days.
> "Mr. Rundlett stated in his letter that he had written to the American Contracting company, at Buffalo, demanding that repairs be made, and received no satisfaction beyond the statement that an agent of the company would shortly come to St. Paul to look into the matter. Weeks have elapsed and nothing had been done."

The asphalt pavements on the streets referred to by the Dispatch were laid only a few years ago, and already they are in a deplorable condition, with holes galore, and the asphalt company refuses to make the repairs that it guaranteed.

The experience of St. Paul proves that asphalt is the most costly pavement, that it is not durable, that it is not the cheapest to keep in repair, and that the asphalt companies do not live up to their agreement to make repairs. Why should Duluth adopt a pavement that has thus been shown to be a failure?

ARBITRATION IN FAVOR.

The fact that the coal miners' representatives are anxious to arbitrate their differences, and have made a proposition to that effect to the operators, augurs well for a settlement of the troubles in the coal regions. Popular opinion has as much to do with the settlement of difficulties at this day as anything else. Another thing is apparent, and that is that the days of violence are practically over. Although strikes are still common, they have grown less and less harsh in their conduct, and the public is less and less inconvenienced by them. They are freer from violent and overt acts and are conducted more on principle than on antagonisms. This is a very healthful sign, indeed. Strikers have learned that in order to secure public sympathy throughout the whole controversy they must preserve their dignity and integrity and respect the rights of the public. This is the great lesson of the last few years, and is one of the best signs of growing peace in industrial work. Reason has taken the place of coercion on both sides, and when difficulties occur each party is usually willing to conduct its affairs with due regard to the public convenience.

Strikes are more numerous in prosperous times than in periods of depression, which is, of course, a natural consequence. During depressed times the men are glad to secure employment at any prices, and in prosperous periods they want to get their wages up as high as possible so that when the cut comes it will not quite reach the former low levels. This is a common observation the world over. There is no doubt but what the work of the National Civic federation is proving effective and will render valuable service in the future. Its influence is felt and will grow as time passes on.

AN EXTENDED SESSION.

The bright outlook of a few weeks ago for an early adjournment of congress has grown very dim, and a time to pending the present session cannot be predicted with any degree of correctness. The prediction made so emphatically that when the Republican leaders in the senate really took up the Philippine question in earnest they would do so with such effectiveness that the Democrats would have nothing more to say, finds little support today. The Republican speeches already scheduled have served to provoke the opposition to make emphatic attack; the minority members of the Philippines committee have had a meeting at which it was decided to pursue the campaign vigorously, and the longer the Republicans talk the more the opposition will have to say in reply. Mr. Spooner is hard at work on his speech which will represent the resources of the war department as worked up by an exceedingly clever lawyer. Mr. Foraker, who will follow, is expected to make the greatest "effort" of his life in eulogy of the flag. On the other side, Senator Hoar is preparing a speech to be delivered in about a week.

The Cuban sugar tangle shows little signs of clearing as a result of the threatened extra session of congress in case the present adjourns without action. The house insurgents say that the president would never do such a thing, in the face of a presidential campaign, and in private conversation they profess to be unmoved by the prospect. They say they are willing to do something for Cuba, but that it must be by other means than a lowering of the protective duty. They suggest rebate devices of various kinds. No one doubts that the senate will respond to the wishes of the administration, but the trouble will come in breaking up the alliance in the house between the insurgent Republicans and the Democrats. With the canal bill, which the president is very anxious to have pass, taken with all the other matters, it is not likely that the adjournment will be at all early.

The discussion of child labor in factories leads the Portland Oregonian to say that there are worse things than work, even for children. "Child labor is not as bad as child idleness," says the paper. "More anxious fathers and mothers are made in Portland by children running the streets day and night, than by the exactions of factory or mill." This is probably true of many other cities, as well as of Portland, but it does not vitiate the argument in favor of a strict regulation of child labor the world over. Why not send them to school during the day and keep them at home at night?

The liberality of the age seems to be penetrating even the church of Scotland. Says a Glasgow correspondent: "Dundee established presbytery has actually discussed the question o' askin' the toon cooncil to run cars on the Sabbath for the benefit o' folk wha are gaun to the kirk, though they haena agreed to dae this; Edinboro' presbytery hae decided that Sabbath cars are nae concern o' theirs an' that ridin' on them should be left to the conscience o' each particular person an' no decided by presbyteries."

The combine to down Senator William E. Mason, of Illinois, was in control of the Republican state convention yesterday and endorsed Congressman Hopkins for the senatorship. But as this convention was not elected for that purpose, the endorsement may not result in the election of Hopkins. All signs point to a warm contest in the legislature.

Minnesota Republicans will meet in state convention on July 1 at St. Paul. The date is a compromise. The Van Sant men wated a June convention, while others preferred a date in August or September.

Perhaps it would be a wise precaution to order the United States cruiser Chicago back to a home port. Italian wine does not agree with her officers and crew.

Carrie Nation is to lecture in Minneapolis next week and then it is said she intends to make a tour of Minnesota, including Duluth. Carrie and her hatchet may create a sensation on the Bowery.

"It is necessary to do things in war that are not done in peace," says Gen. Brooke. Does he mean water curing and killing and burning?

Bret Harte and Bill Nye have both passed over the range but "the heathen Chinee" is still here.

And now the coal barons are likely to find themselves in court along with the beef trust.

It is said the British mule camps in this country are to be closed. Peace must be near at hand.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Some people are so low they can't even compete with dead men.

It is easier for a woman to stay young after 40 than to make other people believe she is.

Some women are so fair minded that when they know they were in the wrong they will accept an apology from you for it.

An Error Corrected.

Breckenridge Gazette: The Duluth Herald says that Admiral Crowninshield may not go to the coronation because it is fearing he would become sea-sick, never having ventured on the ocean before. The Herald is mistaken. Admiral Crowninshield was once summoned before a naval board of inquiry to testify as to his attempt to anchor his ship in the north Atlantic during a gale by pounding on top of the mast with a sledge hammer.

Jadam Not Lonesome.

Minneapolis Journal: Though J. Adam Bede is the lone candidate for congress in the Eighth district, he does not seem the least bit lonesome.

The Warrior's Vow.

I want to be a soldier
With a uniform so gay,
And I'll try to go about it
In a strictly proper way.

I'll never write a letter
And I'll never make a speech,
I'll keep my own opinions
In my bosom, out of reach.

I'll never, never venture
Suggestions to unfold;
I'll speak when I am spoken to
And do as I am told.

I will polish up my buttons
And I'll keep my trousers pressed,
With confidence expecting
That time will do the rest.

And thus, by constant practice
Of a self-denial fine,
I'll be mentioned as a model
In the military line.

Thoughts By Pease.

Anoka Union (Rep.): Pagey Morris is thankful to everybody and everything save the newspapers. What an ungrateful little cuss he is to be sure.

If the Republican party does not come to the relief of the people, it certainly has forgotten its cunning and its usual good sense.

Senator Clapp did just right when he compassed the appointment of Charley Haupt for United States district attorney. The Twin Cities have always had more than their share.

There is opposition enough in the state were it concentrated to defeat Van Sant's nomination. Let it be concentrated.

If Van Sant is renominated, look out for a mighty increase of the independent voter who will not bow to Van's shrine.

For Faded Wild Violets

By Elise Louis.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

Mrs. Malcomb Clinton was considered one of the happiest young married women in her set. Her husband's devotion was commented upon by every one. It was only necessary to watch her eyes when he came into her presence to see how completely he filled her life. She would say with the sweetest manner of assurance in the world:

"You see 'Cony' and I started right. We wished to set an example of married happiness and it is really very easy if you have a reasonable amount of sense and sentiment."

And so she sailed serenely through a few bright, happy years.

Today she came home a little earlier than usual from her drive, in order to have a little chat with Cony alone before dressing for the small informal dinner they expected to attend that evening. She was a picture well worth looking at as she entered the room aglow with health and color. As she drew off her gloves a shade of disappointment come over her face, as Cony was not in the old familiar cozy corner where he always spent an hour of two before dinner. On the table she found a letter. Cony's handwriting—how strange. What on earth could he have to write about? Probably he had been detained and did not wish to unnecessarily worry her. How sweet of him to be so thoughtful! But when she had finished reading its contents all the light and happiness died out of her eyes. This is what she read:

My Dear Girl: By the time this reaches you I shall be many miles away, absolutely unworthy of a thought from you. I have left you forever, for what I have done is irrevocable. I fully understand you have been all a woman should be and we have been very happy. You will discover my unworthiness in a few hours; more I cannot write at present. Forgive me.

In blank amazement she sat staring before her. What could it mean. He "unworthy?" She was so entirely unprepared for any demonstration of unkindness from Cony that the shock was unbearable. What should she do? To whom should she go? Here was a woman with friends innumerable, and yet when she needed them most she was reluctant to call on them.

How could she talk about Cony's unworthiness when she had not the least knowledge of what he had done or what he meant by his cruel letter? Reading again the contents she was so absorbed that she was oblivious of her maid's entrance with a card.

"Madam, a visitor."

In a dazed manner she read the name on the card, "Miss Margaret Billson." Yes, she would see her. After all, they had been close friends for years, and she would talk to her. Perhaps Margaret could enlighten her.

Like a refreshing summer breeze Margaret Ellison entered the room.

"Oh, my dear, so glad to find you alone. It seems a shame that one should be compelled to stand on ceremony with an old friend, but one is always so afraid of interrupting the cooing of the notorious turtle doves at this hour of the day. Where's Cony?"

Without waiting for an answer Margaret's arms were around her friend in sympathy, and when she had heard all she sat silently by her side absolutely at a loss what to say. At last, with an effort, she questioned her friend.

"Where did he spend the evenings when he was not with you? My dear, ten chances to one you have driven him from home yourself. You probably found fault with the things he did. You possibly insisted upon his wearing an overcoat when it was not cold, and forced his rubbers upon him when he wished to go without them. Ah, my sweet little friend, you may think these things sound frivolous, but they have their weight with a man. The best of them never like to be annoyed with a woman's anxiety, even about themselves. Worry him all you like about yourself, that will keep him busy thinking about you, but let him catch cold, if he likes, that's his business. Remember, it pays to be amiable.

"Now, my dear, I am going to remain with you until all is clear. You need me and I am going to stand by you, but you are not going to cry; remember, not one tear. We are going to put our little heads together and light this out as quietly as possible. If it's a woman we'll follow him and end her career and bring him back, if financial indiscretions, we can manage that, too. Cony must come back. After all our strong-hearted lions—men—do show the white feather in the most inopportune moments—when we least look for their weakness.

"Ten chances to one he had not the strength to deny you extravagances that were part of your little butterfly life, and now he is afraid to face the inevitable, thinking possibly that disgrace would not fall so heavily upon you were he away.

"Finances, dear, take my word for it, have forced Cony to this step and I am going to ask you to let me help you. No, don't shake that proud little head. It is the only sensible thing I have ever wished to do in my useless life, and I am going to do it.

"Margaret," said the forsaken one, "you are an angel, and I always thought you frivolous and without a heart."

How little did she dream that that heart had been given to Cony unasked long before either one of them had been married and that a small bunch of wild violets, void of scent but perfumed with sentiment, were still treasured by Margaret to remind her of an unrequited love!

That evening the papers contained the news of how Cony had misappropriated the bank's funds and of his wild speculations in Wall street; and while it was discussed at the clubs and theaters and censure was strong against him, there were two loyal little women planning to bring him back home, with the opportunity of starting over again.

By clever management of money and brains it was accomplished, and Mr. and Mrs. Malcomb Clinton sailed away with the good wishes of a few remaining friends to start life anew. The happy faces of both will long be remembered by those who stood on the wharf, and the sad eyes of Margaret were filled with tears, but there was a happy smile as she waved her last farewell.

WAS GAGGED.

Soldier Died Because He Could Not Vomit Properly.

Washington, May 9.—George B. Davis, judge advocate general of the army, has made a report to the adjutant general concerning the death of Peter Edward C. Richter, Company I, Twenty-eighth infantry, which occurred at Dasmarinos, Philippine Islands, Feb. 9 last. Richter enlisted at Syracuse, N. Y. The facts as stated are similar to those already set out in the newspapers. In brief they show that Richter was boisterous and violent and intoxicated, calling Lieut. Sinclair vile names. As he resisted arrest and attempted to kick the sergeant, he was tied and as his profane language continued cold water was dashed into his face for a period of about three minutes. As he continued abusive, Richter was gagged, a cloth being held over his head which was removed from time to time to allow the prisoner to vomit. Five minutes afterward he was in his cot. He was breathing when he was laid on the cot. About two pails full of cold water were thrown upon him. An hour afterward Lieut. Sinclair, being called by the sergeant of the guard, went for the surgeon, but when he returned fifteen minutes after, the prisoner was dead. A postmortem examination showed the lungs were very much congested with indications of tubercular force and so much involved as to cause surprise that Richter had been received on enlistment. The surgeon said his death was caused by the accidental entrance of vomit into the trachea and bronchial tubes, causing choking. Gen. Davis says in conclusion:

"The death of Private Richter was promptly reported to the department commander, who immediately ordered an investigation. The facts were fully stated to the inspector, who recommended, after a thorough inquiry, that no further proceedings be had. The recommendation of the inspector was not acepted and upon the receipt of the inspection report, the case was ordered to be investigated by a general court-martial. The proceedings of the court have not yet reached the department."

Escanaba Young Man Arrested Charged With Forgery.

Escanaba—Time Keeper Harry P. Furlott, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul ore dock, was arrested charged with forging time checks. It is asserted by Special Agent H. P. Romaine, who made the complaint that Furlott credited men with work not done, drew the money himself and forged the receipts. He was bound over to the circuit court upon waiving examination.

Calumet—William Pickett started out the other night for a good time, and about 2 o'clock in the morning went to the pump house at the Wolverine and Mohawk mills and pounded on the door, frightening the pump tender, Tony Brinkman, who had a heavily charged shotgun for use in case a bear made its appearance. Brinkman is a nervous fellow and when he heard the pounding fired through the door, the charge taking effect in Pickett's knee, badly shattering the joint. He is now at the hospital and it is probable his leg will bes amputated.

Manistique—By the payment of a large sum, Miss Emma C. Welch, of this city, has just come into possession of a violin made in 1656 by Jacobus Stainer, during his time considered the king of violin makers. The history of the instrument is interesting and authenticated. It was used by C. Dancla and F. Frenne, both masters in their day, and a century ago it was purchased by a nephew of Ethan Allen. Twenty years ago it became the property of M. A. Leggett, of Drayton Plains, Mich., and has remained in that family ever since.

Marquette—Negotiations have been closed for the erection at Munising of a pulp and paper mill. The plant will cost $450,000. The Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company and H. H. Everard, of Kalamazoo, are interested.

Ishpeming—In an interview here James Walker, of the state tax commission, stated that the companies operating steam railroads in Michigan will soon be paying a million dollars annually more taxes than they have in the past. This is because the Pingree law goes into effect in December.

THE DAKOTAS.

Street Car Promoters at Fargo Working Up Sentiment.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The men behind the petition for the street car franchise in Fargo are working up public sentiment. There is an element that thinks Fargo should receive a stated percentage of the receipts of the road over the operating expenses. The franchise at present is not likely to be a profitable investment, but with its long term and the city's growth there is a possibility of it being a paying proposition. While the franchise in itself is not exclusive, it will be so in effect, as the streets will not be wide enough for the operation of two lines and the business would probably never be sufficient to pay the expenses of competition.

Langdon—The sale of Cavalier county state and school lands, which opened Tuesday forenoon, closed Thursday. About al of the 225 descriptions offered for sale were disposed of, with the average price ruling over $11 an acre. Some of the more choice quarters sold for $15 and $18 an acre.

Dickinson—H. V. Barnum was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary for forgery. He pleaded guilty to the charge. His parents live in Chicago. J. B. McDonald was also given a sentence of one year for breaking jail and riding off the sheriff's horse. He has a wife and two children and has served thirteen months in jail.

Grand Forks—At its meeting here Thursday, the Republican state central committee selected Fargo as the place for holding the next state convention. The time for its assembling was fixed as July 23rd.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Nels Knudson was examinedined by the insanity board and ordered committed to the asylum. Knudson is afflicted with the delusion that he is God and has been wading through sloughs believing he was walking on the water.

Britton—Something of a sensation has been caused by the arrest of J. H. Barton, Veblen, on a statuory charge. The co-respondent is alleged to be Lizzie Suffa, a domestic employed in the Barton household. The defendant furnished bonds for his appearance at the next term of circuit court. He says the action is actuated by pure malice and that he expects to clear himself without much trouble.

Canton—Dr. John S. Turner, who for some years has been government physician at Cheyenne River agency, and who was recently appointed physician at the new government Indian asylum in this city, has arrived here to enter upon his new duties. The water works system at the asylum has been rebuilt and the sewer system completed. Thus far about sixteen tons of supplies have been received for the institution.

Alcester—An interesting experiment in school centralization is to be made here and in this vicinity in the near future. At a meeting of the school officers, State Superintendent Collins and County Superintendent Leggett were present and the matter was fully discussed. At least three school districts in this immediate vicinity will adopt the plan this year, and others may take similar action.

HIS HEART BROKEN

Disappointment Over Santiago Battle Wrecked Sampson's Mind.

Unaware He Was the Center of Great Controversy.

Never Knew of Court of Inquiry and Its Verdict.

Washington, May 9.—Rear Admiral William Thomas Sampson died of a broken heart.

He did not realize, except vaguely, that there ever was a Schley court of inquiry.

He never knew what the verdict was, for his mental processes had become so involved with disease that it was impossible to make him understand, even if the attempt had been made.

He died without understanding that he had been placed on the retired list.

None of the events from last September was clear in his mind, and, to most of them, he was utterly oblivious. He might have understood that Theodore Roosevelt, who, as assistant secretary of the navy, helped to select him for the command of the North Atlantic fleet, had become president, but that is doubtful.

His mind failed faster than his body, for he was able to take walks in the vicinity of his home, but could not talk coherently on any but the simplest topics. He could not frame words nor could be articulate them.

The disease was commonly diagnosed as aphasia, but, in reality, it was softening of the brain, with a degeneration of the arterial system.

More than a year ago Sampson's friends noticed that his highly trained mind was refusing to work. His condition was kept a profound secret. The first intimation Washington had of his failing powers was when he came here last summer and visited the navy department.

While in one of the bureau offices he broke down absolutely, and, for a few minutes, became mentally irresponsible.

He was sent back to Boston in company with an attendant and the navy department at once took steps to relieve him from duty and to make the remainder of his life as comfortable as possible.

The history of the campaign of Sampson in the cWst Indian waters has not been written. It is too early for the proper view point.

He was told by the navy department to go ahead and do anything he liked.

Naval experts say his blockades were marvels of efficiency. He had studied out plans of battle for every possible contingency. When he had Cervera bottled up in Santiago harbor, he knew that his time was at hand. He was almost jubilant. He was confident that his ships and ...s men would respond gloriously to his call. He was patient during the long blockade of Santiago in June, 1898. He was waiting for his opportunity to culminate.

Then, on the morning of July 3, fate stepped in and cast against him.

He left the blockade to go to Siboney to visit Shafter. While he was seven miles from the mouth of Santiago harbor, Cervera's ships steamed out. The other ships on the blockade destroyed them.

If he had gone to Siboney the day before or had planned to go in the afternoon, there would have been no Schley-Sampson controversy.

No person knows what Sampson felt when he went back at full speed, only to arrive too late to take any part in the battle. He kept his emotions to himself.

There is no doubt, however, that he was a broken-hearted man from that time.

He came home to find the popular credit for the victory given Schley, who was his subordinate. Sampson was supported loyally by the navy department, but he was not supported by the people.

It was a four-square proposition with the people.

Schley was there. Samson was not. That settled it.

July 3 was the turning point in his career. His intimates say he began to fail soon afterward.

He brooded over what seemed to him to be the injustice of the people. Then fate, this time a little kinder, stepped in again. His mind broke and he was happily unconscious of all the turmoil incident to .... court of inquiry, and neither heard nor cared for the aspersions cast upon him.

It made no difference to Sampson what the court decided, or what Dewey said, or whether the president sustained him or not. His mind received and retained no impressions and he died oblivious to it all.

It was charged against Sampson that he read and approved the proofs of Maclay's book, in which Schley was called a "calitff" and a "coward." This publication was the immediate cause of the Schley court of inquiry, for on it Schley based his request for a court. In the late edition of his book. Historian Maclay says:

"No person reading proof sheets of this book has ever 'approved' of the writer's criticism of that officer (Schley), nor has the author ever intimated that such 'approval' was ever made."

EXPELLED FROM SCHOOL

Daughter of Iconoclast Brann and Friend.

Valley View, Ky., May 9.—A strenuous effort was made by the faculty of Jessamine female institute, Nicholasville, Ky., to hush a case in which Miss Grace Brann, of Waco, Texas, and Miss Anna Graves, of Buffalo, N. Y., were implicated, both of whom were expelled from that institution on Tuesday.

The news of the investigation and its results were brought to this town by parties from Nicholasville. Over seventy-five of the girls were examined in regard to notes said to have been carried for the two. All classes were dismissed and the decision of the faculty was read before the school that the two young ladies named were expelled. The girls had been suspected of sending notes to several young men about town, to which it was charged they made engagements for meetings. How they escaped to fill them, if they did so, is not made public.

On several occasions the two young ladies have been discovered, it is said, in conversation with boys at various hours at night, and on several occasions it was charged presenting themselves in the windows of the building at night.

Miss Brann is the daughter of Editor Brann, of Iconoclast fame, who met death in a street duel for publishing a scandal that involved a college in Waco, Texas. Miss Brann is a bright student, aged about 20 years. She and the Graves girl were close friends and did not mix largely with the other girl students.

MEMORIAL CHIME

Of Ten Bells Shipped to Lincoln, Neb.

New York, May 9.—A chime of ten bells, to be known as the McKinley memorial chime, will be shipped today to Lincoln, Neb., says a Troy, N. Y., dispatch to the Times. It will be placed in the tower of St. Paul's Methodist church. The largest bell bears the inscription: "Presented by the citizens of Lincoln and vicinity in memory of our beloved president, William McKinley, March, 102."

The set cost, $6000, was raised by popular subscription.

A NUNUSUAL HONOR.

New York, May 9—At the unveiling of the commemorative monument to King Humbert, says a Rome dispatch to the Tribune, the king called Ambassador Meyer to the royal stand and conferred the unusual honor of having him sign the deed recording the event. Ambassador Meyer thanked the sovereign, saying he considered it a compliment to America, which he represents.

GETTING CHEAPER

Strawberries From Arkansas With Prices More Favorable.

Meat Continues to Maintain High Level of Price.

Down on Michigan street fresh stuff is coming in more freely every day, and the natural consequence is that prices are getting more reasonable. Almost all of the green vegetables are now within reach of the ordinary households, though prices are not at their lowest as yet.

The list is about as long as it gets, and there is an abundance of everything green and succulent and wholesome on the market. At this season such things keep much better than in the warmer weather, and wilted, draggled vegetables are rare things.

Strawberries are now coming from Arkansas, and the quality is far better than anything so far received. They are cheaper, but they are not yet down to the preserving level of prices. That will not occur until next month, when the Wisconsin berries come in.

This section is particularly favored on strawberries, and those who are especially fond of them are able to enjoy them for a longer period than the residents of less favored communities. The Northern Minnesota berries, though the largest and richest and juiciest of the lot, are late, and they do not appear on the market until most of the other berries have gone. This keeps the supply up from April to August.

While meat prices have not increased lately they have not decreased materially, and the packers' agents hold forth no hope of anything better for some time.

"What is known as grass-fed stock comes in during the latter part of June," said a packer's agent yesterday afternoon, "but it comes from the ranges and it is tough as all get out. The only way to get them in condition is to feed them corn, and corn is expensive fodder at is present price.

"You newspaper fellows are having lots of fun with the packers, but there really is a scarcity of stock, and the high price of feed makes what there is expensive. I called up the head office by long distance this morning, and they said they did not have the beef in the cooler."

There is a slight reduction on the poorer grades of beef, and dressed beef is quoted at 8 cents to 10 cents, instead of 9 cents to 10 cents. Pork loins are cheaper, and are down to 11 cents. They were 13 cents not long ago.

Eggs are a bit easier, and are now down to 15½ cents a dozen. Butter holds about the same, the Michigan street commission houses quoting top grade creamery in prints at 25 cents a dozen.

Most of the vegetables are cheaper, especially the fresh ones. The plain, unlovely cabbage has taken a contrary streak, and has gone up from $3 to $3.50 per 100 pounds.

If there is truth in the popular belief in the efficacy of onions as a medicinal agent everybody ought to get medicine cheap, because Bermuda onions have dropped $1 per crate and are now selling at $2.50. Cucumbers, which have been $1.25 per dozen, are now down to $1. Rhubarb, alias pie plant, has dropped from $1.50 to $1.75 down to $1.25. New beets and new carrots, by the dozen bunches, have dropped off 10 cents to 65 cents.

New potatoes are cheaper, and if the tendency keeps up they and their older generation will meet on a common level soon. The new potatoes are now down to $2.40 per bushel.

FOR BEDE.

Hon. Edward W. Stark Says His Position Is Solid.

Edward W. Stark, of Harris, Chisago county, was in the city yesterday to attend the banner presentation of Duluth camp, No. 2241, Modern Woodmen of America, of which organization he is a state officer. Mr. Stark is a member of the legislature from the Thirty-second district, which includes Pine, Chisago and Kanabec counties. Mr. Stark's own county is not in the Duluth congressional district, but Pien and aKnabec counties are included in the district of which Duluth is the capital.

"Sentiment is very much J. Adam Bede down our way," said Mr. Stark last night. "He is very strong in Pine and Kanabec counties, and I hardly see how he could be shaken loose from his strong position, no matter who runs against him now. He has a wide acquaintance and is very popular among the people, and that is what counts in the primary election. Yes, Mr. Bede's position is solid, and I think he will be the next congressman from your district.

"I am particularly interested in Capt. Van Sant. If they want to keep me in the Republican party, they will have to renominate him for governor. There is no criticism to be made of his administration. He has made an excellent governor in every way, and he is entitled to renomination and election.

"The state auditorship fight has not stirred us very much yet down our way, and I have heard very little discussion of it. If the primary election system applied to state affairs I believe Jacobson would be nominated hands down, but—" And Mr. Stark's expressive pause indicated that he did not see a great deal of hope for him in the situation.

IF YOU NEED A STOVE

--- OR ---

we want you to call and see the many different styles and sizes of the IOWA. There are many good reasons for preferring this Range to others on the market.

It has all the good points---Pouch Feed, Poker Door, Sectional Top heavy steel plate, protected with asbestos board—and then our price is right. When you can buy a No. 8-15 complete with warming closet for $29 cash, or by paying $5.00 down and the balance in payments of $1.25, you surely can afford to get rid of your old stove that has been so much bother, and, besides, if your old stove is worth anything at all we will take it in part payment on the new Range.

Always remember that buying from us you run no risk, for we absolutely guarantee to give satisfaction; if not, your money will be refunded.

Will you not at least call and see us.

JUSTICE IN SAIL

Performs Marriage Ceremony For a Female Inmate.

Birmingham, Ala., May 9.—Mrs. Lula Underwood was married in the Jefferson county jail here to Thomas Morgan. The marriage was performed by R. D. Coffman, the Ohioan, who is a justice of the peace, and is confined in the jail for the killing of Rev. J. W. Bradford, a Methodist minister, last December. The bride was an inmate of the jail on a charge of abusive language, but after the marriage was released on her own recognizance.

The wardens were attendants at the ceremonies, while the white prisoners were witnesses through the heavy barred doors. There was some doubt at first as to the legality of a marriage performed by Coffman, he being under arrest, but having not resigned or been removed from office, his ceremony was declared legal.

"Five years ago dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes George S. Marsh, Nocona, Tex. "I took quantities of medicine but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. Dieting is unnecessary. After a few bottles I am sound and well." Kodol digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble. Max Wirth.

WOULD NOT MARRY.

Bank Clerk Goes Home a Single Man.

Hamilton, Ohio, May 9.—David Pangle, a bank clerk, of Belmont, Ohio, came to Hamilton to meet a fair young widow with whom he has been corresponding for the past year through the agency of a Toledo (Ohio) matrimonial bureau with marriage in view. The trysting place was the Southern Ohio depot, at 7 p. m., and David was to recognize his correspondent by her carrying a book in her left arm. She was there, but David failed to recognize her from the photographs she had sent him.

Later he traced her in a cab and found the widow at home with her children. David thought there was only two from the letters he had received, but there were several more, and the surroundings at the widow's home did not come up to his dream of wedded bliss. David leaves early in the morning for home, a saidder, but wiser, man, bemoaning the expenditure of about $50.

Mr. Pangle, in a misguided moment, unwittingly told his troubles to a reporter. The widow in question is a most estimable resident of Hamilton.

GREATEST BUREAU

Six Million Farmers Profit By the Various Publications.

Washington, May 9.—Uncle Sam has the greatest information bureau in the world. It is right here in Washington and 6,000,000 or more farmers, with the 2,500,000 of employes, profit by it.

This big bureau of intelligence—up-to-date intelligence at that—is the United States department of agriculture, which publishes and circulates more printed matter each year than any other branch of the government service. All of the bound and illustrated reading matter issued goes into thousands of homes and forms one of the most powerful educational factors in the life of the American people.

The United States has just passed through a wonderful intellectual awakening among the tillers of the soil, and much of the new bond of endeavor and thought has been instilled through the channels of official literature. At the department of agriculture is employed a corps of teachers, well trained instructors and other promoters of agricultural progress, who are working earnestly to raise the general standard of intelligence of the farming class, and to prepare information from the latest sources for their advancement.

In the performance of its duty to diffuse the information acquired through its several bureaus, divisions and offices, the main dependency is upon the issue and distribution of publications, of which George William Hill is chief editor and superintendent, has charge of the editing and distribution of this great volume of work. The documents issued are compiled only after the most careful reasearch and investigation. They represent almost every conceivable form of publication, from the one-page circular to the well-bound Year book, and are prepared in editions ranging from 1000 copies of the most technical treatise to 500,000 copies of the Year book. .

An aggregate of six tons of publications are forwarded daily from this division. The average is about 100,000 pounds each year for the 300 working days of the year. In the course of a year the aggregate is in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 pounds. Owing to the excellent system established this immense distribution is effected by a force of about 100 people, who are employed regularly during the year round.

This work of the publication division affords a fair reflex of the intelligence and activity of the investigating branches of the department. There were issued during the past year 606 separate publications, aggregating nearly 8,000,000 copies. Nearly 3,500,000 copies were farmers' bulletins, of which two-thirds, in round numbers, were distributed under congressional orders. With the increased appropriation and the accumulated copies, this year's supply of these bulletins will, under the present law, which assigns four-fifths, instead of two-thirds, to the use of congressmen, make the allowance of each senator, representative and delegate 15,000 copies.

A special building has been rented to be devoted exclusively to the storage and shipment of farmers' buletins, of which not less than 7,000,000 will have to be printed this year. The amount provided, however, for material and labor in their distribution is quite inadequate, and must be supplemented by a special appropriation, if the demands of congressmen are to be met.

Referring to the great demand for the Yearbook and the growth of the department, Secretary Wilson points out the inadequacy of the quota assigned the department. When the edition of this work was 200,000 copies, 30,000 were placed at the disposal of the department, the same as now, notwithstanding that the edition today is 500,000 copies.

"The demand for the publications of the department continues to be greatly in excess of its ability to supply," says the secretary. "Many of these—over 24,000 copies last year—were sold by the superintendent of public documents. This is almost three times as many as the sales made by that officer of the publications of all other departments of the government."

The department has no list of persons to whom all the publications are sent. The monthly-list calendar, issued on the first day of each month, is mailed regularly to all who may apply. The department also issues a complete lists of all publications of which the bureau has a supply for free distribution, and a similar list of all publications for sale by the superintendent of public documents. This monthly circular is ent regularly to about 150,000 persons throughout all sections of the United States who have previously been placed on the list, at their request, to receive it. It enumerates every publication issued during the current month, and indicates whether they may be obtained direct from the department or through members of congress.

In a number of instances second-hand dealers, in an effort to impress upon the government, have induced persons to make requests for particular documents. After the requests have been complied with, all of the books are gathered from the several recipients and placed on sale in the second-hand book stores. This practice, however, is not general, and an effort is always made to nip in the bud all schemes of this character.

Sometimes entire families will ask that a copy of the same document be sent to each member. Their wishes are seldom gratified. In other cases the list containing all the publications issued by the department is sent in, and request made for the whole lot. These ambitious persons are similarly dealt with, as the department realizes that no single individual can possibly be interested in every publication issued. As a further precautionary measure, a card index is compiled of all requisitions received, and notation made thereon when the document is forwarded, and to whom. This prevents duplication.

A number of the documents, notably the Yearbook and annual report of the bureau of animal industry, are forwarded by registered mail. This insures absolute delivery.

Through this branch of Uncle Sam's various educational facilities the American farmer is learning to take advantage of new discoveries in agriculture, and is becoming the foremost representative of the science in the world.

The intelligence bureau has been created, and the farmer is learning his lesson.

All that is latest and best in the science and art of forming comes to him fully, freely and promptly.

SENSATIONAL CHARGES

Made In Suit For Divorce and Alimony.

Elkins, W. Va., May 9.—The developments in the Goff divorce case here brings forth more sensational features than were at first anticipated, and both sides have added to the counsel employed. The later details rendered it one of the most peculiar cases on record, and recall the Freda Ward-Alice Mitchell affair.

Both parties to the suit are well connected. Goff is worth $100,000 inherited from his father, Claude Goff, now deceased, and at one time one of the best lawyers in these parts. Mrs. Goff was formerly Miss Schultz. She is beautiful and accomplished.

Goff married Miss Schultz last fall, and, as related in the testimony, from the very outset she was made to feel that Charley Kittle controlled the affections of her husband. During their short married life Mrs. Goff was ignored and at times insulted before their servants. Just prior to the marriage Goff deeded $33,000 to Kittle.

On one occasion, it was testified, Kittle found Mrs. Goff weeping, and in answer to his query as to the cause, told him that it was because of her husband's love for him. Mrs. Goff left her husband on or about Jan. 16, still remaining in Beverly. Shortly after this Goff, it is stated, went to Cumberland and was followed by Kittle. They are still there, and Goff has deposed that he shall remain there.

Counsel for Mrs. Goff asks for an absolute divorce and large alimony, that a receiver be appointed for the estate, and for $15,000 damages from Kittle.

STYLISH SPRING COSTUMES

Pretty Street Gown Trimmed With Applique Taffeta.

A very handsome street costume made of blue cloth is shown below. The blouse waist is tucked, with slightly overlapping front and opens over a chemisette of white chiffon. The blouse sleeve is also tucked and between the tucks is a trimming of applique taffeta of graduated size framed with crochet rings worked with dark blue Corticelli crochet silk. A similar garniture appears on the panel front of the skirt, the latter being completed with a corded flounce, and above the flounce at the sides are more lengthwise tucks.

Picturesque effects are the rule and are in evidence on all sides, and flowered silks, flowered mousselines and gorgeously flowered parasols greet the eye everywhere. In fancy, at least, the pages of fashion have turned backward to the flower designs once so much in vogue. On the whole the trend of dress at the moment is toward greater elegance reaching out in all directions. The dainty mousselines in small patterns with wide and narrow borders of large flowers are in great demand.

A DOUBLE FUNERAL.

Mrs. Grier's Body Kept Until Husband Died.

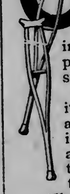
Wheeling, W. Va., May 9.—One of the most prominent and wealthy citizens of Wheeling, Jaco R. Grier, whose identification with the commercial progress of the city has ranged through many years, died recently in Pasadena, Cal., and his body was brought here for interment. Tuesday, instead of one hearse preceding the mourners and friends to Greenwood cemetery, there were two, the other containing the remains of the late Mrs. Grier, who also died in Pasadena some years ago, and whose body was not permitted at that time to be interred, through deference to the wishes of the husband.

Her remains were placed in a vault and there kept to await the death of Mr. Grier, who expressed a wish that she be buried at the same time with him. His wishes were gratified by his few remaining relatives, and they were laid side by side in their old home cemetery.

HOLDS UP A CONGRESSMAN.

"At the end of the campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had about utterly collapsed. It ing I had about utterly collapsed. It seemed that all the organs in my body were out of order, but three bottles of Electric Bitters, made me all right. It's the best all-round medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter." Over-worked, run-down men and weak, sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by W. A. Abbett.

CRUTCH-BOUND



The crutch is a poor substitute for legs, and affords a very inconvenient and tiresome mode of locomotion—there is no more pathetic sight than a person slowly and painfully moving along the street supported by these artificial limbs.

When Rheumatism settles in the bones and muscles of the legs, it is safe to predict that the victim will eventually become helpless and crutch-bound. The corrosive, irritating matter that is deposited in the joints and muscles causes the most intense pain, the knees and ankles swell, and when the natural oils and fluids that lubricate these parts are completely destroyed the joints become locked and the muscles drawn and stiff, and crutches a necessity.

The acid poisons that produce rheumatic pains form in the blood, and are distributed through the system, and lodged in the arms, shoulders, hands, back and feet, or other parts of the body—resulting often in total disability. A permanent cure of Rheumatism can be effected only by a complete cleansing of the blood, and no other remedy so surely accomplishes this as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acid effects, purifies and invigorates the stagnant blood, and the gritty particles are washed out or dislodged by the new rich blood, and relief comes to the pain-racked sufferer. S. S. S. leaves no morbid, irritating matter in the blood to reunite and produce another attack, but expels every atom of it from the system. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, and does not impair the digestion or general health like alkali or potash remedies.

BRITONS WRATHY

Indignant at Recent Denials of English Participants.

Even the King Has Expressed a Strong Disapproval.

London, May 9.—Distrust and resentment are the keynotes to the comments of all the afternoon newspapers here on the shipping combine agreements. They all refer wrathfully to the recent denials of Messrs. Ismay and Pirie, respectively of the White Star line, and Harland & Wolff now proves to have been absolutely true.

The Westminster Gazette, referring to "diplomatic untruths," expresses the hope that "we shall be spared this peculiar development, which in America accompanies these great trust movements."

No one attempts to claim that any vestige of control of the lines concerned remains in British hands. "The dollar god," says the St. James Gazette, "has eaten up the better part of the British Atlantic carrying trade, and the only 'community of interest' existing is the same that existed between the lady of Riga and her mount at the end of their joint excursion. No doubt the smile on the face of the Yankee tiger is an extremely broad one. If anything is expectable from the board of trade under the present management, it might be hoped that the use of the British flag to cover ships which are British only in name would be refused, and the vessels be placed in the position of pirates."

Dealing with Harland & Wolff's position, the St. James Gazette says it considers that "when the building is transferred to the United States yards, as is inevitable as soon as the fostering care of the steel trust has sufficiently enlarged American shipbuilding resources, Harland & Wolff will have no alternative but to cross the Atlantic."

The Pall Mall Gazette finds that the combine is "grossly over-capitalized," and says: "This was a foregone conclusion, from Mr. Morgan's record. He does not deal in little things, and is not content with small profits. The huge capitalization is out of all proportion to the real value of the fleets, and it is clear that a substantial advance in freights will have to be made in order to pay dividends."

The Associated Press learns that King Edward has expressed to a friend his strong disapproval of the combine, on patriotic grounds.

Baltimore, May 9.—William Pinkney, of Sunderland, England, who is managing director of the Neptune line of steamers, from Baltimore to Rotterdam, Amsterdam, and who is now in this city, said today that the Morgan steamship syndicate has bought the Cunard line. Mr. Pinkney's line was made an offer for its ships, but refused to sell at the price offered. Since that time he has been in close touch with the operations of the Morgan syndicate, and he states positively that the Cunard line has been absorbed, and that his information is such as may be relied upon.

The Neptune line is still open to the offers of the Morgan syndicate, according to Mr. Pinkney. He says the nine steamships owned by the company can be bought for the same price that was paid for the Leyland line. The Neptune line has recently sold one of its fastest ships, the Morena, to the Austrian government, to be used in Japanese waters.

CHANGE OF LOCATION.

Famous Shoe Store Has Fine New Stand.

The Famous shoe store is now in the new location, 113 West Superior street, two doors west of its former stand. The change was made necessary by the demand for more room as the growth of The Famous has been phenomenal. Starting in a modest way but with a stock of footwear of only the best qualities, and rigidly adhering to the low price system, a patronage has been built up that has been the wonder of the shoe trade. The policy of the old store will be continued at the new stand with the largest stocks of shoes for men, women and children in the city. Every facility known for a modern shoe store has been added and with a largely increased force of clerks the best of service will be given the trade at the Famous.

THEY GO OUT.

Clyde Iron Works Machinists Out on Sympathetic Strike.

The machinists employed at the Clyde Iron Works are on a strike in sympathy with the molders, who have been out since May 1.

The working force includes over half the membership of the union. At the National Iron Works this morning, the machinists announced that they would follow the example of the Clyde force, if any effort was made to introduce non-union castings.

The trouble seems to have originated from a small non-union foundry that has started up on Garfield avenue since the molders' strike began.

The machinists will not work with the castings made in this "scab" shop.

The indications are that unless a settlement in the molders' strike is not soon settled many thousand dollars' worth of stock will be tied up in the local shops. It will also tie up a number of important repairs to vessels in the harbor.

Two new labor unions were organized last night. The first was the team drivers and the second the team owners.

The meetings were well attended despite the fact that a typographical error announced the call of the meeting for 20 East Superior street, instead of 320 East Superior street.

J. W. Richardson, Henry Perault, William Moran and Victor Johnson, of the organization committee of the Federated Trades' assembly, were in charge of the meeting and they did good work in organizing two unions where only one was expected.

It was found that the drivers that did not own teams and the drivers that did own teams were pretty evenly divided in the meeting and both sides desired to organize.

With an eye to business the committee quickly saw the advantage of two unions where one had been intended and worked accordingly.

The drivers' union will hold a meeting at 320 East Superior street at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon for the purpose of completing the organization.

The team owners' union will meet at 320 East Superior street next Monday evening at 8 o'clock for the same purpose.

There was a meeting of the Building Laborers' union last evening in Kalamazoo hall that was one of the largest union meetings ever held in the city. This union which was but recently organized, consists of 212 members. Twenty-six new members were taken in last night and forty-five more will be added at a meeting to be held on May 22.

NEAR-SIGHTED WOMAN

Was Lost on the Prairie Near Cheyenne.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 9.—Being nearsighted, Mrs. Andrew T. Clark, wife of a well known Cheyenne contractor, lost her way while walking on the prairie, near the city, Wednesday. She spent that night on the prairie and arrived yesterday evening at a ranch twenty miles north of the city exhausted, having been thirty hours without food. A troop of United States cavalry took part in the search for her today.

RUMOR NOT CREDITED

Report That Canadian Pacific Has Acquired Wisconsin Central.

Advantage of Such a Move Not Clear to Railroaders.

Omaha's Change In Time on the Twilight Limited.

The latest report about the Wisconsin Central is that it has been acquired by the Canadian Pacific railroad, in order to give the Canadian road an entrance into Chicago, presumably to counteract the Grand Trunk's facilities in that direction. Connection with the Canadian Pacific railroad could be obtained through the South Shore, which crosses the Wisconsin Central just below Ashland.

But this connection is swept away by a recent rumor that the Pennsylvania road has bought control of the South Shore. One report is given as much credit locally as the other. As far as the Wisconsin Central is concerned, it is generally understood that a controlling interest in its stock is held by a trusteeship for a term of years in order to prevent any other interest coming in and buying up control. This trusteeship is supposed to be in the interest of the Rockefeller-Abbott faction. Whether the trustee scheme has any purpose aside from simply maintaining control of a road in which those entering the compact have made large investments is not known.

A local railway man, in discussing the matter, was inclined to discredit the reported desire on the part of the Canadian Pacific railroad to obtain the Wisconsin Central. He said the Canadian Pacific railroad was very likely to confine its American investments to roads that would almost exclusively contribute to the through business of the parent system. The Wisconsin Central, he said, would make a very roundabout way for the Canadian Pacific railroad to get into Chicago, so roundabout that the connection would be of little use except for the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, which has paid little attention to Chicago traffic, and would be disposed to discriminate against it as long as there was any chance to route it via the international bridge.

THE CHANGE IN TIME.

Omaha's Twilight Limited Cut Effective Tomorrow.

Several errors have occurred in publications concerning the Omaha's change in time tomorrow. The Twilight limited, southbound, reduces its running time to St. Paul to five hours, leaving Duluth half an hour earlier—at 4 p. m.—and arriving in St. Paul an hour earlier—at 9 p. m.—in time for close connections with the express for Omaha. The Twilight will then make part of a through train service in connection with the overland limited for California.

The Omaha has been doing considerable Southwestern and Pacific coast business via the Twin Cities, Omaha and the Union Pacific railroad, and this train change will, it is believed, hasten the completion of better arrangements by other lines out of Duluth. It is intimated that the published report of the Burlington's intention to make immediate connections with the Great Northern and Northern Pacific for better Southwestern service has been hastened by the Omaha's large business.

Claim Rate Not Made.

The lake lines claim they are misrepresented by the rail lines as far as the Chicago lumber rate is concerned. They declare that they have made no rate on that traffic better than 10 cents to Chicago and Milwaukee. The rail lines claimed they cut the rate 5 cents from the former tariff of 12½ cents per hundred, and reduced their own tariff to 9 cents and then to 7½ cents in order to meet it.

CEREALS OR MEAT.

A Prepared Food Helps to Solve the Problem of Good Living.

PRICES OF MEAT GO UP.

"While the average housekeeper may be ignorant as to whether a beef trust has been formed, or whether the increase in the price of meat is due to other causes, if she is a woman of moderate means, she has become convinced that she must turn to something except animal food for the main fare of her family," says the Buffalo Express.

"It is not an entirely new thing, this advance in the price of meats, and it is even rumored that prices have not yet reached their limit, but certain it is that the cost of living for the average family has increased rapidly of late until meat has become an article of diet that must necessarily be eliminated from the daily fare of the very poor, and has become almost a luxury even to those who have a moderate and usually adequate amount to spend upon the family food.

"Today domestic science and public opinion have joined in teaching an important lesson to rich and poor alike, the necessity of consuming body building food, supplying material that will keep nerves, muscles, bones, flesh and brain in the proper condition, feeding into the human engine the fuel needed to make good the constant waste."

A food expert at Battle Creek, Mich., has produced a food especially intended to supply more nutriment than meat, fish or fowl, and that costs the consumer about one cent a meal. It is called "Grape-Nuts," and has more nourishment for the body and greater strength and vitality for the brain and nervous system, and is an economy that reduces the cost of housekeeping to the minimum and at the same time pleases the palate.

Grape-Nuts is a condensed food, and about four teaspoonfuls with cream is sufficient for the cereal part of a meal. It requires no cooking or preparation of any kind, and is ready for immediate use and suited to the laborer, athlete, brain worker, epicure and invalid.

One pound of Grape-Nuts contains more nourishment—that the system will absorb—than ten pounds of meat. An experiment was tried by a man who found that by leaving off meat altogether at breakfast and lunch and taking in its place four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts, he began to gain flesh and strength and before the full pound package was gone had gained four pounds in weight, whereas he had been losing on his meat diet.

Present conditions, therefore, regarding the price of meat, are solved to the family provider by supplying Grape-Nuts to the individuals of her household—a food that not only recommends itself by its economy and pleasant taste, but its ability to build up flabby muscles, restore color to the cheek, brightness to the eye and replace the daily loss occasioned by brain and nervous work.

A package of Grape-Nuts costs 15 cents and makes 14 meals. All grocers.

NEW PROBLEM

The city is confronted with a new problem in repairs for East First street.

Last year when it was decided to boulevard the street and make it one of the most handsome residence thoroughfares in the city, combination cement curbs and gutters were put in.

The gutters were laid according to the established grade of the street on record in the office of the city engineer. Now it is discovered that in many instances the gutters are as much as nine inches above the surface of the street.

The street is below the established grade for about ten blocks, and it is feared that with the gutters above street surface it will either mean a large expense in improving the street grade, or the destruction of the macadam surface by the heavy summer rains.

Log hauling on macadamized thoroughfares is also giving the city officers much anxiety. London road has been practically ruined as a driveway on account of the heavy logging traffic, and there is a possibility that an ordinance will be passed prohibiting heavy hauling on this road. Similar ordinances are in effect in other cities.

Log hauling on the Howard road this spring has caused damage to that thoroughfare estimated at $3000. There is also some talk of prohibiting the hauling of logs on this road during the spring months when the ground is soft.

AT WEST DULUTH

John Hays, a pioneer resident of Eau Claire, Wis., died suddenly last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward Hagerty, of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Raleigh street. He was 65 years of age and had been a resident of Eau Claire for the past thirty-five years. Mr. Hays came to West Duluth about a week ago to visit the family of his daughter, and has appeared to be in the best of health. He retired about 10:30 o'clock last evening and did not complain of feeling sick. This morning he was found dead in his bed. The decedent slept in the same room with his grandson, and when the latter got up at an early hour this morning he did not notice that anything was wrong. The grandfather had been accustomed to rise early, and Mrs. Hagerty thought it strange when he did not do so this morning. When she went to call him she found him lying dead on his side in the bed. There are no indications to show but that he passed away without a struggle from natural sleep into the sleep that knows no awakening.

Death is believed to have been caused by heart failure. Coroner Boyer will hold an inquest sometime during the day. The remains will be sent back to Eau Claire tomorrow morning or evening for the funeral and burial.

The decedent leaves three children, two daughters and a son. One of the daughters, Mrs. F. Partlow, resides in Eau Claire. Frank Hays, the son, left Eau Claire about two weeks ago for Oregon, where he expected to locate permanently.

STUCK IN THE STREET.

There was an incident on Central avenue yesterday afternoon that seems peculiar, yet which the business men declare is not surprising in the least. One of the sprinkling wagons sent out by the board of public works was stuck for over an hour in the ruts in the pavement of the avenue, between Bristol and Gosnold streets. The tank was nearly full of water, and when the wheels droped in two of the many ruts the horses were unable to pull it out. Finally a large crowd was attracted to the scene of trouble and a rescue party was formed that assisted in pulling the wagon to solid pavement again. It has been suggested that red flags be hung out by day over the dangerous places and the ruts be marked by night with red lamps.

DISCOVERED IN TIME.

The fire department was called out this morning to extinguish a blaze in the roof of the Central station, on Central avenue of the belt line railway to the top of the hill. The origin of the fire is unknown. The damage was very slight. The blaze was noticed by an incline conductor when it first started, otherwise the structure, which is built of rotary timber, and the viaduct, would probably have gone up in smoke in short order.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Unless all signs fail there will be a very interesting session of the West Duluth Commercial club this evening in regard to the street railway extension matter that has been so thoroughly discussed in the club and on the streets. The betting element is giving odds neither way the influence of the club is likely to be thrown.

Rumor is busy again with things probably in store with this part of the city. A few days ago a large party of Eastern men drove out from Duluth and visited all the bay shore property at this end of the city, also the old Ironton plant. Nothing is known of the purpose of the visit, but the people out here have hopes.

The White Stockings ball team is practicing daily for its next game with the Woodmen team, which will probably take place next Sunday.

E. T. Rose and family, of Manistique, Mich., are coming to West Duluth to reside. Mr. Rose will be employed at the Merrill & Ring mill.

Albert Mars and Clement Henry left this morning for Houghton, Mich., where they will be employed on the government contract of F. P. Tims. George Gulr has also gone to act as a foreman.

There are a tired and lame lot of West Duluthians today. The reason for it is that they had to walk home from the Woodmen's celebration at the Armory in the small hours of the morning. A six-mile walk at that time in the morning, after an evening spent in dancing, is a little more than ordinary exercise.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Benson, of 325 Sixtieth avenue west, are rejoicing over the advent into the family of a new girl.

R. Schell has purchased from H. H. Phelps the residence adjoining that now occupied by Mr. Phelps. The house is being overhauled and repaired and will make a desirable home.

so that preparations might be made for the final ceremonies.

Father Lavelle, rector of the cathedral, was celebrant of the 6 o'clock mass; Bishop McQuaid, of Rochester, senior bishop of the archdiocese, officiated at 6:30; at 7 Archbishop Ryan conducted the services; at 7:30 Father Serranti said the mass, and at 8 o'clock Bishop De Oca, of San Juan Potosi, Mexico, was the celebrant.

A wreath of Easter lilies, white roses and snowballs was received at the cathedral this morning from President Roosevelt. Another wreath received bore the name of John W. Mackay.

At the regular funeral services at 10:30. Archbishop Ryan preached the sermon, saying in part:

"Your eminence, venerable fathers of the episcopate and clergy, and dear brethren of the laity: How impressive in its eloquence of silence is this scene, and how salutory in its lessons. Behold before you today 'a great priest who in his day pleased God and found just.' Behold him, clothed in the vestments of his order, as he stood at the altar to offer sacrifice and prayer for you and yours. He preaches his last sermon from that funeral pulpit. But yesterday, I may say, re proclaimed the great conservative Christian truths, which alone can preserve socety from socialism and anarchy. Being dead, he yet speuketh in the eloquence of highest example.

"For two purposes are we here this morning—to honor the dead and pray for the dead. As the public journals have already given in detail the biography of the late archbishop, it is not necessary that I should repeat it. But the external actions of men are not adequate evidences of their real worth. It is the inner life of motive and purity of intention and disinterested sacrifice, that constitute the 'greatness of goodness.' The deceased prelate shrank from the world's ephemeral praises, his one great motive of action was to please God and benefit, not merely please, his fellow man. Here you find the secret of his love of solitude and communion with God.

"The man who acts and prays as the escetic at home will be the most successful churchman in public. The purity of motive of our beloved and holy deceased friend was also the key to his most laborious life. He worked for God and in His presence, and never thought he could do enough. I know from personal observation how extraordinary were his labors. He performed them not only with patience but with almost a boyish enthusiasm.

"Hence the fortitude of the deceased when circumstances called for its exercise. The three archbishops of this great see were types of different characteristic virtues. The Most Rev. John Hughes stands out as the most striking exemplification of courage, when courage was much needed. Cardinal McCloskey was distinguished for his marvelous prudence, by which he conquered without fighting. Archbishop Corrigan seemed to belong rather to the Cardinal McCloskey class of men, but when principle was involved he was as immovable as Archbishop Huges. His motto, 'Dominus petra mea'—'The Lord is my rock'—was first that of the meek but brave patriarch Moses. The archbishop himself was a rock—mossy and yielding on the surface, but beneath firm and immovable. He was brave with the courage of God, for whom alone he acted and suffered. His humility seemed to make him timid. I know, on the testimony of Cardinal McCoskey, that he did all in his power to prevent his name being sent to Rome for the dignity of archbishop of New York. He feared the awful responsibilities. So did some of the greatest bishops that ever lived, but when they had to accept the office they became the bravest.

"What, after all, is death to such a man as this? What, but a liberation, an illumination, a union. A liberation from most pressing duties and responsibilities; an illumination when the light of God's face shall shine upon him, and he will hold the solutions of the great problems of life, and the length and breadth and height and depth of God's live; and a union with the Divine original, after Whom he was formed."

NAN NING FU BOMBARDED.

Hong Kong, May 9.—Advices received here from Wu Chou say the rebels bombarded Nan Ning Fu for three hours, April 27, using modern field guns. From 300 to 400 of the inhabitants were killed. The rebels subsequently withdrew to the hills.

A little life may be sacrificed to a sudden attack of croup, if you don't have Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on hand for the emergency.

PROGRESSIVE.

A Business Which Has Grown Greatly From Small Beginning.

Three years ago the first of this month a small custom shoe shop was opened at 7 First avenue west, and in connection, the first shoe shining parlor in the city. Six months later a small stock of gents' shoes was put in, and the little store began to take on a very lively appearance. The proprietor was A. Newmon, whose trade has grown to such an extent that he will, in a few days, move into his fine, large store at 111 West Superior street.

Mr. Newmon has taken a partner with him in the business, and the firm will be known henceforth as Newmon & Co. A splendid new general stock of men's, women's and children's high-grade shoes will be carried, and a thoroughly up-to-date establishment conducted. There will be in connection a first-class repairing department, and a specialty will be made, as heretofore, of fine custom work, for which branch of the business an enviable reputation was built up at the old stand.

The shoe shining parlor will have six chairs, four for men and two for ladies, a feature which will undoubtedly meet with even a greater patronage than in the past. The parlor will be under the management of Professor Eugene Watts, assisted by a competent staff of artists.

The store has been entirely renovated and complete new fixtures installed, and will be as up-to-date as any establishment of the kind in the city. The work of getting everything in shape to commence business is going on as rapidly as possible, and an endeavor will be made to have it sufficiently advanced to enable the firm to open the store for tomorrow's business.

Gale Near the Sault Has Deferred Arrival of Boats.

Ore Carrying Roads Are Watching Delay With Much Anxiety.

Means Considerable to Them, Especially to Iron Range Road.

A fifty-mile northwest gale that has been blowing for several days in the Straits of Mackinaw, at the Soo and in the copper country is bunching lake vessels and interfering with the regularity of their dispatch. The blow is so serious that vessels are getting in shelter as rapidly as possible and staying there.

As a result ore handling roads are complaining a little of not getting enough vessels. The Iron Range shipments are showing the greatest effect of this scarcity. The other roads are doing pretty well considering the season. The Iron Range, however, aims to ship 6,000,000 tons this season, an increase of 1,000,000 tons over last year, and perhaps is watching the regularity of the vessel supply a little more anxiously on that account. This road can easily get down over its road and over its dock at least 1,000,000 tons of ore a month, if it is furnished to it and there are vessels to take it away. When it is recalled that last month's movement was about 450,000 tons and that the total shipments from all three dock systems here was less than 1,000,000 tons, the immensity of this capacity may be better realized.

The Iron Range's shipments from Two Harbors have fallen off pretty nearly one-third during the past few days. For a time they were running at the rate of about 800,000 tons a month. Now they are down to less than equal to 600,000 tons a month.

Neither the Duluth, Missabe & Northern nor the Eastern Minnnesota is complaining much of scarcity of tonnage, though both are rather looking for a little trouble in this direction if the tug strike continues. They are not so much alarmed about the situation in the local harbors as they are about the bunching that may be caused by the blockading of vessels in lower lake ports. Independent tugs can afford enough relief here with the more commodious channels to permit of fair dispatch being maintained. The narrow slips in other ports and absence of tugs employed at other times in rafting or timber work, however, make quite a different situation.

The Missabe is forwarding from 15 to 18 trainloads of ore a day to its dock. The trains are running a little light on account of unsettled track as yet over the rebuilt Burnett hill grade. The trains are running about two cars short of the normal 55 cars, or equal to about 1400 tons to the train, and to a daily movement of 20,000 to 22,000 tons. As soon as the track up this hill gets in better shape, the normal trainload will be resumed, and later, when larger engines are put on, the relief afforded will be felt greatly. This hill is a mile and a half long, rising toward the dock. It was not an abrupt incline, but the slow rise used to make it necessary for the trains to take a run to ascend it. In some places eight or nine feet rises have been taken out, and the normal trainloads can now be hauled up to the top without extraordinary effort.

The Missabe will receive three new 138-ton road engines in September, the first heavy road engines that have been put in service on that line. The engines will be of practically the same type as the two big engines now used up and down the big hill. They were ordered last year from the American Locomotive works and are being built at the Pittsburg works. It is expected that at that time at least a few trains a day will show a measurable gin in tonnage.

The Eastern Minnesota is increasing its ore shipments gradually every day. More than any other ore road, its increase in shipments this year will come during the latter part of the summer, owing to the fact that most of the new properties that will ship over that road have not yet begun sending ore forward. However, the Eastern is shipping at the rate of 400,000 to 600,000 tons a month.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Several Are Procured From the Inspector Today.

Business in the office of the building inspector took a spurt this morning. Samuel Loeb and S. L. Loeb took out a permit for their 4-story brick store building at the corner of Michigan street and Lake avenue. The preliminary estimate is $32,000.

John A. Stephenson, the well-known real estate man took out a permit for a handsome frame dwelling to be erected on the north side of First street between Nineteenth and Twentieth avenues east. The preliminary estimate is $8000.

The Hammond Packing company was given a permit for a $3500 cold storage plant in the new quarters on the south side of Michigan street between First and Second avenues west.

A. D. Thomson took out a permit for a brick barn to be erected on the south side of Second street between Fifth and Sixth avenues west, at an estimated cost of $2000.

FORMER MAYOR LEWIS.

Herbert Connor Preparing Portrait For City Hall.

Herbert Connor, a well known Minneapolis artist, who some years ago lived in Duluth, is engaged in painting a large portrait in oil of former Mayor Ray T. Lewis. The portrait will be presented to the city by Capt. Lewis for the purpose of adding to the collection of portraits of former city executives that now adorn the walls of the council chamber at the city hall. Capt. Lewis' gift will bring the collection down to date with the exception of a likeness of Former Mayor Truelsen, and it is said that Mr. Truelsen has been holding off in the belief that before long he would not be classed among the former mayors.

The portrait that Mr. Connor is painting of Capt. Lewis is of about the same dimensions as the others at the city hall. There seems to be an evident improvement, however, in that the artist is endeavoring to make a bolder picture, in view of the large andd public wall on which it will hang. Mr. Connor in the course of the extensive work he has done in this line in Little Rock and Minneapolis became convinced that it was a mistake to carry out the subdued or normal scheme of oil paintings. The pictures are hung at such height, in such light and at such distance as well as in the midst of other environment that it naturally diminishes the evident prominence and distinctness of the likeness. He believes the work he is now doing will make this view clear and emphasize its importance. The portrait of Former Mayor Lewis is painted ten years younger than the captain appears today, the ex-mayor believing that it should represent him as he then looked.

All those that have had the privilege of examining the painting pronounce it to be an admirable piece of work, not alone as a painting but as a life-likeness.

Mr. Connor is also doing some water color sketches of picturesque landscapes in the vicinity of Duluth.

REALLY SATISFACTORY,

States Bulletin Concerning Queen Wilhelmina.

The Hague, May 9.—At Castle Loo this morning the following bulletin was posted: "Queen Wilhemina had a quiet night, with no rise in temperature. She is taking sufficient nourishment and her condition really is satisfactory."

The fact that Queen Wilhelmina passed a good day yesterday is considered particularly encouraging and has had a very reassuring effect on the attending doctors and her majesty's surrounding the palace.

JUMPS THE TEAM.

Pitcher Wright Follows Example of Dummy Taylor.

Cleveland, May 9.—Pitcher Clarence E. Wright, of the Cleveland American League club, is said to have followed the example of "Dummy" Taylor and jumped the local team. At the office of the Cleveland Baseball club Wright is said to have left for Pittsburg late last night, where he will join the Brooklyn National League club today.

Wright signed contracts with both the Cleveland and Brooklyn for the present season.

NOT SERIOUS.

Ample Relief For the Famine In India.

New York, May 9.—In response to a cable message of inquiry sent by the Christian Herald to Lord Curzon, viceroy of India, relative to the reports that famine conditions are worse than ever before prevalent there, the viceroy has replied from Simla as follows:

"Government of India is greatly obliged for your suggestion, but they do not at present stand in any need of assistance. People are not in state of serious distress. Ample relief is being given and government resources, supplemented by existing private funds are fully equal to the strain."

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY— It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

SAFE— As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP— By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

MINING LEASES

John B. Adams' Sale to Eastern Minnesota Interests Closed.

Consolidated Iron Mine Transfers Several Mines to Oliver Company.

The Rouchleau-Ray Iron Land company and Robert B. Whiteside have leased 120 acres in section 15, 58-19, to Louis W. Hill. The lease was filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. Considerable work has been done on the property, and the showing made is very fair. The royalty is 25 cents. The lease requires the lessee to put out 16,667 tons this year and 50,000 tons annually thereafter. Mr. Whiteside owns a quarter of the property, and the Rouchleau-Ray company the balance. The property is the se¼ of the ne¼ and the s½ of the nw¼ of section 15.

Leases of the sw¼ of section 27, 58-20, from the George A. and John S. Pillsbury estates and Longyear & Bennett to John B. Adams, and assignments of the leases to Louis W. Hill, were also filed this morning. This deal was published by The Herald some time ago. The leases, two in number, each cover half of the quarter-section, and they run fifty years at a royalty of 25 cents a ton. The royalties are to amount to a rent of at least $25,000 a year. By the assignments L. W. Hill, the new lessee, is required to pay the old one 10 cents royalty per ton, which royalties are to amount to at least $5000 a year. W. J. Olcott has a half interest with John B. Adams in the deal.

The Lake Superior Consolidated Iron Mines has given new leases to the Oliver Iron Mining company on the Ohio, Mountain Iron and Missabe Mountain mines, and the old ones have been surrendered. The minimum output in the new leases is very small. On the Ohio and Mountain Iron properties it is 10,000 tons a year, and on the Missabe Mountain it is 5000 tons a year. The royalty is 50 cents on the Ohio and 25 cents on the other two.

At the general offices of the Oliver Iron Mining company today it was explained that the leases referred to were given to simplify bookkeeping. The Oliver company has held leases on the properties referred to almost since its formation, which explains the small minimum.

OWENS IS LIABLE

For the Money He Deposited In Marine Bank.

Supreme Court Reverses Decision of the District Court.

Result of An Appeal Made By Northern Pacific.

St. Paul, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Owens, former clerk of courts in St. Louis county, is out $690 by reason of having deposited in the Marine National bank, of Duluth, $2789.75 belonging to the Northern Pacific Railroad company. The money had been deposited in the hands of the court pending a decision in condemnation proceedings. Owens deposited it in the bank without an order from the court, and the bank failed. The court subsequently decided that $2000 of the money should be returned to the road. The bank paid only $1310, and the Northern Pacific company brought suit against Owens and his bondsmen, D. T. Adams and R. T. Owens, to recover the balance of the $2000. The St. Louis county court decided that Owens was not liable. The Northern Pacific appealed, and the decision is reversed by the supreme court. The decision is by Chief Justice Start, who says:

"Where a statute, either in direct terms or from its general tenor, imposes the duty upon a public officer to pay over moneys received and held by him in his official capacity, the obligation thus imposed is an absolute one, unless it is limited by the statute imposing the duty or by the conditions of his official bond. In respect to such liability there is no distinction between public and private funds."

Among the other decisions were these:

William Kelse, appellant, vs. Oscar Youngreen, respondent, St. Louis county. Affirmed. Lewis, J.

August Lindgreen, respondent, vs. Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad company, appellant, Sibley county. Affirmed. Collins, J.

GETTING AWAY.

Lumber Boats Are Clearing Rapidly As Possible.

"The vessel situation," said Capt. Weeks, of the Lumber Carriers' association, today, "is beginning to ease up again, but there is prospect of trouble ahead due to the tug strike.

"At the close of the longshoremen's strike there were thirty-eight lumber carriers here waiting to be loaded. By Saturday evening twenty-five of these will have left the harbor with their cargoes. Another fleet is on the way up here, and when the boats arrive they will be loaded under the general agreement between the vesselmen and the longshoremen, that is, union men will be employed so far as possible, and if there are not enough to load the boats, the vesselmen will hire non-union men.

"All of the thirty-eight boats that were tied up here, by terms of the agreement were loaded with union labor alone.

"The movement of the vessels has been quite lively, however, and barring serious delays by the tug strike, matters should straighten themselves out in pretty good shape in the next few weeks."

Team Drivers

Desiring to join union will meet Sunday 2 p. m., at No. 320 East Superior street, with Trades Assembly committee.

EARLY DATE.

A Guthrie to Complete Kinney-Hawkins Spur July 15.

A. Guthrie, the railway construction contractor, was in the city today on his way back from a trip to the Mesaba range. Mr. Guthrie handles most of the railroad construction work for the Hill system of roads.

He has just been awarded a contract for building a spur track to the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby mine. This is one of the longest spurs to a single mine that have been built recently on the range. It will be ten miles long, and will be an extension of the spur of the Eastern Minnesota that now runs to the Stevenson mine.

Some little doubt has been expressed as to whether this great property, which is considered the third greatest open pit proposition in the world, would be a shipper by Sept. 1, the date that is set for it, indeed, some have ventured the belief that the mine would not ship ore this current season.

Mr. Guthrie said today that he expected to have the spur to the mine completed between July 15 and Aug. 1, and it was this part of the preparatory work that the pessimistic crowd gave as its opinion for thinking the mine would not ship this year.

TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Great Eastern Will Celebrate It Tomorrow.

Tomorrow the Great Eastern store will celebrate its sixteenth aniversary by inaugurating a big anniversary sale of men's and boys' suits and furnishings.

Sixteen years ago the store was started in a modest way on one floor 25 by 75 feet, and so steadily has the business grown by fair dealings with its patrons that at the present time there are three floors, each 50 by 140, and, of a necessity, other floors are to be added.

The Great Eastern store is in the front rank of the Northwest business places because of the up-to-date methods of its management. New departments have been added as the business has grown, the last one being the shoe department for women, which was established last year and which has been a success from the very start.

DELEGATE ILL.

Smith of Arizona Threatened With Apoplectic Attack.

Washington, May 9.—Delegate Marcus A. Smith, of Arizona, was taken ill on the floor of the house today at the close of a brief but violent speech on the statehood bill, in which he is deeply interested. Three members who are physicians, Messrs. Wilson, Howard and Ball, attended him and for a time they feared that serious results might follow. He had been threatened with an apoplectic attack.

Mr. Smith suffered a slight secondary attack about half an hour after the first attack, but it was less serious than the first.

NOT ONE ESCAPED

The Disaster at St. Pierre Was Most Appalling.

Men From Suchet Were Unable to Penetrate City.

Much Damage Was Done On the Neighboring Islands.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 9.—9:30 a. m.—The French cruiser Suchet arrived at Pointe-a-Pitre island of Guadaloupe, French West Indies, from Fort de France, island of Martinique, this morning bringing several refugees. She confirmed the report that the town of St. Pierre, Martinique, was entirely destroyed at 8 o'clock on Thursday morning by a volcanic eruption.

It is supposed that most of the inhabitants of St. Pierre were killed, that the neighboring parishes were laid waste and that the residue of the population of St. Pierre is without food or shelter. The British royal mail steamer Esk, which arrived at St. Lucia this morning, reports having passed St. Pierre last night. The steamer was covered with ashes, though she was five miles distant from the town, which was in impenetrable darkness. A boat was sent in as near as possible to shore, but not a living soul was seen ashore, only flames.

The commander of the Suchet deports that at 1 o'clock on Thursday the entire town of St. Pierre was wrapped in flames. He endeavored to save about thirty persons more or less burned, from the vessels in the harbor. His officers went ashore in small boats seeking for survivors, but were unable to penetrate the town. They saw heaps of bodies upon the wharves and it is believed that not a single person in St. Pierre at the moment of the catastrophe escaped. The governor of the colony and his staff colonel and wife were in St. Pierre and probably perished. The extent of the catastrophe cannot be imagined. The captain of the British steamer Roddam was very seriously injured, and is in the hospital at St. Lucia. All his officers and engineers were dead or dying. Nearly all the crew is dead. Supercargo Campbell and ten of the crew of the Roddam jumped overboard at St. Pierre and were lost.

London, May 9.—6:25 p. m.—At this hour London is cut off from communication with the island of Martinique. The cable companies have received nothing except vague messages saying the cable is interrupted owing to the volcanic eruption.

The colonial office is without word from Martinique except that a grave disaster, the extent of which is not mentioned, has occurred and the rest is a repetition of the steamer Doddam's news. The belief now exists that the British West Indian islands of Rominica and St. Vincent have also suffered severely. All messages to these islands are sent at sender's risk and no cipher dispatches are accepted. It is expected that possibly news will reach England tonight through steamers arriving at ports in other West Indian Islands.

Paris, May 9.—The commander of the French cruiser Suchet, now at Fort De France, has been ordered to return to St. Pierre Martinique with all the speed possible and to forward details of the disaster to the French government. He cannot, however, be heard from for twenty-four hours, as the Suchet has gone to the Island of Guadaloupe in order to obtain provisions.

It is feared that M. Lemoutel, the governor of Martinique, has perished. He telegraphed May 7 that he was preparing to leave. Senator Knight is also supposed to have been at Pierre.

Kingston, Jam., May 9.—All the islands in the neighborhood of Martinique are isolated, apparently by an earthquake. Cable communication with St. Vincent, Barbadoes, Grenada, Trinidad, Demerara and St. Lucia is interrupted. Fears are entertained for the safety of the cable repair steamer Grappler which was at Martinique prior to the disaster.

NEW STATES.

Omnibus Statehood Bill Is Passed By the House.

Washington, May 9.—The house resumed consideration of the omnibus statehood bill immediately after reading of the journal today. The pending amendment was that of Mr. Overstreet (Ind.), to consolidate New Mexico and Arizona and admit them as the state of Montezuma or such other name as the constitutional convention should elect.

The opposition to the bill had united upon this amendment and had decided to make a determined effort to adopt it. Mr. Overstreet made a vigorous speech in support of it arguing that its purpose was to benefit the people of the two territories. The amendment was defeated, 28 to 108.

The omnibus bill for the admission of Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma as states then passed without division.

WHICH WAS ED?

At the outset of his career Senator Edward O. Wolcott, of Colorado, established a law and real estate office in Georgetown, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Being in partnership with a member of his family, a sign reading thus, was duly swung to the breezes. Business was bad, however, and "Ed" decided to move to a neighboring locality where silver had been found and where the general prospect was improving daily. So he bought a donkey, and, packing his belongings on its back, started for his new field. He took with him the firm's sign, thinking that with a little fresh paint and some erasures it might be made to do duty all over again. When he reached his destination a group of miners gathered to welcome him. For a moment no one spoke, and then one grizzled veteran drawled, "Say, young feller, which of you all is Ed?"

WHEAT IS VERY DULL

Unusually Cold Weather In Northwest and Middle States.

Flax Trading Was Quiet and the Market Strong.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 9.—The wheat market ruled fairly strong with light trading this morning, but prices kept within a narrow range. The chief factor was the unusually cold weather in the Northwest and the Middle states, with some rain in the former and continued dry weather in the Southwest. The cables were higher but very little notice was paid to them, the weather conditions claiming attention almost exclusively. The Argentine shipments were 642,000 bus for the week against 1,017,000 bus last year. Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 248,000 bus, last year 358,000 bus. Shipments 286,000 bus, last year 325,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 179,500 bus. Bradstreet reported clearances of wheat and flour for the week of 3,392,000 bus, against 3,308,000 bus last week and 4,178,000 bus last year. New York reported 18 loads of wheat worked for export.

Duluth stocks of spot wheat estimated to decrease 325,000 bus this week and Minneapolis stocks 500,000 bus.

Corn in the Chicago market advanced ¾@¾c and oats the same amount. Primary receipts of corn were 242,000 bus, last year 461,0 bus. Shipments 348,000 bus, last year 841,000 bus. Clearances were 24,-no Argentine shipments of corn were 736,000 bus, last year 1,000,000 bus.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was very light and the range very narrow. The market opened ⅜c up at 75¾c and cold up to 76-⅛c, falling again to 75¾c and closing there. Chicago also advanced ⅜c and Minneapolis ¼c.

Cash sales were 5000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and 4c under for No. 3.

Flax was very quiet and stronger, cash seed advancing ½c, September 1c and October 1½c. Rye was up ½c and cash oats ⅜c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern 75¾c; No. 2 northern, 73¾c; No. 3 spring, 70@72c; No. 2 red, 73¾c; No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 75¾c; May, 75¾c; July, 75¾c; September, 73¾c. Manitoba, No. 1 northern, cash, 74¾c; No. 2 northern, 72¾c. Oats, cash, 44½c; September, 39c. Rye, 55½c. Flax, cash, $1.05¾; to arrive, $1.05¾; May, $1.04¾; September, $1.47; October, $1.43¾. Corn, 59c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Abnormally Cold Weather Strengthened Grain Market.

Chicago, May 9.—Abnormally cold weather in the Middle and Northwestern states tended to strengthen grains at the opening today. July wheat started unchanged to ⅛c higher at 74⅝c to 74¾c and easily advanced to 75c. Cables were higher, but not responsively so, and little attention was paid to them. There was additional rain, however, in the Northwest and what with reported freezes there and dryness in the Southwest the feeling was bullish. Pit trading was light and there was some small liquidation that brought a later dip, but July held fairly well around 74⅞c. Local receipts were 51 cars, 2 of contract grade; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 153 cars, making a total of the three points of 204 cars, against 292 last week and 233 a year ago. Argentine shipments were 642,000 bu for the week against 1,062,-, bu last week.

Wheat continued to fluctuate narrowly. Traders in general were waiting for tomorrow's crop report. July closed firm ⅝c higher at 74¾c.

Early business in corn was light, although on small receipts and cold weather prices strengthened somewhat. There was a fair number of buying orders executed and holders showed little disposition to sell. July opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c higher at 61⅝c to 61¾c, advanced to 61⅞@⅞c and steadied later around 61¾c. Receipts were 76 cars.

Trade in corn the last part of the session was quiet yet with a firm tone. July closing ⅛@⅜c higher at 61⅜c.

Oats showed improvement on the influence of the cold weather and the better tone in corn and wheat. September was sold early, but July was taken on freely and better prices resulted. July started ¼c higher at 30¾c and sold to 30⅝@30¾c. Receipts, 155 cars.

Provisions were quiet early, but on the firm prices at the yards and packers' support, advances were recorded. Offerings were free and checked and marked early increases. July pork opened unchanged to 5c up at $17.25 to $17.30; July lard, 2½c to 5c up at $10.25 to $10.27½ and July ribs 2½c higher at $9.67½.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was very quiet and steady. The cash situation seems unchanged and this, together with the approaching government report due tomorrow afternoon, made a less enthusiastic short side. There has not been much pressure on the market of late. The weather everywhere is favorable for the growing crop and for seeding in the Northwest. There is no material change in the advices we get from the Kansas situation, although general conditions are no doubt improved by the recent rains. The Modern Miller says the crop promises much better than a few weeks ago. Abandoned acreage is considerable, but it is offset to a large extent by the increase in acreage planted.

The Michigan crop report gives a condition of 82 against 85 last month and 78 last year. The government report tomorrow is expected to reduce its estimate on the condition. It will give the condition and acreage of wheat and rye, but nothing else.

Modern Miller: Drought conditions have been relieved in about all sections of the winter wheat belt, good rains having fallen in Kansas and Texas and moisture was most needed and the damage was most severe. There has been a general improvement in the condition of the crop, and the prospects are much better than a week ago. While the acreage abandoned is considerable, this to a large extent is offset by the increase in area seeded.

A. H. Farnum, Chicago: We have had a representative traveling through Kansas the past ten days. He did the same thing a month ago. We selected him for this purpose in whom we had entire confidence. His report is that Kansas won't raise over 40,000,000 bus wheat. Wheat is moving out from here freely. Excellent demand for cash wheat. Speculation light.

Corn: The bearish feeling in corn here which is based on the claim of largely increased receipts later. Many of the claims are so absurd that they are not believed by those that advance them. With planting done, there will be a moderate increase. If there shouldn't be, corn would sell up to a price that would stop consumption.

Oats: The oats that are being delivered on May contract are meeting with a fair demand. The people who are receiving the mill will lose no opportunity to sell them to consumers here or abroad. This feature will be a help to the price of July oats.

C. M. Boynton from Creston, Iowa: After spending ten days in the winter wheat belt in Kansas, going over some of the poorest counties twice and making estimates based on last year's crop, I am compelled to say that my figures only show the condition of the wheat in that state to be about 40. I have endeavored to deduct, in making those figures, the decrease in the area, and if I am at all close in estimate, this would indicate a crop of about 37,000,000 bus. A great deal of the area is being plowed up every day, and probably will be for two weeks to come, so in comparing my estimate with the government's or others, it will be well to remember that there is a big decrease in the area from last year. As I have written you before, the wheat is very short, about 7 or 8 inches high, poor color in most counties, and very thin. There are probably a half dozen of these big counties that will not raise more than enough for feed and seed. The decline in conditions has been sensational in some counties. Take for instance, Dickinson, Ottawa, Cloud, Mitchell and Osborne. At first these counties looked good for three-quarters of a crop; today they will raise from nothing to one-third of a crop. The wheat is simply burned down, and I believe no amount of rain will bring it to life again. These figures may look low to you, and may be low, but unless the weather is exceedingly favorable I would rather expect the crop to be under than over these figures. As I came North to the Nebraska line the wheat began to grow better, and all along up the Burlington road from Wyoming to Lincoln it looked very well, indeed. Some few fields show the effects of the heat and drouth, but I think with plenty of rain their damage will be very slight if any. Oats were not looking as well as usual at this season of the year in Nebraska or Kansas.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Broad of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, May 9.—Trade in wheat was very light today and mostly all of a local professional character. The market ruled quiet within a narrow range and closed May ¼d lower, July and December ⅛c, and September unchanged. Foreign markets generally quiet, Liverpool unchanged to ¼d higher for the day. Continental markets were quiet. Cash demand was very quiet with very low bids in the market. The seaboard reported a similar state of affairs there. There was no special feature to the market today beyond the disposition to even up pending the government report. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 20 cars.

Trade in corn was light today and mostly of a local professional character. The local crowd was inclined to be bullish, while there was not much pressure to sell. The close was steady, July ¼c, September ⅝c higher than last night. Foreign markets were quiet. Liverpool closed ¼d lower for the day. Country offerings were moderate and demand rather quiet, although a sale of 20,000 bus was reported to go East. The weather continues favorable and as soon as farmers are finished planting we look for freer movement to market. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 90 cars.

Trade in oats was light today and there was no special change to the market beyond covering of May shorts. July and September closed steady, ¼c to ⅜c over last night. Country offerings were somewhat larger, cash demand fairly good. The weather generally favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 150 cars.

Provisions opened firm on higher hogs and later became very strong on vigorous buying by brokers of near futures of every thing and closed with heavy trade nearly at best prices of the day and at highest prices of the season. Outsiders are being attracted to the market but as yet are doing little except scalping. The best men in the trade expect large increase in hog receipts the last half of this month and it is believed smaller packers were selling today while the leading ones bought. It is perfectly easy to advance the market as the crowd all have been buying for and "short" of extreme prices are freely distributed. It is a controlled market and opinions are valueless. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 16,000.

Best In America.

Nowhere in America is the passenger service, generally, any better than between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The Pioneer line between those points is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

Its trains are the most frequent, the best patronized, and made up of high-class modern equipment.

Its Pioneer Limited is the famous train of the world, and carries private compartment sleeping cars that are models of comfort. Dining car service the finest.

WEAKNESS IN STOCKS

The Market Was Intensely Dull Throughout the Session.

Delaware & Hudson Was Rushed Up But Declined Again.

Tennessee Coal & Iron Knocked Down But Partly Recovered.

New York, May 9.—There were large opening dealings in a few stocks but the general list was rather dull and irregular. A sale of 2000 shares of Union Pacific was made at 105¼ to 105½, compared with 104⅞ last night. There were gains of 1 to 2 points in Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson, Chicago & St. Louis preferred and Metropolitan Street Railway. New York Air Brake rose 3. Northwestern dropped 3¼ and there were other fractional declines. The coalers were firm.

Price movements become more irregular and the fluctuations were wider, Louisville and St. Paul were quite heavy, the latter losing its rise. The coalers held firm while the Pacifics and trac tions were feverish. Amalgamated gained 1⅝ and Manhattan advanced 6 points on Northwestern lost 2¾ and partly recovered.

Prices declined quite sharply in spots on very small offerings. The general tendency was downward but there were a few conspicuous exceptions. Louisville, St. Paul, Chicago Great Western, Rock Island, Illinois Central and Kansas City Southern declined a point or more from the best. Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis preferred advanced 6 points on one transaction, United States Express improved 2¼ and Pacific Coast 2nd preferred, Lake Erie & Western, Colorado & Southern second preferred and Amalgamated Copper each 1 point. Louisville made a full recovery later and there was a sharp rally in Delaware & Hudson and the general market steadied all around. Bonds were easier.

Chicago Great Western and Wisconsin Central stocks and Des Moines and Fort Dodge rose a point and Delaware & Hudson was lifted 2¾ to the best of the morning. Chicago & Eastern Illinois fell 4, Northwestern extended its decline to 3⅝, General Electric lost 2 and Canadian Pacific and Iowa Central preferred a point. The general market was very dull and sluggish. Delaware & Hudson moved up 5½ to 184 before profit taking had any effect. The decline to 180 brought new buying orders and it rose to 184¾. Wheeling & Lake Erie stock showed some activity and were a point better, but Louisville & Nashville, St. Lawrence & Adirondack and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis sagged 1@1½. Other stocks were lifeless and the market virtually at a standstill.

Except of a rise of a point in Western Union and of 1½ in Fort Wayne and Denver City stamped, the market was reactionary and very dull. Delaware & Hudson receded 2¾. Tennessee Coal, New York Air Brake, Pacific Coast and Detroit Southern preferred fell 2 under last night. General Electric and Westinghouse Electric 2 and St. Louis & San Francisco a point. There were reactions of a point from the best in Chicago Great Western, Des Moines & Fort Dodge, Amalgamated, North American, Metropolitan and Snuff. The market continued intensely dull and closed weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

S. B. Dickinson to W. H. Laidley & Co.—The announcement that Henry Ives & Co. will be able to meet all obligations may be taken as an indication that the situation is clearing. We are told that assistance to the extent of $500,000 has been furnished to those caught in the crash last week. There is every prospect of satisfactory settlement all around.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.—While opinions on the anthracite strike question tonight are conflicting, the second adjournment of miners without deciding it confirms the belief which large operators have held all along that a strike will be averted. On this conviction there has again been very good buying, not only of coalers, but of other stocks. In fact the heavy purchases of St. Paul and Union Pacific in the face of 12 per cent money market are accepted as strong circumstantial proof of well informed people that the miners will continue at work, for even sanguine bulls concede that in the event of a strike, the whole list would at the outset be adversely affected. As regards the money factor, fears are abating an conservative propounders advise the purchase of railroad stocks on all recessions. There are good reasons for saying that the comparative stringency is largely artificial. A fortnight ago the officers of the City bank, the Bank of Commerce and the First National bank came to the conclusion that for the good of the general market it was necessary to check the wild speculation in green stocks. They agreed the best way to do it was to put the screws on the money market and keep the money until they forced liquidation or until the rotten stocks had in loans were weeded out. This has now been done and speculation is the better for it. While the uncertainty respecting the labor situation has resulted in a falling off in commission business, brokers report a very fair demand for sound stocks.

COPPER GOSSIP.

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: John Stanton says in regard to the present copper situation: "I consider the present situation strong and healthy. That burdensome copper which existed when the artificial price of 17 cents was the ruling market is now in the hands of large consumers and will soon pass into finished products. As an example of prosperous condition of the world, export figures tell an interesting tale. For the first four months this year copper exports reached a total of 57,650 tons, as compared with 30,125 in the same period of 1901. As to the market to come, I see no clouds on the horizon and as there does not seem to be anything to cause apprehension. I would not be surprised to see copper go to 14 cents."

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Engineering and Mining Journal will say tomorrow: "The copper market displays more activity, consumers having taken hold more freely so that a large business is reported for early delivery at full prices. The demand has been freely met by purchases and prices show some improvement. The market for casting copper is especially good."

Hayden, Stone & Co. to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Would like to tell you to buy copper, but cannot see our way to do so at this moment. We think this money market will force liquidation.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 9.—Cotton opened steady with prices 1 point lower to 3 points higher and then worked upward on covering by shorts and fairly active Western buying. Liverpool and New Orleans advanced in keeping and soon July was selling at 9.21 with August at 8.99. But the support soon weakened and prices soon dropped off and room bears came to the front as sellers of the July position.

Cotton spot quiet; middling quiet; middling uplands, 9¾c; middling gulf, 9¾c; sales, 300 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady; May, 9.32; June, 9.22; July, 9.19; August, 8.98; September, 8.43; October, 8.22; November, 8.18; December, 8.15; January, 8.16; February, 8.15.

NEW YORK MONEY.

Hans Breinholm Accuses His Wife of Cruelty Toward Him.

More Afraid of Her Than of Cass Lake Indians.

Admits That She Sent Him to School Every Day.

Hans Breinholm, who went to war with the Duluth soldier boys at Chickmauga park, and who went to Cass lake to fight Indians on his return, confessed in district court this morning that he was more afraid of his wife Emma than he was of the Indians.

He is suing her for divorce on the ground of cruelty, and she is contesting the case. The trial continued all this morning before Judge Ensign, and it was still on when court adjourned at noon.

Hans, who is a very mild-mannered young man with a treble voice, and, according to his statement, seven years' younger than his wife, said that Mrs. Breinholm, of whom he spoke in accents of awe, made life miserable for him. Since he left her he has gained nineteen pounds and is much improved in health. She says she called him a fool and an idiot often, but that was not the worst of his story. When he returned from lighting Indians at Cass Laek he says she would not let him into the house at first, saying that she had no use for a man that went off junketing and having a good time that way instead of working and supporting his wife. He had marched eight miles through the woods that day before taking the train, and he had his opinion about the good time, but he kept it to himself, insisting that he was tired and wanted to go to bed, and suggesting that they talk the matter over another time.

Finally she shut him in the kitchen, saying that she wished the Indians had killed him, and he lay down on the bare floor and took his needed rest.

He also told the court that she would not get his breakfasts, and that he had to get up and cook them himself and get to his work at 7 o'clock. When he worked in Superior at one time he not only had to do this but he had to walk a long distance to catch a ferry that would take him over, because she would not give him the extra nickel required to go over on the street cars.

"Hundreds of times," he said pathetically, "I have gone down to the bay to jump in, but have controlled myself in time. Hundreds of times I have gone down to the railroad tracks and laid my head on the rail to let the 11:15 train run over me, but I have changed my mind each time."

Once, he said, she gave him a razor and took one herself, saying that they might as well fight it out. He suggested pacifically that they had better lay down their razors and talk it out instead. Finally she told him to go, and he said he went down cellar and got an empty cracker box, in which he packed his belongings, and pulled out.

On cross-examination C. O. Baldwin, representing Mrs. Breinholm, asked Hans what he did for a living during the first few months of their married life. He admitted that he did nothing.

"Did your wife support you?"

"Yes."

"Did she give you spending money?"

"No, she didn't."

"Didn't she provide you with money for cigars?"

"She gave me a box of cigars when we were married."

"Did you drink?"

"When she would send me out for a pail of beer I would drink a glass."

"Did she send you to school?"

The plaintiff evidently was in some confusion of mind on this question.

"When there was company she would say 'skoll,'" he replied, meaning the Scandinavian equivalent for the American "Here's ho!"

"No, you don't understand me. Did you go to school?"

"When I'd say 'skoll' she'd just bow."

Finally the confusion was cleared up, and Breinholm admitted that during those first few happy months of the honeymoon his loving wife trotted him off to school every morning.

"She was good to you, then," suggested Mr. Baldwin.

"They are always good just after they are married," answered the plaintiff, cynically.

"How do you know? You haven't been married before, have you?"

"No, but that's the understanding."

"Did you turn over the money you earned to your wife?"

"Every cent of it."

"Well, if she wouldn't give you a nickel for car fare, why didn't you keep money for car fare out of your wages?"

"I didn't dare."

"Why? Were you afraid of her?"

"Yes, sir."

"Were you more afraid of her than you were of the Indians?"

"Yes, sir."

Alexander Marshall appears for the plaintiff.

PORT RECORD.

Figures For April From the Office of Capt. Gaillard.

The records at the government engineer's office of the actual shipments and receipts at the ports of Duluth and Superior for the month of April are not yet complete, owing to the fact that there are 38 arrivals and 38 clearances from the combined ports to hear from. Last season Capt. Gaillard did not total the business of the various months until all of the reports were in. This season, while the record is kept open until all arrivals and all clearances are heard from, yet the business of the ports is totalled up to the last reports to reach the government engineer's office.

During the month of April there were 486 arrivals in the harbor, of which 313 were bound for Duluth and 173 for Superior. The total tonnage of the combined ports for April, with 38 vessels to hear from, was 732,236 tons. Of this amount the Duluth tonnage was 499,985 tons.

The report shows anthracite coal receipts to have been 41,942 tons and bituminous coal 147,141 tons. The total number of departures for the month of April were 526 from both ports. The features among the shipments, so far as is shown by the incomplete report for the month, were 488,502 tons of iron ore, 604,050 barrels of flour, 5,592,226 bushels of wheat, 789,500 bushels of flax, 407,498 bushels of other grains and 14,228,000 feet of lumber. Total registered tonnage was 886,160, tons, of which 535,552 tons was from the Duluth port.

NEW TRACK.

Street Railway Company Putting One In on Michigan Street.

The street railway company today began putting in a fine new track on Piedmont avenue and Superior street from Ninth avenue west to Garfield avenue.

The old track on Michigan street will be taken up and the interstate cars will shortly be operated over the Garfield avenue viaduct. Luther Mendenhall and Manager Warren held a conference with the board of public works this morning, and it was decided that the city and company together would replace the present street car track with a strip of macadam roadway.

The Police Court.

John Sharrow, recently arrested on a warrant by the humane officer, charging him with sending his son, Russell Sharrow on the Northern Pacific tracks to pick up coal, is cleared of all charges.

The case was to be heard in police court this morning, but the prosecution moved a dismissal of the case before any evidence was submitted.

Joseph Ryan was found guilty of a technical assault this morning and fined $.50. A younger brother of his visited Johnson's restaurant and pool room, at 2532 West Superior street. He testified that in going after the brother, Florence Johnson made a slurring remark about his mother and he struck her.

Not Fighting the Sale.

There has been more or less in the way of rumor circulating lately to the effect that the company of Duluth and Michigan people formed to develop the South Bisbee, Arizona, copper property, was having trouble in getting the lands from the company owning them. A letter in the Bisbee Daily Review recently from the secretary of the fighting stockholders says that the fight is not against the sale of the lands, but against members of the company over the disappearance of half the capital stock of the company. In other words, it is not a fight against the sale, but among the stockholders over the proceeds.

TROUBLESOME ASPIRATE.

An Englishman, the Rev. Geoffry Hill, takes up that weapon which is mightier than the sword to vindicate the cockney John Bull who drops his "h's," says the New York Tribune. Mr. Hill assures us that the aspirte has given trouble for many countries; that the misuse of it was common among the ancients. He recites the ridicule which Catullus heaped upon Arrius who insisted upon writing himself Harrius, to the great weariness of everybody in Rome. The Romans rejoiced when he was sent to Syria, but he seems to have got even with them by sending home a report on the "Hionian waves." Mr. Hill states that uneducated Romans dropped their "h's" just like the London cockneys, and quotes St. Augustine's comment: "If a man murders the word human by calling it 'uman,' he will more offend his hearers than if he had committed a real murder."

The English defender of the cockneys finds that the Roman languages, or those originating from the Latin, generally discard the "h." Examples of this are found in the French "avior" and the Italian "istoria." No man, in Mr. Hill's judgment, ought to be ostracised because he takes liberties with his "h's." The time will come when this aspirate will be eliminated from the English alphabet as an utterly iseless letter. Then the cockney will be vindicated. Until that time comes, however, the man who is not on speaking terms with the "h" will be outlawed. He may be a person of correct life and otherwise irreproachable, but if he is "h"-less he will be under the ban of exclusive society.

Your Rent is Going To Be Higher!
Why? Because the present rents paid does not cause any one to build to supply you with equal accommodations for the rent you are paying. The rent that caused the house to be built that you live in was considerably higher than you are paying now.
More people are coming to the city who will be willing to pay more than you are and the first thing you know you will be moving further from the center of the city than you are at present living.
Houses and lots are still being offered at less than it cost to build the house. It is not too late to buy at low figures.
We have about thirty houses and lots for sale which have been practically rebuilt in the last four years, taxes and assessments all paid, which we offer to sell for $100 to $150 down and the balance to be paid on terms that are as easy to pay as rent and you are in the way of getting a home. We refer you to those who have bought of us and are getting homes of their own. We insure a list of over fifty at the office, at

MANY MEN QUIT WORK

Miners Begin Temporary Cessation of Labor.

Will Decide Question of Strike Themselves.

Hazelton, Pa., May 10.—Many miners did not go to work today and others only entered the mines to remove their tools. From the present indications not one colliery will be operated until the convention comes to a definite decision. The Grand Opera house, where the delegates will meet on Wednesday, has been engaged for one day only, so it is believed the men will not be long in deciding what to do.

Scranton, May 10.—After issuing the order for a temporary cessation of work in all the collieries and a call for a miners' convention in Hazelton on Wednesday next, the twenty-eight members of the executive committees of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America made haste to get back to their homes. They will at once assume charge of the election of delegates to the convention, the basis of representation being one delegate for each 100 members. This will produce a convention of more than 1000 delegates. While there is certain to be a difference of opinion on the advisability of striking at once or postponing such action until the conditions are more favorable for winning, whatever action is taken by the convention will be announced as unanimous. This is required by the rules of the organization. There is a general opinion that the convention will be in session several days before a final decision is reached.

Although President Mitchell was very busy today he expressed himself as feeling much relieved now that the uncertainty regarding the action of the executive committee is at an end. Nobody here doubts that the miners will to a man obey the order for a temporary strike, and that not a carload of coal will be mined on Monday. Telegrams from various parts of the region show that many miners have already laid down their tools and are now idle, awaiting the final outcome of the Hazelton convention.

Shamokin, Pa., May 10.—When bulletins were posted here announcing the action of the Scranton convention in ordering a cessation of work until the miners could decide for themselves whether to strike or not, local members of the union, with few exceptions, said they would remain away from the mines. They are satisfied that President Mitchell did all in his power to obtain concessions. From indications every colliery and washery here will be tied up next week. A few miners did not go to the operations today. Business men are discouraged. They think a strike is inevitable and the tie-up will be of such lengthy duration that many of them will be ruined.

Pottsville, May 10.—The news that the miners will suspend work Monday was received with consternation here. It was the sentiment, after President Mitchell's failure at arbitration, that a strike was inevitable, and it is feared it will be a longer one than that of two years ago. The Schuylkill miners, who constitute the influential part of district No. 9, fought hard against a strike, but the sentiment from the upper districts was strong and carried the day. The Reading Coal and Iron company is preparing to swear in several hundred extra policemen to guard the collieries.

Hazleton, Pa., May 10.—The calling of another United Mine Workers' convention and placing in the hands of the men the responsibility of declaring a strike, or continuing at work under present conditions, is taken here to mean that the leaders are in doubt as to the advisability of starting a struggle at this time.

SAYS PEACE IS ASSURED

Dispatch From East Africa Says That the End of the Boer War Will Be Result of Vereniging Conference.

Lisbon, May 10.—A dispatch received here from Delagoa Bay, Portuguese East Africa, says that peace in South Africa is certain to result from the conference of the Boer leaders to be held at Vereniging, Transvaal, May 15. It is said, the dispatch continues, that peace will be officially proclaimed May 20. Preparations are afoot for general rejoicings.

After having met the burghers in the field and explained to them the British terms, the Boer leaders were to meet at Vereniging and reach a final decision on the subject of peace.

A dispatch from London dated May 2 said it was officially asserted that after their conference the Boer leaders would proceed to Pretoria and announce to Lord Kitchener the decision in regard to the peace terms they were prepared to accept.

DIED OF HIS INJURIES.

St. Paul, May 10.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Lawrence Dower, of Shullsburg, Wis., who was injured in the explosion at the Washoe smelters at Anaconda Thursday, died of his injuries last evening.

WILL BUILD TO GULF COAST.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 10.—S. B. Hovey, first vice president of the Rock Island in Texas, confirms the statement that the Rock Island would build to the Gulf coast. This is the first official confirmation of the Rock Island's intention to extend its lines in this state.

At Least Thirty Thousand People Perished In Disaster Caused By Eruption of Mount Pelee.

City Is Completely Buried In Lava and Dust---Eruption Continues and Ships Fear to Approach.

Ponte a-Pitre, Guadaloupe, Saturday morning, May 10.—The first mate of the Roraima thus describes the disaster at Martinique:

"Between 6:30 and 7 o'clock in the morning on Thursday, without warning, there came a sort of whirlwind of steam, boiling mud and fire, which suddenly swept the shipping and the roadstead. There were some eighteen vessels anchored in the harbor, including the Roraima, the French sailing ship Tamay, four larger sailing ships, and others. All the vessels immediately careened over and began to burn. The Tamay was a bark from Nantes, Capt. Maurice, and was on her way to Pointe-a-Pitre. All the boats except the Roraima sank instantly and at the same moment.

"Every house ashore was utterly destroyed and apparently buried under the ashes and burning lava. An officer who was sent ashore penetrated but a short distance into the city. He found only a few walls standing and the streets literally paved with corpses. The governor of the island, who had arrived only a few hours before the catastrophe, was killed. Both the English and American consuls, with their families, were reported to have perished. It is certain that no more than forty out of the above 25,000 could have escaped."

The cruiser Suchet was here yesterday buying provisions for the survivors in the outlying districts. She sailed for Fort De France last night with a large quantity of stores, which were immediately put under military guard. Negroes are flocking in vast numbers into Fort De France from the surrounding country, demanding food.

A telegram from Fort de France says that hot mud and cinders have been falling all night throughout the island and still continue doing great damage and that when the final reports are received, it will be found that many people have been killed or injured in other parts of Martinique.

The Quebec line steamship Korona arrived at the island of Dominica yesterday, bringing a number of survivors from her sister ship, the Roraima. The captain of the Korona says that the eruption at St. Pierre was, apparently, from a new crater and that accompanying the eruption there seemed to be a tidal wave which overwhelmed the shipping.

A message from the island of St. Vincent says: "The Soufriere has been in a state of eruption for nine consecutive mornings. On Thursday morning the day broke with heavy thunder and lightning, which soon changed into a continuous, tremendous roar. Vast columns of smoke rose over the mountain, becoming denser and denser, and the Scoria-like hail, changing later to fine dust, fell upon all the adjacent estates, destroying a vast amount of property.

"At Chateau Belair the ashes were two feet deep in the streets. In Kingston they were fully an inch deep, and many large stones fell in the parish of Georgetown. The earth shook violently and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon a midnight darkness spread over the country. Thirty people are known to be killed, and the damage to property in the Windward district was very heavy."

The storm roared about Soufriere all night without cessation, but on the following morning it became intermittent and then quieter.

A report from Barbadoes says that on the 7th the sky was heavily overcast, the heat was excessive and there was a distant sound of thunder. Later, early in the afternoon, dense darkness set in and a great quantity of vivid dust fell and continued to fall until a late hour. No damage is reported.

London, May 10.—Lloyds agent at St. Lucia, D. W. I., cables that later news fully confirms the disaster at St. Pierre. He says he cannot ascertain the names of the vessels which have been lost, but they include one Italian bark and two steamers, one probably being the Grappler, the cable ship belonging to the West India and Panama Telegraph company.

The total loss of life is estimated at 30,000.

Lloyds agent at St. Thomas cables that St. Pierre has been totally destroyed and all the inhabitants perished. All the vessels in the harbor were lost. These include the Grappler, the steamer Roraima, belonging to the Quebec Steamship company, took fire in port and became a total loss. All on board the Roraima perished.

Paris, May 10.—An unending procession of inquirers, who had friends and relatives on the stricken island, is arriving at the ministry of the colonies, which has telegraphed to every possible source for information. A few private telegrams received here renew the hope that some of the inhabitants of St. Pierre escaped.

The bishop of Martinique sent a cablegram from Fort De France, forwarded at 5:30 p. m. yesterday, announcing the safety of Pastor King, of St. Pierre, who escaped the disaster and sought refuge at Morne Rouge. It is hoped that others fled there.

Cable messages have been received by the southern route. All the northern cables are interrupted.

At least fifty families of Bordeaux are bereaved. Most of the business of St. Pierre was transacted through Bordeaux.

Paris, May 10.—A telegram from the governor of Guadaloupe contains the latst news of the Martinique disaster.

After announcing that the French cruiser Suchet had thirty survivors on board, the governor of Guadaloupe says:

"Everything tends to the belief that the governor of the colony, M. Mouttet, and Col. Gerbault and their wives perished with the population of St. Pierre. I have ordered the prompt dispatch of provisions from Bassetoire. The Suchet sails for Martinique this evening. All of the people and supplies of Guadaloupe are at your disposal for relief.

Paris, May 10.—The minister of marine has received the following undated dispatch from Pointe-a-Pitre, Island of Guadaloupe, from the commander of the French cruiser Suchet:

"About 8 o'clock the volcano threw up much smoke and earth. A whirlwind of fire immediately followed. Instantly the town (St. Pierre) was in flames and the ships in the harbor were dismasted and burned. The shower of rocks lasted a quarter of an hour. I arrived at St. Pierre at 2 p. m., saving a few persons from the ships. I saw no living creature in St. Pierre. There were many corpses on the quay."

Stockton, Cal., May 10.—Mme. Louise Louit, a teacher of French in this city, is prostrated over the news of the terrible disaster at St. Pierre, Martinique, as her sister and family resided in that city. On learning of the volcanic eruption she swooned and has been in a serious condition for hours, though at times she would discuss the terrible loss of life. Her sister, Mme. Gentille, her husband, two sons, George and Raoul, and two daughters, Alice and Ania, are believed to have been killed, as she said they lived in a portion of the city where they would be greatly exposed.

Raoul Gentile was rated as one of the most brilliant lawyers and orators on the island, and has held many prominent positions of trust. For the past two years he has been one of the representatives from the island to the French chamber of deputies.

New York, May 10.—The agent here of the Quebec Steamship company has received a telegram from the company's agent at Dominica saying that the survivors of the steamship Roraima, which was destroyed in the Martinique disaster, are on board the steamship Korona. The following are reported as saved:

The quartermaster, the steward and Engineer Morley and three unknown sailors. The first officer and assistant purser are in the hospital at Ft. De France.

New York, May 10.—St. Pierre, Martinique, just destroyed by a volcanic eruption, had a large commercial trade with this city. Four or five large houses carried on a business of at least $500,000 annually. One of these houses it is known had $100,000 actually invested in St. Pierre, while the exports of flour and provisions on thirty days' credit are large. It is estimated that losses of the flour trade alone are $75,000.

London, May 10.—Steel, Young & Co., owners of the British steamer Roddam, which escaped from St. Pierre to St. Lucia, received this morning the first news from their agents, as follows:

"Terrible volcanic eruption at Martinique. Roddam returned. One anchor and chain slipped. Tarpaulins and gear burned. Machinery intact. Captain in hospital. Two mates, engineer and eight of the crew dead. Ten in hospital. Second and third engineers aboard. Campbell, supercargo, dead. Communication between here and Barbados interrupted."

London, May 10.—Communication is still obtainable with the island of Guadaloupe, French West Indies, but the news is congested, owing to the confusion prevailing in the cable system and the numerous official messages filed. The receipt of the first direct cable news from Martinique depends on how long the French company will take in repairing the cable to Ft. De France, capital of the island, on which they are now working.

The British admiralty is communicating with the commander-in-chief of the British naval station, and a war vessel will be directed to go to Martinique.

It is apparent from the cable dispatches received that the eruption of the volcano on Mount Pelee will not do much damage to the summer crop, which is chiefly confined to the southern part of the island, and the gathering of which is now two-thirds over. However, the wiping out of the money and population of the island centered at St. Pierre is bound to produce the most serious commercial effect. Not one of the business houses in London has heard a word of its agents in Martinique.

A partner of the principal English firm dealing with Martinique said to a reporter of the Associated Press: "I suppose all our agents are dead. Not much business is transacted between England and Martinique. Almost everything thence is shipped direct to Bordeaux, which suffers the most. I know Martinique well. The last time I was there, there were only two Englishmen and no Americans resident at St. Pierre, though that town did a good business with America in the way of foodstuffs. A large proportion of the white population belongs to old French families, who preferred St. Pierre to any other part of the island. We never for a moment dreamed that Mount Pelee would prove dangerous. Fifty years ago some smoke and steam issued from its crevices, but no attention was paid to it.

St. Pierre and the island of Martinique are no strangers to destructive earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

On August, 1767, an earthquake killed 1600 persons in St. Pierre. In 1851 Mount Pelee, an active volcano, rising from the outskirts of St. Pierre, threatened the city with destruction.

Earthquakes involving loss of life have been frequent in the history of the West Indies. On June 1, 1692, 3000 people perished in the island of Jamaica by an earthquake which engulfed entire houses forty fathoms deep.

Port-au-Prince, Hayti, was ruined by an earthquake on Nov. 21, 1751. Nine hundred persons perished in an earthquake on St. Lucia in 1788.

Even within the last century the earthquakes have been numerous, one on Jan. 11, 1839, destroying the town of Port Royal and killing 700 persons. The most serious one, however, was on May 7, 1842, at Cape Haytien, Santo Domingo, where 5000 persons lost their lives.

St. Pierre was practically destroyed once before, in August, 1891, by the great hurricane which swept over the islands.

The harbor at St. Pierre has been a famous one for centuries. It was off this harbor on April 12, 1782, that Admiral Dodney's fleet defeated the French squadron under the Compte de Grasse and wrested the West Indies from France.

It was also in the harbor at St. Pierre that Admiral Cervera first stopped with his fleet when he first crossed the Atlantic during the recent Spanish-American war.

The island of Martinique rises from the sea in three groups of rugged peaks and contains three volcanoes long believed to be extinct.

St. Pierre, of 25,000 inhabitants, presented an odd and picturesque appearance, being built in an amphi-theater-like shape, in streets extending back to the mountains and climbing up the hills by successions of steep stone steps. French was the universal language spoken, though the natives and half-breeds spoke a sort of patois of their own. The bulk of the shipping and commercial business was carried on in St. Pierre, it being the coaling point of all the steamship lines, and the distributing center of the merchandise, etc., for the interior. Sugar, rum, coffee and cotton are the staple products. The exports are mainly sent to France, while nearly all of the breadstuffs are imported from the United States. In architecture St. Pierre resembles the French quarter in New Orleans. Yellow was the prevailing color of the houses, with green Venetian blinds and red tiled roofs. The houses were seldom more than two stories in height. Outside of the city there were some fine villas, almost hidden from the roadway by palms and other tropical foliage. The streets were all narrow and paved with large blocks of square stones.

The botanical garden at St. Pierre was the most extensive and complete of any in the West Indies.

The area of the island is 381 square miles. Mount Pelee is near the northern end of the isle and is 4430 feet high. The last eruption occurred in 1851. Other mountain peaks are evidently ancient and extinct volcanoes, to which Martinique owes its existence.

The density of the urban population on the island can be better appreciated when it is known that while the greater portion of Martinique is heavily wooded and uninhabited, the island is still one of the most densely populated places in world, averaging 464 to the square mile. About 80 per cent of the population of 177,0.. are negroes and Asiatic coolies.

Fort De France, Martinique, May 10, 1:46 p. m.—The earthquakes have ceased, but the volcanic eruptions continue.

London, May 10.—A cable company received a message from Martinique today saying the volcanic eruption there continues and that ships are afraid to approach the island.

Paris, May 10.—The cable dispatch from Senator Knight also said that Morne Rouge was spared. Morne Rouge is a beautiful resort situated between the city of St. Pierre and the crater of Mount Pelee.

New York, May 10.—The French Cable company's offices in this city were advised today that their repair steamer Pouyer Quertier has arrived at Fort de France, having rescued 450 persons from St. Pierre. She has returned immediately to the scene of the disaster to search for further survivors.

Washington, May 10.—Capt. McLain of the Cincinnati has reported to the navy department the arrival of that ship at San Domingo this morning. It is possible that if the situation on the island warrants it the ship will be sent over to Martinique to afford aid to the survivors of the catastrophe.

ROBBERS STOP TRAIN

Desperadoes Hold Up Fast Mail In Arkansas But Fail to Get Any Booty.

St. Louis, May 10.—A special to the Post Dispatch from Jonesboro, Ark., says: The westbound fast mail train on the St. Louis & San Francisco railway, due here at 10:15 p. m., was held up last night about 10:40 at Marsh Siding, five miles west, by four masked men. Information wired to express company officials state that the robbers secured nothing. The robbers flagged the train, which did not slow up quick enough to let them on, and they threw the engine, baggage, express and smoker on a siding by turning the switch under the rear of the chaircar, throwing it and the Pullman across the tracks. The fireman was ordered back to cut off the engine, mail, baggage and express cars, which pulled down the track some distance.

Messenger Newton was ordered to open the express car, and promised to obey if the robbers would not shoot him. The leader of the gang wanted to shoot the messenger, but the others made him desist. Dynamite was exploded on the safe, completely wrecking it and blowing out the side of the express car. After fruitless attempts to secure any booty, the robbers cut off the engine and ran farther west. They deserted the engine and escaped.

The conductor followed the engine, catching up at Bono, where it had stopped. The operator was aroused and information wired to headquarters, the conductor returning with the engine.

With the exception of the chaircar, which was brought here by the wrecker, the train proceeded West.

A posse, headed by the sheriff, has gone after the robbers, who had a good start.

MRS. BAKER ARRESTED

Hudson, Wis., May 10.—Mrs. R. L. Freel and Miss Lizzie Murphy, charged with getting money under false pretenses at New Richmond for an institution at Duluth, appeared yesterday for trial in Judge Arnquist's court. The complaint was dismissed by the district court attorney as insufficient, and a re-arrest was made on a fuller statement of facts. Mrs. J. S. Baker, the head of the institution, who appeared to assist the accused women also was arrested on complaint of Alex Turner, of this city, on the same charge. Bonds of each were placed at $200, which were furnished by Mr. Walters, of Alma, Wis. He is the father of Mrs. Baker and a wealthy farmer there. The hearing is placed for June 11.

STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR.

Venerable Louisville Newspaper Man Seriously Hurt.

Louisville, Ky., May 10.—Walter N. Haldeman, the venerable president of the Louisville Courier-Jouhnal company, and one of the best known newspaper men in the country, was struck by a trolley car at Fourth and York streets this morning, while attempting to corss the tracks, and was seriously injured. He received a severe scalp wound and his shoulder was injured. He is over 80 years of age and while the injuries are not necessarily dangerous, some uneasiness is felt on account of his advanced age.

AT ST. VINCENT ALSO

London, May 10.—The following cablegram was received this morning at the colonial office from Sir Frederick Mitchell Hodgson, of Barbadoes: The Soufriere volcano on St. Vincent erupted violently yesterday. Loud reports, resembling artillery fire, were heard at Barbadoes at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. At 5 p. m. there came darkness and thunder, accompanied by a strong downpour of dust. Barbadoes is covered several inches deep with dirt this morning. Have telegraphed Sir Robert B. Llewelyn, governor of the Windward islands, offering him all assistance.

A terrible eruption has occurred of a volcano at Martinique. Great distress prevails there. I am sending provisions immediately. All safe at Mominica.

London, May 10.—Thirty deaths are reported to have occurred at the island of St. Vincent, according to a telegram received at the colonial office this morning from Governor Llewelyn, forwarded from St. Lucia yesterday. The governor adds:

"Information incomplete. Eruption continues. I am endeavoring to get back to St. Vincent."

KILLED IN SHOCKING MANNER

St. Paul, May 10.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: George Vegelanderm, a Northern Pacific fireman, met instant death last evening near Merritt in a shocking manner. The engine was backing up with the fireman standing in the gangway watching for signals. He was struck in the back of the head by a cattle chute and knocked from the engine. Falling on the track the cars passed over him, severing his head.

NATIVES TREATED WELL

Further Testimony Given Before the Senate Philippines Committee By Private Soldiers Who Have Returned.

Washington, May 10.—Private William J. Gibbs, Ninth infantry, continued his testimony before the Philippine committee today, giving additional details about the battle of Balangiga. He said he never had seen the water cure administered, but heard the groans of victims. He heard of one death as a result of the cure. Fresh water and salt water was used for the cure, which was generally administered by the scouts. Mr. Gibbs said that the Filipino women were very virtuous. Filipino prisoners and the sick were treated well, as were the peaceful natives generally. The orders were to treat them with kindness.

George J. Boardman, formerly of the Twentieth infantry, said he had never witnessed but one instance of water cnure. He told how the natives would open fire on the Americans and conceal their guns when the soldiers approached and claim to be friendly. He also related the circumstances of the murder of a Filipino boy by natives because he was friendly with the Americans.

TENDOSYNOVITIS IS A PING-PONG PANG

From New York Herald.

THE LATEST DISCOVERY IN THE REALM OF SCIENCE.

Now comes the pingpong ankle on the heels of the bicycle face and the automobile stare. The disease is peculiar, and the name of it is tendosynovitis. To the London Medical Journal falls the honor of first making the public acquainted with the disease. The report was made by a London surgeon. He had a patient who was suffering from a swelling of the left leg, but it subsided after a day spent in bed. The surgeon found that the swelling was due to acute inflammation of the synovial membranes which surround the tendons. The synovial fluid is a lubricant which is secreted for the purpose of keeping the tendons in good working order. The surgeon learned that his patient was an ardent devotee of pingpong and forthwith issued a solemn warning to all who delight in batting the celluloid ball.

Delegate Elected.

The regular monthly meeting of Zenith branch No. 14, National Association of Letter Carriers, brought out a large attendance, the occasion being the election of a delegate to represent the local branch at the annual convention of the national association to be held in Denver, Colo., in the week of Sept. 1 to Sept. 8. The local branch takes a great interest in the association and the honor of attending the meet as a delegate from this lively branch is one eagerly sought after, and the contest, though good natured, is often warm. In the recent contest A. E. Halvorsen won out and the boys think they have made no mistake. Mr. Halvorsen is now serving his second term as president of the branch and is throughly alive to the objects and needs of the association.

THE CITY'S PRICE MET

West Duluth Water Plant Offered to City For $140,000.

This Is the Figure Set By Water and Light Board.

Proposition Must Be Submitted to Vote of the People.

It is practically up to the people to decide whether or not the West Duluth water system shall be absorbed by municipal ownership.

The board of water and light commissioners has recommended that the city purchase the plant for $140,000.

This morning, the Duluth Water and Light company, through its attorney, C. A. Severance, of St. Paul, offered the plant to the city for the same sum recommended by the water board.

The council committee on light and water will probably report favorably on the $140,000 proposition and the purchase will then be submitted to a vote of the people, some time before Oct. 1 next.

At noon today Mr. Severance and Charles P. Hartman, representing the bondholders, met with the mayor, City Attorney Mitchell and Alderman Swenson in the mayor's private office.

The conference was very short. Mr. Severance offered the system to the city for $140,000, provided the city would pay half the expense of defending litigation with the company, amounting to over $300. The company would allow the water board $15,000 off the $140,000 for water furnished the West Duluth system by the municipal plant.

This $15,000 is to be for water furnished up to the time of the transfer of the plant.

The widest difference between the city and company at present is the date of transfer. The recommendation of the board of water and light commissioners was to hold good only in case the plant was transferred to the city by July 1.

The offer of the company made this morning calls for a transfer on Oct. 1 next. It is probable, however, that the council will accept the date of Oct. 1 as it would be practically impossible to pass the ordinance purchasing the plant and get it before the people for an expression of public opinion in a month and a half.

The water company also promises that all taxes and incumbrances that would be a lien on the plant shall be cleared up, on condition that the city will in someway adjust the taxes that fall due next January, which virtually means that the city will not tax the property unless the negotiations fall and the plant is still the property of the water company at the time of the tax collections.

A NEW INSTITUTION.

Company to Engage In Manufacture of Ammonia.

The Duluth Chemical company is the name of a new institution that has started up in Duluth. It is engaged in the manufacture of ammonia, and the proprietors are Charles Johnson and Frederick Mollier. Ammonia is used in very large quantities, but this is said to be the only factory manufacturing it northwest of Chicago. The proprietors naturally look for a large trade, and already have assurances of support from the wholesale houses of the city. They expect in time to work up a very large trade throughout the West, and are already prepared to manufacture it on a very large scale. Mr. Mollier is chemist of many years' experience, a considerable portion of which was spent in connection with the manufacture of ammonia, and he knows the business thoroughly.

LOVE FEAST

So Says J. P. Johnson of Republican Central Committee Meeting.

Clerk of District Court J. P. Johnson, the Duluth member of the Republican state central committee, returned last night from St. Paul, where he attended the meeting of the committee Thursday.

"It was a genuine love feast," he said this morning, "and a man could not have worked up a row there if he had tried. It all went off very smoothly, a man that was expected to fight for a late convention moving for an early one, and another similarly situated seconding the motion. There will be no opposition to the nomination of Van Sant and he will be placed at the head of the state ticket and elected by his party.

"The sentiment for Odin Halden for state auditor seems to be growing all over the state, and the outlook for him is especially bright. I believe he will land the nomination."

THE FUND IS SHORT

McKinley Memorial Contribution From Minnesota Is Shy.

Duluth Furnished Nearly One-Third of All Contributed.

Association Anxious to Have Minnesota Come Up to Quota.

Minnesota's contribution to the McKinley National Memorial fund has been very disappointing.

The state was asked to raise $10,000 toward this fund, but has only raised half that amount.

To the credit of Duluth it may be said that this city collected about 30 per cent of the total amount contributed by Minnesota. This city contributed $1534.65.

Mayor Hugo, this morning received a letter from Frederick C. Hartzell, assistant secretary of the McKinley National Memorial association in which he urges renewed activity on the part of Minnesotans. This letter is as follows:

T. W. Hugo, Duluth, Minn.:

Dear Sir: Being directly interested in the work of this association, you will care to know, I am sure, the measure of success that has been attained in your state and doubtless you will want to make much additional efforts as will give your community as presentable a showing as you may be able to do conveniently.

In order to raise the amount of money thought sufficient to erect and maintain a suitable memorial to our martyred president, the people of Minnesota were asked to raise $10,000, and we have as yet only about half that amount reported which you will doubtless, agree is quite inadequate and disappointing. The rejuvenating of a movement of this nature is so difficult after the first enthusiasm has abated as to suggest a new line of action and it has been thought that an earnest personal effort by each committeeman with his immediate acquaintances might go far toward making up for the deficiencies of the organization as a whole.

Presuming on your entire sympathy with the project, I am going to ask you to see such friends of yours as you can confidently approach and secure their contributions by personal appeal, and I hand you herewith a pocket subscription book prepared for the purpose. If each of the committeemen in your state will give a small but earnest effort in this direction, the apportionment for Minnesota may be reached, which will, undoubtedly be gratifying to you as I assure you it will be to your associates the trustees, and officers of the association. If you are able to give your immediate attention, returning the book by the 15th inst. with such contributions as you can secure, you may rest assured that your efforts will be very highly appreciated.

Very truly ours,
FREDERICK HARTZELL,
Acting Secretary.

NO CHANGE.

Wisconsin Central Has Not Raised Rate On Steel Rails.

General Agent Byran of the Wisconsin Central declares that his line has not withdrawn its tariff on steel rails from Chicago to Duluth, and that it does not intend to raise the rate, as published. Mr. Bryan says he cannot imagine how the report could have originated. Whatever Mr. Bryan may say on the subject, however, it is pretty generally accepted that the Wisconsin Central contemplated withdrawing its old tariff on rails.

It is understood now that instead of an advance being in sight, as was first contemplated, there is likely to be a reduction from $2.15 to in the vicinity of $2.10.

Walter Moore, of Philadelphia, general foreign agent of the Lehigh Valley road, was in the city yesterday consulting with General Agent E. P. Sutton, of the Lehigh. Mr. Moore was on his annual visit to the Western agents of the Lehigh.

New York Capitalists Purchase Land In Georgia.

Atlanta, Ga., May 10.—A company has purchased and fenced in 1100 acres of land in Lincoln county, Georgia, and will, it is stated, develop the tract for the raising of Georgia cattle for the market. The corporation is said to have options on 10,000 acres in the vicinity. The first carload of cattle was sent today from Atlanta to the new pastures. The company is financed by New York men and has the assistance of the commissioner of agriculture in selecting the land.

FAMOUS LOCOMOTIVES

I see they are making a fuss because 999, once the greatest flyer of 'em all, has got down to pulling the milk train," said the veteran engineer to the New York Sun. "She certainly was a bird o' the rails," he continued, taking a very long pull at his very short pipe, "but there were others.

"I suppose you don't remember 280, do you? I guess you are too young, but, speaking of birds, there was never anything like her, as least as far as shaw was concerned.

"She was built at West Albany in the days when each fancy machine had a name. She was the William H. Vanderbilt, and a dazzling sight she was when she came out of the shops. Such a pretty machine never rode the rails before.

"In the first place, she had a complete jacket of polished brass which shone like pure gold in the sunlight. Otherwise she was painted and powdered, rigged out to kill. The steel for her machinery was all imported, and only four men had a hand in building her.

"It took 'em six months to do the job, but they did it so well that no one objected on the ground of time lost. She cost about $60,000, which is six times as much as a first-class flyer costs these days. They just about build 'em at so much a pound now.

"Well, when she flashed up the Mohawk Valley, her brasses shining and Reub Allen at the throttle, I tell you there was great doing all along the line from Albany to Syracuse. People turned out in swarms to see her, and the newspapers used to make an item of it every time she passed through. And wasn't Reub proud of her and didn't he look fine in her cab?

"You see, Reub was one of the show engineers of the division. He had white hair and a white beard and always wore fine corduroy clothes. Besides that he was as sure a hand as ever pulled a throttle.

"Mr. Vanderbilt wouldn't let anyone else take his private car up through the valley, and he always traveled at top speed. Reub lived at Schenectady, and he was often fined there for running through the place faster than the law allowed. But that never troubled him much. The road always paid his fine.

"Where's 280 now? Gone to the scrap heap long ago, I suppose. She lasted a long time, but she had her day just like any other machine. First she lost her brass jacket. Too much trouble to keep it clean, I reckon.

"Next she lost her name. That was the blow that almost killed the beauty. She never seemed the same afterward. The last I saw of her she was kicking around the West Albany yard. You'd never thought from looking at her that she was once almost as much of an attraction as a circus parade.

"Then there was old 224, another gay bird, always primped up like a woman of fashion. She was the Henry R. Keefe, and in her palmy days only crack men were allowed to take her through. For a long time she took the 3 o'clock run out of Albany, then one of the fastest on the road.

"The train is running yet, but, bless you, it ain't in it for speed or beauty with some of the new ones. The Henry R. Keefe went the way of the rest. Maybe the scrap heap got her or maybe she was sold to some small road out West. At any rate she disappeared one day after getting way down in the world, and no one in her old territory appears to have seen her since.

"Another crackerjack machine in the days when the Central beyond Albany was a 2-track road and Maj. Z. C. Priest was the boss of the Albany and Syracuse division was 290. You could always tell her within hearing distance, even if you couldn't see her, because she had such an odd-sounding bell.

"Some said the bell was half silver; in fact, that was the common belief all along the road. Whether it was actually true or not I couldn't say, but she certainly did have the sweetest bell you ever heard.

"Tom Dormady ran her for years. He was one of the greatest engineers on the road. He retired a rich man not so long ago after about fifty years of railroading, and he's alive and kicking yet. His last work was on the Empire State, where for a while he ran opposite to Ed Chase.

"Now, that was a long spell for a man to be in the business and come out of it, you might say, without a scratch. It was particularly so in the case of Dormady because most of the time he was at it he handled nothing but fast runs.

"But his was a cool head, a steady hand and a quick eye. I've no doubt that these pulled him out of many a close shave.

"But coming back to machines that were the whole show in those days, you don't want to forget 600 and 601. They were built at Schnectady, and you might call 'em the forerunners of the present big, high speed locomotives on the Central.

"They'd look like pygmies beside the big fellows now, I reckon, but they were looked upon as wonders when they were first turned out. I think that 600 succeeded 280 as the William H. Vanderbilt.

"But in spite of all that was expected of her she never did amount to much. She wouldn't warm to her work and was balky about making steam. She soon disappeared from the horizon. Her mate, 601, was as lively a machine as you ever put your foot on. She did splendid work for years.

"No. 76 had got to the switch engine stage when 600 came out of the shop to surprise the natives. But she was a hummer in her day. My, what a stir she caused when she took a train of four cars from Albany to Schenectady, seventeen miles, in twenty-four minutes!

"She was a ramshackle sort of an old 'bus with drivers that looked like a spider's web. The last I saw of her was in the old Utica shop at Schenectady twenty odd years ago. She looked ready to go out of business.

"There was another engine up that way whose number has slipped my mind just for the moment. But I've got a fine picture of the machine itself in my mind, and I don't think it'll ever go out until my time comes.

"Mounted on her boiler was a complete fire fighting apparatus. The pump was a powerful one, and the locomotive was often called on to help firemen out when there was a blaze close by the railroad. It's all of twenty-five years since I've seen that engine. She used to pull local freight up St. Johnsville way.

"Another freak in my younger days was old No. 3. She was a wood burner with a stack as big as a house. She used to puff and smoke along as though she was the real thing.

"It was a good many years after she went out of business, though, before the Central took on the pipestem stack you see on all locomotives today.

"To my thinking the greatest freak the Central ever put out in the way of an engine was little No. 6. The number just suit her to a T. She'd size up with some of the hog-pulling freight today the same as a Shetland pony would beside of a big Flanders mare.

"Even in those times she was the laughing stock of the road. As Bill Caulkins said about her once, she was about as big as a pint of cider half drunk.

"She had only one driving wheel on each side, and no boiler room or fire space to speak of. I've seen her try to go over the grade beyond Schenectady with ten empties, and you'd die laughing to see her puffing and blowing along the level track for a mile back to get a good start. But she never succeeded in pulling the load over. Ten empties were too much for her. About five were her limit.

"A good-hearted old soul, Ned Reardon, used to run her, and the pranks of yardmen played on him was something shameful. They were always giving him the wrong switch or the like, and they had him in constant terror of piling up Naughty-naught—that's what they called her—alongside the tracks.

"She, too, passed her last days in the Utica shop. They had her wedged in among a lot of oil barrels and other truck, and the last time I saw her the dust on her boiler and cab was an inch deep."

The veteran engineer lit his pipe again and took another long pull.

"It's curious," he continued, "what a fascination the business has for men especially those who are used to fast runs. There's simply no getting away from it as long as the road'll have you. I've known men to hang on and hang on long after they were rich enough to retire, and some of them got killed or badly bunged up in the end.

"One of my friends up on the Mohawk division died not long ago leaving $75,000. He had been well off for years, yet he simply couldn't let go.

One night when he was taking the mail through he stuck his head out of the cab window and a water tank spout hit him. He was laid up for months, and when he got out he was pretty shaky all through.

"He was an old man in the bargain. Yet I'd been willing to bet a hat that he'd gone back if they offered him an engine. He used to go down to the crossing every day to see the flyers go through.

"Another of my friends who had taken out fast ones all his life took a switch engine after he had been forty eyars on the road. It wasn't that he had to do it, for he was well fixed, but the spell was on him just as strong then as when he first began.

"The switch engine was the best they'd offer him, and he took it because he could'nt get anything else. Well, one day off duty he was run down at the crossing and that was the last of him. He might have lived ten years longer if he'd kept away.

"But they have nice, easy ways of letting the old ones down nowadays. Generally when they want to get rid of a man who has outlived his usefulness as far as the road is concerned, they spring the color-blind test on him. The best pair of eyes in the world can be fooled if they don't want to keep you any longer."

WHY THE WITNESS LIED.

Senator Berry, of Arkansas, is not given to story telling, but when he tells one it is generally a good one, says the Washington Post. The other day several members of the senate were swaping yarns about liars, when Senator Berry said:

'In Pike county, my state, an important case was before the court. A witness was on the stand, and it was known that he would stretch the truth to the ripping point before he would come square out with it. The fact is the witness had the reputation of being a good, all-round liar, and would not tell the truth even under oath, unless pinned down hard and fast. His ignorance and ingenuity enabled him to evade many of the questions. At last the lawyer lost patience and exclaimed: "Mr. Knox, why do you prevaricate so, even under oath? Why don't you confine yourself to the truth? With an effort to make the court believe that the lawyer referred to his peculiar maner of speech, Knox convulsed the court and audience by the indignant reply: "How can you expect a man to keep from prevaricating when he has lost three of his front teeth?"

IS NOT IN THE FIELD

J. B. Cotton Will Not Be a Candidate For Congress.

An Honor To Be Proud Of But Cannot Afford It.

Suggests Senator Hawkins As a Good Man To Run.

J. B. Cotton returned this morning from California, accompanied by Mrs. Cotton, child and nurse. Mr. Cotton went out to the coast some six weeks ago to join Mrs. Cotton, who has been absent about three months.

Mr. Cotton returns well browned up, hale and hearty. His coming has been awaited with considerable interest, in view of the fact that there has been a quiet, but none the less effective, laying of plans to induce him to accept the Republican nomination for congress to succeed Judge Morris. There has been less said publicly about this plan than about any other name that has been mentioned, but it is pretty well understood that this was part of the plan.

It is said to have been thoroughly understood that Mr. Cotton, if approached in the usual way, would flatly decline to allow the use of his name in this connection. Those of his friends who are closest to him have been prompt in telling all who consulted them that they were quite familiar with Mr. Cotton's views on the subject. They knew he considered he was not well enough off at his time of life to think of throwing up his professional connections in order to go to congress on a salary that pays only about half the expense that the congressman has to meet.

Mr. Cotton's friends are said to have added that they knew Mr. Cotton felt this way about any proposition that might take him back into public life. He was said to consider that he had no right to consider the question of retiring from business just at the outset of a prosperous career; that he believed that if he felt the inclination later, when he had acquired a competency to re-enter public life he might be free to do so, but just now he would feel as if he could not sacrifice his business prospects for the precarious career of politics.

In spite of these views which Mr. Cotton is known to hold there has been an insistent demand on the part of a growing number of his admirers that his name should be brought out. It has been felt, it is said, that a personality like his—of the aggressive, magnetic type, an orator who would make a campaign as vigorous and energetic as was ever put up in the district—is just what the party needs at this time.

When Mr. Cotton was seen this afternoon in relation to the matter, his first answer was:

"I have not been a candidate, am not a candidate and shall not be a candidate. In saying this, I do not wish to give the impression that I do not appreciate very highly the honor of being mentioned in this connection. It is an honor that any man should feel proud to aspire to. I am too poor, however, to think of it. To accept the office would mean that I must give up every thought of income earning and devote myself exclusively to my official duties. Everybody knows that the salary is not equal to the expense of living as a congressman, and I do not feel that I could afford at this stage in my affairs to consider the possibility of becoming a candidate."

It is said that regardless of the views Mr. Cotton may hold, an effort will be made to change his decision. As far as could be learned today, however, he himself regarded any effort of that kind just now as futile. He said that he had given no particular consideration to the matter, because it had not been brought to his attention before, except through the published reports that his name was mentioned.

Mr. Cotton asked why Senator Hawkins had not been pushed in this connection. He said that Mr. Hawkins was in a position to afford the honor. Moreover, he considered that Mr. Hawkins was the very type of man the district needed in congress—a good, aggressive business man, not necessarily an orator.

SHOCKED.

George McFadden, a lineman employed by the Zenith City Telephone company, had a narrow escape from death this morning.

He was up on a pole stringing a telephone wire near First avenue east and Fourth street and in attempting to carry it over an electric light wire, dropped his line.

The current of the electric light wires was carried up the telephone line and hurled Mr. McFadden through the air and to the ground a distance of 40 feet.

He was picked up unconscious and taken to St. Mary's hospital. It was several hours before he regained consciousness, but the latest reports from the hospital were to the effect that he was slowly recovering from the shock. The full extent of his injuries had not been ascertained at a late hour.

Workmen and others that witnessed the accident thought that Mr. McFadden was killed when they went to pick him up.

The Snow Storm.

The spectacle of a snowstorm of the extent of that which occurred last evening over the head of the lakes region, is somewhat unusual for this district. It has occurred on a few other occasions, however, the last being twelve years ago, when there was a light fall of snow May 9 and 10. May 17, twelve years ago, there was a heavy fall of snow in this state, over a foot of the frozen beautiful being recorded at Fergus Falls and other Minnesota cities south of Duluth. The forecast indicates rain or snow tonight and continued cooler weather Sunday.

WARE CONFIRMED.

Washington, May 10.—The senate today confirmed Eugene F. Ware, of Kansas, as commissioner of pensions.

THEY GET ADVANCES

Office Is Allowed Three Additional Clerks After July 1.

Office Now On Eight Hour Basis---Old Carrier Resigns.

Postmaster E. L. Fisher of the Duluth office, has received notice from the postoffice department of several important changes in the roster of clerks at the office here, principally in the way of increased salaries, and the appointment of three additional clerks, to be designated as stampers, each of whom will receive a salary of $500 per year. The changes were made in accordance with the recommendations of Postmaster Fisher, made March 29, of this year, and will take effect July 1, 1902.

The following increases have been made in salaries: E. M. Barker, registry clerk, from $1100 to $1200; Miss Anna Brayden, general utility clerk, from $400 to $500; Thomas E. Considine, chief mailing clerk, from $1200 to $1300; Miss Anna E. Ebling, stamper, from $600 to $800; Bert A. Erickson, distributor, from $900 to $1000; Edward Eskeon, mailing clerk and dispatcher, from $900 to $1000; Robert Grifke, stamper, from $600 to $700; A. Grabarkiewicz, superintendent of delivery, from $1300 to $1400; Fred Hansen, money clerk, from $1300 to $1400; O. R. L. Johnson, mailing clerk, from $600 to $800; Ira B. Jones, general delivery clerk, from $800 to $900; Emile Peterson, clerk in charge of sub-station No. 1, from $200 to $300.

With two exceptions the clerks whose salaries have been increased are the stationed at the main office. Miss Anna Brayden is a clerk at the West Duluth postal station, and Emile Petersson has charge of the sub-station at the corner of Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

The appointment of the three additional clerks, who will be named later, will practically place the Duluth office on the basis of an 8-hour work day. The business of the postoffice in this city has been so steadily increasing that its needs have been recognized at Washington. Postmaster Fisher has also asked for three additional carriers, but the department has not yet taken any action. There is little doubt but that the request will be granted.

The better mail service that has been requested by the appointment of extra clerks to throw the mail on the trains from the East and thus facilitate the deliverys here at noon, is still pending, but Postmaster Fisher says the service is bound to come. Such matters are worked out slowly, but it is possible that the department may order the service installed by July 1, along with the other changes.

The present working force of the main office is comprised of 61 people, including carriers, but not including substitute carriers or the seven clerks and carriers at the West Duluth station.

James Grady, who has been a letter carrier for the past eleven years, and who was regarded by the postoffice officials as one of the most efficient employes, has tendered his resignation. Owing to the numerous changes that are being made about the office his successor has not yet been announced. It is understood that Mr. Grady will turn his attention to farming.

A SCORCHING.

Parties In a Divorce Suit Get It From Judge Cant.

Marion Dailey's suit against Charles Dailey, for divorce on the ground of cruelty and desertion, in district court, was decided in favor of the defendant's cross bill for divorce on the ground of desertion by Juge Cant this morning.

Dailey also charged adultery alleged to have been committed with one Trudo, who boarded with them, and he told of his suspicions on the stand this morning. Under examination by the court he said he never said anything to Trudo about his suspicions, and never treated him other than as a friend and a brother. Asked if he threatened to do him harm he said he would not shoot or hurt a man for a little thing like that.

In deciding the case Judge Cant scored both parties rather severely. He said that there was no excuse in this day of enlightenment for people living the way the parties admitted having lived. Everything showed that the defendant was not the right sort of man. When he said that he was the friend of the man he claims broke up his home, and when he said that he would not shoot or hurt a man for a little thing like that, it shows that he is far below the pedestal he ought to occupy.

The court said that the wife had continued to associate with Trudo after the former trial of the cause, when she learned that suspicion attached to them, and this looked bad.

"If people are old enough to get married, they ought to have sense enough to live differently than this," said the court. "There can be no desertion on the part of the husband, because the wife's own testimony shows that she left him. There is not sufficient evidence of her charges of cruelty. The defendant's claim of adultery might be sustained, but I do not feel like sustaining it. The wife left her husband over a year ago, and technically he is entitled to a divorce on that ground. Both appear to wa a divorce and as there seems to be no possibility of their getting along together I shall grant the defendant a divorce on the ground of desertion."

The wife was given the two ch ren, and the husband will be required to pay $12 a month for their support, with the privilege of seeing them whenever he desires.

Pleaded Guilty.

James Brown, indicted in district court for forgery in the second degree, has pleaded guilty to both of the indictments against him. He did not desire an attorney, but when he was arraigned he promptly pleaded guilty and expressed his readiness to atone for his offense. The other defendants who were indicted by the grand jury all pleaded not guilty.

The grand jury adjourned yesterday afternoon to Monday morning.

BAD WEATHER

WHAT IT DID TO A FARMER IN OREGON.

Its Effects Lasted for Several Years—He Tells How He Finally Got on His Feet Again After a Series of Reverses.

"It was all due to the weather," said Mr. John Lee, a farmer of Greenville, Ore., in relating a recent experience to a reporter.

"The weather," he continued, "plays an important part in a farmer's life, and in this instance its effects upon mine lasted for several years. It was in the spring of 1895. Working in the fields during a long stretch of cold rain and wind brought on an attack of the grip. It took right hold of me and I suffered terribly with it. When that finally went away it left me with the ague. Several doctors prescribed for me, but their medicine did me no good. My head ached and I was dizzy; my blood was very bad and I was so very nervous that every little sound annoyed and worried me. Besides this, I had a very severe case of stomach trouble, food did not nourish me, and my appetite was poor. It would be impossible for me to describe my misery."

"But how did you get relief?" asked the reporter.

"Well, one day I got hold of a booklet telling of the cure of a case similar to mine by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and thought I would try them. I felt better after taking a part of a box, so I kept on till cured. About three boxes did it, and now I am as well as ever I was."

It is of the utmost importance to your health, if you have suffered from the grip, that you should cleanse the system of the lingering germs and put it in condition to resist and ward off disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are an unfailing specific not only for the after-effects of the grip, of fever and of other acute diseases, but also for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all dealers or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, fifty cents a box; six boxes two dollars and fifty cents, by addressing Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

STRIKE AT SUPERIOR.

Molders at the Steel Plant Go Out.

The general strike of the molders at the head of the lakes has caused the foundry at the Steel Plant, in Superior, to close down and other foundries on that side of the bay are said to be seriously handicapped. The Superior molders are said to have little interest in the strike, but went out because they were in the union and were requested to by the molders on this side of the bay. The Superior molders have been working ten hours a day for $3 to $3.25 a day and are said to have no grievance. The Duplex plant, at South Superior, is the only concern not affected by the strike. Most of the molders there are apprentices and these do not belong to a union.

WILL PLAY MONDAY.

Duluth and Minneapolis High School Ball Game Then.

The baseball game which was to have been played this afternoon between the teams from the Duluth high school and the Minneapolis Central high school, has been postponed until Monday afternoon. Last night's snow made the grounds impossible, and the Minneapolis boys decided to remain over so that the game could be played Monday. Considerable interest attaches to the game and a large attendance is expected.

GOVERNMENT ANXIOUS

To Aid Stricken People of Island of Martinique.

Washington, May 10.—The United States government is willing and anxious to do anything within its power to aid the survivors of the terrible calamity on the Island of Martinique. The first thing, is to ascertain just what can be done and the extent of the needs. Then to ascertain the power of the executive to proceed in such matters. Secretaries Moody and Hay have been deeply interested in the matter and the former has already sent to the commandant at San Juan authorizing him to dispatch the steamship Potomac to Martinique in his discretion. Secretary Hay has directed Assistant Secretary Hill with the duty of conferring with the navy department to devise other plans of relief.

BRAKEMAN KILLED

In a Collision on Northwestern at Hortonville.

Milwaukee, May 10.—A Journal special from Appleton, Wis., says: One freight train backed into another at Hortonville, on the Ashland division of the Northwestern railroad, today, and as a result eight cars are piled together in a ditch and Brakeman Klein, of Kaukauna, was instantly killed.

STONE STILL LIES.

Milwaukee, May 10.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Watertown, Wis., says: Lieutenant Governor Jesse Stone was alive at 2 o'clock this afternoon and showed unusual vitality. The physicians at his bedside say he will probably last until late in the day. He has been unconscious since last night.

LORIMER NOMINATED.

Chicago, May 10.—Former Congressman William Lorimer was nominated as the Republican candidate for congress from the Sixth district here today.

NATIES TAKE REVENGE.

Vryheid, Southeastern Transvaal, May 10.—Natives whose kraals were recently burned by burghers attacked a Boer laager in the vicinity of Scheeper's Nek, May 5 and killed thirty-two Boers.

THE FORD FUNERAL.

New York, May 10.—A double funeral for Paul Leicester Ford, the author, and Malcolm Ford, the brother who killed him and himself on Thursday, was held today from the late residence of Paul Ford.

NEW STEEL COMBINE.

Chicago, May 10.—The Daily News today prints the announcement of a new combination of interests in the steel industry, which has just been perfected in this city under the management of Arthur J. Eddy. The name of the new company is to be the American Steel Founders company, with a capital of $10,000,000 equally divided between common and preferred stock.

BALL GAMES POSTPONED.

Detroit, May 10.—Detroit-Chicago American league game postponed; rain.

Milwaukee, May 10.—Milwaukee-Toledo game postponed; rain.

Milwaukee, May 10.—Milwaukee-Denver game postponed; rain.

RELIEF OF ST. PIERRE

Objection Is Made In House and Measure Goes Over.

Army Appropriation Bill Is Passed By the Senate.

Washington, May 10.—When the senate convened today Mr. Perkins (Cal.) reported the fortifications appropriation bill and gave notice that he would call it up on Monday next.

Mr. Proctor (Vt.) reported the bill making appropriations for the department of agriculture, and gave notice he would call up the measure Tuesday for consideration.

The bill for sale of sites for industrial plants in the Indian Territory was passed.

Mr. Fairbanks (Ind.) offered a bill for which he requested immediate consideration. It was for the benefit of the people of French West Indies, and authorized the president of the United States to cause to be purchased such provisions, clothing, medicines and other necessaries as he shall deem serviceable and tender the same in the name of the government of the United States to the government of France for the relief of citizens who have suffered by the late earthquake in the islands of the French West Indies. The bill appropriates $100,000 for the purpose, and authorizes the secretary of war to use the necessary steamships belonging to the United States to carry its purpose into effect.

The bill was passed after a brief speech by Mr. Fairbanks.

A resolution, offered by Mr. Harris (Kan.), calling upon the secretary of the interior for information as to the sale of Indian lands in Kansas, was adopted.

Mr. Proctor (Vt.) offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling upon the secretary of war for information as to how many barbette carriages have been manufactured since July 1, 1893, and other information as to the disappearing gun carriages.

A resolution offered by Mr. Patterson (Col.), calling upon the interstate commerce commission for information as to safety appliances in use on various named railroads, was adopted.

Consideration was then begun of the army appropriation bill, which was passed.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 10.—The house minor business was transacted by unanimous consent during the earlier portion of the session of the day.

Bills were passed as follows: To make Port Arthur, Tex., a subport of entry and delivery in the customs district of Galveston.

To amend the act to grant the Clearwater Valley Railroad company, a right-of-way through the Nez Perces, Indian lands, in Idaho.

To amend the internal revenue laws so as to place storekeepers and gaugers on the same footing as regards salary.

To grant an American register on the bark Homeward Bound.

The Fairbanks bill appropriating $100,000 for the relief of the citizens of the French West Indies was presented to the house shortly before 1 o'clock. Mr. Underwood (Ala.) suggested the opinion that there was no occasion for a "legislative spasm." He said the reports might be exaggerated and thought some of the reports should be official before action was taken. It would do no harm to wait until Monday, and notwithstanding Mr. Payne's plea for the urgent necessity for immediate action, Mr. Underwood objected.

A bill was passed to print 5000 copies of Jefferson's "Life of Jesus of Nazareth," sometimes known as "Jefferson's Bible."

Public business then was laid aside and the remainder of the day was devoted to eulogies upon the life and public services of the late Representative Polk of Pennsylvania and the late Senator Kyrle of South Dakota.

BILL AGAINST PACKERS

Filed In Court By the United States.

Chicago, May 10.—The second step in the investigation of the so-called beef trust was taken today by the filing with the clerk of the United States circuit court of the bill for an injunction prepared by Attorney General Knox, United States District Attorney Bethea and Special Counsel William A. Day. The document was handed to the clerk by Mr. Bethea, and the clerk stamped it and entered it on the records. The application for an injunction, based upon the allegations in the bill, will be made in the United States circuit court probably within ten days.

Philippine Bill Will Be Introduced By the Democrats.

Washington, May 10.—As a result of numerous conferences between Democratic senators and representatives it is expected that a measure on the political status of the Philippines will be agreed upon by the minority in both houses and introduced in each house as a Democratic substitute for the Philippine civil government bill.

It was stated today by one of the conferees that although the meetings are still in progress a general understanding has been reached on certain main features of concession on each side. The house members object to the Democratic measure in the senate, which provided for a joint protectorate over the Philippines by the United States, Great Britain and Germany and other countries entering into the treaty agreement for such protectorate. It is understood that this provision will be eliminated or much improved. On the other hand the senators objected to the house provision imposing a constitution on the Philippines during a period preceding independence. This provision will also be modified. In other respects the joint Philippine bill will combine the main features of the Democratic bills in the senate and house providing for ultimate independence of the islands. The new measure has not yet been drafted.

SENTENCED.

Mrs. Soffel and Walter Dorman Learn Their Punishment.

Pittsburg, May 10.—Mrs. Catherine Soffel, who released the Biddle brothers from the Allegheny county jail, last January, was sentenced today to two years in the penitentiary for aiding and abetting in the escape of prisoners.

Walter Dorman, the member of the Biddle gang, who turned state's evidence and entered a plea of guilty to the murder of Kahney, was today sentenced to death.

It is understood that for the assistance rendered the state, he will never be executed and that the pardon board will commute his sentence to life imprisonment.

ELEVATOR BURNED.

Steel Tank D. at Fort William Destroyed.

St. Paul, May 10.—A Winnipeg, Man., special to the Dispatch says: Steel tank Elevator D, at Fort William, of 1,500,000 bushels capacity, caught fire today and all the machinery and tower were destroyed, also eight cars of wheat standing near. The damage is estimated at $80,000 to $100,000. Combustion in one of the tanks is believed to have been the cause.

POTTS MARRIED.

Berlin, May 10.—Lieut. Commander Templin M. Potts, recently appointed United States naval attache in succession to Commander William H. Beehler, and Miss Isabella Brown, nee Charlier, of New York, were married today at the residence of John B. Jackson, the secretary of the United States embassy.

SNOW AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 10.—The city is in the grasp of a heavy snow storm. Peach trees in the Western Michigan fruit belt are all in bloom and it is feared that the storm may cause great damage among them.

WON BY ROYAL GEORGE.

London, May 10.—Royal George won the Kempton park great "jubilee" handicap (of 3000 sovereigns, for 3-year-olds and upwards, distance one mile and a quarter), at the Kempton park spring meeting today. Wargrave was second and Revenue came in third. Seventeen horses ran.

WORKMEN BURNED.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 10.—By an explosion of gas at the furnaces of the American Steel and Wire company at Neville island three men were badly burned, one fatally. Their names: Joseph Antine, aged 23 years, single; Tony Aineo, aged 32; Frank Butsch, aged 27 years. The explosion was caused by a "hang" or accumulation of metal. The furnace was not badly damaged.

POSTMASTERS.

FREEMAN GUILTY.

Menominee, Mich., May 10.—The jury has brought in a verdict of guilty of forgery and uttering forgery in the Archie Freeman case.

ROBBERS SHOOT A JEWELER.

Chicago, May 10.—Two robbers made a desperate attempt to rob the jewelry store of A. Kaemffer, 146 West Madison street, at noon today. Mr. Kaemffer was shot and pronably fatally wounded, and a colored boy who ran to his assistance was shot in the leg. Later the police arrested "Kid" Murray on suspicion.

WEALTH BEYOND DREAMS.

Hundreds of Millions Buried In Copper Creek.

More than $200,000,000 worth of copper ore! Whew-w-w-w-w! And owned by two young men now in Chicago. That is the claim of H. C. Elliott, of 4105 Vincennes avenue, and Charles G. Hubbard, of San Diego, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

These modern argonauts voyaged to Alaska in search of the golden fleece, but found a richer prize in the red ore of the Copper River district. They have plastered their claims over four miles of territory, and an expert has estimated the ore in sight at $112,000,000 at market prices. The mines are certainly good for twice the amount in sight, and by the same token there may easily be $1,000,000,000 worth of the precious metals in those claims. The thought of it is enough to take one's breath away.

In the search for this fabulous deposit of mineral wealth these American Jasons rivaled their ancient prototype in adventure as well as in luck. They had no brass shod, fire breathing bulls to yoke to a plow, but their four years in the wilderness of southeast Alaska were thickly sprinkled with disease and danger. They were caught in a scurvy camp, with companions dying all about them; they were adrift in a desolate, trackless, unknown country with the thermometer 60 degrees below zero; they had natives to propitiate and wild animals to avoid, and even in the short Arctic summer they had a lonely existence grubbing away at the hard mountain sides, 100 miles from town and succor, 1000 miles from the great world, with no means of communication, swallowed up in the solitude of the primeval north, and about as important as two ants. But they were rewarded with a find that might tempt the envy of a Carnegie or a Rockefeller, and they have lived to get back to civilization to offer a share to capitalists who will build a railroad to bring the golden fleece out of the wilderness. Incidentally, Mr. Elliott has achieved the distinction of giving his name to an Alaska creek that may become famous in mining annals.

Messrs. Elliott and Hubbard were among the prospectors who flocked to the Copper River district in 1897. Of the 4000 men who went into that territory they are believed to be the only ones who stuck it out for the four years. And small wonder. Caught in the Arctic snows far from a base of supplies their party was forced to make a camp, and when their vegetable food gave out that dread disease, scurvy, made its appearance. Of eighteen men in the party eight fell victime to the plague, four of whom died in the arms of the Chicagoan, giving him his first acquaintance with death under horrible conditions. By almost superhuman efforts the other four men were dragged on sleds back to the coast, where a diet of potatoes, onions and canned tomatoes quickly brought them back to health. The dead were buried in the wilderness where they fell, and pine trees were usually planted over their graves, with a simple head board to tell the tale of death. In one case the corpse was placed upon a great rock in the middle of the river and protected with a small cairn, which in turn was buried under stones to keep the wild beasts of the forest at bay. It was a grewsome experience, but there were dauntless spirits in the adventurous band imprisoned on the inhospitable northern coast.

Elliott and Hubbard made a fresh start, but their search was soon turned from gold to copper. Among the natives in the valley of the Copper river they found a number of implements made of copper, and were told of marvelously rich deposits on some of the small tributaries of the river. The Indians said they had learned the use of copper from the Russians, who had carried on mining operations in that country fifty years ago, and they were able to show some of the remains of an old Russian mill. Two years' wandering brought the prospectors to their precious deposit on Elliott creek. It is about 120 miles east of Valdes, the metropolis of the Copper River district. It is reached by traveling ninety miles up the river and thirty miles up the creek.

But great changes have taken place since those pioneer days. Valdes, located on Prince William sound, now has a permanent population of perhaps 500, which is swelled in the winter time by 1000 or 2000 miners from the interior and in the spring by newcomers from the states. It boasts an Episcopal church, and it is kept in touch with civilization by steamers which reach it three times a month. Valdes is the starting point for the military trail which Maj. Abercrombie has been constructing from the coast to the Yukon, 500 miles to the north. The telegraph already runs from Valdes to Eagle, an American station on the Yukon, whence it is to be extended to Dawson, and ultimately communication with the outer world. Instead of requiring two years and much sledding to reach the Elliott-Hubbard claims, it is now possible, thanks to the military trail, to use horses and make the trip in thirty days. These changes show how fast civilization is being brought to the Northern wilderness.

Elliott and Hubbard have located twenty-two claims along the face of the mountain bordering Elliott creek and extending over a distance of about four miles. They think they have the richest large body of ore yet discovered. It consists of boronite, black oxide, glance, gray copper and native copper. Most of it will run 50 to 70 per cent copper, and there are vast quantities of free milling native ore, in other words, almost solidly pure copper. In a creek not far from their claims stands a ledge or bowlder of pure copper ten feet long and five feet wide. It protrudes three feet above the ground, and no one knows how far down it extends. This is a sample of the richness of the camp.

There is one cloud to this dazzling prospect of wealth. There are no means of transporting the ore to the coast for shipment to mills. Elliott creek is not navigable and horses are out of the question. There is already talk of building a railroad up the Copper River valley and there is some prospect that such a line will be constructed within two years. In the Elliott-Hubbard claim there is such a vast quantity of ore on the surface that it can be mined with little loss of time. The owners declare they have on the dump enough ore to keep the railroad busy hauling for five years. All they need is the assurance that the road will be built in order to warrant them to go ahead with their mining operations. They have ore enough to supply the whole world, and it can be mined so cheaply as to put many old mines out of competition—providing always that it can be got to market. They estimate their creek will furnish 40,000 horse power, and there is an abundance of timber on the hills. It is estimated $250,000 worth of placer gold was brought out of the district last spring but this output is likely to be increased.

The Copper River valley, according to the returned argonauts, is a good agricultural country, which would prove profitable to a railroad. It is 20 miles long and has an average width of thirty miles. While the summer is short, the sun hardly sets, and vegetation matures rapidly. It is asserted the ground freezes to a depth of only about six inches, due to the blanket of snow and moss. The country is covered with native grasses and flowers. Red top grows to a man's shoulders. The fields are splashed with violets, roses, forget-me-nots, buttercups, honeysuckles and other blossoms, and berries can be found in abundance. Oats, wheat, barley and garden vegetables do well and horses forage for themselves from April to October. The mountains are full of game, such as quail, partridges, bear and mountain sheep. In winter the snow often lies ten or twelve feet deep, and the mercury drops to 60 below zero, but the miners dress much as they do in the states for cold weather. On the other hand, ice found in a protected pocket enables them to have cold tea for a Fourth of July celebration, although the heat felt like 90 degrees in the shade.

The natives, of whom there are about 300 in the valley, take kindly to the Americans, though they massacred 100 Russians fifty years ago. Two priests were allowed to escape, but the chief of the little band of Stik Siwash still preserves one of their crucifixes, which he wears about his neck. The natives are learning English rapidly, and Messrs. Elliott and Hubbard can now converse in Siwash. The Siwash are eager to improve their condition, but they are dwindling away, because the canneries are robbing them of their supply of salmon.

Messrs. Elliott and Hubbard will start for Alaska in a few weeks with the intention of remaining two years to work their railroad.

ADJOURN IN JUNE

House Leaders Hope to Get Through By June 15.

Differences In the Senate May Cause a Delay.

From The Herald Washington Bureau.

Washington, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Unless a wrangle develops over Cuba or the Philippines, congress will be ready to adjourn in about one month. Leaders in the house designate June 15 as the date for adjournment, and while Senator Frye and others in the senate predict that the session will last longer than that, the situation seems to justify the prediction that all important measures can be disposed of within the next four or five weeks. Of the thirteen appropriation bills eleven have been acted upon by the house, and the two remaining, the navy bill and general deficiency bill, will both be disposed of without difficulty within the next ten days. Four, the pension, diplomatic, postoffice and legislative bills, have been completed and signed by the president, and the river and harbor bill, over which there are no important difficulties, will be out of the way in a few days. The other appropriation measures can easily be disposed of before the middle of June, and thus the only prospects of protracted discussion that may bring about postponement are furnished by the differences in the senate over Cuba and the Philippines. The Democrats have taken up a good deal of time criticizing the conduct of the army in the Philippines, but they seem to have been out of material, and are now preparing to direct their fire on the Cuban tariff proposition. When they have exhausted their resources along that line, it is believed that the senate will be ready to transact all necessary business and agree to final adjournment.

Two measures of far-reaching importance, the Nicaragua canal bill and the ship subsidy bill, which have been counted upon as certain to consume much valuable time at this session, have been dropped by general consent, with the understanding that they will be taken up at the next session. The house passed the canal bill without difficulty, but no sooner had it reached the senate than the advocates of an isthmian waterway in that body began to quarrel over the route to be adopted. This quarrel received the most cordial encouragement from the lobby representing the various interests opposed to any canal, and such uncompromising differences developed that a harmony agreement by which canal legislation would result now seems almost impossible. The situation with reference to the shipping bill is practically the reverse. That measure was passed by the senate, but the hostility of Western members has prevented action by the house. The president is not enthusiastic over it, and other Republican leaders have reached the conclusion that a subsidy law enacted by a Republican congress would not prove a very effective campaign document in the congressional elections this fall. It is pointed out that if the Republicans elect a majority in the next house the shipping bill can be taken up and passed at the next session.

Another bill which will likely go over is the army staff bill prepared by Secretary Root. The opposition of Gen. Miles to the new staff plan proposed by this bill carried weight among members of the military committees of the house and senate, and even its supporters now say that delay in considering it will not injure its chances of enactment.

Senator Allison has offered an amendment to the sundry civil bill, appropriating $205,000 for general improvements at the White House, including the construction of a temporary office for the president on the White House grounds, just west of the executive mansion, to cost not more than $30,000. The temporary building is designed to be used as the president's office and to provide cabinet rooms and quarters for the clerical force, so that the rooms now used for those purposes may be converted into private apartments for the family of the president. It is to be of brick painted white and one story high and will be furnished at a cost of $10,000. The interior of the White House, under the present plan, is to be strengthened and the entire second floor converted into private apartments. An elevator is also to be furnished. The office building, it is said, can be constructed within three months. The alterations and improvements in the interior of the White House will be completed before fall.

The debate on the Philippine bill degenerated during the early days of the week into an old-fashioned bloody shirt controversy, for which the civil war was fought over and over again and during which Senator Tillman made another of his remarkable speeches. It seems to be impossible to discuss any measure of general interest to the country without stirring up strife and reopening the wounds which were supposed to have been healed. To listen to the senators as they throw invectives across the aisle at each other, an observer would imagine that the most bitter personal animosity exists between the two divisions of the upper house of congress. And yet ten minutes after the hottest kind of a debate senators who were throwing billingsgate at each other are frequently found in the restaurant dining together with, apparently, no recollection of what was just said on the floor. All the bitterness of the last few weeks has no meaning other than the desire of each side to make political capital for the coming campaign. While newspaper columns are filled with reports of debates which might lead one to think that personal encounters are imminent, no one who follows these debates ever expects anything to come of them.

The selection of Gen. Bragg of Wisconsin to be consul general at Havana, Cuba, by President Roosevelt, caused no surprise among the Wisconsin men who knew of the estimation in which the sturdy old warrior was held. It was the intention of President McKinley, during his life, to "do something" for Gen. Bragg. In fact, President McKinley twice tendered him positions which he was compelled to decline on account of ill health. The appointment as consul general at Havana would also have been declined a few years ago, but owing to the cleaning up of the city under American regime, it is no longer the unhealthy post-hole that it used to be considered, and Gen. Bragg's Wisconsin friends think that he will accept the place, for which he is recognized as eminently well qualified.

The other consular positions in Cuba will be filled at once. It will be unnecessary to say that there are plenty of applicants for them.

As the days go by the chances for the passage of the bill to create the new bureau of commerce in the house grow dimmer and beautifully less. The reason for the indisposition on the part of the members to consent to the creation of this new cabinet office is the avowed intention of the president to tender the new portfolio to Secretary Cortelyou. It is not that there is any feeling of animosity to the gentleman who so ably fills the position which he now occupies as secretary to the president, but there is a feeling that this is an important political place which ought to be given to a man of more prominence politically than Mr. Cortelyou. The house leaders can undoubtedly prevent the passage of the bill, and unless there is a decided change in their intention they will unquestionably do so during the remaining days of the present session.

THE PAVING QUESTION.

Sheet Asphalt Would Crack All to Smithereens.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I notice through the columns of The Herald that there is a lively discussion going on anent the various kinds of pavements suggested for Superior street. Consensus of opinion seems to be against asphalt. Now then, there is asphalt and asphalt. A sheet asphalt street is a nuisance in any city subject to extremes of weather. In Duluth it will crack all to smithereens; in Washington it melts and wriggles around in little wavelets in the street.

But there is an asphalt that nothing can surpass for paving purposes. First and foremost, it costs more than the sheet asphalt; true, but it lasts far longer, does not break up, offers a good clinch to horses' hoofs, and if it is broken into for sewer repairs or by accident, it is the easiest pavement to repair that there is. Not half as noisy and dangerous as granite, perfectly sanitary, always smooth in appearance and easy to keep clean, I know of nothing better than asphalt concrete-blocks for street paving, and I have had considerable experience with paving.

The mistake made in some cities is that they lay these blocks on a sand foundation. Of course there is an uneven settlement and the edges get knocked all to pieces. But if a good foundation of concrete is spread to a true level and the blocks laid without cementing, on top of this, you have a paving that cannot be surpassed and the joints take up the unevennesses that may occur from extremes of weather. Frost has no effect upon it, and you can get the full value of your money—some $2.40 per square yard for paving, good for twenty-five years!

AT WEST DULUTH

The agitation of street railway extension and other issues important to West Duluthians is having a beneficial effect toward increasing the membership and prosperity of the West Duluth Commercial club. In view of the questions that have recently arisen and which have caused so divided a sentiment in this part of the city, there have been numerous applications sent to the Commercial club for memberships, for it is the purpose of the club to thoroughly discuss and then take action on all matters relating to the welfare of this part of the city, and any citizen with public spirit can hardly afford to stay outside the organization. The membership of the club at the present time is 120, and its promoters fully expect to see a membership of 150 before midsummer.

The club took the following members into the fold last evening: John Winberg, O. S. Olson, Charles Kaupp, Nels Nyhus and F. J. Lynch. Other new members will be added at the next meeting.

The club took up the street railway extension matter again last evening. By agreement there was no further discussion on the subject, as the ground has been pretty well covered at the previous meetings. The time was devoted mainly to voting on the various propositions.

Nothing definite was done toward reaching an agreement as to where the proposed extension shall run. A vote was taken on the Grand avenue, Norton avenue and the "loop," resulting in 19 ballots for Grand avenue, 17 for Norton avenue and 16 for the loop. This was followed by a test vote, the motion being made that Grand avenue be declared the choice. The vote stood 22 for the route to 24 against it. The result of this vote was not as favorable as was looked for by those advocating the Norton avenue route, and a motion was made to adjourn before any further action could be taken. The motion carried by a close margin.

In the haste to bring about an adjournment nothing was said about the time for holding the next session, and, according to the by-laws, it will not take place until the second Friday in June. This is thought to be too long a period to let matters rest, and it is probable that a special meeting will be called by the president for next Friday evening, or for one week from that evening.

In the meantime there will be some hustling done by the people that are in favor of the different routes to get the preponderance of sentiment over to their way of thinking. Members of the club say that steps will be taken to see that no measures pass the city council regarding routes until the people have decided over which route they desire to have the street railway company build its extension.

BALLASTING THE ROAD.

Harry Huntoon, who has been teaching for the past year about sixteen miles back of the city, has finished his term and returned to his home in West Duluth. He drove in last evening and says that he had a very unpleasant experience in the snow storm. The falling snow covered up the soft spots in the road and made driving rather precarious.

Mr. Huntoon says that the Brooks-Scanlon company, whose logging road runs through the district where he has been teaching, has a gravel train and large crew at work ballasting the new road through the swamps. When the road was first put down last fall and winter it was built rapidly owing to the frozen ground. The track was built over corduroy roads through the swamps, and now the gravel is being dumped on top of the corduroy road. In many places the timbers laid down were not more than twenty or twenty-five feet long, and difficulty is now being experienced in filling in satisfactorily in those places. Where the timbers were left very long the filling in process is accomplished more rapidly.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Rev. W. E. Loomis, pastor of the Asbury M. E. church in West Duluth, will preach Sunday morning on the subject, "Continuation of the Things That Jesus Began to Do and Teach." The evening service will begin at 8 o'clock, and the subject will be "Knowing God—a Joyous Experience." Sunday school at 11:45 o'clock in the morning. Epworth league will meet at 7 o'clock in the afternoon.

Philip Bevis, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., will conduct the services at the Presbyterian church of West Duluth, Sunday evening, at 7:45 o'clock.

Rev. Arthur J. Hoag will speak both morning and evening at the West Duluth Baptist church. In the morning the topic will be "Shall We Judge One Another?" The subject of the evening discourse will be, "Three Gardens." Sunday school at noon. The B. Y. P. U. will meet at 7 o'clock in the afternoon.

John Carlson, an employe of the Missabe road, was brought to the Red Cross hospital yesterday afternoon from Virginia, suffering from a compound fracture of the le[illegible].

Charles Grignon and William Guir returned this morning from Cross river, on the north shore, where they have been employed by the Schroeder Lumber company. The men say that the company has some good dams at Cross river, but there is no water to hold back. The dams have been closed since last October, and the water has raised only three or four feet. They say log driving will be a hard proposition on Cross river this season.

The remains of John Hays, of Eau Claire, Wis., who died suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. Hagerty, Thursday evening, will be sent to Eau Claire for the funeral and burial this afternoon. The remains will be accompanied by Mrs. Hagerty and her son, Edward Hagerty.

Joseph Fillatrault has returned from the range.

Miss Blanch Fillatrault has returned from a visit at St. Paul.

R. J. Brotherton has gone to Stillwater, Minn., to visit relatives.

G. F. Davis is on the sick list.

Miss Constance Klove has gone to La Crosse, Wis., for an extended visit.

ACTINIC RAYS

Are Tried at Hospital For Curing Disease.

New York, May 10.—There was an interesting clinic with the Actinic rays Thursday at the New York Homeopathic medical college and hospital, Sixty-third street and Eastern boulevard. About 200 doctors, invited from many parts of the country, witnessed the demonstration by Dr. William H. King. The ray was administered to two cancerous patients and one tuberculosis patient, all men. The machine employed is called the actinolite, and is said to have been used successfully in Germany in tuberculosis and cancerous cases. This is the first time it has been put up in this country. It is used with the direct current of an arc light. By a peculiarity of the lenses the injurious rays of light are eliminated and the violent rays focused on the diseased part. Superintendent Hornby said the treatment, which had been begun a few days ago, would be contined every other day for a month or two. If any signs of improvement were observed other patients would receive the same treatment. Applications for the treatment had been received from all over the country.

PETER DONOHUE DYING.

San Francisco, May 10.—Private advices from London state that Peter Donohue, the well known California capitalist, is dying in that city. His cousin, Baroness Von Schroeder, who was in Germany, is hastening to his side. In 1899 Mr. Donohue was made a knight of the Order of St. Gregory by Pope Leo XIII.

AT THE HOTELS

W. W. Broughton, traffic manager of the Eastern Minnesota, who came to the Spalding last evening, says he saw E. L. Brown in St. Paul this week. Mr. Broughton says Mr. Brown is looking fine, and is enthusiastic over his new position as general superintendent of the Montana Central, and his new residence at Great Falls. Mr. Brown is also said to be succeeding exceptionally well in the Klekers' club extension movement, in which he is the most active worker. He already said to have added a governor or two and a few United States senators to the active list of the club. He finds them better material for effective club members than common judges and railroad men.

TRAMP'S DIRECTIONS.

Take the one single incident of direction for rendezvous, memoranda, etc., on water tanks and in stations. I have looked for such with but very small success, considering the bulk of the legends about them, though I have found them, says a writer in the Independent. And although very striking cases of selection among houses for begging purposes have come under my notice, I have never yet found a perfectly authentic instance of designating mark. When, therefore, the residence of my friend, A. L., was visited regularly, and that of his next door neighbor, P. B., a lawyer, neglected, and that of his opposite neighbor, Sheriff A. M., shunned, I am confident it is all due to oral communication. And it shows what was possible in the days before the telegraph and newspaper that when my friend Judge S's patience finally broke down, and from being the defender of tramps in court, and their feeder at home, he told one of them to let it be known from Hartford to Boston that he "would arrest the next one that came to his door" inside of forty-eight hours the plague had ceased!

SUN A POOR TIMEKEEPER.

The sun does not keep good time. He is almost always too fast or too slow. Once about the middle of April he is just on time, then not again before the middle of June. At the beginning of September he joins the clock a third time, and lastly once more late in December. Now it would seem as if he were started at the way he had neglected us, says the Ladies' Home Journal. In February he fell back until he was fifteen minutes late. By the beginning of March he had made up five minutes of his loss, and before the month is over he will have caught up to within five minutes of the schedule. Meanwhile the days have been growing longer very rapidly. We begin March with our nights longer than our days. We end it with our days longer than our nights. In the one month we have added to the length of our day an hour and twenty minutes, a bigger gain than any other month can show.

DR. MITCHELL

During His Four Years' Stay In This City Has Made A Great Record.

By his method of magnetic healing in treating and curing disease by rebuilding wasted energies and by instilling new life where life barely exists, it does away with the use of drugs and surgical instruments and performs cures which are the marvel of the most able physicians.

It is no longer necessary to fill your weakened body with drugs and medicines, nor is it necessary to go to other sections of the country or other countries to obtain various treatments for the diseases that flesh is heir to. Here at home, within the reach of everyone, is a method of treatment which has no equal anywhere. Magnetic treatment purifies the blood and regulates the circulation. It builds up the nerves, the muscles and the entire system. This treatment imparts a vital force to the patient by sending a natural circulation of the blood into all parts of the body. It is in no manner experimental, though it discards the use of means employed by the majority of physicians. The magnetic treatment, as given by Dr. Mitchell, succeeds after everything else has failed.

After a careful diagnosis of your condition, if your case is found such that you cannot be cured, Dr. Mitchell will frankly tell you so as he does not care to handle incurable cases. It does not make any difference what others say of your disease. Dr. Mitchell's magnetic treatment cures where all other methods fail. We would strongly urge every sufferer from any bodily ailment to see what this treatment can do in his or her case.

It now rests with you. You want to be cured? Dr. Mitchell will cure you. His method of treatment will invariably tone up and invigorate the system and bring about a thoroughly robust and vigorous condition and a full treatment may be relied upon to put new life and vigor into the most broken and impoverished constitution. If this advertisement induces you to try this grand treatment you will bless the day you read it. No charges for consultation.

THE MINE VALUES

Usual Method of Getting Relative Valuations to Be Followed.

Little Doubt of Substantial Increases---Meeting In July.

The 1902 meeting of the St. Louis county board of equalization will be one of the interesting events of the summer. It will be held in July, and the principal thing of interest to come up will be the assessment of the iron mines of the country.

There is considerable speculation on the amount of the raise that will be made in the mines this year. Last year a considerable increase was made in the personal property assessments, particularly on the stock piles. It was conceded that the amount at which the ore on the stock piles was assessed, $1 per ton, was out of proportion to other assessments, being considered too high, but the increase was made because it was generally known that the real estate assessments of the mines were far too low. The mining companies did not oppose the assessment, though protesting it was too high, undoubtedly because they realized also that their real estate assessments were too low.

This year the real estate of the mines will be assessed for the first time since the public and the assessing officers first got an idea of the value of the mines. The knowledge that has been gained since two years ago will be used, and the assessments will be multiplied.

The manner of procedure in the past has been for the mining companies to get together and decide upon relative valuations of all known iron properties, and offer this to the board to be acted upon with the request that all increases be made horizontally. As this solves the difficult problem of getting at the valuations of the mines, the board has always been glad to accept these schedules. It is probable that the same thing will be done this year.

County Auditor Hialden and other members of the county board of equalization have gone on record as in favor of very substantial increases in the valuations of the mines, and there is no doubt that such increases will result from the meeting of the board.

RECENT RAINS

Have Been Great Aid to Northwestern Crops.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Recent rains, according to the second crop bulletin of the series annually issued by Vice President Hannaford of the Northern Pacific, have been a great aid to crops throughout the Northwest. In Minnesota seeding is completed except in the northwestern part of the state and over most of the central and western territory crops are well out of the ground.

Plowing for corn and potatoes has been somewhat delayed by the rains. In the Red River valley the planting of crops has been materially affected. Wheat acreage in that district will be greatly reduced, but will probably be equalized by an increased acreage of corn and flax and other crops that may be planted late in the season. The needed moisture has been received throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Pasturage is excellent through the western part of the state, and such crops as are above the ground are making a fine showing. Throughout the far West conditions are excellent.

OSTEOPATHY

For Business People--- It Revives and Restores.

Many people having the cares and responsibilities of business or a profession become at times almost exhausted from too great a demand upon their nervous, mental or physical energy. Nothing will revive and recuperate from such conditions like Osteopathic treatments, such as are given at the Branch Minneapolis Institute and Infirmary of Osteopathy, 512-13-14 Torrey building, this city.

WINTER AT MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, May 10.—Rain, which began to fall after midnight, turned into snow this morning. The ground was covered with about an inch, but it soon melted. At 9 o'clock the snow gave way to a light rain. Temperature is about at the freezing point and unprotected stuff will suffer. The storm is general in this vicinity and is a new departure for this season of the year.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

Was Her Deliverer From Nervous Prostration, Insomnia, Mental Depression, and Weakness of Her Digestive Organs.

A Special Message Comfort For Sick and Despondent Women.

Mrs. F. L. Bernhardt, 382 Newbury street, Boston, Mass., found herself in an extremely perilous condition of health after a surgical operation. Her touching story, written for the benefit of other sufferers, is as follows:

"It is with a feeling of extreme gratitude and thankfulness and a humane desire to benefit others, that I write out my own experience in the use of Professor Edward E. Phelps' wonderful preparation called Paine's Celery Compound. Owing to a fall from a horse several years ago I became a nervous invalid, and last year I entered a hospital where I was operated upon by a famous New York surgeon.

"The surgical operation was successful, but nervous prostration followed. A summer in Newport with the best medical attendance failed to restore my nerves to their normal condition. I was absolutely unable to digest any solid food, and this weak condition of my digestive organs, combined with insomnia, caused the deepest depression. A constant tenderness and soreness in the region of my stomach, with a dull headache and extreme weakness, created a feeling of helplessness from which I was unable to rise.

"It was in this melancholy frame of mind that I chanced to meet a Boston lawyer, who said to me: 'I was in almost the condition that you are now in, and after spending hundreds of dollars without receiving any benefit, I was induced by a friend to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial, which I did, and it cured me completely when everything else had failed.'

"I was rather skeptical about trying a patent medicine, but I ordered a bottle from my druggist and began to take it according to directions. Much to my surprise, I slept soundly at night, and did not awake in the morning with the usual dull headache. Then, too, I developed an appetite for solid food, and soon I was able to digest a course dinner without any unpleasant sensations. I am now completely restored to health after about two months' use of the Compound.

"Sympathizing with all who may be suffering as I did, I take this method of reaching strangers, after writing personal letters to my particular friends."

LE SUEUR WON

Championship In First Annual High School Debate.

Minneapolis, May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Le Suer won the state championship in the first annual high school debate held last evening at University hall. The subject under discussion was, "Resolved, that capital punishment should be abolished in the United States." Le Suer, represented by Alice Currer, Michael Doherty and Henry Currer, assumed the affirmative side, while the negative end of the argument was intrusted to Lotta Gray, Viggo Johnson and William Padden, of Glenwood. The judges were E. A. Jaggard, of St. Paul; John N. Greer and H. V. Mercer, of Minneapolis.

VIOLET RAYS.

This Famous Light That Cures Disease Used In Duluth.

An elaborate apparatus for generating the actinic or violet rays, the new healing light that is attracting so much attention in the East, has just been installed in this city at 319 First avenue east, by the Herbaqueen company, to be used in connection with their herb remedies.

The apparatus consists of a powerful 30-amper lamp of 5000-candle power, nicely adjusted with three powerful lenses and a violet screen, and is the same as that used by the New York specialists in treating tuberculosis, cancer and other germ diseases.

Already a number of Duluth people have tried it with very beneficial results.

OAKES GETS GIRL.

An Otter Tail County Father Is Outwitted.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 10.—William Oakes, who eloped with 15-year-old Emma Erickson, appears to have outwitted finally his irate father-in-law. Mr. Erickson had the young man arrested for abduction and took his daughter home immediately after the marriage.

The Erickson family is now on the way to the state of Washington, and while waiting at the station, the young bride excused herself long enough to go to a store near by and buy some candy. As she reached the street her husband, who is out on bail, drove up with a buggy and the couple drove away.

The family went on and the young people will probably be unmolested in the future.

GIRLS ON GRIDIRON

Co-Eds Play a Practice Game Terribly In Earnest.

Juniors Won the Contest By Seven Points to Three.

Chicago, May 10.—University of Chicago co-eds practiced football tactics in their contest for basket ball prestige on their new athletic field yesterday, and the result was that one girl was carried from the game, and two others had to be revived with water before they could continue.

Bickell, Miss Charlotte, junior, felled in a scrimmage, trampled on and found helpless, revived with water, but taken to her dormitory home.

Goldstein, Miss Margaret, junior, laid low by rough play, revived by cold water treatment.

Moore, Miss Grace, felled in fierce rush near goal, revived by cold water treatment.

Capt. Agnes Wayman is leader of the senior college team. She was captain of the junior college team last year. Largely through her strength and skill the squad was able to win the basket ball championship of the university last year, and Miss Wayman again was eager to win the honor. The first game was played a fortnight ago, and after a fierce contest the score stood a tie, 9 to 9.

Miss Bickell was the first co-ed to fall in the final contest. She was refreshed with water, and fans were brought into play. After she had taken full time to recover, she declared her intention of continuing in the match. She did continue. She went into the scrimmages more fiercely than before.

The next victim of exhaustion was Miss Goldstein. After her neck and forehead were bathed in cold water for some time she declared that she would continue the play.

Capt. Wayman's senior team was being slowly defeated and the injuries only made them the more keen for the fray. They attacked the goal of the juniors and scored a goal, but in the struggle Miss Bickell was trampled under foot. An intermission followed this goal and it was only then the co-eds saw that they had left one of their number helpless on the field of play. Her mates ran to her assistance and dashed water into her face. It was useless this time, for she was completely exhausted. She was carried from the field and Miss Helen Brandies took her place.

Play was resumed. The score now was almost a tie. The seniors had another point to make to even the score after securing the goal near which Miss Bickell was forced out of the game. However, the loss of their team mate made the juniors more aggressive than ever and they rushed the seniors off their feet.

Another girl fell near the senior goal. This time it was a senior, Miss Moore. She was revived in football fashion and was able to continue the game.

The juniors won the contest with a total of seven points to their opponents' three.

CROSS ACQUITTED.

Found Not Guilty of Forgery at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 10—James A. Cross, late bookkeeper for the Scanlon-Gipson Lumber company, was acquitted of a charge of forgery. Cross was accused of having forged a check for $3900, using the name of Scanlon-Gipson, and of cashing it at the Germania bank. A suit for the amount of this check has been commenced against the lumber company by the bank, but as the result of this case practically decides that the lumber company is liable, the money will probably be paid over without further litigation.

It appeared from the evidence that Cross was in the habit of signing checks for his employers and that he was authorized by them to do so.

Cross is being held on another count in default of $1500 bail.

AGED COUPLE

Married Seventy-Three Years and Both Use Tobacco.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 10.—Reuben Hunter, of Fairfield, Iowa, is 93 years of age, has been married seventy-three years, and has voted at every presidential election since Andrew Jackson's time.

Hunter is at the present time very hale and hearty, and, in spite of a long life filled with hard work, is very active and spry. Mrs. Hunter, however, has been ill for a couple of years, and is very feeble at the present time. They have made their home with their daughter, Mrs. W. H. Sullivan, near Fairfield, for the past sixteen years.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunter claim to hold the record of the Northwest on long marriages, and hope to be able to celebrate their diamond wedding. They have been married a year longer than Mr. and Mrs. John L. Robinson, of Sibley, who consider themselves well along the martial pathway, and their record is three years better than was that of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Van Sant, of Le Claire, parents of the governor of Minnesota, at the time of Mr. Van Sant's death, which occurred recently.

Reuben Hunter was born in the "Green Mountain State" in 1809. His parents died when he was very small, and he is still ignorant of his family history. He was taken by a family named Wright, and with them removed to Ohio. Here, in 1829, he was married to Miss Sarah Reed. Miss Reed was a native of Pennsylvania, and was 19 years of age at the time of the marriage, while her husband was 20. They remained in Ohio for twenty-three years, and then following the advice of Horace Greeley, not yet delivered, they came West. They settled in Van Buren county, Iowa, where they have lived continuously until the time they took up their abode at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Sullivan.

In all eleven children were born to them, six of whom are still living. In addition to Mrs. Sullivan, who is in her 54th year, there are:

Jane McCausland, Birmingham, Van Buren county, Iowa, aged 71; Margaret Potter and Lovica Trunnell, of Audubon, Iowa; Joseph Hunter, of Quiteman, Mo., and C. E. Hunter, of Armour, S. D.

Mr. Hunter has always been a Republican, and refused to vote for Andrew Jackson because he was not of that political faith.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hunter have used tobacco from childhood, and strong coffee all their lives. They do not believe that they have suffered any harmful effects from the use of either.

Mr. Hunter enjoys the pleasures of a good education, and spends most of his time in reading, his eyes being still in very good condition.

"A CHILDISH GAME."

Wu Ting Fang Talks of the Ping Pong Pang.

Washington, May 10.—Minister Wu Ting Fang does not like ping-pong. He says the only thing about it is its name, which has a familiar Oriental sound. "It is a childish game," said Minister Wu. "You hit a little ball with a raquet and the ball hits the table, and between the two they make the sound ping-pong, and that is the game. It is lawn tennis, only it is played indoors in the close atmosphere, and gives nobody any valuable exercise.

"I have heard of ping-pong pang, which is supposed to be a pain in the shinbone caused by stooping to pick up the ball. I should think the game might make you tired in the arm or in the leg. I have seen statements in the papers that I am afflicted with ping-pong pang. As I have never played ping-pong I could not have the pang, and I am afraid that some of your American correspondents has written a story just because it sounded nice to say that Wu Ting Fang had ping-pong pang.

"I have not even played golf, although I have seen the game several times. It is a little too violent for me, as I get all the exercise I need on the wheel and walking."

YEARS' SAVINGS GONE.

Anoka Man Robbed and His Daughter Arrested.

Anoka, Minn., May 10.—Jacob Jonevetich, a junk peddler of this place, was relieved of $750, the result of years' savings, a few days ago, and his daughter, Mrs. Urist, of St. Paul, was arrested by the sheriff and brought to Anoka, and is now held under $1000 bonds waiting the action of the grand jury.

Mrs. Urist recently came to Anoka for the purpose of making a two weeks' visit with her parents, but after a two-days' stay returned to St. Paul, the money being missed at about the same time.

The woman learned of the whereabouts of the money through a younger member of the family. The father pleaded with his daughter but to no avail, and later caused her arrest.

CORSETS ON "DUMMY."

An Exhibit In a Chicago Police Court.

Chicago, May 10.—A pair of $9 corsets are to be fitted to a wooden "dummy" in Justice Dooley's court. If the corsets fit, according to the magistrate's idea of what a fit should be, Mrs. Annie Graff Bryant, teacher of voice culture in the Fine Arts building, probably will be required to pay the price of them to Miss Cora Fitzgerald, manager of a corset company in McVicker's Theater building.

Mrs. Bryant ordered the corsets some time ago and they were made and delivered to her. When the collector called the trouble began. The voice manipulator declared that the corsets did not fit and refused to pay.

Yesterday Mrs. Bryant was sued for the $9 and the attorneys in the case are prepared to introduce the "dummy" so that Justice Dooley can be made to understand the fine points at issue.

Post Haste.

Before railroads the traveler (who could afford it) desiring to get from place to place more quickly than by the ordinary means, traveled by post with relays of horses and rapid changes at frequent intervals. This materially accelerated the speed, and thus the expression "post haste." In no period of the world's history has there been greater advance in the means of communication and transportation than during the last fifty years of the nineteenth century. To realize this fully one might compare the old "post haste" accommodations with, for example, the comforts, speed and general security afforded the traveler by the Milwaukee road with its Pioneer Limited train between the two cities and Chicago—the famous train of the world.

Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located.

Senator Sullivan says: "I take Pleasure in Recommending Your Great National Catarrh Cure, Peruna, as the Best I Have Ever Tried."

Hon. W. V. Sullivan, United States senator from Mississippi, in a letter recently written to Dr. Hartman, from Oxford, Miss., says the following of Peruna as a catarrh remedy:

"For some time I have been a sufferer from catarrh in its most insipient stage, so much so that I became alarmed as to my general health. But, hearing of Peruna as a good remedy, I gave it a fair trial and soon began to improve. Its effects were distinctly beneficial, removing the annoying symptoms, and it was particularly good as a tonic.

"I take pleasure in recommending your great national catarrh cure, Peruna, as the best I have ever tried."

W. V. SULLIVAN.

We have letters of recommendation from over forty members of congress attesting to the virtues of Peruna as a catarrhal tonic.

A book containing testimonials of prominent men and women who use Peruna sent free by the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Jane McCausland, venerable counsel of Garland camp 2922, Modern Woodmen of America, writes from Aurora, Ill., Beacon office, as follows:

"I endorse Peruna because I have found by personal experience that it is not a common patent medicine, but a scientifically prepared medicine which simply cures catarrh and cleanses the blood of its impurities, keeping the system in a fine, healthy condition.

"I consider it as rather a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and have never found any which acts as promptly and permanently as Peruna.

"It deserves the highest praise and I know that those who have tried it have perfect faith in it. "C. F. JENKINS."

After all the personal experience of one man is worth more than the theoretical guesses of a thousand men. Mr. Jenkins knows what he is talking about when he recommends Peruna, because he has tried it. Peruna cures catarrh because it reaches the source of catarrh.

Peruna cleanses the blood of its impurities because it regulates those organs that make blood.

Peruna keeps the system in a fine, healthy condition, because it restores the functions of every organ, and brings vigor to the organic nervous system.

Mr. Jenkins is right. Peruna is a carefully prepared prescription, prepared by one of the oldest and best-known physicians in America. This is why it acts promptly and permanently.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, congressman from Louisiana, was elected to the fifty-third, fifty-fourth and fifty-fifth congresses. In a letter written at Washington, D. C., he says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all round good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."

H. W. OGDEN.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

FRANCE NOT DECADENT.

Ex-Minister Hanotaux Says So at Least.

P. Gabriel Hanotaux, the ex-minister of foreign affairs, and member of the Academy, has just published a book called "L'Energie Francaise," in which he gives some interesting facts concerning new French industries, and also some reasons which go to prove that the country is not in such a state of decadence as its enemies choose to think, writes the Paris correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle. In the introduction he talks of the "joie de vivre" of the French, and says that he does not feel like putting a damper upon their gladness to be among the living, for if the Almighty declared that man shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow, He did not say that it would be to the exclusion of days of rest, and the taste now and then of the joys of life ought to be unpleasant in the sight of a God who made them.

Al who have sojourned in Paris will agree with this description of the Parisian it is too well put not to quote the whole paragraph. After saying that prudence and the spirit of economy are among the qualities which distinguish the citizen and peasant, that there are thirty-six millions of rularls with three millions of Parisians facing them, who counterbalance them, and that the world pudges France by mtal t does not know, and by the Parisians whom it thinks it knows, he gives the following description of the Parisian:

"He is a being who is ardent, active full of imagination, perpetually in motion, gay, amiable, confidential, cunning, enduring, but a nibbler at the bait, imprudent, versatile; has ideas, is ingenious, but wasteful, iconoclastic, prodigal; a being who wanders from one end of the year to the other, with clockwork regularity, the few acres on which he lives, and who believes them, in good faith, to be the best in the world; is as prompt to show himself when morally undressed as others are to conceal themselves; a being who is externally vain, intemperate, often rash, a lover of show, but at times atrociously ferocious; a being who does not seem to be able to master either his heart, his imagination or his nerves, but who says everything with his heart, imagination and nerves; a being whom everybody takes for the typical Frenchman, the Frenchman par excellence, but who has no likeness to the thirty-six millions of whom he is the brother and the son."

The author has a chapter on what the French call "La houille blanc," white coal. What can white coal be? It is the waterfalls, cascades, which, in the south of France are being put pnder control, and is producing motive power which is produced up north by coal. The natural force of water is made to do what steam and electricity do at greater expense.

It is M. Berges, a man of great enterprise, who has applied water power to important manufactures. He lives near Grenoble and is a paper manufacturer. One day, when it was known that he had ordered some pipes to capture a waterfall 20 metres high, the people said: "His pipes will burst, his turbine wheels will break; he is crazy; it would be better to lock him up." The experiment succeeded, the inventor now has three factories which are in running order. The first one mentioned, having been improved, now has 4000 horsepower, going twenty-four hours a day, and all the year round. In the second factory he uses a waterfall called "La Gorge," over 2500 feet high. With this he not only has the motive power for his own industry, but gives it to smaller ones in the neighborhood. The motive power has been transformed into heat, power and light. In his workshops M. Berges bleaches the paste used for paper with electricity generated by the water power, and produces carburet of calcium. More than that, he has produced currents of electricity which light three extensive valleys lying at the foot of his captured waterfalls.

His third project is still more vast and ingenious. There are two great lakes which are in proximity to glaciers, which feed the lakes. By means of tunnels the 1,100,000 cubic meters of water which the lakes contain will be made useful. The glaciers will be made to do their work. They freeze the water, and preserve it against the time when it will come to use.

M. Hanotaux says that M. Berges is incontestably the first man who dared to utilize the high waterfalls. In a recent work, M. Tevernier estimates this power used, or about to be used, in workshops in France at 250,000 horsepower.

M. Hanotaux has a whole chapter on the question, "Is France is a State of Decadence?" In the first place, as a true native of the Gallic countries, he protests against the insertion that the prosperity of a country lies entirely in its mercantile qualities. He says to reduce the prosperity of a country to so many figures is to try to prove the square of a circle. "Life is not an arithmetic," and he knows nothing more pitiable than a government which takes for a formula, 'What does it bring?' A nation is not a shop or farm.

As for the modern question of billionaires, they prove nothing in the face of happiness. A prodigious inequality, a gigantic disproportion, only create a terrible disturbance. The chief end of man is individual comfort and content; all needs must be satisfied, all movements must have freedom, and the best country is the one that produces the greatest amount of satisfaction to the individual.

There is no country in which there is more equilibrium, in which proportions are more equal than France. It is the land in which one lives and lets live. For ten centuries it has weathered all kinds of catastrophes, and it has the strength to overcome those of the future. Its grapevines were devastated. This threatened to ruin one of the great industries. That crisis is passed. The peculiar trade of France will always flourish, for the things it produces are its own; and here Hanotaux asks pertinent questions. How many tons of coal are necessary to represent the profit of the sale of a set of jewels? How many litters of beer for a bottle of champagne? How many meters of cotton for a bow of ribbon put on a hat sold in the Rue de la Paix? How many loads of wood for the smallest picture signed "Meissonier?"

Then France is rich in money. It is the bank of Europe. When European nations are hard up, want a loan, they naturally look to France. Money is plenty, but it must come from somewhere. Thrift accumulates money, but it must be made in order to save it. Statistics give an idea of the amount of business a nation does, but they are silent on the question of profits; and profits, in Hanotaux's mind, are what tell.

STOCKING DECORATORS.

A Parisian "decorator of ladies' stockings" has so far forgotten professional discretion as to tell tales out of his studio, says the London Telegraph. The artist designs hosiery chiefly for fair, fastidious and extravagant beauties of the "world which amuses itself." These ladies will only wear stockings the patterns of which are unique, and they retain the copyright of the designs. It is even more indiscreet of the artist to reveal that for one of his customers he has made delicate hose embroidered with a Cupid climbing up the lace insertions, and for another a pair on which was exquisitely worked a serpent having two pearls for its eyes. Other "art" stockings are decorated with perfect imitation of flowers embroidered in colors, lilies of the valley, violets and lilacs being favorite blooms. Most of the ladies select a particular flower which they order to be worked on all their hosiery. It appears, however, that, generally speaking, the stocking embroidered in colors is considered a trifle loud. Ladies of severer taste prefer black lace, but jeweled ornaments on the latter are regarded as quite permissible. The artist in question charges any price, from £24 upward, for a pair of hose.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), May 10.—Pressures continue high in the lake region and low in the extreme Northwest. It is much cooler in New England states and continues cool throughout the lake region and Northwest, with freezing temperatures over Northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Red River valley. Rain or snow fell over Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northwest Canada, and rain over North Pacific districts and South Atlantic states. The snow storm at Duluth was the heaviest for May in about twenty years. The winds in the lake region are fresh and brisk easterly. Storm northeast warnings were ordered in the Duluth district at 10 o'clock last night and at stations on the balance of Superior and Michigan at 10 o'clock this morning.

FULL OF ENTERPRISE.

Richmond, Minn., Standard: The Duluth Evening Herald is among the best and leading dailies that reach our exchange table. Full of progress, enterprise, and up-to-date methods in metropolitan journalism, The Herald easily ranks as one of the leading daily newspapers in the Northwest. It is a lasting and decided credit to the Zenith City, as well as Northern Minnesota.

Future of the Wisconsin Central.

The report that the Canadian Pacific is seeking to get control of the Wisconsin Central railroad is not generally credited. It does not appear very plainly what particular advantage such a connection would be to the great Canadian transcontinental system. It is true it would secure an entrance into Chicago, but by a very roundabout way, as the nearest connection the Canadian Pacific could make with the Wisconsin Central would be via the South Shore near Ashland. Yet the report may be correct. The Wisconsin Central has $12,500,000 of preferred and $17,500,000 of common stock and, with its bonded debt, it represents a cost of $65,000 a mile, but a majority of the stock might be secured for about $10,000,000. The road needs new equipment, and if it should fall into the hands of the Canadian Pacific it would undoubtedly be put into good shape and made a first class road.

The Work Ahead of Congress.

From the present outlook, it seems probable that the Philippine bill will be passed, although just when is a matter of conjecture. As soon as the oratorical ammunition is exhausted on both sides, then a vote may be looked for. There promises to be more trouble in getting rid of the Cuban reciprocity measure, for up to this time there is no indication that the administration has made any headway with its plans in the upper branch of congress. Until the recent decision of the president to compel congress to adopt some measure for the relief of Cuba, even if he had to call an extra session this summer, little attention has been given to this matter. It had almost been permitted to lapse by default, the administration leaders apparently not caring to tackle the formidable problem presented in the opposition of a number of Republicans to the house measure. By many it had been accepted as final that nothing would be done for Cuba in the way of a direct reduction in the tariff. Now this feeling is changed, and the administration men in the senate are stirring themselves and speculating on what can be done. It is noteworthy also that the beet sugar men have somewhat changed their tactics. From a position of being willing to grant nothing to Cuba, they say that a rebate is the proper thing. They propose that the government collect the usual duties on imports from Cuba, keep out a certain percentage of the duties and return this money to Cuba to be distributed among the planters and others who product the products for export. This proposition was brought up early in the session, but was abandoned because of the difficulty that would be encountered in seeing that the rebates got into the hands of the proper persons. Those who want to see an isthmian canal bill passed are also picking up hopes, although there is less chance for such a measure than for the Philippine government bill and the Cuban reciprocity bill. The leaders are at work outlining a policy to pursue and things will soon assume a more definite form.

AN UNJUST SYSTEM.

Another inequality in the present system of transcontinental tariffs is shown in the application of the Leadville board of trade for an investigation of its charges that the railroads are charging as much to transport freight from the Atlantic seaboard or Chicago to Colorado jobbing points as they do to transport the same weight and class of freight from the same points to the Pacific coast.

The contention is of interest in Duluth merely because it shows how widespread is the discrimination in favor of the long haul and against the short haul. Duluth jobbers are required to maintain warehouses at Eastern manufacturing points and at coast distributing points if they are to send their goods into Pacific coast territory. They do this because they are obliged to pay only one freight bill on a shipment to the coast, if they have any chance to meet competition in that territory. If they ship their goods from the manufactory to their Duluth warehouse and then reship to fill an order from the coast, the sum total of the two freight bills would be equal to about twice the rate the New York jobber would have to pay on the same shipment from his warehouse to his customer on the Pacific coast.

The system is wrong and unjust and always has been, and it is gratifying to note that such general opposition to it is becoming active. With both Chicago and Leadville attacking the system, some facts are likely to be brought to light that may prove influential in a correction of present abuses.

MAN NEEDS SYMPATHY.

Richard Mansfield, admittedly the greatest American actor since Edwin Booth, has drunk deeply of the cup of fame on the stage, and has found only dregs at the bottom. As an artist in all lines of the drama, there is no question but that Mansfield is the greatest man the American stage has ever known. As Richard III, Cyrano, or in any of the lighter comedy legitimate roles; in modern character comedy, in romantic comedy or drama of modern or legitimate type, or in farce comedy of musical comedy, he excells any of his compeers. As a stage manager he has no equals. As an adapter or writer of plays he has made his mark. As an authority on the drama in all its branches he is considered today the foremost American judgment.

Yet, with all this fame—the utmost, it would seem, that he could desire—he has determined to retire from the stage after three more seasons, if not before. He has a chronic nervous affliction that has won him many attacks from the press, and which makes him an easy mark for the worries of his life as star, director and manager. That is his primary reason for quitting what is admittedly the first place on the American stage.

But he adds something in a recent interview on the subject that may serve as enlightenment to those who may entertain ambition to go on the stage. It is the fact that the admiration of the public, and perhaps transient riches for those most successful, are matters only of the moment. Says he:

"Now that I am in a position to quit this work, which taxes every nerve and fiber of my being, I think no one should deny me the opportunity of gaining a little of that pleasure out of life which others value so highly. Many a night when I return to my silent car after an evening of the most flattering public adulation, I feel sick at heart and long for human companionship. The actor, after all, is only a man. Yet what does he get out of life? I, for my part, live like a recluse. In many cities I do not know so much as a single soul. I walk through the crowded streets an dI feel like a stranger in a strange land. A feeling of gloom settles over me, and I hurry back to my car in the pleasant environment of a railway station. No cheerful face awaits my home coming, not a note of welcome, not so much as a single blossom to show me that I am a man in a world of which he is a part, and in which there are beings who care for him. Mind you, I do not expect any of this. It is the actor's fate. But the time comes, as it has come to me, when every player who has had nearly all the humanity knocked out of him, will long to return to the life of his kind and enjoy himself with his fellowbeings."

Mansfield's determination, which he says he made two years ago, has since been preparing to carry out, simply proves that man cannot be happy within himself. Communion with other persons, the essential basis of society, is necessary to the development and conservation of a sane and well balanced individuality. Man can no more live without the sympathy of other persons and be happy than he can live without food. Admiration and riches, fame and luxury, are but poor substitutes for the happiness that comes from true sympathy.

A GOOD SOLUTION.

The isthmian canal bill introduced by Senator Hoar this week seems a simple solution of the canal proposition for the present. The bill is brief, merely providing that "it shall be the duty of the president of the United States, as soon as the same economically and conveniently can be done, to cause to be excavated and constructed a canal of such depth and capacity as will be sufficient for the movement of ships of the greatest tonnage and draft now in use, and such as may be reasonably anticipated, from the Atlantic to the Pacific by such route as may be selected by him, having satisfied himself of the right of the United States to construct and protect the canal."

Doubtless those who would be most pleased by the passage of this bill would be the advocates of the Darien route. They believe that an investigation only is necessary to demonstrate that that route is the most feasible of all. By the Hoar bill the aggregate cost of the canal is fixed at $180,000,000. Capt. Arthur McGray, who is an enthusiast for the Darien route, says that a canal there can be constructed for $100,000,000. Add to this the cost of acquiring the Panama Canal company's property—which is requisite whether the Panama or the Darien route be followed—and for an expenditure of $140,000,000, assuming that the estimate is an accurate one, a tide-water canal, with practically no operating expenses, will have been obtained. The yearly cost of operating at Panama would be $1,500,000, and at Nicaragua, $2,800,000.

But some of the advocates of the Nicaragua route assert that the Darien canal would cost $250,000,000. Even so, Capt. McGray says, the outlay probably would be no greater than would be required for Nicaragua. The conditions surrounding both the Panama and Nicaragua routes, however, are such as to render any estimate wholly unreliable, while the cost at Darien can be computed within 2 or 3 per cent. Furthermore, work can proceed there without interruption from floods or any other cause, and there are no death-dealing swamps to decimate the ranks of the workmen through fatal fevers. Besides, the certain saving in time is in itself of sufficient gain to more than offset any claimed advantages for either of the other routes. The offer of the Panama properties for $40,000,000 includes the Panama railway, the value of which the Walker commission placed at $7,000,000. This would be avaluable asset in connection with the use of the Darien route. Capt. McGray suggests, as its surplus earnings would easily pay twice over the comparatively normal operating expenses of the Darien canal. Accordingly, the canal charges could be made far less, both on ship and cargo, than by either of the other routes.

It is evident that there should be no haste in the selection of a route, and undoubtedly the plan to put the matter in the hands of the president is the best that could be adopted.

A DISAPPOINTING REPORT.

It is a distinct disappointment to learn that the joint board of experts appointed by the postmaster general and the secretary of the treasury to consider the post check currency scheme for the transmission of small sums of money through the mail, which was expected to be of especial value in rural communities remote from a money order postoffice, has reached the decision that it is impracticable on several accounts. Chief among these is the fact that the adoption of the scheme would involve the two departments in a confusion of double bookkeeping, as the notes would have to be presented and cashed at the postoffices and afterward sent to the treasury for redemption. Moreover they report that the treasury has the utmost difficulty now in its struggle to keep up with the demands of retail trade for new $1 certificates, though millions of these are still kept in circulation in remote parts of the country long after they have become filthy and tattered, and wholly unfit for adaptation to the post check plan. The board will recommend, in place of the post check sheeme, the adoption of a slightly modified form of the Canadian money order system, which furnishes engraved notes for different small sums, beginning at 15 cents and running up as high as $2.50. The board will propose that the United States fractional notes run no higher than $2. It is proposed that for each note, whatever its size up to $1, 1 cent be charged, so that for 2 or 3 cents at the outside almost any sum can be procured by combination, up to the point where the money order proper would come into play. One-half the fee would go to the carrier who sells the notes and the other half to the government.

The conclusions of the board are hardly satisfactory. The claim that the use of the post check system would involve the departments in confusion is preposterous. The adjustment of the business would be simple and if more help is needed, put it on. If bills cannot be produced fast enough, increase the capacity. This is a great country and canont be run as it was a few decades ago. The post check is a great thing and ought to be adopted.

COLLEGE-TRAINED MEN.

Some time ago, a college president of the Middle West made an investigation of the best thought in the railroad world upon the value of a college education to a young man in railway work. The consensus of that consolidated opinion might fairly be said to indicate that if a young man could have a college education without losing any of the time that he would devote to working up in railroading, he would find the education of value as an adjunct. In other words if he could carry on his railway work and his college education at the same time, the latter would do no harm and it probably would be an invaluable aid. To take from a young man's railway experience the four years' time necessary to get a college education would, it was reasoned, put him behind just that much, which he could never hope to make up with the aid of his college training.

Now, it is announced that a large insurance company is advertising among college men for solicitors. No explanation goes with the announcement. The public is not enlightened as to whether the insurance company considers a college training fits a young man better for the insurance business, or whether it is merely seeking solicitors among college men because there is a larger supply there of available men.

The chances are, however, that the effort is made in the belief that a college-trained man will make a better solicitor as a whole than the man whose school has been that of experience. The solicitor above all else needs to be of good address. Soliciting, in whatever line, is coming to be more and more a polite matter. The gentleman, provided he be otherwise as competent, has the strongest claims on business as a solicitor today. Moreover, the college man, through the social as well as intellectual advantages he has enjoyed, has had the best chance to obtain equipoise of mentality and manner. Both are becoming more and more essential in business intercourse.

However, it is just as true today as it ever was, that a man must have the stuff in him—the ability and the earnestness and energy—to win in any walk of life. Some men possess or acquire without college training all the essential advantages that are to be obtained in that way. Others never would gain them in a college or out. Talents are God-given, but adaptability and application can be acquired. Either one is more or less a habit, and it can be acquired by schooling in either a college or the university of life.

This sad story was brought out in a recent divorce trial in Kansas: They had been married five years. Life has been a siesta among roses and pomegranates. Spring came and they decided to paint the house. She wanted to paint it a dark green with lighter trimmings, and he wanted to paint it a shade of yellow. She claimed that as her father had given them the house she had the right to select the paint. He said that if she was continually to taunt him about his obligation to her father, the sooner it was over the better. She took her clothes and went home. He went to the hotel and pretended he didn't care. When the case came up for trial the wise judge refused to grant the divorce and told the couple to paint the house red or pearl gray or white or brown and forget the greens and yellows.

An inquiry from England to Chief Justice Nott of the United States court of claims concerning confiscations of the property of supporters of the confederate cause during and after the civil war, was passed along to Secretary Shaw of the treasury department. Mr. Shaw's answer, which lately appeared in the London Times, recalls a very gratifying phase of that great internecine struggle. Our government made scarcely any confiscations of private property, the records showing that confiscation through the courts amounted to less than $200,000. The point, it seems, was of interest to Englishmen in view of the confiscations of Boer farms by the British government.

Dr. Cyrus Edson, health officer of New York, finds many reasons why reputable physicians should advertise their business in the daily newspapers. Besides the benefits to the doctor himself—benefits to which he is clearly entitled and of which he is robbed by neglecting to advertise it—it is a great convenience to the public to learn at first hand where to find a physician who makes a specialty of a particular class of disease. Dr. Edson is confident that the ban on advertising will soon be removed.

The cost of the Boer war to England, supposing it to end with the current British fiscal year, will be about $1,250,000,000, some two-thirds of which is in the form of a funded charge upon the public revenue of Great Britain to remain for decades to come. This is equal to about one-half the total interest-bearing borrowings of the United States government to carry it through the great civil war. President Kruger said the war would "stagger humanity" and it certainly has staggered the British.

An Indianapolis club woman a few days ago read a paper in which she affirmed that the wreck of the Maine in Havana harbor is not raised because it would reveal that the explosion was from within, and thus place the government in the attitude of declaring war without cause. War was not declared on account of the Maine, but a smart club woman cannot be fooled.

It may be of special interest to some people in Duluth to know that the courts of last resort in New York state have just decided that the tenant of a "steam-heated" apartment cannot be forced to pay rent when the landlord fails to keep the temperature up to the standard such a designation naturally calls for.

The president has signed the oleo bill. It is a vicious measure, designed to bolster up one industry at the expense of another, and should never have been enacted. Some lawyers claim it is unconstitutional, and probably the courts will be called upon to decide that question at an early date.

Copies of speeches of members of congress are already in stock at Washington for distribution by the campaign committees this summer and fall to the number of 350,000,000; and yet the most talkative half of the present session is still to come.

Even the Civic Federation cannot do anything when the coal operators refuse to arbitrate their differences with the miners. The Civic Federation has not power to compel them to submit to arbitration, and it is a pity it has not.

Patrons of a theater at Louisville, Ky., have succeeded in preventing the appearance of any "Uncle Tom" show there in the future. A petition and threatened boycott did the business. Why not try the plan elsewhere?"

The only Britisher who profited to any great extent was Lord Roberts, who many months ago was made a peer and presented with a handsome fortune for "ending" a war that is not ended yet.

The house has passed the bill admitting Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico as states of the Union, but the bill may not fare so well in the senate.

The Kansas City Star says: "This appears to be a pretty good time for Webster Davis to break into public life again." Why?

Some people are fearful that Funston will contract permanent lockjaw. And yet the country could survive that "calamity."

The Republicans decided to hold an early state convention. And the next day it snowed.

The snake season has opened. A Patoka, Ill., correspondent relates that "200 rattlesnakes were killed in one den."

THE HEATHEN CHINEE.

Which I wish to remark—
And my language is plain—
That for ways that are dark,
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chinee is peculiar,
Which the same I would rise to explain.

Ah Sin was his name,
And I shall not deny
In regard to the same
What that might imply,
But his smile it was pensive and childlike
As I frequently remarked to Bill Nye.

It was August the third
And quite soft was the skies,
Which it might be inferred
That Ah Sin was likewise;
Yet he played it that day upon William
And me in a way I despise.

Which we had a small game,
And Ah Sin took a hand;
It was euchre. The same
He did not understand;
But he smiled as he sat by the table,
With a smile that was childlike and bland.

Yet the cards they were stocked
In a way that I grieve,
And my feelings were shocked
At the state of Nye's sleeve,
Which was stuffed full of aces and bowers,
And the same with intent to deceive.

But the hands that were played
By that heathen Chinee,
And the points that he made
Were quite frightful to see—
Till at last he put down a right bower,
Which the same Nye had dealt unto me.

Then I looked up at Nye,
And he gazed upon me;
And he rose with a sigh,
And said, "Can this be?"
We are ruined by Chinee cheap labor,"
And he went for that heathen Chinee.

In the scene that ensued
I did not take a hand,
But the floor it was strewed
Like the leaves on the strand,
With the cards that Ah Sin had been hiding,
In the game he "did not understand."

In his sleeves, which were long,
He had twenty-four packs—
Which was coming it strong,
Yet I state but the facts;
And we found on his nails, which were taper,
What's frequent in tapers—that's wax.

Which is why I remark,
And my language is plain,
That for ways that are dark,
And for tricks that are vain,
The heathen Chinee is peculiar,
Which the same I am free to maintain.
—Famous poem by the Late Bret Harte.

Unreasonable Fears Banished.

Springfield (Mass.) Republican: Fears of extensive crop damage in the West from dry weather and unseasonable heat have been dissipated by cooler temperatures and soaking rains which visited a large part of the winter wheat belt the other day. The effect upon the grain market has been immediate and injurious to a large speculation committed to the bull side because of the hitherto dubious outlook for wheat.

Admonition to Factory Owners.

Kansas City Star: The panic among the girls employed in a Philadelphia tobacco factory conveys an admonition of the importance of ample and convenient exits in buildings where many persons are employed. The girls were panic stricken by a false alarm of fire and in their wild rush became packed in the narrow stairs in a terrible crush. While doubtless there would have been many injured in the jam even if the staircase had been wide, the situation would not have been so bad if roomy exits had existed. It is a curious thing that stairs only large enough to allow a small fraction of the people in the building to pass out at a time are tolerated. There are just such death traps in Kansas City which ought to be abolished or reconstructed. No man has a right to maintain a building which is a menace to human life.

Van Sant's Weakness.

Barnum Gazette (Rep.): It may be that the two parties will nominate their candidates for governor of two years ago, and to us it looks suicidal for the Republicans to do so. When the Schiffman-Warner crowd openly assail Van Sant, men who have received his best appointments, it certainly looks bad for the present incumbent. Van Sant will not be re-elected if nominated.

Pen Men at the Helm.

Chicago Record-Herald: With Historian Roosevelt in the White House, Poet Hay at the head of the state department, Poet Ware in charge of the pension bureau and Novelist Tarkington in congress, it will begin to look as if "them d—d literary fellers" were just about running this government.

Public Taste and the Stage.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It must be admitted that Actor Joseph Jefferson hit the nail squarely on the head when he said in a recent interview that "The state of the stage depends very nearly as much on the public taste as it does on the efforts of us poor actor folk." And that was drawing it a little mild, too.

Life's Ups and Downs.

St. Paul Pioneer Press: One of the newest occupations for women is running elevators, a fact which induced some one to remark that it was an appropriate activity for women, since they are naturally an elevating force. He evidently forgot that no woman can regularly run an elevator without lowering herself.

Cabinet Size.

Chicago Tribune: Iowa appears to be the birthplace also of several distinguished tornadoes.

Costly Senatorial Thrift.

Baltimore American: Next time Senator Money wishes to save a nickel he will slip it into a toy savings bank and not try to hoard it on a street car.

Within Ten Years the Ocean Will Be Crossed By Air Ships.

By M. SANTOS-DUMONT.

It is a mistaken idea that there is any unusual danger in the flying machine. It is not as dangerous as the ordinary balloon. The airships that I use are as much under my control as any steam engine, except, of course, in case of storm.

I am now planning an airship that will carry from ten to twenty passengers. It will be the first passenger airship that has ever been built along the dirigible lines.

I hope that as a result of the exhibition I am to give in St. Louis the enterprising and wealthy men of America will become so much interested as to push forward this great work. All that I have done heretofore has been at my own expense and without any assistance. With the proper sort of encouragement, such as this country should give, the desired goal would be brought much nearer. In a word, within ten years we would have trans-Atlantic aerial navigation.

Willing as I am to spend my own fortune, you must understand that these races, which are no longer in the experimental stage, are most expensive.

It is here, it seems to me, in this land where things advance so rapidly, the greatest country in the world, that the matter might be taken up with all its magnificent possibilities.

Within my lifetime I expect to see aerial navigation between America and Europe a common thing. An aerial trans-Atlantic line for commercial purposes is not a far off possibility.

The No. 7 machine, with which I will race here in America, is a heavier machine than the No. 6, and I expect that my experiments here will establish the commercial possibilities of aerial navigation, as the No. 7 will carry four passengers, whereas the No. 6 never used to carry more than one.

I have no patents on my inventions. Anyone who wants to construct machines after the fashion of the Santos-Dumont machines is welcome to do so. I only wish that I could help others to build aerial ships so that the great day when it will be the principal means of traffic will not be delayed.

What Is Treason to One's Country?

By Dr. FELIX ADLER, of the Ethical Culture Society.

Recently a general in the United States army declared that those persons who condemned the war in the Philippines ought to be hanged because they were traitors. He loves best his country who seeks to persuade her from doing a wrong. Bloodshed, horrible as it is, is not the greatest evil.

It is treason by discussion to raise dissension when our country's life is imperiled. It is not treason to condemn a war of aggression or any war that does touch the national existence.

When an attack is made upon our country and our territory is invaded, it is our duty to rise to the rescue, no matter how wantonly we may have provoked the war in the first instance, no matter how unjust the objects for which hostilities were begun.

The love of one's country is not a mere instinct of gregariousness. It is an ethical passion. To defend it is to raise the hand in order to avert a blow aimed against the whole body. And if the discussion of the primary objects of a war tends to break the force of national defense, tends to create disruption at a time when unity is essential to salvation, then it may be treason to raise the question as to the injustice of a war when that war is still in progress.

But the case is very different when we ourselves are engaged not in a defensive but in an aggressive war. When we are waging war with another country, a war possibly unjust, possibly not justifiable to the sense and conscience of mankind, the right of free speech may not violently be interfered with at home.

Treason is defined as levying war against the United States and adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort, and the question may be asked, Do not those who in their public utterances condemn the war and express sympathy for the aspirations of the Philippine people adhere to the enemy? Is there any question, for instance, that the person who should send rifles and cartridges to the Filipinos or should supply them with money, being a citizen of the United States, would be guilty of treason?

It seems to me a strange perversity of intellect which fails to distinguish between the two instances. He who gives material aid, he who gives rifles, cartridges and money, to those who are engaged in a war with his country gives them power which they may use for any object they please, good or evil, and he has not control over the manner in which they use it. But he whose sole aim it is to prevent his country from doing a wrong adheres to his country and not to his country's foes. He loves his country, and his love for his country inspires him to plead as he does, and if incidentally his action does give courage and hope to those who are enemies, who are treated as enemies, though they never deserved to be treated as such—that is an incidental effect for which he is in no wise responsible. He is to be judged by his purpose, and his purpose is loyal, high-minded and patriotic in the best sense of the term.

Cuba, Guided By Uncle Sam, Can Govern Herself.

By TOMAS ESTRADA PALMA, President of Cuba Libre.

Cuba has shed the blood of her children for the cause of freedom and intelligence. That Cuba has good men there is and can be no doubt. We propose to show to the world that Cuba, under the guidance of the United States, can govern herself. I will guarantee that the people of Cuba will constitute a government free and independent. But, with it all, the ties of love and liberty and thankfulness will ever bind us to the people of this country.

The Cubans will forget all past differences, and they will pull together in the future. The people who have said the Cubans are not capable of governing themselves do not know the latter day blood that flows in the veins of the Spanish.

Patriotism and love of country always will prevail among the Cubans in their effort to make their country great.

We will do our best to advance the cause of civilization, and we shall, of course, look to this country for both moral and practical support if it is necessary.

In Buying a Sewing Machine

Aim to get one with an established reputation, manufactured by a responsible company, one on which you can depend for day-in-and-day-out, thoroughly pleasing service. In short, get a high-grade, reliable product—

The World Famous

WHITE

While there is very little chance for a good machine to go wrong, yet it is comforting to feel that in case of accident or if at the end of twenty years you need repairs, you can get them without delay.

There is nothing of a mushroom character about our company—here today and away tomorrow. On the contrary, we expect to continue, as we have in the past twenty-six years, supplying the people with the very best machine to be had.

Note the Construction of the White!

Inanimate things can't talk, and yet you'll admit that every line of our No. 15, as shown here, instantly impresses you favorably and says plainly as anything can that it's a quality product.

Note the character of its improvements: Its new self-threading cylinder shuttle, automatic bobbin winder, double feed, dust caps on needle and presser bars, its automatic tension releaser, a plush tension, which pinches the thread just enough to produce a smooth elastic stitch, and its tension indicator, which shows the tension at a glance, can be regulated by a "simple twist of the wrist"—all the labor saving devices that the busy user appreciates.

A trial will convince you that it has no equal. Vibrator and rotary shuttles. Sold and rented on payments of $3.00 per month, or for cash. We will deliver one on trial free—old machines taken in exchange.

WHITEMAN.

Alonzo J. Is Granted New Trial By Appellate Court.

New York, May 10.—In accordance with a decision just handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court, a new trial was granted to Alonzo J. Whiteman, formerly a Minnesota state senator, who was convicted of larceny in the second degree on April 3, 1901, in having cashed a worthless check and receiving change therefor.

Whiteman has been arrested in almost every large city in the United States.

ATTEMPTED MURDER.

Gordon, Wis., Indian Tries to Kill His Wife.

John Sheosh, a Chippewa Indian, was brought to West Superior from Gordon, Wis., yesterday and arraigned in municipal court on West Superior on the charge of attempting to murder his wife.

The wife says that they were working together in the woods squaring timber, when Sheosh, becoming enraged at her, tried to hit her on the head with his ax. She warded off the blows, when he seized a hatchet and knocked her insensible. She did not think he had killed her and that he went to Gordon.

The wife revived late in the afternoon, and taking their child, which the Indian had left behind, went to her Indian neighbors and told her story. She was badly cut about the head.

Sheosh was recently released from the state prison at Waupun, Wis., where he was sent about four years ago for shooting an employe of the Musser-Sauntry company.

Team Ready For Play.

George A. Smith, manager of the Duluth Business university baseball team, wishes to receive communications from the managers of amateur baseball teams and the high school teams of Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin towns. Mr. Smith has a good line-up to represent the university this season. The players and their positions are as follows: Catcher, V. Fraser; pitcher and left field, E. Lowe; pitcher and left field, A. Stockman; first base, J. McPhee; second base, Ed Park; third base, H. Grytdahl; shortstop, J. Whiteside; center field, C. Clausen; right field, W. Bonham; substitutes, J. Klein and A. Skelton.

To Make Improvements.

About $20,000 will soon be spent in improvements at the Superior Shipbuilding company's yards. The plans are said to include a new punch shed to replace the old wooden structure now in use. The new sheds will be of brick with a steel roof and will be built nearer the dry docks. The blacksmith shop that was burned a few months ago will also be rebuilt in a substantial manner.

The Band Concert.

The second of the series of three concerts by the Third Regiment band will be given at the Armory tomorrow afternoon. The band last Sunday made a fine impression and gave a program that delighted everyone in attendance. The program for tomorrow is as follows:

March—"Blaze Away" ..... Holzmann
Overture—"Poet and Peasant" ..... Suppe
"Lost Chord" ..... Sullivan
Grand selection from "Maritana" .....
..... Wallace
"Comic Symphony" ..... Dalbey
Piccolo solo—Selected .....
A. Hoelscher.
Sacred Fantasia—"Providence" ..Tobani
"America" .....

Sixth Avenue Theater.

"A Man of Mystery" company presented the four-act drama, "A Wife's Peril" to a full-sized audience last night, notwithstanding the heavy snow storm. The entire four acts were played in a most satisfactory manner and the specialties between the acts called for much applause, especially the illustrated songs of Little Ethel. Miss Alice Lundy's work was very effective and the support of Mr. Wyckoff and Mr. Herbert added greatly to the performance. Miss Evans proved a willing widow and Percy Tuttle gained popularity as the English dude. "A Man of Mystery" will be played again tonight, at the usual prices of the Sixth avenue theater with special scenery and effects.

DEAD AND DOWN TIMBER.

Lumbermen Look For Location For Mill to Saw It.

Several Southern Minnesota lumbermen have been in this vicinity for the past few days considering a good location and the feasibility of putting in a small portable sawmill for the purpose of cutting up dead and down timber. It is claimed that while there are no tracts in the immediate vicinity of Duluth where such a project could be worked to advantage, there are a great many cut over lands in the county that would supply plenty of material and the timber rights of which could be bought for a small sum.

The lumbermen claim that the prices of the best grade of lumber will be so high the coming season that there will be a good demand for the poorer grades, such as is manufactured from the dead and down timber. They believe that prices for the cheaper grades will be high enough to warrant the venture. In the party that passed through Duluth yesterday were two Stillwater loggers and lumbermen.

SHEAR IN TROUBLE.

He Was Once Pardoned By President Lincoln.

New York, May 10.—Leroy Channing Shear, who was pardoned by President Lincoln in 1863, after he had been sentenced to be hanged for the murder of two guards of the Elmira prison, has been arrested here on the charge of passing a worthless check. The police charge Shear with operating extensively.

TO REGULATE PRICES.

Steel Plate Pool Will Meet on May 15.

New York, May 10.—It is stated that a meeting of the steel plate pool, which includes the United States Steel corporation, constituent companies and the large independent concerns, will be held in this city on May 15 to regulate prices for the third quarter of the year. It has become generally understood that the Eastern independent mills have marked up quotations anywhere from $2 to $5 per ton above pool prices, or is believed an effort will be made on the part of the outside companies to encourage the advance in price.

KILLED BY LEE TURNER.

John Turner, Formerly Chief of Police, the Victim.

Middlesboro, Ky., May 10.—John Turner, formerly chief of police of Middlesboro was yesterday killed by Lee Turner, of "Quarter House" fame, at the Narrows, thirteen miles from Jellico, Tenn. Lee Turner was fatally wounded. John Turner was one of the guards of the Southern railway at "The Narrows," where he went Thursday night. Lee Turner was running a saloon at Lafollette, Tenn. The men were cousins, but old enemies. At the time Lee Turner's "quarter house" near this city was burned and nine of his officers killed, John Turner belonged to the posse which burned the "quarter house." Few details of the tragedy have reached here.

SALARIES ADVANCED.

Postmasters at Hibbing and Tower Get Increases.

Washington, May 10.—The following changes in Minnesota postmasters' salaries, in effect July 1, were announced at the postoffice department yesterday: Hibbing, $1700 to $1800; Red Lake Falls, $1400 to $1500; St. Peter, $1800 to $1900; Sleepy Eye, $1900 to $2100; South St. Paul, $2100 to $2200; Springfield, $1400 to 1500; Stephens, $1000 to $1100; Stillwater, $2400 to $2500; Thief River Falls, $1300 to $1500; Tower, $1300 to $1400. The postoffice at White Bear Lake, Minn., has been advanced to the presidential class.

CUNARD OFFICIALS DENY.

London May 10.—The Cunard line officials say there is absolutely no foundation for the statement made yesterday at Baltimore by William Pinkney, managing director of the Neptune line of steamers, that the Morgan shipping syndicate has bought the Cunard line.

The Whirl Of Politics

Primaries to select delegates to the county convention, Monday, June 23.

That is the result of the meeting of the Republican state central committee in St. Paul Thursday afternoon. The late convention fellows were whipped to a finish. They knew it when they started in, and they made no attempt to carry their point. Early convention went, and that means Van Sant for the Republican nomination for governor.

R. C. Dunn, reputed anti-Van Sant candidate for governor: "Governor Van Sant will have no opposition until the November election."

These are a couple of expressions that, taken with the early date of the state convention, clear away the Van Sant pathway up to the point where it becomes a fight not with Republicans but with anti-Republicans. But that is another story, the book of which has not yet been opened. Even the leaves are uncut. It may be a most interesting tale, and it should be left to the latest moment in order that the enjoyment there is in anticipation may be felt to its fullest extent.

St. Louis county will get forty out of 1171 delegates in the convention, which is four less than she had two years ago. The intention just now is to pick out forty that will make a noise and work life 400 and have as much weight.

The apportionment is given below so that everybody that wishes can pick out Halden, Iverson and Jacobson delegations and foot them up as a basis for bets on who is going to land the state auditorship:

Odin Halden appears to have made a great hit with his pronounced stand for Capt. Van Sant in a Mankato interview last week. It has brought him many favorable comments from country papers that had hitherto been unfriendly or unconcerned. The Mankato Free Press, in which Mr. Halden's interview appeared, came out a day or two later with a long, strong editorial booming him, of which the following is a part:

"Mr. Halden has made one of the best county auditors to be found in the state. He represents a constituency of great interests, as the iron ore mines are largely in his immediate territory, where the question of taxation is one that requires a man of positive character to deal with if the interests of the masses are to be protected. It has never been intimated that Mr. Halden has given favors to any one, and his record stands as a guarantee that if the Republican convention shall see proper to place him on the ticket for the responsible office of state auditor there will be no shirking of responsibility, but, on the contrary, he may be counted on to demand full and equal taxation for large corporations as well as small ones. Those who know Mr. Halden best contend that he is no man's man, but that he will stand for the interests of the masses let come what may. The Free Press has but a slight acquaintance with Mr. Halden, but he is vouched for by men of responsibility whom the Free Press has high regard for and for whose integrity no certificate is necessary. The character, therefore, that is given to Mr. Halden by his staunch friends is just the kind that the Republican party must choose if it wants to make a telling and winning fight the coming fall."

This week has been full of events important to J. Adam Bede. One by one the looming figures that shadowed his pathway to the congressional nomination have disappeared. One day Senator McCarthy said he had enough, and the next day O. D. Kinney said he had quit. It would be more just to Mr. Kinney to put it that he had never started and did not propose to start. This left Mr. Bede surrounded by a lonely atmosphere that he seems to be enjoying extremely well. Lonesomeness is not usually enjoyable, but this is not an exception to the rule that exceptions prove the rule.

A Duluth visitor Thursday was Edward W. Stark, a member of the house of representatives from Chisago county, who is at one end of the house scale of avoirdupois, with Albert Berg at the other. In other words, he is the thinest man in the house and Sweet Singer Berg is the largest. It is told of Mr. Stark that along toward the latter end of the 1901 session, when most of the members were new to their places, he made his maiden speech.

He got up on his feet, surveyed the house, and dramatically announced:

"Gentlemen, I weigh 115 pounds!"

This brought down the house, it was so manifestly true and so ludicrously inconsistent with the importance of his manner. Then he continued:

"Fellows, I have been voting for your pet woodchucks all winter long. If you want to help old Stark, now's your chance!"

Then he introduced a bill, and it is hardly necessary to say that it got through.

One of J. S. Vandiver's "hot tamales," in his St. Peter Journal, is to the effect that "Adam Bede doesn't Cotton to the latest Duluth man whose name has been mentioned in connection with the congressional nomination."

The Grand Rapids Herald-Review sizes it up that "J. Adam appears to be decidedly in the lead if we may judge from newspaper comment, and it's generally a pretty reliable index."

G. J. Mallory went a-visiting down Barnum the other day, and Editor-Legislator Noyes gave him a dinner and this puff in his paper, the Gazette:

"Hon. George Mallory, deputy United States marshal at Duluth, was here on Tuesday and dined with ye editor and family. He is one of the best legislators Duluth has ever furnished and the people of that city have many reasons to feel proud of him and the rest of their able delegation."

The Aitkin Age pushes it along with this kindly reference:

"St. Louis county is making a mighty effort to boom Odin Halden for state auditor. He is well qualified for the higher office, and as this district is entitled to one state office, we can see no good reason why he should not be nominated."

The Age's quiver of pleasantness was not empty when that arrow was sped, as this one will testify:

"While the Duluth politicians are wasting their time trying to select a candidate for congress, J. Adam Bede is making great progress in gaining the good will of the Republicans of the Eighth district. With the lead already gained it will be hard to down him."

Some of the country papers are having trouble with the name of Odin Halden, the St. Louis county candidate for state auditor. They have had it Oden Halden, Odin Haldin, Ole Halden, Odin Holden, Odin J. Haldin, Odin Holdon, with an infinite number of variations of similar nature. However, if their words are kind Mr. Halden will probably not be finicky about a little matter of orthography.

Says the Virginia Enterprise, of the fight for the office of sheriff of St. Louis county:

"W. W. Butchart, formerly county sheriff and known to all as a fitting companion, will enter the race for the Republican nomination for sheriff. It is also given out that Sheriff Sargent, who is at present at Virginia Beach, Va., recuperating from a late attack of illness, will be in the field, but we deem a harder man to down in the primaries will be Archie Phillips, whose personal friends on the ranges and in Duluth are legion."

The Winona Republican and Herald says that "if there is any virtue in intellectual electricity, J. Adam Bede would certainly stir up and enliven the currents of congressional procedure—not only as a humorist, but as a man of fine mental acquirements and a thorough knowledge of the highest needs of his party and of the country."

One might almost imagine one scented an aroma of sarcasm about this, from the Mesaba Ore:

"A number of our friends, Republican and otherwise, on the east end of the range, have assembled themselves for the purpose of 'knocking out' the 'Willcuts gang,' and the movement of the play promises to be one of the most amusing incidents of the pending campaign. The actors composing the east end aggregation are all of the broadest burlesque character, and the play will hold cuose to the lines of Don Quixote, with a renegade politician in the leading role."

Here's a bouquet from Claude Atkinson, of the Mesaba Ore—which, by the way, ought to be called after some more showy mineral than iron ore—to "Hell-Roarin' Jake," of the "Lake That Talks:"

"'Kicker' Jacobson, of Lac Qui Parle county, the most picturesque thing in Minnesota politics, has declared his intention of running for the Republican nomination for state auditor. Three cents' worth of old ice will about make his picture after Odin Halden gets through with him."

The Grand Rapids Herald-Review (Dem.) speaks hopefully as follows:

"Senator C. O. Baldwin, of Duluth, for congress on the Democratic ticket. If the senator declines, there are others equally as strong and equally as acceptable. John Jenswold, for instance, would make those little Republican fellows scatter."

The Aitkin Republican is out this week strongly for J. Adam Bede for congress. Besides a local item that pictures the congressional candidate as scattering sunshine by his visit and gathering friends to his standard every day, the Republican publishes a leading editorial in which it declares for Bede, and winds up by saying that he "has the capacity and ability to make himself useful to the people, and the Republican hopes he will be nominated and elected."

A STRIKE ORDERED

Miners Are to Quit Work Temporarily on Monday.

Are Then to Decide on Question of Permanency.

The Executive Committee Sends Notice to All the Miners.

Scranton, Pa., May 10.—A general strike of the miners of the anthracite region has been ordered for Monday next, but the order has a reserve qualification attached. The question as to whether the strike is to be made permanent is left to the dicision of a convention of delegates of all the local organizations of the mine workers to be held at Hazleton next Wednesday.

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday the committeemen again assembled and remained in session until 7:30 o'clock. When the session concluded, President Mitchell prepared a staement and essembling the newspaper men at the St. Charles hotel, read to them as follows from a typewritten paper:

"To the anthracite mine workers of Pennsylvania:

"Gentlemen—The executive committees of the anthracite mine workers who were delegated by the Shamokin convention to represent you in the negotiations with the railroad presidents and mine operators for the purpose of obtaining increased wages, shorter hours and better conditions of employment have exhausted all peaceable, conciliatory and honorable means at their command, and have failed to secure any concessions of a tangible nature, and while under the resolutions adopted by the Shamokin convention, authority was vested in the executive committees should they fail in the negotiations, to inaugurate a strike at whatever time, in their judgment, holds out the greatest promise of success, the committees after two days' serious deliberation feel that in justice to the anthracite mine workers and those dependent upon them, before a general strike is inaugurated the question should be further considered by a delegate convention, in which representatives from the various local unions shall be fully instructed by the constituents and prepared to vote in favor of or in opposition of complete cessation of work.

"In the meantime all persons employed in and around the collieries, stripplings, washeries and breakers are instructed to temporarily abstain from working, beginning with Monday, May 12, and continuing thereafter until a final decision is reached by a delegate convention, which will convene Wednesday morning, May 14, at Hazelton, Pa.

"The basis of representation in this convention shall be one vote for each 100 members and one vote for each additional 100 members or majority fraction thereof.

"The executive committee recommend that special meetings of all local unions be held on Monday afternoon, May 12, for the purpose of selecting delegates and considering the questions involved, and it is especially recommended that specific instructions be given to delegates as to how they shall vote on the proposition to inaugurate a strike or continue work under present conditions.

"The instructions for all men to suspend work on Monday, May 12, does not include firemen, engineers, pumpmen and other labor necessary to preserve the properties of the operators.

"The order is signed oy all the district presidents and secretaries.

There was but a particle of question but that the miners will religiously obey the order and that on Monday next not as much as a shovelful of coal will be mined in the Lackawanna valley.

IN MICHIGAN.

Penniless Widow Takes Poison to End Her Troubles.

Iron Mountain—Mrs. Edward Hartwell drank two ounces of carbolic acid at her home in Norway. The children discovered their mother in her bed room suffering and went for aid. The doctor worked all night but the chances for recovery are small. She is 35 years old and has six children. She is a penniless widow. The only reason for the act is despondency, it is thought.

The Vulcan mien shaft is burning and it is feared that the entire under workings of the mine will be destroyed. Three hundred men have been rendered idle.

A record-breaking train load of iron ore has just been taken out of Channing via the Milwaukee road, for the ore docks at Escanaba. The cars, of 40-ton capacity, contained 3000 tons, a load which it is claimed has never been exceeded in the upper peninsula, with its heavy grades. The locomotive drawing the train was one of the big moguls recently put in the ore traffic by the road.

Negaunee—A hennery, something rather unique for the upper peninsula, has been established here by a local man. Fifteen hundred hens are engaged in laying eggs for the local market, and incubators are turning out 1500 other chickens. It has been demonstrated that poultry farms pay well in the peninsula, and the industry gives indication of becoming an important one.

Crystal Falls—A stranger giving his name as E. DeLong has been bound over to the circuit court for trial. He is charged with breaking into the Northwestern depot at Iron River and stealing the contents of a C. O. D. $5 express package consigned to him, but for which he was unable to pay. He escaped on a freight train but was caught at Iron Mountain.

Menominee—The Freeman case was continued by addresses to the jury on both sides. R. C. Flannigan made an eloquent plea for the defense. Attorney Mills finished his rebuttal Friday afternoon, and the case went to the jury. During the recess of ten minutes Freeman shook hands and smilingly visited with friends. During the speeches by the defense he looked pleased, but when the prosecution was talking he was noticeably pale.

Houghton—For years the upper peninsula has been hampered in the matter of securing standard theatrical attractions by the fact that it possesses but two modern opera houses, these being located at Marquette and Calumet. Before next winter is over, however, it promises to be well supplied, theaters now being constructed or projected at Houghton, Hancock, Ishpeming, Escanaba, Menominee and Ironwod, all excellent "show towns." It is proposed to form a Northern Michigan circuit for the booking of first class attractions.

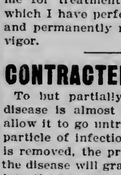
BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Al Beard, with many allases, wanted in St. Paul on a charge of robbery, and for whose capture the Minnesota officials offer a reward of $1500, was arrested at Kansas City Friday. Beard is said to be one of three men who shot and killed Policeman Charles Mayer in St. Paul on Feb. 1, while they were robing a store.

It has een learned that an attempt was made Thursday night to rob the Rock Island fast passenger train when pulling out of the station at Muscatine, Iowa. Three men were arrested and jailed. They refuse to give their names. Three others scaped. Two men were prying open the express car door when they were discovered and captured by the trainmen and later turned over to the officers.

Forest fires are raging in the vicinity of Babylon, L. I., and nearly 1000 persons were engaged in fighting the flames, which at one time threatened to destroy the village.

Walter Carddock, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Craddock, of Pueblo, Colo., died from burns received Thursday night. His sister, Edna, who was burned at the same time, is not expected to recover. The boy left his bed in his sleep, picked up a lighted lamp and went to his sister's bedside where in some manner the lamp exploded and ignited the bed clothes and the children's night dresses. Both children were terribly burned.



A Word About Watches

Time is too precious to waste through means of a watch which does not keep good time. Our watches and the correct time always travel together, whether the mechanism is enclosed in a cheap nickel case or in the finest gold one, which will prove a delight to the eye.

Come in and see them. They are beautiful, elegant, accurate, and, best of all—cheap.

Men's Diseases

Scientifically and Successfully Treated.

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

After an experience of fifteen years devoted to the treatment of men's diseases exclusively, I feel fully justified in making the assertion that no other specialist has attained an equal degree of success in overcoming these most perplexing of all human ailments. I early recognized as inaccurate and unscientific the methods commonly employed in treating men's diseases, and through careful research and broad experience I have acquired the knowledge and ability that has placed me foremost among specialists in this branch of medical practice. I have laid aside those ancient and unscientific theories and processes to which others still cling, and have founded all my methods of treatment upon absolute knowledge concerning these diseases. I accept no case for treatment unless I have full confidence in my ability to effect a complete and permanent cure, and in years I have not treated unsuccessfully in a single instance. I invite free consultation.

"WEAKNESS"

That disorder commonly known as "weakness," has for years and generations baffled the efforts of physicians, yet to this very day a majority of doctors are attempting to overcome it by methods that have been in constant use and that have constantly failed for half a century. They dose the system with powerful stimulants and tonics calculated to restore nervous forces or strength that is not and never has been lacking, with a result that the functions are temporarily excited to the positive detriment of the patient. Weakness, we will call it such for convenience just now, is only a symptom resulting from a chronically swollen and inflamed prostate gland, and is curable by local treatment only. Either early dissipation or some improperly treated contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation in most instances, though accidental injury, strain, etc., may produce the same result. I have permanently cured thousands of cases of prematureness, loss of power, which demonstrates the absolute accuracy of my understanding and treatment of the disorder. In years I have not met with a single failure, and I have entire confidence in my ability to cure all cases that come to me for treatment other than that which I have perfected can completely and permanently restore strength and vigor.

VARICOCELE

Many men afflicted with varicocele are endangering their general health, their manly power and even life itself by allowing the disorder to remain uncured. Varicocele results from partial paralysis of the delicate nerve fibres that have a part in controlling local circulation of the blood. The muscular coating of the veins being deprived of nervous communication and control, become inactive, weaken and relax. The blood vessels expand from the pressure within, the circulation in the parts become sluggish, and frequently stagnant pools form in little nooks and pockets that constantly enlarge as the relaxation continues. The possibility exists that clots may form in these stagnant pools and then pass out into the general circulation. Should one find lodgment in the valve of the heart the result might be instant death, or should it be carried to the brain, general paralysis will follow.

I guarantee to cure varicocele in one week by a method that involves no cutting or ligature, or caustic. No other physician employs a like method, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into the old condition. Those who have been long afflicted with varicocele will never realize the injury it has caused until they feel the vim, energy and buoyancy of spirts that a complete cure will bring.

CONTRACTED DISORDERS

To but partially cure a contracted disease is almost as dangerous as to allow it to go untreated. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed, the probability exists that the disease will gradually work its way into the general system. All greater is the danger of the prostate gland becoming chronically inflammed, which always brings partial or complete loss of power. Perhaps 25 per cent of the cases of so-called "weakness" are a direct result of some improperly treated disease. During the past five years I have treated over 6500 cases of contracted disorders and have effected an absolutely thorough and safe cure in each instance. There have been no relapses or undesirable developments whatever and my patients have been cured in less time than other and less thorough forms of treatment require in producing even doubtful results.

STRICTURE

My treatment for stricture removes the necessity for surgical operations, even in severe cases of long stanoing. I do no cutting or dilating. No other physician employs my methous of overcoming this disorder, so the service I offer you is original and distinctive. Do not give up hope because others have failed. I will cure you and the cure will be a prompt and painless one. My treatment dissolves the stricture, permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, subdues all inflammation, relieves all irritation or congestion that may exist in the kidneys or bladder, reduces enlargement of the prostate gland and restores to health and tone all organs affected by the disease.

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON

I permanently cure this most hideous of all blood diseases. I employ harmless, blood cleansing remedies that positively drive the very last taint of virus from the system, and every symptom vanishes to appear no more.

We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

If you cannot call at our office, write your symptoms fully. Our home treatment by correspondence is always successful.

Beauty's Blood Deep

How untrue the old adage "Beauty's Skin Deep." How many women of beautiful features marred by impure blood try in vain to get a pure complexion by doctoring the skin. The quickest, surest, only way to beauty is to cleanse the blood.

"I have been taking Cascarets for pimples and have been greatly benefited."—Miss Gertrude Grant, Cambridge, Mass.

"I am very well pleased with Cascarets. They are fine for the complexion."—Miss Catherine C. Coffman, S. English, Ia.

"Cascarets will clear the complexion of boils, pimples and blackheads caused by impure blood."—A. E. Griffin, M. D., Stubblefield, Texas.

"Cascarets have done a great deal of good for me and for all our family."—Miss Florence Cook, Webster City, Ia.

"I must add my testimonial to your valuable medicine Cascarets for stomach trouble."—Irene Ackerman (famous singer), 20 West Fifteenth Street, New York.

"I was suffering with sick headaches a great deal, but after taking a box of Cascarets, am entirely cured."—Miss Clara Stimmel, 239 So. Sandusky Street, Delaware Ohio.

"Cascarets did me a world of good. My liver was in bad condition for some time and one box cured me."—Miss Mabel Allen, Clare, Michigan.

How many, many young women are anaemic, pale, sickly-looking, perhaps with pimples on face and neck, owing to poor, unhealthy blood. Perhaps womanhood is approaching, that serious time of life when irregularities are liable to break down a constitution. The first rule for purifying and enriching the blood is to keep the bowels free and natural, gently but positively, without nervous shock, and Cascarets Candy Cathartic is the only medicine to do it.

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

The marriage of Miss May Merrill, of Minneapolis, and Clarence Day Shepard, of Duluth, took place at Minneapolis Thursday evening, and was a very conspicuous social event, and was thus reported in the Minneapolis Tribune:

"At the Merrill residence on Second avenue south interesting nuptials were solemnized last evening, when Miss May Merrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Merrill, was married to Clarence Shepard, Duluth. The ceremony was at 8 o'clock, and the guests were limited to the relatives and most intimate friends, but later a reception, which was attended by 400 guests, was held.

"The vows were spoken in the large round window in the drawing room. A semi-circular mound of tall palms, ferns and aspidistra, relieved by a single massive cluster of white roses, was the background against which the bridal party stood. The bride came in on her father's arm through an aisle of ribbons stretched between tall massive candlebra and pedestals bearing baskets of white roses. Her sole attendant was Miss Lillie Logan, Virginia, daughter of Gen. Logan. The bridegroom, with his best man, Burdette Merrill, brother of the bride, entered from the hall through a second aisle of ribbons leading to the altar. The words which united the two were spoken by Rev. Marion D. Shutter, and Abbott E. Smith assisted. Danz's orchestra played a program of music shortly before the ceremony, and "The Evening Star," from "Tannhauser," during the service.

"The bridal gown was an exquisite creation of white peau de sole elaborately trimmed with Duchesse lace, and was entirely covered by the long veil. The flowers to go with it were lilies of the valley. Miss Logan was gowned in white chiffon over silk, trimmed with entire deux of lace and satin ribbons, and she carried bride roses. The ushers were Messrs. William Dalrymple, Duluth; W. Oakley Stout, St. Paul; Stuart Markham, Milwaukee; Morton Miller, Duluth; George Markham, Milwaukee; Walter Shepard, Denver; Ward Ames, Jr., Duluth, and Keith Merrill, Minneapolis.

"During the reception Mr. and Mrs. Merrill and Walter Shepard stood with the bridal couple to receive the guests, and assisting through the rooms were Mmes. F. W. Foreman, A. W. Clerihew, Arthur Keith, H. P. Keith and W. M. Prindle, Duluth.

"A large number of out-of-town guests were present, and among them were Messrs. and Mmes. Voctor Sterns, W. M. Prindle, W. J. Olcott, W. S. Bishop, H. F. Williamson, Jr., George Spencer, Mrs. C. H. Munger, all of Duluth; Edward Mann, Faribault; Miss Bradshaw, Superior; Mrs. Oliver Dalrymple, John Dalrymple and Miss De Custer, St. Paul.

"The decorations through the rooms were very handsome, and in exquisite taste. The hall was hung with vines, and clusters of white roses were used with the vinca vines and ferns on the mantel, and a curtain of vines concealed the orchestra from view. Full-blown American Beauties nodded from the tops of the bookcases in the library, and white tulips and marguerites were arranged before the large mirror over the mantel. The appointments throughout the drawing room accorded with the green and white of the marriage altar. The mirrors over the mantel were overrun with vines, and great clusters of white roses were reflected. Pink roses harmonized with the furnishings of the den, and in the dining room baskets of white roses were on table, sideboard and mantel.

"Mrs. Merrill, mother of the bride, received in a handsome gown of white crepon, with lace garniture. The gifts were shown in the billiard room on the third floor.

"Mr. Shepard and his bride left on an evening train for a trip. They will be at home after July 15 at 1503 East Second street, Duluth."

The marriage of Miss Mattie Burns and Alston G. Messer occurred Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. W. W. Huntley, 13 Park place. The wedding was witnessed by only the intimate friends of the bridal couple. The bride for several years past has been connected with the business office of the News Tribune. She was becomingly gowned in gray etamine, appliqued with ecru lace, and carried American Beauty roses, and carried were prettily decorated. The color scheme in the dining room was pink. White and pink carnations comprised the floral decorations. Light refreshments were served after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Messer will be at home at New Duluth, after June 1.

THE DAKOTAS.

Edward Coleman May Have Been Victim of a Plot.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Redfield—The developments in the Coleman murder are such that each day it looks darker for the prisoner, Joseph Coleman. The preliminary hearing is being held at Faulkton today, and numerous surprises are said to be in waiting for the defense. It now develops that shortly after the last policy was taken Joseph Coleman had two wills drawn, one for himself and one for his brother, Ed, willing his life insurance to Joseph, and Joseph in turn willing his to Ed, but it appears on examination that the will of Joseph was entirely void and the will of Ed valid in every particular. These willis appear to have been drawn by one person, and at the same time, Joseph having but one witness and Ed having two. It seems apparent that a conspiracy existed, and other parties may be connected as assessors to the alleged crime.

Miller—Judge Gaffey, in the Pusey divorce case, granted the plaintiff $50 a month and attorney fees and gave her the home in town and care of four children. Mr. Pusey is to have the other two. This is but a temporary adjustment, as the regular divorce trial will come off next September. Mr. Pusey is prohibited from entering the home except to visit the children occasionally. Pusey attempted to show his wife was mentally unsound, while she was ready to prove that her nervous condition was caused by his taking his stenographer to live in his home.

Rapid City—Jeff McDermott, a former Black Hills man, writing to P. B. McCarthy, of this place, from Dawson, declares that the Klondike is no place for a man without capital, although, he says, it offers unparalleled opportunities for men with money. He tells in the letter of his participating in a stampede when the temperature wos 50 degrees below zero. He is snuperintendent of one of the large trading and mining companies. He will return to the Hills this fall.

Custer—The 11-year-old son of F. R. Bond, a prosperous ranchman, lost one foot by getting it caught between the cog wheels of a feed mill.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—Joseph O'Brien was arrested, charged with assault on the person of Emma Trepanier.

Dickinson—John Reid has taken up the abandoned Elk Horn ranch, which Theodore Roosevelt established during the early '80s.

Hillsboro—A. L. Plummer has completed arrangements for the reincorporation of the roller milling company, operating at Grandin.

Grand Forks—A snow storm prevailed over the entire Red River valley Friday, Winnipeg reported a heavy fall, and the storm reached south to Fargo, west to Larimore and east to the Minnesota timber. Two inches of heavy, wet snow fell here. Seeding all over the valley will be delayed for several days, as the soil is so full of water that it can absorb no more. It is now inevitable that the wheat area in the valley will be materially reduced.

PENSION GRANTED.

Washington May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—A "war with Spain" pension of $12 per month has been granted to Hanna Lindgreen—mother—of West Duluth.

THE J. P.'S DECISION.

He Sums Up the Coffee Case.

Judge W. W. Bowen, of Creeds, Va., announces himself as a "reformed coffee toper" and gives authority to make the following public statement:

"For years the coffee habit had been growing on me until my condition was getting serious. I have considerable writing to do, and had become so nervous that I had to depend almost entirely upon my wife to do the writing. Sometimes when it was imperative that I sign my name my hand trembled so I could scarce do it.

"I had severe headaches, stomach trouble, heart trouble, also some rheumatism. A friend, Rev. ——, one day sent me a package of Postum Coffee, with request that I give up coffee and make a fair trial of Postum.

I took the advice and the headaches ceased, also the stomach trouble. I now have no heart trouble at all except when I use coffee for a time. My old nervousness is a thing of the past.

My wife also suffered for years with heart trouble and extreme nervousness. She has found relief by leaving off coffee and using Postum. We now think it a much better drink than either coffee or tea. I have known of a number of cases that have been entirely cured or greatly benefited by leaving off coffee and using the new beverage, Postum."

NOT ALL FICTION

Report That Canadian Pacific May Be After Wisconsin Central.

Possible Way In Which It Could Be of Advantage.

Might Mean Another Fast Through Train to Chicago.

A tip has leaked out in Duluth that there is more fact than fiction in the announcement that the Canadian Pacific railway has secured or is engaged in securing control of the Wisconsin Central road. Whether the report is true or not, it is said that the South Shore people are inclined to place a good deal of credence in it. Nothing can be obtained for publication and the South Shore people here affect to know nothing about the matter. There are some wise faces worn about town, however, when the subject is mentioned in certain quarters.

While the Wisconsin Central, it is universally confessed, would be of little or no importance to the Canadian Pacific railway in the handling of traffic between the Atlantic seaboard and Chicago, east bound or west bound, it is claimed by some that the Canadian Pacific could not ask for a better feeder for its Western lines.

It is pointed out that in times of congestion of the Eastern part of the system, such as last winter, the Wisconsin Central would give the Canadian Pacific a chance to work a lot of wheat East via the Soo, Wisconsin Central and central traffic and trunk line roads. Or the same business could be worked East from Duluth via the South Shore, Wisconsin Central and Eastern lines.

It is said that the Canadian Pacific railway has come to recognize that Chicago is the railway center of the continent, and is always likely to remain so. The bulk of the business for the West and Northwest is said to inevitably pass through Chicago. A good part of the traffic in the winter passing from the Northwest to the East, it is predicted, will naturally seek the Chicago route. With a line from Duluth to Winnipeg, which would be a very simple matter to build, and the Wisconsin Central acquired, it is figured that the Canadian Pacific would always be in good shape to take care of its Northwestern traffic.

The most important interest locally that attaches to the matter is the only route that the consolidation of the Wisconsin Central with the South Shore would afford to Chicago and Milwaukee. It would mean a new through train and fast service. The Omaha-Northwestern line to Chicago, and the short route, is about 475 miles. A route from Duluth to Chicago via the South Shore to Marengo, where the two roads cross, and the rest of the way over the Wisconsin Central, would be only 502 miles. This difference of about twenty-five miles is much less than the differential the Chicago-St. Paul short lines enjoy over the longer routes between the same points.

One reason that has been urged against the report that the Canadian Pacific railway has acquired the Wisconsin Central is that the Rockefeller faction would not let it go in that direction because of the fact that it would become a rate disturber. One railroad man ventured the opinion today that while the Wisconsin Central has remained in the Rockefeller hands it has succeeded in preventing the accumulation of many dry bones among the other competing roads. It is said to have a way of going after traffic that is worrying at times if not exciting.

The Wisconsin Central has 1043 miles of road. It is stocked at $17,500,000 common and $12,500,000 preferred, and last year its gross earnings were about $6,000,000. There has been something of a sensational advance in its stock during the past few days as a result of the currency of the rumor that the Canadian Pacific railway was seeking to get a controlling interest in the stock.

NOT YET OPEN.

Operations at Northern Pacific New Shop Delayed.

The Northern Pacific company's new machine shop and roundhouse on Rice's Point, which were supposed to be ready for operation by the first of May, have not yet been opened. There are said to be various causes for this. One is that the company is not yet quite ready to open the new buildings for work. Another is that machinists are said to be very scarce at the present time and the company is not in a position to spare any men from the Brainerd shops to bring to Duluth, as was first intended. There yet remains much to do in the way of fighting out the new shops and it is not thought that an attempt will be made to open them before the first of June.

Yesterday some of the Northern Pacific company's wrecking apparatus and crews from Brainerd raised the engine that went through the trestle work at the Terminal elevator in West Superior. It took two cranes to lift the heavy machine. The only damage done to the engine was that caused by water and it will not amount to very much.

MAY DO NOTHING.

No Extension North of Bemidji Expected This Year.

It is understood that there will be no work done this summer on the Northern Pacific company's extension north of Bemidji, toward the international boundary line. The new line has been completed as far north as Blackduck, one of the new towns that has been started since the railroad construction began. Last season the firm of Halvorson & Richards, of Minneapolis, had the contract, but this season the firm would make no bid for the work. It is claimed that none of the bids of other contractors have been accepted by the railway company.

The chief complaint of the contractors is that the line must be built through a country that is swampy and full of sinkholes and the cost of construction, coupled with high labor is such that there is no money in it for the contractors, that those having the contracts last season barely escaped without a loss.

Another condition that is said to seriously handicap new track laying is the scarcity of steel and this is believed to have something to do with the cessation of work on the extension this summer.

The same complaint, a scarcity of steel, is being made by a number of the contractors that have started construction on spur tracks. At the present time there is little or no demand for men for track laying.

SEEMS LIKE FICTION.

A romance which suggests fiction rather than prosaic workday life in Brooklyn found its climax in the special term of the supreme court, when Justice Marean set aside a degree of absolute divorce obtained by Mrs. Sarah Lockwood sixteen years ago, against her husband, Frederick E. Lockwood, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood and their daughter, Sarah, now a young woman of 18, were in court when the annulment of the divorce was granted.

The beautiful young woman, who had forgotten the father of her babyhood, whom she had not seen for sixteen years, until a month ago, threw her arms about him and kissed him and whispered, "You're coming home now, aren't you, dear?" he had to turn away his face to conceal his emotion.

A reporter called at Mrs. Lockwood's home at 150 Quincy street, to ask her to tell the story of the quarrel and divorce and happy reunion. She had evidently been instructed not to discuss it, but Mrs. Lockwood was so happy that she could not keep silent. She said:

"Mr. Lockwood told me to tell the newspapers that he would say anything there was to be said. I feel just as a friend of mine said today—that I ought to be laughing or crying for happiness. We are united again after all these years, and nothing more will ever come between us.

"It was sixteen years ago that it all happened, and I know that neither of us has been happy since that time. I did my husband a great wrong. I know that we loved each other, but we were young and both had tempers. We quarreled, and I was led by evil advice. My brother-in-law told me that my husband was unfaithful, and I believed him. I never stopped to think what long years of suffering the step meant for both of us. On the advice of those whom I thought my friends I sued him for divorce. He was angry and didn't defend the suit, and the divorce was granted.

"That was sixteen years ago, and for all that time, up to a month ago, I never laid eyes on my husband. He had lived all over the country, going from one city to another. I have stayed here in Brooklyn, and my daughter, who has grown from a baby to a beautiful young woman of 18, has lived with me.

'Several years ago I learned that I had been falsely counseled and that my husband had never been unfaithful to me. For a long time my pride prevented me from making any advances, but when I saw my daughter growing up with this blight on her life my pride at last gave way and the love I have always had for my husband came back. I told my lawyers to find out where he was and to tell him I wished to see him.

"He called here at the house four weeks ago yesterday, and my daughter—his daughter—met him at the door. She hadn't the faintest idea who it was she was speaking to, and when I told her she could not believe it. At that time we had a long talk, and both made admissions that we had acted unwisely. I told him that I had learned that the stories I had heard of him were false and that I was sorry. He said that if he hadn't been so angry he could have explained everything. We parted with a new understanding.

'After that he called several times, and gradually it came to both of us that our mistake might still be set right. We thought of getting married again, but after talking it over we decided that, as there was never any real reason for the divorce, it would be best to have it set aside. So I made an affidavit that I had reason to believe the charges of infidelity I had brought were false, and he made affidavit that they were inspired by the personal enmity of the man who made them.

"We are both very happy now that it is all over and we are going to live together again and our daughter will have a home. I don't know whether we shall live here permanently or not. He is coming home early this afternoon and this will be our home for the present, anyway. Don't ask me to tell you how glad I am. It's a very strange story, isn't it? It doesn't happen to many women who have been as foolish as I was."

NOT AFTER NOAH'S ARK.

Senator Hanna receives many curious letters, but the proposition which was made to him the other day takes the palm for unlouoness, says the Boston Post.

"On the top of Mount Ararat," wrote his correspondent, "there is still preserved, buried amid eternal snow, Noah's ark. I am organizing a company to dig it out and bring it to the United States. You can help me make a lot of money if you will go into the scheme, because the original Noah's art would be the best paying attraction at the St. Louis fair."

Up to the present time Senator Hanna has not invested in the Noah's ark scheme.

HALF CENT ADVANCE

Wheat Started Out Slightly Higher And Advanced Further.

Rain And Snow In Northwest Caused Bullish Feeling.

No Government Report to Be Issued Until Next Week.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 10.—The wheat market started out at a slight advance this morning and ruled quite strong, closing with a net gain here of ½c for the July option and an advance of ⅝-¾c at Chicago. The postponement of the government crop report until next week caused some hesitancy in trading and business was light. The weather conditions caused a bullish feeling, there being continued rains and some snow in the Northwest, which means a reduction of the spring wheat acreage.

The Liverpool market closed with an advance of ¼d. Paris was unchanged to lc lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 292,000 bus, last year 341,000 bus. Shipments 509,000 bus, last year 357,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 492,000 bus.

Corn in the Chicago market advanced ⅛@c and oats ⅝c. Primary receipts of corn were 255,000 bus, last year 597,000 bus.

Shipments 260,000 bus, last year 649,000 bus. Clearances were 21,500 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 160 cars, and at Chicago, 14, a total of 174 cars, against 281 last week and 283 last year.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was light and the market stronger. It opened ⅛c up at 76c and sold up to 76⅞c at 9:50. It then reacted to 76¾c at 10, advanced up to 76⅞c at 10:33 and then held steady, finally closing at 76⅞c, an advance of ⅛c. Chicago advanced ⅝-¾c and Minneapolis ⅝-⅝c.

Cash sales were 5000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 at ⅝c under for No. 2.

Flax was very dull, but the market was strong. Cash seed closed lc up, the September option 2c up and October ½c off. Cash oats advanced ¼c and September ⅜c. Corn was up⅛c.

At Chicago, July wheat opened ¼c to Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Cash—No. 1 hard, 79⅜c; No. 1 northern, 76⅜c; No. 2 northern, 74⅜c; No. 3 spring, 72⅜c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 79⅜c; No. 1 northern, 76⅜c; May, 76¼c; July, 76⅜c; September, 74⅛c; Minneapolis—No. 1 northern cash, 75¾c; May, 75¾c; No. 2 northern, 73¼c. Oats—Cash, 41½c; September, 30½c. Flax—Cash, $1.75¾; to arrive, $1.75¾; May, $1.76⅜; September, $1.49; October, $1.43. Corn, 62¼c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 4, last year, 33; oats, 1. Receipts—Wheat, 8800; oats, 2567; rye, 612; flax, 4931. Shipments—Wheat, 223,508; oats, 1433; flax, 32,445.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Early Trading In Grains of a Hesitating Nature.

Chicago, May 10.—Early trading in grains today was of a hesitating nature because it was announced there would be no government report until next week. The weather conditions, however, started a renewal of the bullish feeling and prices for July opened ⅛c to ¼@¼c up at 74⅞ to 75⅜@75c. Press reports indicated continued rains in the Northwest and mentioned snow in the Red River valley. Traders were generally assured that the spring wheat acreage would be much reduced. Cables also were firm and commission houses were good purchasers. Further options were strong and July sold up to 75¾c and steadied. Local receipts 14 cars, 3 contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 160 cars, making a total for the three points of 174 cars, against 281 last week and 283 a year ago.

Absence of selling pressure stimulated the bullish feeling in wheat, although trade continued very quiet all session. July sold up to 75¾c, and closed firm, ⅞@⅞c higher at 75¾@¾c.

Corn felt the influence of the wheat bulge and the cold and unseasonable weather. September and December options were bought freely and offerings were slow. Local shorts bought, as did commission houses. Cables were indifferent and unimportant. July opened ⅛c up at 61⅜c and advanced to 62⅛@⅜c. Receipts 87 cars.

Corn had occasional fits of activity wheat wheat showed strength, but the close was only barely firm, ⅛c up, at 61⅝c.

Oats were in fairly good demand influenced by corn and the cold weather. July opened unchanged but on the influence of the improving cash situation advanced to 37c. Later this option eased to 36⅞c. Receipts were 150 cars.

Provisions started out strong on curtailed hog receipts and higher prices at the yards. The buying movement that has marked much of the trade in this pit for several days, however, eased off. Traders were saying that packers were about the only people who firmly believed in higher prices. The tone in lard continued fairly strong on the argument that so long as hogs marketed continue as light in weight as they have for some time past almost no lard can be taken from them. Some decidedly bullish provisions were talking 12-cent lard. July pork opened 2½c up at $17.45 and sold off to $17.35; July lard unchanged to 5c higher at $10.32½ to $10.37½ and hovered about near the low figure; July ribs 2½c lower to unchanged at $9.70 to $9.72½.

Close: Wheat—May, 75¾c; July, 75⅝@¾c; September, 74¼c; December, 75⅝c. Corn—May, 61c; July, 61¾c; September, 60½@⅝c; December, 47⅜c. May, (1903) 47⅝c. Oats—May, 43½c; July, 36c; July new, 37c; September, 29⅝c; September new, 31½c; December, 31⅜c. Pork—May, $17.30; July, $17.30; September, 17.27½; January, $16.77½. Lard—May, $10.25; July, $10.25; September, $10.27½; October, $10.27½. Ribs—May, $9.67; September, $9.65. Flax—Cash, Northwestern, $1.77; Southwestern, $1.76; May, $1.66; September, $1.45; December, $1.44. Rye—May, 56½@56c; July, 56½@56c. Barley—Cash, 65@71c. Timothy—September, $4.55@5.00. Clover—Cash, $4.25. Cash: Wheat—No. 2 red, 81¼@83½c; No. 3 red, 79½@82¼c; No. 2 hard, winter, 77½c; No. 3 hard winter, 76¼@77½c; No. 1 northern spring, 77½c; No. 2 northern spring, 75¼@76¼c; No. 3 spring, 73½@74½c. Corn—No. 3, 62½@c. Oats—No. 2, 43½@44c; No. 3, 42@42c.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Broad of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, May 10.—The news in wheat today was generally bullish and the market ruled firm on covering by shorts, and closed ½c higher than yesterday. Foreign markets were firm, Liverpool closed ½d higher for the day. Bradstreet predicts the world's shipments Monday will be about 7,000,000 bus, of which quantity, Europe will take about 5,000,000 bus. He expects a good decrease in the quantity on passage. The weather was generally unfavorable for seeding. Cash demand good and sales aggregating about 200,000 bus were reported for shipment East, part of which was off grade spring and part No. 2 hard winter wheat. The weather abroad continues favorable with the exception of England, where it has turned rather cold, but not sufficient to do any harm. Estimated receipts for Monday, 15 cars.

The corn market during the early part of the session ruled firm on covering by shorts and in sympathy with wheat, but on the advance there was free realizing, which caused a reaction and the close was quiet, ⅛@¼c lower than yesterday. Foreign markets were steady, Liverpool closed ¼d higher for the day. Country offerings were moderate, cash demand rather quiet. The weather was generally favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for Monday, 130 cars.

Provisions opened very strong on light receipts of hogs and higher prices at the yards, but the strong market was taken advantage of by heavy holders to sell freely and the demand brought out stop orders and the market had a break, closing a trifle firmer. It is a market in which the unexpected happens all the time and they are entirely "at sea." We do not believe there is anything outside of their force that warrants or maintains prices. Conditions suppose to govern legitimate situation are no different from other years when we had lower prices. Outsiders have been attracted by late activity and have bought some product. Estimated Monday, 35,000.

GARDEN TO SAVE SOULS.

The foundation stone of the new citadel for the Salvation Army will be laid during the latter part of May by Commander Booth Tucker, says the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

The citadel project is one which is a matter of special interest to the commander, as he believes that upon its success will depend to no little degree the effect of work along social lines which the army will be able to perform.

The commander met Architect Baird, who has prepared the plans for the new citadel. Some changes in the plans were made in order to provide a religious summer garden. This idea is a new one for the army, and when the Cleveland citadel is erected with this adjunct, it will be the only summer garden in the world devoted to Christianity and religious work. It is proposed to make the garden a most attractive place where in the hot nights of summer, the people may gather away from the heated pavements and sweltering streets, enjoy themselves in a healthful atmosphere and under surroundings where temptations are removed.

It will also be used for religious services, although this feature is not the most important, the main idea being to provide a place with all the attractiveness of a regulation roof garden and none of its deteriorating influences which often accompany these places. The idea of the roof garden in the opinion of the commander is but a part of the general project to provide a substitute for the pitfalls into which mankind is prone to fall and to make them powers for good instead of forces for evil.

Strike of Anthracite Coal Miners Had Bearish Effect.

Little Pressure to Sell and Declines Not Sharp.

Unfavorable Bank Statement Another Cause of Weakness.

New York, May 10.—Nervousness and anxiety were displayed by stocks at the opening of the week owing to the stock exchange failures growing out of the collapse of the so-called Webb-Meyer stocks and doubt as to how far the trouble might extend. The good resistance offered to the stocks and the effective support accorded the market dissipated fears and led to sharp recoveries. The prevailing high rate for money was ignored. Relief was apparent as a result of the liquidation. The uncertainties of the anthracite labor situation was a varying influence. Conditions generally of business and industry were considered favorable including the crop prospects, keeping the undertone steady.

The ordering of a strike by the anthracite miners made its influence felt all through the stock list in the opening dealings this morning. Delaware & Hudson dropped 3¾ and 2000 shares of Reading sold at 65¼ to 65, compared with 66⅝ last night and receded an additional fraction afterwar. Erie, St. Paul and Colorado Fuel showed the losses of about a point. Elsewhere the declines were restricted to fractions.

There were a few slight recoveries following the opening, but they were not maintained and considerably lower prices were made in special stocks. Delaware & Hudson rallied 2¾ and held fairly well at the improvement and Amalgamated sold above 69 before reacting. The sharpest losses were made by very small offerings, business being smaller in volume than for many weeks. The more important losses were 2 each in Rock Island, Louisville & Nashville, Northwestern and Linseed preferred, 1¾ in American Grass Twine and 1@1½ in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Locomotive preferred, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Louisville, New York Central, Gas, Reading second preferred, Rubber Goods preferred, Kansas City Southern, Rubber preferred, St. Louis Southwestern preferred to Louis & San Francisco first preferred.

The market was almost inanimate, but the small sales caused a sagging tendency which was somewhat aggravated upon the appearance of the bank statement. Amalgamated Copper dipped below 68, Sugar fell off 1¾, Reading and Northwestern to 4⅞, Rock Island 2⅞, Louisville & Nashville 3⅜. Reading second preferred 2 and other prominent railroad stocks from 1 to 2. One sale of Michigan Central carried it 8 points under the previous selling price. Rock Island rebounded 2 points and there were slight rallies elsewhere. The closing was dull and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Relaxation in money rates and renewer assurances from the West of further improvement in the crop outlook encourages bullish sentiment and the feeling in speculative circles tonight is indicative of continued strength in the security markets. Recognized commercial authorities optimistic; bank clearings continue heavy and over-production is conspicuous by its absence. Such are the under-lying conditions on which speculators for the rise base their hopes and calculations, while the technical conditions on which they lay most stress are the large short interest, the absence of important selling pressure and concentration of large blocks of securities in the treasuries of the railroads and the tin boxes of capitalists, the latter absorption being furnished, it is said, by the purchase of some 40,000 shares of Illinois Central for J. D. Rockefeller. Opinions regarding the forthcoming bank statement are much mixed, with a leaning toward unfavorable showing owing to the loss of each to sub-treasury and the belief that loans may not have decreased.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: High money rates are having more to do with checking bull speculation than any fear of a strike, and I don't see how we are going to get cheap money much before July. However, it usually happens when the monetary situation looks the worst that some unexpected relief comes. Copper is a safe buy on a scale for moderate profits. Good houses are paying only 6 per cent for money when the quoted rate was 15 or 20 per cent.

Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was still and heavy today, but there was very little pressure to sell and therefore declines were not sharp, but the tone of the market was weak owing to the prospect for the strike and a very unfavorable bank statement. There was good buying of Readings. Copper was also well bought. Insiders' interests are supposed to be selling rangers.

Town Topics: A feverish reaction should follow the opening of the stock market this morning on account of the declaration of a strike by 147,000 miners. We advise traders to use great caution. We do not believe the market will suffer serious injury on account of the present labor difficulty, for stocks are too well held by strong interests. Let industrials alone and buy only the standard dividend-paying issues. We do not believe a profit commensurate with the risk involved would be obtained on the short side, especially with regard to standard issues, because of the aforesaid strong foundation of the market.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was dull and sagging. The expected strike did not have as much effect as was expected, but all through the morning there was liquidation. The bank statement is not at all good. There was some little support, however, and the close was dull and soft. Traders generally are waiting until something definite in the coal situation turns up.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was dull for the day, waiting for the bank statement which was expected to be this morning. Delaware & Hudson dropped 3¾ and 2000 shares of Reading sold at 65¼ to 65, compared with 66⅝ last night and receded an additional fraction afterwar. Erie, St. Paul and Colorado Fuel showed the losses of about a point. Elsewhere the declines were restricted to fractions.

Boston to William H. Laidley & Co.: Money is the ruling factor in both New York and Boston stock markets and likely to delay oilque operations in coppers. Flower & Co., of New York, are returning large blocks of Amalgamated Copper, which they have been borrowing for six months. Locally there is a supply of stock in case of Copper Range whenever there is any demand. No market features.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 10.—Cotton opened with present unchanged to 1 point lower, New York, Central, Gas, Reading second preferred, Rubber Goods preferred, Kansas City Southern, Rubber preferred, St. Louis Southwestern preferred to Louis & San Francisco first preferred.

The market was almost inanimate, but the small sales caused a sagging tendency which was somewhat aggravated upon the appearance of the bank statement. Amalgamated Copper dipped below 68, Sugar fell off 1¾, Reading and Northwestern to 4⅞, Rock Island 2⅞, Louisville & Nashville 3⅜. Reading second preferred 2 and other prominent railroad stocks from 1 to 2. One sale of Michigan Central carried it 8 points under the previous selling price. Rock Island rebounded 2 points and there were slight rallies elsewhere. The closing was dull and steady.

Cotton futures closed barely steady: May, 927; June, 917; July, 912; August, 887; September, 835; October, 848; November, 813; December, 811; January, 812; February, 811. Spot closed easy; middling uplands, 9¾; middling gulf, 9¾; sales, 1700 bales.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 10.—Close, money on call nominally 4 per cent; prime mercantile paper 5@5½ per cent; sterling exchange barely steady with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.87¾@4⅞ for demand and $4.84@4.85 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.86 and $4.88½; commercial bills, $4.84½@4.85¼. Bar silver, 59⅞c; Mexican dollars, 47¼c. Government bonds, steady; state bonds, inactive; railroad bonds, easier.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 10.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows available cash balances, $87,664,422; gold, $97,076,108; silver, 19,887,914; U. S. notes, $7,910,934; treasury notes of 1890, $106,750; national bank notes, $8,513,190; total receipts this day, $1,960,951; total receipts this month, $16,821,748; receipts this year, $481,070,118; total expenditures this day, $1,560,999; total expenditures this month, $15,846,000; total expenditures this year, $414,560,999; deposits in national banks, $124,437,074.

METEORITE IN THE WAY.

Rear Admiral Barker, who is in charge of the Brooklyn navy yard, has an elephant which he would like to sell, give away or lose. Suggestions and bids are invited, says the New York Herald.

Admiral Barker not only has orders, but also an appropriation to build a new slip into the Cob dock. Exactly where the slip is is ordered stands the big meteorite, or siderite, which Lieut. Peary found in Greenland and brought here for the American Museum of Natural History, at the expense of Morris K. Jesup. Lieut. Peary says the siderate weighs 100 tons. Nansen, in his work on Arctic exploration, says it weighs ninety tons. Dr. Henry A. Ward, an expert on meteorites, says it weighs fifty tons. Dr. Edmund O. Hovey, associate in geology of the American Museum of Natural History and editor of the American Museum Journal, estimates it weighs forty tons.

Whatever it weighs, it took the biggest pair of shears in the world to lift it out of Peary's vessel ani plant it on the Cob dock. As the shears do not travel on wheels, they, or it, cannot be utilized to transfer the lump of iron to the American museum. Admiral Barker says he asked Mr. Jesup to take the thing away. Mr. Jesup s[illegible] meteorite would smash the stre[illegible] truck to cart it actually could be found. As a matter of fact he says, the Cob dock is an island without a bridge, so the thing could not be trucked anyway. He adds that, as the navy people took his show piece from the vessel and put it where he cannot get at it, it is the admiral's duty to move it. Mr. Jesup denies the report in circulation at the navy yard that he offers $10,000 to anyone who will remove the siderite to the American museum.

Although the government has ordered the slip to be built and the meteorite to be removed, this is one time when orders are not being obeyed. Lieut. Peary can perhaps be made to take the thing back to Greenland, where he got it—if he ever returns. It will not do to roll the siderite into the East river, as it would obstruct the opening of the proposed slip. At present the only course that seems open to the officials is to take the meteorite out to sea and lost it.

Peary's meteorite is a siderite sideros, iron.) Its shape is something like a sofa. Being the largest siderite in the world, it is the most coveted by museums of all the world's meteorites, of which the British, Berlin and American museums possess the largest known numbers, or some 530 "finds and falls," each, and are consequently scraping the whole earth to get an advantage of each other. The Peary meteorite, therefore, if removed to the American museum, would place that institution beyond rivalry, perhaps forever, as it would have the world's prize siderite.

The tie-up resulting from the general "sympathetic" strike of the members of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association will probably break within twenty-four hours.

It is cracked already.

It is reported from very reliable sources that before that time has elapsed some, at least, of the tugs of the Union Towing and Wrecking company will be in commission again, manned by members of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association.

In fact, there are not lacking prophecies that the trouble will result in the temporary disintegration of the L. T. P. A., and these prophecies come from members of the order.

The local body met last night, and it was to have held another meeting this morning, but owing to a small attendance an adjournment was taken to this afternoon. The purpose of the meeting was to pass upon the question of whether or not the strike should be continued here, or whether the men should accept offers that are

THE WEEK IN REAL ESTATE MARKET

Few Deals Closed But Market Is In Healthy State ---Considerable Interest Over Superior Street Deal Where Seller Backed Out.

Measured by formal results, the past week has been one of the dullest of the year in real estate. To summarize market conditions without further qualification, however, would be unjust and untruthful. In truth, the actual conditions of the market are improving steadily from week to week. While there are no deals of considerable moment that are given out this week, it is known that at least one and perhaps several have been closed. Since the failure to formally close up a transaction made in West Superior street property because of the unwillingness of the seller to complete his conveyance, real estate men have become slower to discuss their deals until the deeds are signed. In this connection it is said that the same party, as late as last fall, listed the same property, which was sold, and then, it is claimed, he gigged back in the same way as it is contended he did in the present instance. Real estate men will watch with interest the result of the suit begun to enforce the deal or recover damages.

The market is broadening. Interest is spreading among investors, and as evinced by inquiries and trades, it is extending to well nigh all kinds of property. Consummation of deals come in bunches, and there are sequent lulls, just as there always have been. This generality of interest on the part of investors when there seems to be so great an appeal to them for quick turns in more fluctuating markets is regarded as most promising by real estate men. It is taken to signify that the top has been practically reached in speculative deals, while the bottom has been little more than risen from in Duluth real estate. In the latter the opportunities are all yet to be grasped, and the advantages all to be gained.

It seems to be pretty well established that negotiations are progressing for the purchase of the new Wolvin building at First street and Third avenue west. The building is being erected by a company of local capitalists for the accommodation of the steel corporation interests here, which have taken a 10-year lease of everything but the ground floor, on a basis, it is said, of 6 per cent on the total investment of $360,000. The building, which will be one of the best, if not the best, business block in Duluth, will be completed about Oct. 1. What bonds are out are placed on a 5 per cent basis, so that the property will earn something over 7 per cent on the net investment.

Interest has been directed for some time to the activity in property lying on the lower side of East Superior street, between Second and Sixth avenues east. The activity is said to be due to arrangements that are about to be completed for the building of a spur track to the Fitger brewery. The Northern Pacific road, which it is expected will build the track, has thirty feet of right-of-way along the rear of the lots from Third avenue east. This, it is believed, will have the result of causing East Superior street to become an extension of commission house row on Michigan street. Superior street property in the area mentioned has sold for from one-fourth to less than one-half of the price at which Michigan street property is held.

Building operations continue active throughout the city. The St. Louis hotel addition is pretty well along toward completion in an exterior way. Ground was broken this week for the new Frerker building which is to be built on Superior street adjoining the Spalding hotel on one side and the Manhattan building on the other. The contract for the erection of this building will be let in a couple of weeks. It will be three stories on Superior street and four on Michigan. There is also renewed talk of the rebuilding of the Temple theater. It is likely that negotiations now pending with several parties will result either in the leasing of the site and rebuilding by the lessee or in rebuilding by the owners to lease.

C. E. Lovett: It seems to me that conditions now existing in the Duluth real estate market are similar to those prevailing between 1882 and 1885. Most of the property outside of that most centrally located is still only a fraction as high as it was in prosperous times. Residence and acreage property here is not anywhere near as high as it is in other cities. Acreage in the city limits, which will be good residence property before many years, can be bought cheaper than much farming country in older cities. The best residence property can be bought for from one-fifth to one-tenth the price of property lying eight or ten miles out from the business center of Chicago. For instance, I have this week sold a lot on Jefferson street, between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenues east, for $500. A similarly situated lot in a remote district of Chicago, would have cost $5000. The real estate movement here in the early '80s started in Endion, and as nearly as I can learn the interest today chiefly centers there. From Endion the movement spreads all over the city, gradually at first, as it is doing today, but surely including every location and class of property in its activity. I predict a repetition of the development of former days.

O. G. Olson: I find most promising conditions and outlook for residence property, though just lately I haven't been able to attend to that branch of business as closely as I should have done. I have sold two lots on Park Point, about two miles from the canal, and on Lake avenue, for $200 to $225; and a lot on East Third street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, for $750; also a quarter section of farming land in 50-16, at $8.50 an acre, and another piece lying not quite so well, for $5.

Interest in Lakeside property continues on the part of those seeking homes. It is said that a dozen lots have been bought of the land company, which are to be improved at once with homes. Practically all the houses there are now occupied by their owners, and people who owned lots there, or bought them from others than the land company, are preparing to build.

Another lot near the normal school has been sold by Richardson & Day and G. G. Dickerman, to be improved at once with a $3000 home. The purchaser is W. K. Fowler, and the site, lot 13, block 14, Highland Park addition, about a block and a half from the normal. Two other sales, under contract for building, are practically closed. Inducements held out to builders in this part of the city are the promise of a 10-minute street car service as soon as the normal opens, and the model school that will be opened in connection with the normal.

W. M. Prindle & Co.: We have been doing some business, though little of it is so far closed that we care to announce the deals. We find people are becoming more ready to pay the prices that are asked, and consider the market steady and promising.

John A. Stephenson: The market is becoming healthier. There is a constant inquiry. Moneyed people are looking for larger propositions than they have been, and I look for considerable activity in good-sized deals before long.

A. C. Volk & Co.: The market is looking fine. There is plenty of new inquiry, though with us just now it is largely confined to residence property. We have closed a few deals for dwellings in the West End.

Stryker, Manley & Buck: Business has been rather quiet with us. We consider the trade in a very satisfactory condition, however, and believe it is of large promise. We have made the following deals the past week: House on West Fifth street, $2100; house on Second avenue west, $1700; lot on East Sixth street, $800; lot at Lakeside, $350.

Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, of Philadelphia, the celebrated fiction writer, has sold through his Duluth agent, Wendell P. Mosher, three lots in block 50, Second division, to Elston & Britts. This is another evidence of the activity that has developed in that locality.

E. P. Alexander will hold an auction about the middle of June of lots owned by the Allison and Attison estates. The property is all residence and is situated in Harrison division.

John A. Stephenson has begun the erection of a $10,000 home at Twentieth avenue east and First street. The contract has been awarded to Otto Johnson. It will be colonial in design, frame, and of the square type, and will contain eleven rooms. It will be one of the prettiest houses in the East End. It is expected that there will be an early movement in the same direction by those whose plans have been out for some time back.

John J. Wangenstein is preparing plans for two flat buildings to be built by William M. Hubbard at Second street and Twenty-fifth avenue west. Each building will be two stories high and will contain four flats of five or six rooms each. The buildings will be of brick and of modern design throughout.

Austin Terryberry has given out for bids plans for a house to be built by E. A. Tyler at Nineteenth avenue east and Second street.

Palmer, Hall & Hunt will next week receive bids for the erection of a home for W. R. Spencer on Second street between Thirteenth and Fourteenth avenues east, to cost about $3000.

Radcliffe & Hill are preparing plans for several new houses.

Architect John De Waard is preparing plans for the interior fixtures for Panton & White's new store, which will cost about $10,000, and for a brick barn for A. D. Thomson to cost about $2000.

How to Make a Million.

Three Rules For Fortune Given By John W. Gates--Attend to Business, Use Common Sense and Keep Your Mouth Shut.

New York, May 7.—When one meets John W. Gates he can understand how that progressive gentleman from Chicago has grown rich. Mr. Gates has a square figure, a squarer jaw and he looks like a real fighting man, who wouldn't hesitate to "mix it up" with anybody or with a stone wall.

He has a sweet musical voice that is not at all aggressive, a sort of voice that would inspire confidence in the wariest "come-on" that ever crossed a bridge or rode in a ferry boat.

When a man has so much money that he cannot count it or spend it, then it behoves young and ambitious men like myself and yourself to find out the secret of it, so I went to see Mr. Gates.

"How can a young man make a million dollars?" I asked him.

"By attending to business, using common sense and keeping his mouth shut."

"Do you mean to say that any man can make a million by following that simple rule?" I asked, as I shifted some articles from my right-hand pocket to make room for a few hundred thousand.

"I can answer that best by telling you a story I heard on the other side. An Englishman told me that he was once visiting in Saratoga, and as he had only a few hours at his disposal to see the place he had to drive about in the rain in an open trap. It was a real rain and not like the mean little drizzle they call rain in England.

"The Englishman met a farmer tramping along through the mud, his trousers tucked in his boots.

"'Do you think it is going to clear up?' the Englishman asked the farmer, and the latter, tramping along and without even looking up, replied:

"'It always has.'

"Attention to business, common sense and keeping your mouth shut will win every time, and don't you forget it. It is easier to make money than it is to save money. You want to save until you get enough to make a start, because you can't do anything until you have a little capital to work on. There are as many opportunities now as there were twenty-five years ago for a man to pick up a million."

I looked around Mr. Gates' office in Wall street, a very plain, business-like, unpretentious office, but there wasn't a million in sight anywhere.

"How is the best way to pick it up, by speculation?" I asked.

"No, sir," continued Mr. Gates with vigor, "let speculation alone and stick to legitimate business channels. Speculation is a sort of luxury, and you don't want to touch it unless you have large capital. You must have plenty of money to make a success of it. A man with no capital seldom makes a success of it.

"Speculation is a good deal like mining. The prospector almost never makes anything out of his finds. Perhaps one in ten thousand gets rich and the others starve to death. It's the fellow with a lot of money that can develop the property that makes money out of it.

"People talk of me as a speculator. I presume I have made a little money in speculation, but my business is the iron and steel business. I have made pretty much all the money I have in that business and I will stick to it until I die.

"Did you ever notice that when a speculator dies and his will is probated it is found that he has left behind him, what he was accredited with having, and that when an iron and steel man dies it is found that he was a lot richer than any one imagined?"

"Then you don't believe in speculation?" I asked, having in mind the way in which Mr. Gates had carried through the Louisville & Nashville deal.

"Oh, yes, I do," he replied quickly, "but it isn't a good game for the young man who is anxious to make his way. You can't make your first million in speculation, but if you have your first million you can make your second easier by speculation than any other way—that is if you play the game properly."

"How did you get your start?" I asked Mr. Gates.

"Well, I've shifted for myself since I was 14 years old. I was born and reared on a farm in Missouri. I went to Chicago and worked for Isaac L. Elwood, who is now a special partner in the brokerage firm. I traveled for him and I woke up to the fact that I was earning a thousand dollars for him for every dollar he was paying me. That wasn't good business for me.

"I had about $5000, part of which I had saved, but most of which I had made by buying some land near Chicago and selling the timber on it, and I formed a syndicate with men as poor as myself. There were eight of us in the deal, and we started a wire mill on a modest scale. Prices for our goods were high, business was good and we hustled. The first year we made a profit of $150,000 on less than $10,000 invested. I gradually bought out my partners until I owned five-eighths of the business, and I have been going along ever since.

"I tell you people do not realize how big the iron and steel business is. Last year the United States Steel corporation made $17,000,000, and this year it will make $21,000,000."

"What do you think of Mr. Schwab?" I asked.

"Charley Schwab is the ablest iron and steel man in the world," said Mr. Gates with enthusiasm. "I have known him for twenty years and have seen him come up the line. I remember him as an iron boy when I built a mill between the Edgar Thompson and the Homestead mills. He is only 40 years old now, and he is a man who can compare with him in the iron and steel business. He has shown that he is a genius as an organizer and a manufacturer, and now he is proving equally great as a financier. Just as long as Charley Schwab is at the head of the steel trust it is bound to make money.

"That is my business, and that is what I am talking about. I suppose that I, the members of my family and my immediate friends and associates hold more than a million shares of steel stock.

"I was about 21 years old when I started in business for myself and ever since then I have devoted practically all my time to iron and steel. Its greatness as an industry is just beginning."

"How old are you, Mr. Gates?" I asked just to show a little personality.

"I am 47, although the newspapers make me out a decrepit old man."

He isn't decrepit. He looks as if there were no limit to his physical powers of endurance. When you see him it is easy to believe the stories that are told of his playing cards all night and working hard all day for forty-eight hours at a stretch.

I couldn't see how I could make a million in iron or steel, because I don't know anything about it, so I asked him about the Wall street game.

"It's not a hard game," said Mr. Gates, judicially, "and it's a mighty interesting one. I think I have been up against hardier games than Wall street; that you have to have a lot of money, a heap of common sense and good business judgment to make it win. The great trouble with most people is that they are affected by all the lot of rumors. There are more stories floating about Wall street than any place in the world, and there is no tale too ridiculous to fail to find believers. A good many people, in fact most people, make the blunder of listening to the rumors, and then they ignore the facts.

"In this Wall street game you first want to be sure of your facts, if you can, or as many of them as is possible, and let the rumors go to the devil. If you want information I send people I can trust after it. In this game you want to use the same cold judgment that you would use in any business.

People in Wall street are like a lot of sheep. The moment one starts the rest fall over each other in following him.

"I don't believe in following anybody. I believe in keeping my own counsel—you can't do anything in Wall street unless you keep your mouth shut—and breaking out for myself when I am ready to make the start.

"I don't believe in being a trailer. If other people want to trail after you, all right; you can't help that. But you can't make money by chasing up other people.

"Of course, you have got to have people with you. A man can't do things on a big scale all alone. You have got to have friends you can trust. I have got men who have been with me for twenty years, and who would follow me anywhere without question. You have to establish relationships that make a man's word stronger than any bond that a court would sustain.

"And you don't want to try and hog it all yourself. Any man who tries to do that will be done up in the end, and don't you forget it. He is putting himself in the position of one against the crowd, and they are stronger than he is, just as the country is stronger than any crowd of Wall street men. You have got to let other people make money.

"If it is your deal, if you have done the heavy thinking and the heavy work, it is right that you should make the most of it, but you must let other people in on the profits.

"That's one of the secrets of Morgan's success. He wants everybody to make money, and he doesn't try to hog the whole thing. He's always ready to make a fair division. The result is that he has the strongest following of any man on the street.

"I think J. P. Morgan is the greatest banker and the greatest financier in the world. There isn't any question about it in my own mind. He can underwrite any stock he agrees to handle. When he starts to float a company the other houses come to him and ask: 'How much do we get?' When another house underwrites a stock it has to go around the street and ask: 'How much will you take?' That's the difference in the nutshell."

"What do I think about James R. Keene?" I asked.

"Mr. Keene is an able man. There is no man on the street I am more willing to take off my hat to than Mr. Keene. He is a sick man now, but he is rounding to all right and he will be back in thirty or sixty days, as powerful as ever. He is the most brilliant, daring and able speculator the street has ever known."

"Do you think Wall street owns this country?"

"That's nonsense," said Mr. Gates, with vigor. "Wall street represents a game that all the world plays. It is a dominant power, but all the money of America is not in Wall street. The wealth of this country is enormous, greater than most people dream, and the country is bigger than Wall street. I have seen the steel and iron industry grow from a little personality to 20,000,000 tons last year, and in 1901 the iron and steel product will amount to 25,000,000 tons. That wasn't done by Wall street. Wall street didn't even make the country richer or poorer. It simply juggles with the money that the country makes."

"Have you ever got the worst of it in speculation?" I ventured. I had just been reading about a wheat deal in which it was said that Mr. Gates had been bit pretty hard.

"Plenty and often and good and hard," admitted Mr. Gates, promptly. "They call me a plunger. Maybe I am; I don't think much of a plunger who isn't one. When it comes my way it comes strong, and when I lose it is in the same proportion. Sometimes I have been misled by my friends, but they acted in good faith. Sometimes my own judgment has been at fault. When I get it I have no kick coming. I don't worry. I think about the next move."

"Then you have never gone broke?" I inquired anxiously.

"Not yet. I am economical. I think I can worry along and escape the poorhouse." I thought that Mr. Gates winked, but I am not sure.

"My friends have not suffered either," he went on, "I have men with me who started as office boys and they are still getting along."

"How much have they?" I inquired casually, thereby showing that I am a true American.

"Oh, a million or so," said Mr. Gates in an offhand way. "It's funny about the young fellows," he went on meditatively, "when a kid begins to get hold of a little money he thinks he is smarter than the old man. If he cleans up a hundred thousand he thinks he can make all the money in the world. Then he stubs his toe and he is mighty glad to come back for a little help and some good advice. It does a man good to stub his toe now and then. It takes the conceit out of him."

"Then you don't want to make all the money there is in sight?"

"No, I don't. I couldn't if I would. I told you that the man who tried to hog everything is bound to get left."

"Now there was that L. & N. deal"—

"They said a lot of rot about that deal. I didn't want to corner L. & N. Before I made a move I satisfied myself that it was a good investment that I could sell the stock for more than I paid for it. And I never made a move until I was sure that the control could be pur-

REVIEW OF CLUB YEAR

Work of the Saturday Club Is Told By the Corresponding Secretary.

The Saturday club has finished its work for the year 1901-1902 and the following report of the recording secretary gives a concise and comprehensive review of what has been done:

The Saturday club held twenty-six meetings during the year, eight being devoted to history, ten to literature, four to art, two to education and two to science.

There were seven regular meetings of the board of directors and eight special meetings for the management of the general affairs of the club.

Fourteen ladies were elected to membership during the year and three former members readmitted, leaving the present membership fifty.

The annual picnic was held at Lester Park Aug. 23.

According to the custom of previous years, the Saturday club extended an invitation to all clubs of the city to meet on Oct. 25, at Elks' hall, for the purpose of listening to the reports of the delegates to the State Federation of Women's Clubs, which had recently convened at Owatonna.

The work in history embraced the period of the Georges in England from 1714 to 1837—a very important epoch, covering the lives of such men as Walpole, Pitt, Fox, Burke and Warren Hastings.

The more important topics discussed were the social condition in England, the slave trade, the causes leading to the revolutionary war and the war of 1812 with America, England's naval supremacy, Ireland under the Georges, the war with France, Napoleon's power and the results of Waterloo.

The work in literature commenced with a study of Alexander Pope, then the advancement of England's periodicals under Steele, Addison, Swift and Sir Richard de Coverly. Early prose and circumstances which gave rise to the novel of the eighteenth century came next, with a comparative study of the novels of Richardson, Fielding, Smollett and Sterne and a review of Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield." Then followed the romantic age of poetry under Wordsworth and Coleridge after which Lord Byron's literary and social rank was discussed. "Childe Harolde" reviewed, and Byron's rank as a dramatist illustrated by the rendering of his drama "Cain" by members of the club.

The year's work in literature closed with a table talk on Sir Isaac Newton and an interesting afternoon with representative women of the eighteenth century—Mrs. Hemans, Mrs. Browning, Mrs. Oliphant, Maria Edgeworth, Jane Austin and Jane Porter.

Added to the regular work along literary lines, the club, on Nov. 30, had the pleasure of listening to Rev. Alexander Mackie on "An Hour With Burns and Scott," and on March 8, to Rt. Rev. Bishop McGolrick, on "An Afternoon With Gibbon."

The literary program for Jan. 11 was combined with Feb. 8. Miss Mary McDowell, of the University settlement, Chicago, who had been engaged to deliver two lectures under the auspices of the Saturday club, occupied that day on the subject of "Social Consciences," before a large audience.

On Tuesday of the following week, Miss McDowell delivered her second lecture at the Unitarian church, her subject being "Social Settlement Work." Her lectures were well received, and gave general satisfaction.

As Emerson says, "Sculpture and painting have an effect to teach us manner and abolish hurry," the club began its year's work in art by a resume of English painting, from the earliest date to the Georgian era. Papers were read on portraits, medallions, miniature painting and the poetry of architecture. Sculpture followed, with the rise and fall of the classical school and the influence of Sir Richard Westmacott and Francis Chantry. With Gilbert R. Redgrave as authority, water-color painting was discussed and a comparative study of Turner and Girtin given. Etching in England followed, with thoughts gleaned from Frederick Wedmore's "Studies in English Art."

The art committee, realizing that it was "the end of art to inoculate men with the love of nature," secured Mrs. Robert Seymour, on March 15, to talk to the club on "Nature Sense," an interesting subject of varied research.

In science one day was devoted to the geological formation of England, its marshes and fen-lands, collieries and canals; the other to our Bird Neighbors and the care of Bees.

"The Relation of the Home to the School" was the subject of an instructive paper read by R. E. Denfeld, superintendent of schools, on the day devoted to education.

March 14 Frederick Warde lectured before the club and many friends on "The Art of Oratory as Exemplified in Shakespeare." This lecture proved a great success. His delineation of the characters discussed were scholarly and was received with great enthusiasm.

Different programs during the year have been enlivened by music, rendered by Mrs. Homer Collins, Mrs. Thornton, Mrs. McKindley, Miss Simonds, Miss Pineo, Miss Jones, Miss Fraser and many others.

Many social functions, both at the club, with Madames Barnard, Ames, Paddock, Harbinson and Williams as hostesses, and at the homes of Madames Simonds, Hubbard, and our president, Miss Roe, have added greatly to the social features of the Saturday club.

The year's work has been a great success, enlarging and broadening the knowledge and ideas of its members and through the activity of the Civic Improvement committee, has become a factor in the public affairs of the city, which is fully shown by the adoption by the authorities of the suggestions made by the Woman's council.

It is hoped that another year will be productive of greater results along this line, and that the Saturday club, through its literary attainments, will retain its prestige in the front ranks of the women's clubs of the land.

The present headquarters of the Saturday club are in Elk's hall, but hereafter, through the courtesy of the library board, the club will occupy spacious quarters in the new Library building.

MARY L. ELY,
Recording Secretary Saturday Club.

PILGRIMAGE TO ROME.

New York, May 10.—The American Catholic pilgrimage to Rome of whnt the Rev. E. H. Porcile, of Brooklyn is the director general, will not be postponed on account of the death of Archbishop Corrigan, but will set out as originally scheduled, in two sections, the first sailing July 1 and the second July 5.

As Viewed By Gath.

New York's Expenses, Which Are Well Administered--The Beef Trust and J. Pierpont Morgan's Greatness.

New York, May 10.—About 100 million dollars will be the year's cost of operating New York. Nearly the whole is raised in taxes. That this can be collected is the best evidence of a strict and responsible government.

Considering the human elements and the physical difficulties and the Democratic absolutism, this is probably the best government on this side of the Atlantic. The people have created the wealth they are taxed upon and could not have made it without a government of enterprise to second their enterprise. A dull, respectable, stupid, conservative critical government would have broken the heart of the go ahead citizenry. Such a government Naples had under the Spanish viceroys and some encrusted, crabby American towns now have, which boast conservatism till they have not a railway of their own.

New York has become the first city on the globe in every vital respect; first in commerce, railroads, manufactures and finance. It can raise a hundred millions in voluntary taxes and play with a million shares of stock a day; it gives to education outside of the state almost a fifth part as much as it pays in taxes.

The sense of cities stands against it as extravagance. It smiles at their great concern. It calls the up-state man "Rube" and the outside man "Pumpkins." It does not even know that Washington said of it in 1783: "No person that knows the temper, genius and policy of these people as well as I do can harbor the smallest doubt of their coming New York and the lakes by a canal. I shall be mistaken if they do not build vessels for the navigation of the lakes which will supersede the necessity of coasting."

This doubles back on a popular idea that New York was not concrete, but a compound. The New Englander showed up in New York until after the revolution, when the place was 150 years old. New York inherited the genius of Amsterdam, which taught banking to the world.

Gates has been the "Old Hutch" and "Norton Rexall" of New York lately. He was constructed of barbed wire like the British lines in South Africa. A man of no affectations, a half wild Westerner, he has formed to speculate from the poker instinct; to bet high on a small hand and trust to the god of storms.

This week I examined the beef trust with my market basket on my arm, as I have carried it for thirty-five years. This combination began from fathoming the female plan, once current, to apply the market money to the dry goods bill, thereby deranging my stomach, which was the key to my head. Economy with the stomach instead of the back may do in any other than the literary lines. I said to my green grocer "Why is beef up?"

"Beef is down," said the grocer. "It had gone up before the agitation, but was down at that time. Nevertheless, the people, governed through their imagination, began to economize on fresh meat. The consumption fell off so frightfully that it become clear the people can regulate any trust by their abstinence. They eat too much meat. This is the first time they have practiced against their superfluity."

I asked a traveling salesman during the week if he sold only to jobbers. "Only those," he replied.

"And I suppose you allow them 40 per cent?"

"Just about."

"Well," said I, "what is the beef trust compared with that?"

"It is the same in all branches of trade," replied the salesman. "A bath tub must be bought from the plumber, who had no hand in making it; the maker will not sell it except to the trade."

"So we pay 40 per cent for every tool, toy, implement and utensil."

"You do."

"Well, I will forgive the butchers."

"But there is the fight," said the salesman. "It is the small butcher, or rather meat-seller, who is kicking, because the manufacturer—butcher—sells direct to consumers, such as hotels and restaurants. The little butcher wants to buy the Western carcass, carry it or have it carried for him, half a block, and make the 40 per cent. Or, if he is that rare thing now, a cow-killer himself, he wants protection against the distant butcher-manufacturer; puts up the price of beef himself, perhaps; starts clamor and says, 'It is the trust!'"

I related this to the only abbatoir butcher in Washington. Said he: "You are about right. They put up sausage to 20 cents a pound in this market. Although all the veal, pig and whatnot they make it of is killed right here. The fact is that the rise in provisions had preceded, by some time, the clamor, and the meat was coming down when the hullabaloo began. It was clamor on a falling market. But the retailers wanted to slap on the 40 per cent and they helped the cry.

McKinley at Canton was wont to send for all the chairmen of visiting delegations to say "What are you going to say to me? Let me see your speech! Don't say that!" This was cunning and it succeeded. Speaker Henderson is said to be trying it on. "Will you recognize me?" "What are you going to say?" This is the reductio ad absurdum of a parliament, which means a place to talk. We have finally come to blue pencil parliaments, where nobody can introduce a subject but the monarch.

Edward W. Mealey, of Hagerstown, Md., has visited Cuba. "What did you think of it?" I asked.

"I formed a high opinion of Cuban possibilities. It is a rich island, ready for more development. The Americans have nearly run a railroad to the east. The condition of Havana showed me how much better an autocratic benevolence is than boards of aldermen and municipal suffrages. That city, for the only time in its history of 400 years, is clean—cleaner than any city in the United States. The Cubans were compelled to be clean, like little children to be washed. In some cases they had to be whaled to stop their dirty habits. The harbor is also clean. Yellow fever, considered perpetual at Havana, is absolutely banished. Such another transformation man probably never saw."

"To whom is that due?"

"To Gen. Wood. He was a doctor and a sanitarian. Roosevelt discovered his force when he made Wood colonel over Roosevelt himself."

"Did you ever meet him?"

"Several times. He immediately impresses one as a great man, a man in love with a hard task, and deeply in earnest, absolutely honest—a large man, too, expressing himself like a leader. If we withdraw from Cuba it will relapse to the same dirt and epidemic it has always had There is neither sense in giving it up, nor sense in letting it become the sport of Cuban politics. It should be American, and all worthy men there want it to be so. But it is not fit for politics. A second generation of men must come in to be able to rule themselves. In fact, annexation is the only solution. I regret that men like Senator Teller have spoiled the prospects of Cuba by demanding its independence. Havana is the best city I found south of Washington. It will make our great winter resort. I saw very little to commend on the coast ports of our old states. The New South is in the interior, toward the mountains. But Cuba is a great wonder; its mountains are higher than the highest Alleghenies, 8400 feet. There is a great mountain ridge near our low seaboard, full of minerals, dissolving into rich soil forever."

Morgan is the inheritor of the greatest imagination in commerce, from a projector father and a poet grandfather. His father formed in Boston the first great dry goods combination—Beebe, Morgan & Co.—which was wound up in the panic of 1857. This project, however, contained the germ of J. Pierpont Morgan's combinations of many partners and wide relations. Father and son went to Europe in 1854, the son then 17, they looked at the world as from a focus. Part of the time Pierpont Morgan was at Gottingen university, the Hanover, founded by Washington's boyhood by Baron Munchausen. The attendance of Longfellow, Motley, Ticknor and Bancroft recommended this school to the elder Morgan, who was much influenced by his wife's father, the Rev. John Pierpont. Commodore Vanderbilt discerned Pierpont Morgan's intellectual power and will soon after he formed a banking house at the age of 25. For forty-four years Morgan has been a banker. He has seen the world grow up. His conceptions have always been daring, and are now so bold that they are almost obscure. But his commissions have been so great that they have given him a leverage such as few bankers ever possessed. He, more than any man of the age, sees around the globe. In his expanded ken it is as a school globe to the schoolmaster. He has taught the American capitalist investment. While clumsy statesmen like Hanna see commerce revived by subsidy, Morgan revives it by combination.

Morgan has gone far to make the United Kingdom a European connection of the United States and make the New York stock exchange a seat of London dealings. All this is gibberish to many senators and congressmen. Morgan has more education than Astor, Robert Morris, Girard and others of his predecessors. Still, he is a Boston High School boy, and not a university graduate.

Congress is far behind the scope of Mr. Morgan. His mind is so active that while we hear of one of his propositions one day when it is executed, he has several more maturing that we never conceive of. One feature in him is worldly fellowship. He never leaves the ground. Yet it is rare to hear of his antagonizing. He is an imperious master, and slightly sensitive to publication, but there are as many ideas to his character as to a popular sovereign. He is probably the first American who has Bismarcked his country into the affairs of the eternal world. A good many people make a living by suspecting him of things. The world really needs a leader, and it has no other now than Pierpont Morgan.

"Water Cure" Tested.

Negro Volunteered To Be the Victim--Five and a Half Pints Poured Into Him In Six Minutes Gave Him Enough.

New York, May 10.—Is the "water cure" of the army in the Philippines a torture? It has been definitely established that the so-called "water cure" or "water treatment," is a comparatively common practice in the Philippines. The "treatment" is vigorously defended by a few and as violently attacked by many. In order to determine the exact effect of this so-called "cure," a scientific test of the water torture has been made.

The "water cure" was applied in the test by soldiers recently returned from the service in the Philippines. The test was in every detail an exact reproduction of the methods employed in the Philippines. In order to obtain the exact scientific data and dangerous effects, Dr. Carlton Simon, medical expert, was invited to superintend the tests and make scientific readings of the effect upon the victim throughout the experiment.

The "cure" was carried to the point of torture and even a shade beyond. By actual measurement the victim was forced to swallow between five and six pints of water, or to be accurate, eighty-eight ounces, in a trifle less than six minutes. Most persons will agree that such a test was entirely thorough as to its limits.

The man who submitted to the experiment was Harry Stocks, a negro, of sound physical condition. He was selected in preference to a white man in order that the mentality and general nervous force and vitality of the patient should correspond as nearly as possible with that of a native Filipino. The retired American soldiers who were present at the test were found in "Buffalo Bill's" Wild West organization.

Great difficulty was experienced in finding a volunteer who would submit to the "water cure." It was clearly explained in advance that the one submitting to the test was expected to take as much water as he could possibly take up to the point of human endurance. The water had, of course, to be poured quickly and in a continuous stream down the man's throat, while he lay in a horizontal position, without even a pillow beneath his head. It was explained that at a prearranged signal from the "victim" the operation would instantly cease.

A dozen men were found who imagined themselves willing to undergo the test, but each and all absolutely refused to submit when it came to being tried. Six of the men who volunteered in this way and then refused had seen actual service in the United States army. It is interesting to note that the only man who proved to have sufficient courage to undergo the test was not a soldier, but a servant in one of the Broadway hotels. His courage proved amply sufficient for the strain put upon it.

It is one thing to drink as quickly or as slowly as you choose, pausing when you care to for breath, and quite a different thing to have even a small quantity of water poured down your throat so quickly that you have no time to stop swallowing to take breath for fear of choking. It is probable that it is the sensation of choking more than anything else which qualifies the "water treatment" to rank as a torture with any of the iniquisition.

In actual water torture in the Philippines the victims are first securely tied hand and foot, the legs being lashed together and the arms bound tightly to the sides. From four to six men are usually detailed to conduct the "cure." One soldier attends to pouring the water down the victim's throat, another watches the movement of the heart or pulse, while the others attach themselves to the man's legs or sit upon his chest to keep him from writhing or possibly breaking loose.

The water is poured into his mouth from a bucket held above his head or through a funnel placed in his mouth. In some cases a tube has been used to force the water into his mouth. Such a tube is preferably connected with a tank or large volume of water in order that the stream may descend with as much pressure as possible. An ordinary rubber syringe has also been used, it is said, with almost the same results.

In some cases, according to the testimony recently taken in Washington, the victim was merely placed under a faucet. As a rule the victims struggle fiercely. The treatment rarely lasts, in actual practice, more than four or five minutes.

The volunteer who was used in the test was first subjected to a careful physical examination to determine if he were strong enough in every part to stand the strain. His pulse, temperature and general heart action were carefully noted. An examination was made of his heart by means of special appliances. His pulse was also recorded by means of the pulse graph, constructed by Dr. Simon, which gives tracings on paper of the pulse beat.

Stocks then removed his collar and loosened his shirt band. The soldiers next proceeded to bind him.

Unlike the methods employed in the treatment in the Philippines, Stocks was left free to signal to stop the water as soon as he had reached the limit of his endurance.

The water escaped into the victim's mouth through an aperture three-fourths of an inch in diameter. This is an unusually large stream, demanding considerable effort of the muscles of the throat to swallow it. The first eight ounces of water was poured in a contipuous stream.

It was apparent from the first that Stocks was making tremendous physical effort. His face became crimson from the effort, his cheeks bulged almost to bursting from the pressure of water. His throat and the muscles of his chest were convulsed with the effort of swallowing.

In the familiar phrase, the water took away his breath almost instantly, so that his entire body vibrated and shook as a man might who had been running violently and was nearing the point of exhaustion. The last gulp came with a supreme effort, and the strong fellow lay panting.

A moment later, with scarcely enough breath left to speak, Stocks nodded assent that he was ready to go on. The graduated funnel was filled, this time with a pint of water, and the same operation repeated. Again the muscular frame labored with the violence of the effort. It was obvious to the most inexperienced eye that if the effort of swallowing were interrupted for a moment the man must choke. Meanwhile Dr. Simon, with his finger on the man's pulse, watched the effects narrowly. The pulse had gone up with leaps and bounds, but when the last of the additional pint was gone the man's condition was not yet near the danger point.

Leaving the doctor, watch in hand, to make the scientific readings, every eye was fixed upon the prostrate figure as he attempted to take his final amount. After the first few gulps the man became visibly distressed. His breathing grew more labored; his breath, coming quicker and faster, almost whistled as it escaped. The crimson of his face and neck deepened. His eyes bulged. It was twice necessary to stop the flow of water to allow him to catch his breath, though a moment later the stream was again turned on full head. With the disappearance of the last of the fourth pint it was clear that the test had proceeded dangerously near the point of torture.

No one who could have seen Stocks gulp down the last pint could fail to condemn such a treatment. The man's courage in attacking the last pint of water was amazing. The muscles of his throat were visibly weakening. He swallowed less regularly and with a painful choking noise. At this point it is probable that the limit of torture was not only reached, but passed.

The man's consciousness was centered, so to speak, in his throat. At the end he actually forgot the signal it had been arranged he was to give to stop the water. He was so intent upon the effort to keep from choking that he neglected to raise his hand. For an instant the water gurgled in his throat and then flowed freely from his mouth. The danger point had been reached.

At the same instant Dr. Simon, with his hand on the man's pulse, motioned the water pourer away and, loosening the bands, raised the man to a sitting position. A distinct dilating of the pupil of the eye and a sudden intermission of the pulse told him that the man was on the point of unconsciousness. A stimulant was instantly administered and a moment later repeated.

Soon the painful symptoms began to disappear, and at the end of an hour he left in excellent spirits and health.

"They may call it a 'water cure,' but I call it torture. A man would do anything in the world to stop the water after he has swallowed a pint or so. It made me dizzy and gave me sharp paint, so that I felt mean and uncomfortable even when it was all over. There isn't enough money in New York to pay me to go through another 'water treatment,'" said Stocks after the test.

The following is taken from Dr. Simon's observations:

BEFORE.	AFTER
Pulse, 66; regular.	Pulse, 94; irregular.
Respiration, 14, and easy.	Respiration, 30, and labored.
Temperature (mouth), 97 degrees.	Temperature (mouth), 95 4-5.

Time consumed in pouring water, 6 minutes.

Total amount of water, 88 ounces (5½ pints.)

Symptoms noted during "treatment"—Distention of stomach, irregular and rapid heart action, strangling with coughing dilation of pupils, with intense congestion of blood to the head, followed by pallor and clonic contraction of the muscles of the face, throat and chest.

Symptoms complained of by the subject—Strangling sensation, severe pain in stomach, resembling colic, giddiness, severe pains around the heart, nausea and pain in the back of the head.

RATTY TIME

Danville, Ky., May 10.—John Phillips essayed the role of the Chicago "Corn King" Phillips and stored a lot of the yellow ears in a crib to await higher prices. When he went to examine his holdings he found that rats and mice had eaten all but a small portion.

Enraged over the loss, Phillips began to wage war against the rodents. He placed a high plank fence around the crib and began his attack. The rats fought him viciously when they discovered they had been fastened up. Some climbed up his pants legs and bit him severely. He killed over 300, and thinks three times that number escaped. He will be confined to his bed several days from wounds inflicted.

Costumes Worth Fortunes.

Gowns Worn By Leading Society Actresses Are the Most Expensive of Any That Are Brought to America.

New York, May 10.—Fortunes are spent in stage gowns today.

In any of the productions running at the New York theaters on Broadway the leading actresses wear gowns which cost anywhere from $1000 to $2800 or $2900 apiece.

This is quite apart from any jewelry they may wear. It is the bare cost of a single gown. It is no uncommon thing for one woman to wear three or four gowns in a single evening.

Nina Farrington does it in "The Hall of Fame" at the New York theater, and so do several others.

With this amount of money spent, with the good taste which seems to become a part of the stage training as well as a natural inheritance, is it any wonder that the stage today is the fashion glass of the country?

It is the increasing demand for the very finest costumes that has caused the cost of theatrical productions to soar to the tremendous height that it reached this year.

With the bill for the star dresses $5000, and a dozen members of the supporting company nearly as expensively dressed, $25,000 or $30,000 for the production lasts about as long as a snowball does in summer.

The result has been that several of most successful plays this winter have been talked about and visited quite as much that their costumes might be studied as that the acting might be seen.

Dressmakers during the past winter have copied gown after gown from the stage, and some of the leaders of the most exclusive society in New York have worn gowns which were imitations of some of those in the accompanying photographs.

It used to be the horse show which set the styles and was considered the parade ground of fashion, but nowadays it is the stage.

The most complete gown ever made for use on the stage is one which Paquin made in Paris for Amelia Bingham, and the mangeress-actress designed it herself. Paquin called it the "Diamond Gown," and after its delivery wrote Miss Bingham a letter, in which he said he considered it the finest gown for use on the stage which he had ever turned out, as well as the most expensive. Its cost was somewhere between $2500 and $3000, and so little less than the latter that, as Miss Bingham's husband feelingly says, "In the words of Lew Dockstader's song, 'you couldn't hardly notice it at all!' "

In the dress were 10,000 rhinestones, such a sum used for jewelry, sewn by hand on the white silk net foundation, which is cut all in one piece. Four women worked for three months to put on the gems and do the embroidery. The gown was designed by Miss Bingham, but made by a man, and there is no duplicate of it in the world.

While the weight of the stones and the yards of satin and the gold embroidery made the gown a load to carry, its cut and fit are so perfect that Miss Bingham can lift her arms high above her head and move about in it with perfect ease.

Miss Bingham has lately designed so many gowns that she was completely at her wits' end for this costume, but was delighted with it, and, as Paquin himself says, it is the most beautiful gown that was ever sent out from his workshop.

The jewels are sewn on to make the design of feathery ferns and palms, and the net is studded with the stones like diamond dust, making a dazzling effect. The gown is given a perfectly regal touch in the border of rosebuds and leaves embroidered in gold all around the edges of the trained skirt, with a solid panel in front, reaching from the belt to the hem of the gown. The low-cut bodice is an almost solid mass of the stones. It has no sleeves, but there are transparent puffs of tulle at the shoulders with string after string of rhinestones festooned like ropes across the tops of the arms.

It is easy enough to put money into a gown with an ermine train or a rare lace flounce, but probably there is not anywhere on the stage one that shows such workmanship, more costly material and artistic design.

Dorothy Donnelly, the leading woman of the Soldiers of Fortune company, wears a gown which is made of ciel blue satin combined with Irish lace. It is made princesse, embroidered down the front sides and back with lavender orchids in their natural colors and silver foliage. The lace, which is of a bold pattern, forms a bolero in front and in the back completely covers the gown to the end of the train, the orchid embroidery showing through the pattern of the lace.

The entire design of the lace is repeated in small paillettes and rhinestones all over it—there is a flounce of the same lace around the bottom of the skirt over three flounces of pale blue chiffon.

The sleeves are short above the elbow made of lace and completely off the shoulder and held in place by two chains of rhinestones over each shoulder.

Nina Farrington, in "The Hall of Fame," wears a gown made for her by Mrs. Coburn. Miss Farrington paid $1200 for this gown, which is a princesse affair of ivory Chantilly lace, hand embroidered in opal paillettes, in chrysanthemum design, shading from pale mauve to the deeper purples. Garlands of the same chrysanthemums hang from the right shoulder line to the bottom of the skirt. The sleeves are of paillettes, and jewels clasped by rhinestone chains.

Marie Dressler, in "The Hall of Fame," wears in the palace scene a white panne velvet with Valenciennes lace and bands of the real old-fashioned "tatting," which is just becoming fashionable once more. These bands are made over a black mousseline de soie circular flounce, hand painted in green water lilies and gold. A broad band of lace encircles the bodice. There are straps of panne from the shoulders to the upper edge of the band, also from the lower edge to the narrow girdle, which fastens with a large turquoise buckle. A plain lace collar is held in place by sable straps. The sleeves fit the arm closely to the elbow and are bell shaped to the bottom, where they are slashed to display the full puff of Valenciennes lace.

Adele Ritchie, in "The Toreador," wears a princesse gown made of bluish gray paillettes, of which there are 10,000. The body of the gown is white netting over pink chiffon, on which the paillettes are sewed. A network of flowers covers the dress. The heart of the largest flowers is made of steel beads, and in the evening the play of the electric lights makes them scintillate brilliantly.

Miss Chrystie McDonald, in "The Toreador," wears a princesse dress of white crepe de chine, elaborately trimmed with point lace and rhinestones.

The bodice is cut with French neck, the sleeves elbow length, finished with very full ruffles or chiffon.

The skirt is demi-train, with very full ruffles of pale pink chiffon at the bottom. The most beautiful decoration was appliqued pink chiffon roses from the waist to the flounce—a little at the left of the front—in a panel effect, together with black vielles at the bottom of the skirt, also one at the neck.

BOOKS AND THEIR MAKERS

The past week witnessed the death of two American writers. Bret Harte passed quietly away in England, where he had lived for many years. Paul Leicester Ford, author of the popular novels, "The Hon. Peter Stirling," "Janice Meredith," and other novels, was shot by his brother in New York. Bret Harte's fame rests upon his productions of more than thirty years ago. He has written little since to attract much attention, and yet his name will live in American literature. The scenes and characters he depicted have gone, never to return, and his work stands alone, as the one vivid impression of that transition period. He will be remembered as the humorous poet of the "Heathen Chinee" and of the scientific "Society Upon the Stanislaus." e will be remembered as the creator of those gem-like romances of California. "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," "M'liss" and "The Luck of Roaring Camp." His qualnt characters, in their picturesque setting are the valued property of his countrymen and of their kin beyond the sea. Harte chose vagabonds for his heroes and heroines. He drew them with a fidelity to human nature which won the sympathy of professing Christians living lives of unimpeachable and commonplace respectability. With a few strokes of his pen he taught the lesson of the brotherhood of man. The field he discovered had been neither reaped nor gleaned. It was full of quaint, rugged, homely, picturesque characters. And their settings were striking and new to the reading world. To the California gold fields flocked the unconventional from every clime. But America, and especially Missouri and the Southwest of that day, contributed, perhaps, the best material for Bret Harte's fertile pen. Several of his heroes hail from Pike county on the banks of the Missouri river. And Bret Harte, himself a digger for gold, found in them a richer mine than the sands and rocks had yielded him. Put it is in his revelation of tenderness and heroism where least expected that Harte wrought the truest charm into his stories. The border ruffain, the homeless woman—the seemingly depraved, were still human in his treatment of them. A lost child could develop the kindliest instincts among gamblers and desperadoes. A woman's sufferings turned up the pure gold in human natures apparently at their lowest level.

From the publication house of the Macmillan company, New York, comes a new novel by Charles Major, entitled "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall." The author of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" has written a splendid story of the romantic attachment and elopement of Dorothy Vernon and young John Manners, and the illustrator, Mr. Christy, has excelled himself. Dorothy is the daughter of the fiery Sir George Vernon, of Maddon hall, who was always put to bed drunk, and believed that a daughter should obey her parents upon pain of being "beaten till she bled" or confined in a dungeon with manacled wrists. Dorothey never did obey her father, but some man always appeared upon the scene to prevent the harsh treatment he would he would have meted out to her. The prototype of the willful Dorothy is, of course, to be found in Mary Tudor, the author making something of a specialty of this type of heroine. She is not as lovable a girl as Mary, either, and, believing that the means justifies the end, does lots of things that indicate that her early training in the ten commandments has been neglected. She is a wise young woman, and freely expressed her opinion that the destiny of a woman is to love a man and become the mother of his children. There is nothing extraneous introduced into the story. Queen Elizabeth and Mary Queen of Scots appear upon the scene, but only in connection with the loves of the young people, the supreme interest being concentrated in the mating that is so inevitable.

Dorothy falls in love with her father's ancient enemy's son, Sir John Manners. The effort that is constantly made to prevent her father's discovery of the awful fact leads her to ways of duplicity and deceit. She doesn't care as long as she succeeds in marrying her lover, which, of course, she does. The earl of Leicester, coming to Haddon hall, falls in love with Dorothy, but nothing like the "Robsart affair" happens to mar the love story. Sir John is a rather nice hero, and goes about his wooing in the bungling way so popular with novelists, because it makes so many situations.

The Bowen-Merrill company, Indianapolis, has published "The Mississippi Bubble," by Emerson Hough. The original of the hero of this romance made a great stir in the world, early in the eighteenth century. He was that John Law, of Scotland, under whose direction the currency of bankrupt France was inflated with paper money until the nation was rolling in fictitious wealth and went insane over speculation in shares in "the Mississippi scheme." Simply stated, this scheme was the organization of a company to develop and exploit the wealth of France's possessions in the lower part of what is now the United States. It was then thought that the Mississippi river ran over sands of almost pure gold, and that diamonds and other precious stones were to be had by the bushel. Of course, there came a collapse of the scheme and the shares lost their value in a day, and the paper currency of the realm sank to a low quotation. Bankruptcy, distress, rioting, repudiation of debts and chaos accompanied the awakening of the speculation-mad people and the downfall of John Law. Personally, all historians agree in attributing to him entire sincerity in his financial theories, and he certainly did great things for France. Indeed, had not the regent, the duke of Orleans, taken the direction of affairs out of John Law's hands and turned out the paper currency as fast as the presses could print it, without having substantial wealth back of it, the speculation would not have run such a mad course.

John Law was a man of marked personal strength and grace; he was called "Beau" Law, after the fashion of the times. He was a wonderfully successful gambler, when it was the fashion for every gentleman to play heavily, and it was his accumulations at the gaming table that was the fortune which he took with him to France with which to establish the bank, under government protection, which was an entirely legitimate enterprise. He rose to be a more powerful man than ever the regent or the king; but when the crash came he fled from Paris poorer than when he entered it. After years of wanderings he died in greatest poverty in Venice. It is around this fascinating financier that Mr. Hough moulds his story, but he has taken the novelist's license and invented factions and changed facts, ending the story happily so that the reader gets no hint of the famous man's end. The story is skillfully told. It takes hold of the reader with the very first line, "Gentlemen, this is America," and there is no place to relinquish it, not even when Catherine says the last word with which the story ends.

Miss Agnes C. Laut, author of "Heralds of Empire," just published by D. Appleton & Co., is a most interesting young woman, and has won her place in literature through sheer pluck and ability. At present she resides in Ottawa, Canada, but is a native of Winnipeg. While in her junior year at the Manitoba university, Miss Laut's health failed, and to this fact is primarily due her entrance into the literary field. Her future, at the time, seemed extremely unpromising, and, in fact, the prospects of renewed health were very dark. With a hope that it would lead to some beneficial results, if not to actual recovery, she was sent to spend the summer in the mountains, among the Rockies and Selkirks. There, in the bright fresh life of the mountaineer, Miss Laut rode gradually back to life and health. Close to an Indian reservation, in her rides she gathered much

Encouraged by the success which met her first efforts, Miss Laut was attracted to the journalistic field. "Heralds of Empire," her latest work, is a story of the explorer Radison, who juggled with empires, and who changed allegiance as he would his coat; and of the days of Puritanism and witchcraft. It is told in the quaint English of the period and is all the more charming and entertaining for that reason. Despite its adventures and its hair-raising episodes, one experiences a sense of completeness and satisfaction in the reading of it.

"Arnold's Expedition to Quebec," by John Codman, 2d, is an interesting story of one of the early episodes of the war for American independence, but one which, owing to various causes, has fallen into an undeserved obscurity. Of course the first and foremost reason for this fact is the great crime of the hero, and another is, that few of the devoted band that toiled after Arnold over the weary ways of the untrod wilderness returned to tell the tale of their devotion and misfortunes; and still another is that most of those who did return re-enlisted "for the war" and either perished or passed on to a glorious career that dimmed the record of the earlier military movements. The expedition was, moreover, unsuccessful, and "the young nation was not likely to dwell with pride on its failure of the invasion of Canada, and gladly allowed everything connected with it to fall into oblivion." The narrative minutely follows the course of that campaign and gives the full detail of history from the inception of the idea to its disastrous close. Mr. Codman went over the ground with canoe and camera, and wrote as one having full knowledge of his subject. It is an interesting account and of such undoubted authenticity that the Canadian expedition at last assumes its just proportions in the early annals of this government. Arnold was a brave man, and one who at the head of his forces performed a hero's part. One must give even the devil his due, and back of Arnold's tarnished glory and his great guilt are a few bright spots. The reply of the American officer to Arnold's question as to what the Americans would do with him if he were caught, that they would cut off the leg that was wounded when fighting for the cause of liberty and bury it with the honors of war, and hang the rest of his body on a gibbet, is a fit expression of the place he should hold in patriot memory. Published by the Macmillan company, New York.

With an original plot, striking characters, and stirring action, "Buell Hampton," by Willis George Emerson (Forbes & Co., Boston), has all the essential elements of an interesting romance. And interesting it is—absorbingly so. The plot is skillfully executed and highly dramatic, being no less thrilling for not having a single death by violence. The characters are real men and women with strong personalities—people you would like to know, whose fortunes you follow from page to page with rapt curiosity. Throughout the story persons breathing with life are saying and doing things—action, action, is on every page; there are no wearisome excursions into history or side talks on good behavior. When the author does leave his characters, it is usually to give some beautiful touches of local coloring, just enough to make the scenes and personages more vivid and true, as in the realistic picture of a great prairie fire and the impressive description of the terrible hot winds.

The central figures in the charming romance are two masterly creations, Maj. Buell Hampton and Ethel Horton. Buell Hampton, philanthropist and philosopher, is unlike any other character in fiction. As editor and proprietor of the Patriot he disseminates his humanitarian opinions broadcast, and on account of his largeness of heart is a trusted leader in the affairs of men. He is an idealist, noble and sincere, who in endeavoring to put his lofty theories into practice tragically encounters the laws of the land.

Among the major's friends and neighbors are the several persons whose lives are affected by the love affairs of Ethel Horton, the winsome heroine. Ethel is an ideal, typical American girl, vivacious and spirited, with whom every reader will fall in love. Her ambitious mother conspires with an acquaintance, Mrs. Osborn, to marry he daughter to a titled Englishman, who has no attractions for Ethel, already in love with a Chicago physician. Ethel is courageous and spirited through all the bitterness of the intriguing, which she finally escapes by a series of events in which her loyal friend, Hugh Stanton, plays an important part, as he does in other incidents of the story.

True and tender filial ties are delicately and exquisitely portrayed in the love of Ethel and her father, and Capt. Osborn's affection for little Harry. The frivolous Mrs. Osborn and the base Lord Avondale are strong contrasts to the nobler natures of the tale. The story is full of surprises and forceful climaxes. Fetching humor is harmoniously blended with gentle pathos throughout the story. Ranch and range life on the Western plains are faithfully depicted. The fresh and invigorating air of the prairies is instilled into every chapter.

"Buell Hampton" is so animated with dramatic incident, so chaste and healthy in tone, so rich in heart qualities, so charming in descriptions, so delightfully true to life, that it may rightly be classed with the novels of extraordinary merit. It will be welcomed by the reader in search of fresh plots, new fields and original conceptions of character. The publishers have done their part in good taste and the volume is far more substantial and attractive than the majority of novels.

Among the many cities which Prince Henry visited on his tour through this country, was Syracuse. As usual, the prominent citizens were invited to meet him and Harold MacGrath was included. But he was compelled by other engagements to forego the pleasure. In discussing the reception with friends, a few days later, Mr. MacGrath learned with surprise that the prince not only had not missed him, but when his name was mentioned had failed to remember him at all and had never heard of "The Puppet Crown." "Well, now," said MacGrath, "there's the gratitude of princes. Never mentioned me nor asked if I was in town. And to think," he exclaimed, "that I added two principalities to his brother's empire! I'll never give them another country as long as I live. Mark me!"

After reading Mrs. Atherton's account of Aaron Burr as he appears in her novel, "The Conqueror," which is based on the life of Alexander Hamilton, one is not surprised to find that some of the old colonial houses with which he was identified, and which are still standing, have the reputation of being haunted. Commodore Thomas Truxton's old house at Cranbury, N. J., to which Burr fled after he had slain Hamilton, has a secret panel which leads to a bedroom which again is approached by a winding stairway leading away from the entrance hall up to the third story. It was in this room that Burr hid for two or three weeks after the duel. There is much local lore as to the disasters which happened continually for the next sixty years to occupants of the house—uncanny deaths. The spell was not broken until the original wings of the house were moved by a superstitious owner to the opposite side of the street, and the fine old mansion has for the past quarter of a century been the center of a very happy home. That such a reputation should clog for so many years, is an index of the keenness of the reaction of popular feeling which followed the death of Hamilton. The fury of the populace and the scenes at Hamilton's funeral are well described by Mrs. Atherton in her novel.

Eden Philpotts has had no important long novel since the appearance of "The Sons of the Morning," and it is interesting to learn from London that he has just completed what he looks upon as his masterpiece—a long novel of the order of "The Children of the Mist," entitled "The River." A lively competition for the American book-rights of this novel has just been decided, only a slight difference existing between the two publishing houses making the highest bids, Mr. Philipotts received a tempting offer for serial publication of the novel in one of the leading American magazines; but he has refused this, as it would interfere with the publication of the story in the coming autumn, and as it is his strong desire that the book shall be brought out at that time.

Richard Fisguill's "Mazel" is said to have much originality in style and handling. So few of the current books really have character—a distinct individuality, that it will be refreshing to find it in a new novellist. "Mazel" is no ordinary lady who walks down the street with demure dignity, but a creature of surprises and whimsicalities. And the author has as many vagaries in describing them as the heroine herself.

When Kate Douglas Wiggin is not in England or New York city she is likely to be found at "Quilcote-on-Saco," her home at Hollis, Me. Here, when the weather is fine, she will write all day in a nook in the orchard, which she calls her "apple-tree study." With a pad and pencil and an easy chair, under the blue sky and the spell of the innumerable whisperings of a drowsy summer day, much of her latest work, "The Diary of a Goose Girl," was written. So it is doubly an out-of-door book. Three proofs of every line in print is what Mrs. Wiggin requires from her publishers before she is satisfied to let the book out upon the world, and many a time is the manuscript corrected before it goes to the printer. It is said that she has now commenced a dramatization of "The Birds' Christmas Carol."

Undoubtedly the most unique collection of short stories published in recent times is that which bears the title "Bits of Broken China." The author, William E. S. Fales, has made a special study of the denizens of Pell street and Mott street, New York, and has given us an entirely new view of life in Chinatown. One of the quaintest characters in the book is Poor Doc High. Although a wolf he wears the clothing of a sheep as to the manner born. He opens a very dirty drug store, and plays the part of the poverty-stricken chemist to perfection. But Poor Doc High is born with an elastic conscience and a passion for money-making. He turns his talents to the manufacture of gin, and quickly amasses a fortune with a few illicit copper stills and receivers. His efforts to evade the watchful police make highly interesting reading. One day a fire breaks out and Poor Doc High's distillery is discovered. A search is made for the supposed druggist; but the wily Chinaman scents the alarm and escapes to his home in the Far East to tell his friends how he hoodwinked the New York police. Street & Smith, New York, publishers.

A radically original historical book, with the audacious title, "The Gospel of Judas Iscariot," will shortly be published. The author, Aaron Dwight Baldwin, is a literary and newspaper man, well known throughout the West. It is claimed that it is a striking novel with far more merit than half of the books that are published nowadays. Besides possessing real beauties the story is said to be one of great power, often dramatic, and always interesting, the scenes in Rome, Kerioth, Galilee and Jerusalem being exceedingly good. Mr. Baldwin has hit upon an original theme and one that will have an intense interest for everyone, and the reader that takes it up will read it to the end and then read it over again.

Little, Brown & Co.'s juveniles, published only in the fall, continue to be in popular demand at the libraries, according to reports gathered from all parts of the country. Besides Miss Alcott's "Little Men" and "Little Women" the recent favorites include: "Morgan's Men," by John Preston True, author of "The Iron Star," "Teddy: Her Daughter," by Anna Chapin Ray, author of "Teddy: Her Book;" "As the Goose Flies," by Katherine Pyle, author of "The Christmas Angel," and "Brenda's Summer at Rockley," by Helen Leah Reed. These four latter authors have each written a new book for fall publication.

The long-expected and much advertised "Miss Petticoats," by Dwight Tilton, to be issued May 20, has a remarkable yet eminently lovable and humane character in Rev. Ralph Harding, a clergyman of quite the unconventional sort. He is a great power for good among the lowly, and has a fine disregard for the mere traditions of his calling. He boxes, he smokes, he plays billiards—but he serves God as he believes, with zeal and effectiveness.

Says the novel: "He was a young man of middle height dressed in gray tweed, and wearing a soft black hat with a rather jauntily curling brim. A brown moustache drooped over a pleasant mouth, and a pair of clear blue eyes spoke of an honest heart and a hatred of sham • • • He conceived his mission to be the saving of souls and the helping of the body, and he believed that whether he did his work in solemn black or rough and ready tweed was a matter of small consequence to the Almighty • • • "It's all just like him," thought Mrs. Copeland. "Tobacco jar holding down a sermon, fish hooks for bookmarks in the Concordance, and Vanity Fair hobnobbing with Jonathan Edwards."

It is said that Rev. Ralph Harding is, in many essentials, the prototype of a very well-known clergyman in a Southern New England city.

"The Book of Saints and Friendly Beasts," and "The Lonesomest Doll," proved most delightful children's books, and their author, Abbe Farwell Brown, now has ready a third, called "In the Days of Giants" (Houghton, Mifiin & Co.). It contains stories of the gods, giants and dwarfs of Norse mythology. Thor and his Hammer, Loki and his Michief, Balder, and the great Odin, are clothed with fresh and unfailing humor with which Miss Brown invests her tales of them. There are six illustrations by E. Boyd Smith, which are delightful reproductions of the quaint conceits of these old legends.

Those readers who have followed the downfall of feudalism in New York state in the new novel, "The Strollers," will be interested to learn that the first tenants gave to the old patroons one-tenth of all their grain, fruit and other products. They were also bound to perform certain work for the "lord of the manor," and of necessity took their grain to the patroon's mill. When a settler died intestate, his property in the "wyck" reverted to the patroon. An old chronicler states that when the patroon went to New York, "the populace lined Broadway to se him pass in his coach and four with liveried footmen."

Though short-story writers cannot always write novels, novelists write many short stories. Elmore Elliott Peake, author of "The Darlingtons," has a capital short story in Harper's Magazine for May, entitled "The Coming of the Piano," in which he tells how a piano came to the girl who wanted one. There is a story in the same number by Beulah Marie Dix, joint-author of "The Beau's Comedy," and Julian Ralph and Cydus Townsend Brady, who also have novels to their credit, contribute fiction to the same entertaining number of Harper's.

The story in the Argonaut for May 3 is by John Harold Hamlin, and is entitled "The Drought at Cow Skull: How It Nearly Ruined the Ball of the Miners' Union." The tale is told with much humor, and a fine appreciation of the conditions which prevail in Western mining camps.

Ainslee's for May has a cheerful blossomy cover and contents at once varied and interesting. There are two distinctive character portraits in the number: "Elihu Root, Secretary of War," by L. A. Coolidge, and "Amalia Kussner Coudert, Miniaturist," by Frank S. Arnett. Both these articles are richly illustrated. The study of the secretary of war is graphic, concise and impartial. The account of Miss Kussner is exceedingly readable, largely because it contains this successful artist's impressions of Edward VII, the czar and the czarina of Russia, whom she saw intimately while they sat to be painted by her. "Are Americans Economical?" by Hutchins Hapgood, is a thoughtful and curious article. The author makes us out to be vitally economical because we produce much rather than save little. "Love in April," by Miss Carman, is a suite of spring lyrics marked by this poet's familiar charm.

Two subjects of unique interest are discussed in articles in the May magazine number of the Great Round World. "A Remarkable Art," which tells about the new pictorial photography, and explains the mysteries of the glycerine and gun process, is based on an interview with Alfred Stieglitz, who is probably the greatest of our pictorial photographers. "Women's Clubs as a Factor in American Life," by Mrs. James R. Hopley, president of the Ohio State federation, gives a thorough study of the psychology of the women's movement and clears up a number of doubtful questions.

In an article entitled "Two Interesting Foreign Schools and Their Suggestions," Daniel S. Sanford, in the May issue of the New England, gives a most instructive and entertaining account of a visit to a German school, Elsenburg, and also to an English one, Bedales, where education is conducted on very practical lines, and largely without the use of text books, the theory being followed that with strong physique and well-established habits of observation and application, the student at 14 years of age will be able to accomplish more than if introduced prematurely to the study of books. There are a number of delightful pictures illustrating the outdoor life and training at these schools.

A novel and successful experiment is tried in the World's Work for May in the publication of an article made up of explanatory notes to a series of sixteen full-page pictures of the business streets of Cairo—"beyond the American invasion." The other fine illustrative features of the number include an article on Leland Stanford university—its remarkable history and splendid equipment; another on Mr. Carlin's wonderful snapshot and flashlight photographs of wild animals; a sequel to Mr. Branson's article on the "Real Southern Question," entitled "The Real Southern Question Again," and a story about a wonderful dry salt sea in the Western desert. Wolf Von Schierbrand furnishes another of his intimate studies of modern Germany—considering, this time, the commercial relations of the United States and Germany, and Frederic Emory writes of America's new role as an international peace-maker.

With its issue for May the North American Review begins its eighty-eighth year, and a glance at the table of contents of the new number will show that age has been impotent to wither the powers of this great periodical, which seems to grow stronger and more alert with advancing years. Count M. Matsukata, formerly prime minister of Japan, explains the "Financial System of Japan," and makes it plain that its rapidly increasing national income will abundantly suffice to enable the mikado's empire to perform any duty that may fall to it in the new position it has assumed among the great powers. Senator J. P. Dolliver expounds the "Significance of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance." Andrew Carnegie calls attention to "The Opportunity of the United States" to acquire unrivalled glory by acting toward the Filipinos in the same way as toward the Cubans.

Improving Nation's Capital.

For some time past plans have been under preparation for the beautifying of the city of Washington. The commissioners in charge have visited many European cities, and the result of their search has been embodied in a series of plans, which will make our capital the most beautiful city in the world. In selecting a family medicine, however, it is not necessary to search the world over, because Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the famous American remedy, is recognized as the best remedy nature and science have been able to produce. It has over fifty years of cures to its credit of such ailments as sick headache, indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness and liver and kidney troubles. When you need a medicine for these ailments, don't fail to try the Bitters.

BAD FIRE

Sullivan, Wis., May 10.—Fire yesterday nearly wiped out this village. Before the flames were put under control the loss amounted to about $50,000. The insurance will not nearly cover the loss.

Six business places of the eight the town contains are burned, and five families are homeless. Others are living under parts of their homes during the night, while others are sheltered in barns and stalls. The village has a population of nearly 178, and few buildings are left to mark the place. The five homeless families do not include those who lived in the same buildings containing their business places.

The fire started in Henry Seahn's hotel, through the explosion of a lamp. Jefferson, fourteen miles east of here, sent a fire engine and full complement of men, who succeeded in placing the flames under control.

John Morgan, a well-known Democratic politician, was severely burned in fighting the fire.

The following are the principal losses sustained during the fire:

Henry Seahn, hotel, loss $10,000; Thomas Market, meat market, loss $600; Elsner's harness shop, loss $4000; John Morgan, saloon, loss $4000; Valentine Cooper, store, loss $12,000.

The remainder of the loss is confined to dwelling houses, stalls and furnishings.

SENSITIVE GEMS.

The decoloration of precious stones when they have been exposed to the air for a long time is considered one of the most frequent maladies, says the Philadelphia inquirer. Emeralds, rubies and sapphires are those which remain intact best. Nevertheless, they are not exempt from changes. Two rubies of the same size and shade were kept for two years—one in a show case and the other away from all light. At the end of this term a comparison revealed that the first had become somewhat lighter in color.

The influence of light makes itself felt more plainly on topazes and garnets. The garnet turns much paler in a short time, while the topaz assumes a darker shade, and even loses the brilliancy possessed by it when freshly cut.

The most sensitive stone in this respect is the opal. This stone draws its marvelous rainbow reflections from numerous little clefts, which allow the light to pass, and reflect it in different directions. Often the opal stands the manipulations of cutting and polishing well, and all of a sudden splits.

Pearls deteriorate very easily. In the fire they are transformed into a piece of lime. Placed in contact with an acid, they behave as lime or marble would under the same conditions.

Diamonds are less sensitive, still it is not prudent to take them too near the fire.

THE "CAR CHASERS."

Among the most important employes of the great trunk lines of railroads are the "car chasers." The title exactly describes their business. On some railroads they are called traveling car agents. The department head who employs them is also called variously the car agent, the car accountant, or the superintendent of rolling stock, says the New York Herald. These officials have as many as twenty assistants on some of the great roads, nine or ten being clerks at $30 or $40 a month, and the rest being "chasers," who travel all over the country on free passes hunting up missing cars, and who receive $120 or $100 a month and expenses.

Great railroads have immense numbers of cars. The Central railroad, of New Jersey, has about 50,000 of all sorts, the Pennsylvania railroad in the neighborhood of 100,000. These cars are at the present moment in every state in the Union. They go wherever the freight with which they are loaded is billed, and thus are scattered from Winnipeg to Mexico and from Los Angeles to Bangor. A most minute and thorough system obtaining on all railroads except the very smallest records every movement of every car.

These notifications are made by postal cards. In each general office car accountant books are kept, and the movements of the company's own cars are recorded from day to day. Whenever a loaded car is emptied on a foreign road that road uses it to carry back a load of freight in the direction of the road to which he car belongs.

It pays at the rate of seven-eighths cents a mile for this use of its neighbors' property in this way, and if it should happen that there was no freight to be shipped in that direction in a reasonable time, the empty car is sent along and the mileage is paid on it as though it were laden.

It is when cars are lost that a traveling agent is sent out. Sometimes it happens that the cars are on little branch roads, idle and overlooked; sometimes they have happened to get into the hands of a company that is short of cars and full of business and is using every foreign car that it can get.

It it is in use by a company short of cars that company pays mileage on it until it sometimes happens that a car is worn out and paid for before it is returned, or else it is never returned at all. If a "car chaser" demands the return of his company's cars they are sent home, but often others are seized and used when his back is turned and he is traveling elsewhere. If a car is smashed up in a railroad accident it is either rebuilt, a new one is made or the price of the car is paid to the owners by the company on whose track the "smashup" occurred.

WEATHER PREVENTS BASEBALL GAME

Duluth and Minneapolis High Schools Cannot Play ---Senior Class Entertainment a Brilliant Success and Largely Attended.

The Minneapolis Central high school baseball team came to town last night to try their prowess against the local high school team, but the weather interfered. The Minneapolitans arrived on the 7 o'clock train from the Twin Cities. They were met by an enthusiastic crowd of local high school students, who immediately took them in charge. In the evening they graced the High School Assembly hall, where the annual senior play and musical entertainment was being held with their presence.

The Central boys, notwithstanding the fact that they had already played two games this week, were in excellent condition and the best of spirits. They were confident of carrying off the honors in the game. The Minneapolis men have been fairly successful this season, although not so much as the local team. They were defeated on Thursday by the team of the Shattuck Military academy by a score of 9 to 6.

The Duluth men, while this fact increased their confidence in their ability to win from their opponents, generally regretted the fact because they would like to play a champion team, thus getting the premier place in the state interscholastic baseball circle if they were able to win.

The exceedingly unfortunate change in the weather which took place last evening made it impossible to play this afternoon, so that the High School Athletic association will be about $100 out of pocket because of the fickle weather man.

No definite decision has yet been reached as to what will be done. It is possible that the team may be held over until Monday afternoon, in the hope that the weather will right itself.

SENIOR ENTERTAINMENT.

Fine Program Delights a Large Audience.

The senior dramatic and musical entertainment at the high school last evening was an unqualified success. It is easily the best of its kind that the senior class of the school ever gave. Notwithstanding the none too propitious weather, a crow sufficiently large to fill the great assembly hall, gathered to see the entertainment.

The class of 1902 and A. F. M. Custance, under whose direction the affairs was staged, are to be greatly commended. The class has only shown again that along intellectual, social and musical lines it has never had a peer in the high school.

The program opened with "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden," the famous "Flora-dora" sextet. If any one number in so excelent a program can be specially commended, this was probably the most enjoyable one. The six young women and like number of young men who carried it off sang well, were perfectly drilled and appropriately attired. The production, in fact, approached that of a professional company.

The next, a duet from "Electric Spark," "I Love to Flirt," was rendered by Miss Rena Smith and Fred Johnston, and it was excellent. Miss Smith sang well, as she always does, and Mr. Johnston did all for his part that was possible. The piece merited the applause that it drew.

"The Meeting of the Board of Education of Womansville," as the next number on the program was called, was a vaudeville skit, portraying humorously the long list of failings attributed to the fair sex. All the catalogued faults or foibles of femininity, from the desire talk to the fear of a muse, received attention.

The song from "San Toy," "Yen How and His Six Little Wives," by Frank Fee and others, was one of the pieces that has made the Chinese opera famous. The costumes were beautiful and charming, and the voices good. In appreciation of the excellence of the number the audience willingly followed the injunction to "Kow tow, kow tew, to the great Yen How."

The heralded prize fight between Snowball McComber and Abdullah Pa Kennee was a very risible piece of buffonery. The "Chinee Sojee Man," another piece from "San Toy," was delightfully given by Frank Fee, George Suffle and chorus. There were more bewitching Chinese costumes and good music. The "Chinee Sojee Men" took occasion to knock at the Minneapolis central baseball team, which was present in the gallery en masse. The team enjoyed the fun along with the rest of the audience.

The second part of the program consisted of a two-act farce, "A Rice Pudding." The farce was funny and the cast good. It was a most satisfactory ending to an excellent program. The parts had to be shifted at the last moment, making it necessary for one part to be cut out entirely. It was impossible for Miss Esther Searle, who was to have played the part of Miss Ellen O'Shaughnessy, the cook, to appear, so the famous ingenue, Fred Johnston, was shifted from his place as Williams, a valet, and given the part. Johnston carried off his new part excellently, making a big hit with the audience.

Sumner Smith as John Richards, Phoebe Cole as his wife, and Edward Congdon as Dr. Thwaite did clever work. Miss Ethel Forsyth as Marion Richards, a young woman with an idea and a cook book, did unusually fine work.

Taken all in all, the senior entertainment was the most successful ever held at the High School, both from an artistic and monetary standpoint.

THE TRACK ATHLETES

Hard at Work Preparing For the Field Day.

The track athletes are getting down to work in earnest at the near approach of the preliminary field day, which is a week from today. The men generally are in excellent condition and some are doing unusually good work. Most of the entries are in and a good team is assured.

Some of the old records have been approached in practice and one—that of the high jump—has been beaten by Capt. Arthur Mallett. The former record in this event was 5 feet 3 inches. Capt. Mallet raised this a half inch. He made two new records in the hurdles last year and he feels confident that if the weather is favorable and the track fast he will be able to better his last season's efforts. A great many of the new men are showing up finely also. The list of entries so far as completed is:

One hundred yard dash—Richards, Bradley, MacKenzie.

Quarter mile bike—A. Nelson, Farrell, Kohagan, Dempster.

One hundred and twenty yard dash—Richards, Bradley, MacKenzie.

One mile bike—Nelson, Farell, Kohagen, Dempster.

Two hundred and twenty yard dash—Mallet, Richards, Bradley, MacKenzie.

Two mile bike—Nelson, Farell, Kohagen, Dempster, Andrews.

Four hundred and forty yard dash—Richards, Bradley, Cullyford, Bush, Ash.

One hundred and twenty yard hurdle—Mallet, MacKenzie, Bowman.

Half mile run—Cullyford, Bush, Adams.

Two hundred and twenty yard hurdle—Mallet, MacKezie, Bowman.

Mile run—Cullyford, Ash, Adams, Evans.

High jump—Mallet, Bradley, Bowman, Mace.

Shot put—Bradley, Granzow, Cullyford.

Broad jump—Crandall, Mallet.

Discus throw—Bradley, Mace.

Hammer throw—Mallet, Cranzow.

No ambitious pole vaulters have shown themselves and unless some suddenly make known their aspirations in that line the event will be dopped from the program.

The committee which has charge of the collection of the prizes for the event has been making fairly good headway, and if the merchants and others interested in high school athletics loosen their purse strings to a little better effect a valuable prize list will be arranged.

Preparations are being made to give the track, which is usually not a very good one for the events—particularly bad for the bicycles—a thorough going over so that it may be in good condition for the meet.

A committee on programs has been selected and by next Saturday a thoroughly good meet will be arranged.

JUNIOR-SENIOR RECEPTION

To Be Given at the Spalding June 5.

Final arrangements for the annual junior-senior reception—the formal farewell of the junior class to the departing seniors—are rapidly being completed. The Spalding hotel dining room has been secured for the event, the decorating committee has been set to work on plans, the program has been arranged, and all of the little details cared for. The students in charge say that the reception will be one of the finest that the school has had for some time. Certainly every effort is being made to have it so.

All of the alumni and the members of the school and faculty are invited to attend. Others will be given special invitations. The event takes place on the evening of June 5. A large crowd of students and alumni is expected to be present.

FOR GIRLS ONLY.

Basket Ball Matinee—Boys Threaten to Cut In.

A basket ball matinee, for young ladies only, will be held at some time in the near future, when the girls basket ball team of the class of '03 will meet the fair lasses of '04 in that manly sport.

While the juniors have accepted a challenge from the sophomores to play a game at which girls only will be admitted and no admission will be charged, the belief is entertained by a multitude of high school students of the masculine persuasion that if the game is pulled off for the benefit of the girls only, a strong police guard will be necessary.

"Are we going to be shut out of this?" query the young men.

"Well, I guess not. We'll see the show or ruin it," is the positive answer.

It is a terrible thing that such a split should have come in the family. The girls refuse to consider a game before vulgar man; the boys are determined not to permit it to be pulled off without their presence, if to prevent is in their power.

The matter seems serious. It probably will be as much so as such squabbles usually are.

By the way, a story to which much mystery is attached, has been going the rounds for the last few days. Some say it's necromancy; some ventriloquism; others that it is just ordinary fiction. Judge for yourself:

Some weeks ago the fair enthusiasts of the junior class fitted themselves out in elaborate uniforms of orange and black—the colors of their class. The suits were stunning. The girls took such pleasure in wearing them that before long they began to show the effects of their hard usage.

One morning one of the players dropped a bundle wrapped in a very prosaic looking newspaper upon her desk, listened to the interrogations of her classmates then standing forth, she thus addressed them:

"Oh! Say girls, it's too bad. You know I ripped my knickerbockers last night and I forgot to take them home to get 'em fixed. I've 'em here now."

They all crowded around with questions as to the extent of the damage. But before any reply could be made a tired voice ostensibly within the package began to warble the following ditty to the tune of that well-known harmony, "The Strollers:"

"Bloo—mers we,
And we bag at the knee,
We're orange and black,
With a string for the slack,
Which the boys don't see.

"Ripped and torn,
We are left forlorn,
And though to our owner
We've proved not a "joner," We're——"

At this point one of the horrified damsels regained her equanimity sufficiently to seize and strangle the wretched bundle before further treachery could be committed.

The horrid boys laughed.

The truth of this story can not be vouched for. Many there are, however, whose belief in it is unshakeable. It will probably remain a mystery to the end of time.

But whether it be true or not a valuable addition has been made to the artistic musical work of the day, as a trial on the piano of the above carol will convince the most skeptical.

Notes of the Week.

The athletic association at its meeting on Monday afternoon, considered and accepted a new constitution which a committee has been busy compiling for the last few weeks. The constitution is similar to the old one on the principal points. Caps for the baseball team were ordered, to be available for the team when it plays with Minneapolis this week.

The verdant freshies have been so far unable to stifle their primitive instincts that at their last class meeting they persisted in strewing the floor of the Assembly hall with paper. Retribution was swift. They are now denied the right to hold class meetings and are worrying because they fear that they will not be able to enjoy themselves en masse, for the rest of the year.

After last night's entertainment the school may well be proud of its senior class.

DUN'S REVIEW

Production Is Somewhat Curtailed at Period of Great Demand.

New York, May 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review says: At a time when consumptive demands surpass all previous records in the nation's history it is unfortunate that production should be curtailed. Yet that is the present condition, labor controversies and a tornado stopped work at many points, greatly reducing the output, and many more wage disputes must be settled before the end of the month or furnace fires will be banked and wheels cease to revolve.

Losses by the elements have been severe, the largest tin plant in the world being rendered idle probably for a month, while many foundries and shops were totally destroyed.

Prices of commodities May 1, as shown by Dun's index number, rose to the highest point in recent years, gaining 6.3 per cent over the corresponding date last year, but this week there has been a material decline in some products, notably grain.

Distribution through retail channels continues very heavy, seasonable weather exerting a most helpful influence. Railway earnings are steadily gaining, full returns for April exceeding last year's by 10.6 per cent and 1900 by 25 per cent.

Procrastinating consumers who predicted a collapse in the iron and steel market similar to the break that occurred two years ago have greatly augmented the pressure by tardily attempting to supply their requirements. It has been obvious for some time that there is utterly lacking the artificial element tending to inflate prices that was conspicuous in the opening months of 1900.

The only limit to prices appears to be the ability of purchasers to pay fancy figures, acording to the urgency of their needs. Meanwhile there is no advance on long-term contracts, and these cover the large bulk of business. Productive capacity is being greatly enlarged, but there is no evidence as yet that the nation's need is not expanding equally fast.

Footwear shops in New England have received more orders, although the aggregate of new business is not heavy. Western jobbers have not taken all their spring shoes, while there is a general tendency to delay placing contracts for fall. A few small concessions in prices are reported. Leather is steady, with increased trading in belting butts. Domestic hides have again advanced, especially in packer varieties.

A disposition to await developments is still noticeable in the textile markets, although outside distribution points make more favorable returns as crop prospects improve. Reecnt depression in silver has seriously affected exports to China. Holders of cotton goods are not urging sales at the expense of values. Woolen goods are scarce, but the demand is still confined to substitute orders caused by the strike.

Raw materials in the textile manufactures continue to exhibit a decidedly firm undertone, although cotton suffered a sharp setback early in the week. The collapse of option prices was not due to any unfavorable news regarding consumption, nor a material improvement in the outlook for a new crop. It must be attributed to the customary profit taking after a vigorous advance, together with heavy liquidation with Wall street interests owing to the disturbance in the security market.

Dispatches to this paper promise a large wool clip, though the late spring has delayed shearing. There has been less selling of wool on the sheep's backs and ranchmen appear to be in financial condition to hold their yield until more satisfactory prices are forthcoming.

More encouraging weather reports have made the outlook brighter for a normal wheat yield, while the wide discrepancies between census figures and those of the agricultural department regarding the crop of 1899, suggests the idea that in succeeding years the production was heavier than officially reported. Those influences were depressing while there was little of a sustaining nature in speculative operations.

Exports from all ports in the United States during the week amounted to 3,477,375 bushels, flour included, compared with 5,579,037 in the preceding week, but there appeared an increase over the 3,153,521 bushels shipped a year ago.

Special reports to Dun's review indicates that the spring wheat outlook is good, although some reduction in acreage was caused by high prices for coarse grain and last year's splendid returns from flax. Evidence of larger planting had a weakening influence on corn, but there still appears an increase of 25 per cent over the prices of the year preceding and 60 per cent over 1900 at this date.

Failures for the week numbered 218 in the United States, against 187 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 26 last year.

Miss M. A. Gibson
Secretary of the Metarie Literary Club of Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE woman who travels continually, whether on business or pleasure, frequently hazards her health. The nervous excitement of catching trains, hurrying here and there, sleeping in cold beds and hastily eating illy prepared meals will even break down the health of the strongest man. The highly sensitive organism of a woman needs much leisure and quiet, plenty of sleep and the proper nutriment or the debt will be paid by continual menstrual suffering and an early grave.

There are thousands of women like Miss Marion A. Gibson, of 47 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who go into business and travel a great deal of their time. These women know full well the trials they undergo. Out on the road they do not have the opportunity to care for themselves as they would have at home. Miss Gibson uses Wine of Cardui and keeps in perfect health despite the inconveniences and dangers of traveling. She is the secretary of the Metarie Literary Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., and her letter is the experience of a highly intelligent woman and will be gladly received by her unfortunate sisters who need the competent advice she gives. She writes:

"As a large part of my time is spent in travel I often suffered with the discomforts of chilly beds and poor food. Frequent colds settled in the pelvic organs and produced some bladder trouble. I paid little attention to it at first but soon found that I needed medical attention. At the time I was miles away from a physician and as the friend with whom I was visiting had some Wine of Cardui in the house she recommended that I try it, and while I had little faith in it I soon found that it brought good results and kept taking it for six weeks and found then I was cured. I am never without it now and I am glad to recommend it."

This article appears in this paper today to tell you directly that Wine of Cardui will relieve the suffering of sick women. It regulates menstruation and restores health to women who know they are weak but do not believe that it is possible to be strong and healthy. Miss Gibson can travel and not suffer because she has a remedy that keeps menstruation regular and preserves her health and energy. How much more interest she takes in her club only she and her associates know. But we all know she is a useful and active woman instead of a sufferer. You can make the choice by securing a bottle of Wine of Cardui and getting relief from suffering. Miss Ada Shaw, of Phoenix, Miss., has made the choice you should make and she joins Miss Gibson in praising Wine of Cardui in the following letter:

"I was a great sufferer of female troubles. I tried every doctor in this country, but none did me any good. Last week I couldn't move any further than some one would move me. I got a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui and a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and took it. Already I am able to do most anything I want in my house and am gaining flesh rapidly. I think your medicine is a God-send to poor suffering women. I am trying to induce every suffering woman in this section to use Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught."

You may begin the Wine of Cardui treatment today by securing a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist.

THE SHIRT WAISTS

Simplicity In Outline With Much Elaboration of Detail the Rule.

Shape Almost Severe, But Goods May Be Inlaid With Lace—Preserving a Pliant Figure Into Old Age.

New York, May 8.—The May sun is shining on the sands and the May sunlight is flitting across the spring shirt waists. It touches them caressingly as though it liked them and was glad of so dainty a resting place.

The number of new shirt waists is so great, and the kind so varied, and the tints so bewitching, that one is lost in any attempt to describe them. In buying it is well to count one's money and to place it upon the shirt waist that looks the prettiest. Let the money go just as far as it will, for all shirt waists are cheap, considering.

You can get more for your money in the shirt waist market than in any other one department. That is the general consensus of opinion and it is one to which most women will assent. If you can do better than buy your shirt waists ready made then you are either a very clever seamstress yourself or have an extra clever one working for you.

One feature is particularly noticeable in the new shirt waists. They combine great simplicity of outline with great elaboration of detail.

The shape is plain, almost severe, but the goods may be inlaid with lace and the most wonderful hand trimming may be in the material. This feature is very notiticeable in all the waists that one sees and it explains the elegantly simple look which even the most expensive waists have. The straight outline is preserved.

More than the usual efforts are being made to preserve the busk—not bust—line. The busk is the long, straight line from the bust to the abdomen. It should be unbroken by a curve and it should be kept straight whether one is seated or standing.

With the slender figure this is easy; indeed, it is naturally straight, but where there is fullness of figure, look out for the busk line. The straight-fronted corsets prevent it and there are several shapes that do this without discomfort. One must study one's shape, however, to get good results.

The girl who used to place plaques can now turn her talent to her own personal uses. The effort which was made to introduce painted lace failed, partially because of the fineness of the lace that was required and partly for lack of great delicacy of treatment.

But now they are painting silk lawns and the blue silk lawn shirt waists are gay with orchids which are painted on around the waist to look as though they sprouted from the belt line. The stems are long, slender things, crooked and not very pronounced, but upon the yoke and at the back of the neck and up the vest the orchids grow in wild profusion.

To assert that such a shirt waists is not durable is to make no tax upon one's credulity. It is to be worn one evening; another evening, and a dance; then thrown aside to be remodeled by embroidering the orchids right over the painted ones. Embroidery will clean, but a painted silk muslin runs small chance of coming through the mysterious ordeal with any claim to beauty.

And, by the way, the cleaner keeps his processes this year as mysteriously secluded as the secrets of the lodge room. How he does it, what with, and whether it smells in the doing, none but he knows, and he will not tell. Let the summer woman experiment with her cleaning stuffs.

They are making the shirt waists of mousseline and crepe de chine, with skirts to match. The waists are touched lightly with the paint brush, but the skirts are absolutely pastorel in their great rose sprays, which trellis up and down the skirt.

Mrs. Paderewski has as many nice clothes as she will buy, for her adoring husband sees in each new one a harmony. She specially has shirt waists "Americaine" of many hues. She owns a very fine assortment of varicolored taffetas, and for "gee style" one can look over her wardrobe to educational advantage. She wears her clothes well and buys them on this side, a thing that Americans would not do so badly to imitate. Her favorite color is green, on the acacia tone.

Mrs. Herbert, daughter of Mrs. Wilson, and one of the king's American favorites, has been purchasing many handsome gowns on this side of the Atlantic. Red and purple and white are the only colors to be worn abroad. Miss Letter's wardrobe, which she takes over with her for the coronation, has many gowns in these hues.

But the crowning stroke of national pride was put upon our native American fashions by a French fashion journal. This paper, long regarded as an international dress authority, recently wrote to a fashion writer of New York to send it regularly two American columns per week filled with the latest American modes.

Specially does Europe look to this country for its new color tones and for its skirt outlines. So Paris comes to New York for its novelties, just as it has always gone to London for its tailor-mades.

A new washable shirt has been discovered by some Mrs. Columbus out on a watery voyage.

It has been learned that the all-lace shirt waists, those in Irish crocheted and in the flower patterns of heavy variety will wash better after the lacy patterns have been traced with narrow satin ribbons.

This is very good to know, for the ribbon makes the lace tougher and more durable, and if it can be easily laundered, so much the better. The waist is certainly made more elegant by this tracery of ribbon.

String colored lace makes up into very charming shirt waists, and now the latest cry is to trim the lace shirt waist with a sailor collar of tan linen and with tan linen cuffs.

Buttons of a light amber color are used on the waist, and there is a tall tan linen stock, with a little lace point, sewed on the front. The stocks are now either pulled down in front to a long point or are cut pointed to secure the long slender neck which has come into vogue with the long waist.

There are a few articles of dress for which only American women seem to have a fancy, and with them it amounts to a craze. One of these is a shirt waist. Another is the shoe-and-stocking question, to which no European woman seems alive. But the American fancy is traveling over the ocean, and soon we shall have the French women, the Viennese and even the London women looking to their footgear and studying delicate effects. Now one notices too much sole and too little daintiness in these matters.

Shirt waists in the very light tones, just a little off the white, are considered smart. Lace color which is very faint looks well with rose colored ribbons; and ivory is charming with coral.

The shirt-waist sleeves shows a full arm gathered into a tight cuff, which is only a band of needlework after all, but there are other and more elaborate sleeves worn on shirt waists, are slitting them from the elbow to the cuff and finishing the edges with lace.

Then, underneath this shirt waist, there is worn a loose, baggy undersleeve, which is pulled out through the slit, so that it hangs long and low. This inside sleeve is independent of the outside, and can be changed at will. Thus will talent triumph over circumstances.

For the plump short woman—she of generous width and scant length—fashions have been, apparently, overlooked. So much we hear of that airy, fairy Lillian, tall, willowy and graceful, the supposed "American type!" And the builders of modes seem entirely on their side. Hence these tears! There is really nothing much to chronicle for the short one. Adaptations that refuse to be adapted are about her lot. She must pull her lines down and wear high heeled shoes and bant; for the tall girls has all the innings and there is nothing left us but to mourn with these nice abbreviated sisters. The autocrats in the art sartorial grow beaming over their creations in billowy tucked and puffed materials and lace applique which are to be our portion this summer.

A blonde—tall of course—"Divinely tall and most divinely fair, a veritable daughter of the gods"—is to be gowned for a ceremonious musicale in square meshed black net with black chantilly lace wreaths applique and made over a foundation of flowered organdie. This is an entirely and happy acquisition in the line of foundations and any woman who chooses to build a flimy black gown over a mull or organdie strewn with shaded pink roses and who elects to wear with such a gown a picture hat of white chiffon draped with a fine chantilly barb and a spray composed of three rows of tiny pink June roses trailing to her back hair, may consider herself arranged in accordance with ledernier grande mode. Moreover, the woman who wore the aforesaid original when attending a matinee of the grand opera wore a "kiss-me-quick" curl over her shoulders. She wore also lace mitts and carried a bunch of ruffles and roses intended to be a muff. One longed for the pencil of a Watteau, for that was her type exactly.

What with streamers on our hats and a curl floating down our backs, a bunch of tulle tied at the back of the neck and sash ends waving in the breeze we may expect to appear like animated Maypoles on parade.

Looking over the audiences at these grand opera fetes and noting the gowns of extreme summery texture, even white swisses with entre deux of cobwebby lace, one cannot but be reminded how each springs seems, in the matter of dress, earlier than the last. The seasons of which we have a distinct recollection when white was worn before Whitsuntide were rare indeed. The spirit of competition forces our seasons until we have visions of them being turned backward upon us.

Hardly have we had time to get a good long breath and turn to the business of pleasure-getting after a reign of silken broadcloths and veilings till we must turn to gauzy stuffs.

As if to compare between the wool and the cotton season, beautiful robes shown in the shops are of cloth, with a soft sateen heavily embroidered, and showing linen applique. They come in blue, French tan mordore and pearl and each womin chooses, not according to the color of the hour, but a shade which reflects a glint in her eyes or hair. We will yet have ample opportunity for our foulards, our barages and our Louisiennes. The first material may be employed in the plainest modes for traveling and day wear, made over linens, to make it light and cool. Yet nothing is richer than a much trimmed foulard. A gown of the first character came from Paquin in a modestly bright navy blue peppered with small white polka dots—the long favored design—and had the skirt much strapped and stitched. The bodice was a coat—to be somewhat Irish—and was a cunning short affair with only stitchings and strappings for finish. It was made on the loose Eton order, and without basques, but laced together in front with satin ribbon run through gilt rings. These gowns, made with coat and skirt of foulard of the type elegante disported itself to see Mrs. Patrick Campbell and claimed the distinction of being the best gown in the box where sat its wearer. For color there was none. A white ground was sparsely sprinkled with black hair lines in the shape of tiny sunbursts and dashes. About the corsage in pointed yoke form was crochet lace over white chiffon, and dotted here and there on the lace were medallions of black velvet of different sizes, fastened on with French knots in white embroidery silk. Black velvet ribbon a half inch wide followed the rather unusual yoke line in two rows, and, starting at the back of the neck, ran down under the arms to the pointed girdle in front. Four rows of the ribbon formed the girdle high into a point in the back. All these bands of velvet ribbon were ornamented with white French knots. The skirt had a shaped flounce with more velvet ribbon and lace applique, and trailing from the belt in the back was a bow of black net with very short loops and long tucked sash ends. The knot at the center held a small rhinestone buckle. Another exceptionally pretty gown, embodying the Paris craze for white over black, was of white barege draping the figure with perfection over a foundation of black silk. The bodice was very simple in outline, laid in small box plaits from neck to waist, and through which were run the ever present rows of black velvet ribbon an inch in width around the bodice at a distance of three inches apart. These ribbons met and were finished by a small bow holding a tiny strass buckle, thus forming a series of five or six little bows down the center front of the bodice. The finish was a deep collar of heavy cream lace and Dullarry sleeves composed of the box plaits, let out into a cuff with two rows o fthe velvet ribbon and two tiny bows, bring the puff into a wrist band. The skirt was sloped over the hips into the belt by means of the box plaits, and rows of the ribbon simulated the yoke, while around the foot were three shaped flounces coming only as far front as the front gore. Rows of the ribbon defined this line and met the yoke where were more strass buckles.

Pongee offers perfectly unlimited possibilities, but is rarely made in these days when the simplest suggestion for a gown spells money, so that it can go into the tub. It is hard to imagine a simple pongee gown amounting to the $175 mark, but that is the figure on the price tag attached to an importer's tender fancy in this homely material. The result really justified a fancy price, for the gown was a stunner.

Here the box plait motif was again in evidence. The material must have been tucked in inch wide box plaits and then stitched down on the edge of each plait very closely before being touched by the scissors. It was then fashioned into a blouse with basques meeting in front. The sleves were slightly puffed at the cuffs and the collar a straight, high band. But the trimming! Bands of scarlet silk piped on each edge with black and worked here and there with black and red embroidery silk in the shape of little trees. Belt, collar and wife cuffs of the same ornamentation, also the edge of the basques. The center box plait at the front was decorated with small red silk crochet buttons and there was a double row at the back, filling a little space where the belt came almost, but not quite, together, and where it ended in three points crow-foot shape.

Red bands, three on each side, started at the bust line and ran over the shoulder to the waist at the back. Where they terminated in front they formed crow's feet points and were further finished by those new metal hay moons reaching across each band. Such a gown defies any but the description given with a brush.

Longer and ever longer waisted grows the fashionable corset. The designers of stays evidently regarded the feminine form divine as mere clay to be moulded to suit their ideas of grace and symmetry. From Paris we still receive the law on figure building, and in Paris the types of Louis XV have been revived. In the days of that merry monarch flesh was considered a gross vulgarity and when a woman could no longer main a tapering, rigid slenderness of waist and hip, she bid farewell to court and king and hid her too rounding curves in the depths of some remote country estate.

Today the portraits of Madame Pompadour, of Marie Antoinette, of the Duchess de Chevreuse, of Du Barry, and other beauties of Louis XV's court, hung about the corset maker's fitting room, and what with a scientific cut, guaranteed stitch; with silk and linen laces, and a wrist like iron, she can pound a 150-pound woman into a Louis corset and in an instant produce the optical delusion of reducing her to a bare 135 pounds.

As a rule the fame and fortune of a corset establishment rests almost wholly on the designer's shoulders and she is Paris bred or Paris trained. Her business is to take each patron under consideration, measure her carefully and then estimate mathematically the inches of contraction or expansion required for her hips, bust, or waist line. Every customer is considered individually; for no two in succession will the same stay serve, while while the question invariably propounded in the order room, is whether the new customer wants a morning or an evening stay, a single pair or a set. A set of corsets includes six pair, one for walking, one for use with afternoon gowns, a dancing pair, a pair to be worn when motor driving, a tea gown and negligee pair, and a sporting pair, suitable when riding, golfing and playing tennis and ping-pong.

In a Frenchy and fashionable corset establishment, where you choose all your own materials, and are assured that the purest whale bone and hand stitching are expended in the make up of each garment, you can easily spend from one to three hundred dollars on a set. For the evening stays white or faintly colored moire silk is what the designer advises as the most elegant noveilty, and a wonderfully stout taffeta, picked out in wee stars or dots, is the choice fabric for the afternoon pair. For the others ribbon, silk net, linen lace, fine diapered linen, silk warp batiste and very fine satin coutille are recommended. Real lace trimming, embroidered monograms and silver hooks are among luxurious details of finish indulged in by very rich women.

Not alone in material but in shape and method of adjustment to these new stays reveal all manner of surprises. There is, for example, the pure Pompadour corset that opens only in the back. Its front is boned so that an abnormally long line runs almost perpendicularly from bust to abdomen, and only in the rear does it curve into the waist. Four stout women powerful hip suppressers are adjusted to the side. These lace separately, and, to aid in further control of the flesh, heavy elastic suspenders, encased in shirred silk, run down and catch the top of the stockings.

Another corset particularly designed for obtrusive pounds, is a stout coutille walking stay that not only laces up the rear and hooks up the front, but also laces up on both sides. It is called the "Aphrodite." Not one of these corsets, by the way, is heavily boned, nor is the new idea to sheath the body in steel. Properly woven goods, well cut and fitted, and reinforced with the best whalebone, are the means whereby slenderness and grace are gained. A stay too heavily steeled merely adds bulk and renders its wear painful and injurious.

When an expensive set of corsets is sent home nowadays it arrives all rolled about a long satin sachet cushion and is laid in its own box that is covered with silk to match its pink or blue contents. Sometimes the stays are sent home in pretty bags of brocade that hang up by straps in the owner's closet alongside the gowns with which they are to be used.

While the corset designer and fitter has a customer in hand they keep up, as a rule, a running fire of comment as to the best way for preserving the pliancy of the figure and deplore the habit, followed by many women, of wearing but one pair of stays through a season. Ventured herself would become set and hard in outline should she come to life today and follow such a practice; the least extravagant woman in the world can afford to keep two pairs of stays going by alternating them from day to day. "More pretty figures are ruined by the one pair of stays per season than by flesh or indifference," said a corset maker of authority, "and the slouchily worn stay is one of the prime reasons for the increase of flesh as women grow older. Change your stays every time you change your gown and you will keep the girlish contours of waist, back, bust and hips long after the wrinkles have come and your hair is white as cotton."

WITH THE BRASSARD SLEEVE.

This imported model gown of tan veiling has the most successful sleeve of the season for street wear. It is called the "brassard" and is very graceful when the wearer is a slender woman. The trimming of this gown consists of ribbon velvet and tiny silk tassels of the same shade. There is a lace collar which forms a yoke and lace of the same kind forms the cuffs and the lower part of the sleeve. The waist is finished with a silk and velvet form a foot trimming. From Henry Cohen & Co.

WHITE EMBROIDERED WAIST.

All over embroidery is still in high favor for white lawn waists. This model is remarkable for its simplicity while at the same time it is a very good style.

WAIST OF WHITE BUTCHER LINEN.

Linen waist with low bertha effect of Irish lace outlined with stitched bands of linen. Lace collar to match front of blouse and sleeves are ornamented with stitched bands. Medallions of lace are set down the center of the front. Tabs of the lace, edged with bands, are suspended from the sleeves, giving a very chic Frenchy effect. From Oppenheim Collins & Co.

LETTER TO YOUNG LADIES

From the Treasurer of the Young People's Christian Temperance Association.

Miss Elizabeth Caine, Fond du Lac, Wis.

The advent of womanhood is fraught with dangers which even careful mothers too often neglect. Some of the dangers are belated and suppressed menstruation. "The lily droops on its stem and dies before its beauty is unfolded." It is well demonstrated in Miss Caine's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certain to assist nature to perform her regular duties, and young women who are irregular, or have any ailment peculiar to their sex should hasten to commence the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then sit down and write a letter to Mrs. Pinkham telling her all about their illness; she will give the case careful and motherly consideration, and advise just what to do to get well; she considers such letters strictly confidential; she will charge nothing, and thousands of young women owe their present health and happiness to her advice.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all young women who are ill to write her for advice. Address Lynn, Mass., giving full particulars.

MISS ELIZABETH CAINE.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I want to tell you and all the young ladies of the country, how grateful I am to you for the benefits I have received from using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered for eight months from suppressed menstruation, and it affected my entire system until I became weak and debilitated, and at times felt that I had a hundred aches in as many places. I only used the Compound for a few weeks, but it wrought a change in me which I felt from the very beginning. I have been very regular since, have no pains, and find that my entire body is as if it was renewed. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to everybody."—MISS ELIZABETH CAINE, 69 W. Division St., Fond du Lac, Wis.

When the young girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she experiences headaches, dizziness, faintness, and exhibits an abnormal disposition to sleep, pains in the back and lower limbs, eyes dim, desire for solitude, and a dislike for the society of other girls, when she is a mystery to herself and friends, then the mother should go to her aid promptly. At such a time the greatest aid to nature is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It prepares the young system for the coming change, and is the surest reliance for woman's ills of every nature.

When you ask for Mrs. Pinkham's medicine at your druggist, do not be persuaded to take something else said to be "just as good." Nothing in the world is so good for women's ills.

$5000 REWARD Owing to the fact that some skeptical people have from time to time questioned the genuineness of the testimonial letters we are constantly publishing we have deposited with the National City Bank, of Lynn, Mass., $5,000, which will be paid to any person who will show that the above testimonial is not genuine, or was published before obtaining the writer's special permission.—Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

DYING WAS SON

When Summoned to His Father's Death Bed.

Chicago, May 10.—That J. Ladd Stack, the Chicago advertising contractor, who is dying, might see his son, Frank Stack, of Pittsburg, before he passed away, the police of the Eastern city were asked to find the young man and notify him of his father's condition.

Pittsburg detectives located Stack at 721 Forbes street, but learned that he, too, was dying. He was attended by his wife, who said that her husband had lived in Pittsburg for eight years, but had not heard from his father for a year. Frank Stack is 28 years old and a broker.

Word of the condition of the young man was sent to relatives in Chicago by his wife.

Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always appliedexternally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

THE DRAMA AND OPERA

"Way Down East" Is Being Presented At the Lyceum.

Emma Nevada Coming Monday—"Pinafore" To Be Sung By Duluth Talent Monday and Tuesday Evenings.

This afternoon "Way Down East" is being presented at the Lyceum and tonight it will again be seen. This is the play that for two years crowded the Manhattan theater and the Academy of Music, New York, and is now taking the capacity of the theaters wherever it is seen. This play is by Lottie Blair Parker, and has been elaborated by J. R. Grismer. It will be given in this city under the direction of Manager William A. Brady, with all the beautiful scenic effects, mechanical novelties, including the much talked-off snow storm, the village choir, and a company carefully selected with a view of the portrayal of the characters so peculiar to the rural districts of New England.

The story is plainly and simply told. There is an old farmer who has a son designed by his father to marry his cousin; the young people do not care for each other; the girl falling in love with a butterfly hunting professor, while the young man is desperately smitten with a mysterious girl who strays into the family as a servant, although it is quite obvious she is of a higher station in life. Later it appears she has been deceived by a mock marriage, her betrayer being a rich young fellow, who is now trying to marry the cousin. Just at the time when the son defiared his love, the father goes away to follow up some rumors relative to the girl his son loves. Discovering her tour through the country this season, particularly through California, has been a succession of triumphs. The following excerpt from a review of her opening concert in San Francisco by the Daily Call of that city will interest many of our readers:

"One of the best concert houses of the season greeted the little diva and her clever conferees, and in some respects the audience heard the most remarkable program that the winter has seen, which is saying a lot, considering we have had the Maurice Grau Grand Opera company, Nordica and other big stars.

"It is too late in the day to attempt criticism on Mme. Nevada's familiar methods, but she was in excellent voice last night, her wonderful pianissimo is of still the same inconceivably attenuated sweetness and her coloratura work fluent as of old. She received the compliment of a double encore to each of her three groups of songs and was her customary gracious self in responding.

Leon Moreau, the pianist, has a crisp touch, a dry sparkling tone and considerable facility of execution, and as an accompanist is a model of discretion and aptness. Mr. Moreau has probably not yet reached the height of his achievement—he is still quite young—but he is an artist in the fullest sense of the word. He has a large, noble outlook, a style conspicuous alike for discretion and charm and an absolute technical control of the instrument upon which he plays. There are all sorts of deliciousness in his tone, spring sunshine were sufficient to set Broadway seething with rumors of opera, Shakespeare, new plays, next season rows and new stars. Foremost of all the fact was clearly made patent that New York is to have a summer season of opera more elaborate and variegated than it has ever known before. The most striking announcement in this connection was that Miss Rose Cecilia Shay will make her New York debut at the Grand Opera house about June 1. She will appear at the head of the grand opera company under the management of James W. Morrissey, and will be supported by singers of prominence. Miss Shay's second venture into grand opera is certainly made under more favorable auspices than the first. She is now in the hands of a capable and experienced manager and one who has made a success of nearly all his ventures. It was Morrissey who brought Emma Abbott into prominence, and in the scientific keeping of his star before the public probably no other manager is his equal.

Miss Shay comes to town early and daily rehearsals will be the rule, beginning on Monday, until the opening night. The first opera will be "Mignon," and this will be followed by "Carmen," "Faust," "Lucia," "Romeo and Juliet," "Martha," "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "Il Trovatore." So confident is Morrissey of Miss Shay's success that he is already making arrangements to extend the season, and if this is done he will, he says, present in addition "Mariana," "The Bohemian Girl," "The Lily of Killarney" and "Paul and Virginia."

The most important new production now to be seen is George Lederer's "The Wild Rose," which came to the Knickerbocker on Monday night. Reports concerning it from Philadelphia are somewhat conflicting, but in the main they agree that it will be a distinct Broadway success. Already apparently some of the members of the company are feeling sufficiently at home in their parts to have a rumpus. It is understood that the most serious one was between Eddie Foy and Irene Bentley, due to the fact that Foy had a sore throat and urged Miss Bentley to sing most of their principal duet alone. Miss Bentley did not agree with this, and Foy, in temporary anger, declared that she could "go it alone." Manager Lederer, however, straightened this out, and there has been no serious trouble since. A particular sensation is made in the costumes of the ballet. One set of girls appear in black, without even shoulder straps and with skirts so short that the audience is in constant perplexity as to where they begin and leave off.

There has been a mild tangle over the future of Pete Dailey, for he himself said early in the week that he would certainly star with Della Fox under the management of Senator Reynolds. Miss Fox said so, too, and just as every one was satisfied that that incident was ended came the announcement that Dailey and Weber and Fields had made it up, and that he was to go back under the five-year contract which was broken a couple of months ago. Miss Fox has not been heard from, but there is no doubt that Broadway will enjoy some picturesque language as soon as she gets time to talk it over. There is a bare possibility that James T. Powers may be substituted for Dailey in combination with Miss Fox. Powers has almost completed his contract with Nixon and Zimmerman, and has signed another with Senator Reynolds to become a star in the fall.

If any one man will have his hands full this summer it is Edgar Smith, who must write a libretto for Weber and Fields that will prove entirely satisfactory for William Collier, Dailey and Charles Bigelow. To those who know how hard each of these personages is to suit it can be readily understood that Smith will earn his money well. In connection with Collier the story now is that he may not appear with the rest of the company at all, but may be seen at the music hall with his own company and the stock company is sent on the road.

Mrs. Robert Edeson, known on the stage as Ellen Berg, is thanking her stars that she is a little woman. Were it not for that fact she would now be playing in "The Last Appeal," but as it is arrangements have been made to give her the place of leading woman in her husband's company, greatly to the satisfaction of the Edeson's. Miss Berg was deemed too short for "The Last Appeal" and Katherine Gray was substituted.

From the tanbark to the prima donna of a comic opera company is the rather unusual experience of Miss Rose Beaumont, leading woman with "Dan" Daly in "The New Yorkers," which will appear at the Grand Opera house next week.

When Miss Beaumont came to this country about ten years ago she was a rider in Barnum and Bailey's circus. She did a fancy driving act, and finally drove five horses. But the many escapes she had from dangerous falls caused her to leave the circus. With her sister she took up vaudeville, kept at that for several years, when the team entered Weber and Fields. From there they drifted apart, Miss Beaumont going to London, where she achieved success in George W. Lederer's plays, afterward returning to this country under special engagement with Mr. Daly. She does not care for any reference to her past career as a horseback rider, and at the word "circus" shuts up like a clam.

The prediction is clearly made by managers that more Shakespeare will be seen on the New York stage next season than ever before. The greatest interest attaches to the rivalry of William Gillette and E. H. Sothern as Hamlet. Neither will yield to the other, and each declares that his production will be the very finest this city has witnessed. Wagenhals and Kemper will enter the field with elaborate revivals, and several other managers threaten to produce Shakespeare in every form.

Incidentally it is well worth noting that the supply of good plays has been exhausted. These stars, at least, with all kinds of money at their disposal, have abandoned the search for a new play on this side of the water. There is a raft of plays, so-called, in the market, and these stars have personally given a great portion of their time to wading through masses of manuscripts in the vain hope of finding something at that could be whipped into shape. There never was a time when good plays were in more demand than at present.

There will be a joyful reunion of the Allen family in Paris this summer. For several months the six members have been separated, and all look forward to a meeting in the French capital at the end of June. Miss Viola Allen is now in Chicago preparing for her tour in "The Hunchback." Her sister Edith is in San Francisco with her mother. Brother Charles is managing a company in Pennsylvania. Papa Allen is acting in Chicago, and Brother Paul is studying art abroad. Mrs. Allen and Edith are to visit him in a few weeks. Viola will follow when her season ends. Father Allen and Charles will follow as soon afterward as possible. Then will come another parting. Viola goes to Rome with Mr. and Mrs. Hall Caine. Paul is to remain in Paris, and the other members of the family return to this side.

On Monday evening, May 19, Frank McKee will present at the Garrick theatre for six nights and two matinees "The Lady of Lyons," with Mary Mannering as Pauline and Kyrle Bellew as Claude Melnotte, assisted by Maclyn Arbuckle, Edwin Arden, Edward Abeles, W. H. Thompson, Russell Crawford, Brandon Tynan, Becton Radford, Robert E. Homans, Leonard Ide, Charles Haskins, Miss Kate Patison Selton, W. G. Jones and May Davenport Seymour.

Walter N. Lawrence, who was Daniel Frohman's representative at Daly's theater, gave way to J. C. Duff this week. The latter will represent the interests of Klaw & Erlanger, who are now dominant at that theater. Lawrence has undertaken to produce "Hearts Athame" on his own account at the Garrick theater. This play was written by Mrs. Robert T. Haines, and sold by her to Amelia Bingham, who was not, however, able to give it a production. Mrs. Haines, who is exceedingly energetic, besieged the offices of all the Broadway managers until she succeeded in interesting Lawrence in her play. Mrs. Fiske has consented to release Haines from her company earlier than was intended, in order that he may rehearse for the leading role in his wife's play. It will be presented here for one week only, and if Mrs. Haines' confidence in its merits is justified, it will then go on the road.

Miss Katie Barry came over from London with the announcement that she is to play the part of Fifi in "The Chinese Honeymoon," due at the Casino in a couple of weeks. Up to the time of this announcement it was generally understood that little Toby Claude is on her way from London, where she has been studying that part. Just how this difference of opinion will be adjusted no one connected with the management seems to understand, in the company will be Thomas Q. Seabrook, Edwin Stevens, Van Rensselaer Wheeler, William Pruette, Charles Kirke, Adel Richie, Amelia Stone and Annie Yeamans.

While the matter has not yet taken definite shape, there is considerable gossip about the benefit performance for Mrs. Lester Wallack, who is just recovering from a severe illness. The testimonial given to her husband at the Metropolitan Opera House some years ago was one of the greatest in the history of this country. It netted him nearly $30,000. "Hamlet" was produced with Edwin Booth in the title role, Lawrence Barrett as the ghost, Modjeska as the queen and W. J. Florence and Joseph Jefferson as the grave diggers. With this money and her husband's life insurance, Mrs. Wallack was able to live in comfort, but recently she made several losing investments in Western enterprises and her little fortune was swept away. There seems no doubt that many of the prominent managers will interest themselves in this talked of benefit, when the proper time arrives.

One blessing has been bestowed upon the theater-going public in this town in the shape of the passing away of the man at the Proctor houses who thumped the piano with enthusiasm and unceasing fidelity. Manager Proctor has, at last, come to the wise conclusion and he has installed one in each of his houses.

When Mrs. Maddern Fiske returns to town next week she will revive "Tess of the D'Urbervilles." With her will be seen John Jack, whose creation of the role of John Durbeyfield was one of the finest pieces of character acting in recent years. Mr. Jack will close his season with Joseph Jefferson in time to reappear in his old part. Mrs. Mary Baker, who created the role of Joan Durbeyfield, the mother of Tess, has also been engaged for the revival.

Miss Lulu Glaser received a unique present one day last week in the shape of a bedspread made of silk ribbons that ornamented boquets presented to her over the footlights during the last two or three years. The spread is of beautiful design and was made by Miss Glaser's aunt, who is a famous needle woman. The quilt has five principal insertions made of ribbons that were tied around bunches of flowers that were sent to Miss Glaser by college students, and are known as the Yale, Harvard, Columbia, Princeton and Cornell insertions, and contains the college colors of each of these famous institutions.

E. S. Willard, the English actor, who is so popular in this country, closes his season in the West soon, and sails early next month for a summer vacation in Europe. Mr. Willard announces that next season he will return to America, retaining several plays in his present repertoire, and will also have one or two new productions of plays written for him by Louis N. Parker and Stephen Phillips. This will be Mr. Willard's last appearance in America in several seasons, as he has booked to remain in England for the three years following his next appearance here.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Tom Lewis and Sam J. Bryan are to star next season.

Madame Janauschek, who is at Saratoga Springs, is said to be in very poor health and quite unable to help herself.

At Chicago a benefit for the widow and family of the late Col. J. H. Haverly will be given at McVicker's theater.

Fraulein Helene Falcke, leading lady of the Theater Royal, Potsdam, has gone into an asylum to be cured of nervous prostration and hysterics, the effects of the intensely emotional feeling which she has put into her acting.

Nellie Stewart, the Australian singer, has made a great success in Melbourne, in "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," thus successfully following in the steps of Julia Nelson and Marie Tempest, who have abandoned singing for acting.

The season of the Chicago orchestra ended last week. There was a deficit for the year, a much larger one than last season's. In eleven years the orchestra has not had one paying season. The guarantors will make good the deficit.

Each and every theater in Providence has organized a stock company for the summer season, and each is trying to outdo the other, so Providence theater goers can be reasonably assured of entertainment of all kinds during the heated spell.

Just before his departure for England Sir Henry Irving lectured before the students of Princeton university. The faculty forwarded him a check for $100 for his services. Last week Sir Henry returned the check with the request that the sum be given to charity.

Among those to be seen in "A Chinese Honeymoon" next week at the Chestnut Street Opera house are: Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Edwin Stevens, William Pruette, Charles Kirk, Van Rensaeleer Wheeler, Amelia Stone, Adele Ritchie, Tony Claude, Aimee Angells and Annie Yeamans.

De Wolf Hopper will resume starring next season, when he will present Charles Klein's dramatization of "Pickwick Papers." Digby Bell will play Wardle and Laura Stewart, who is writing some of the lyrics for the play, has been engaged to play Jingle. George F. Marion will prepare the piece for the stage.

A Berlin doctor has just described his experience of a first night at the Metropol theater, Berlin, in one of the daily papers. After being unutterably bored, he writes, by the first three acts, and annoyed by the too-evident applause of the claque, he took the liberty of hissing mildly. Hereupon a man from the box office tapped him upon the shoulder, offered him his money back if he wished, but forbade this exhibition of disapproval, which he said was ungentlemanly and improper.

Justin Huntley McCarthy, who recently returned from the United States to London to discuss the production of his drama, "If I Were King," with George Alexander, was the recipient of a strange offer in America. The widow of a Colorado financier, whose romantic career included an episode among the Mormons, wished to see her life portrayed on the stage by a distinguished dramatist. She therefore approached Mr. McCarthy with the offer of a thousand pounds, which was refused.

The prize of 50 guineas, with the freedom of the city of London, offered by the company of musicians for the best composition marsh for orchestra, has been won by Percy Godfrey, associate of the Roya. College of Music. Mr. Godfrey has quite a record in prize winning, and has recently been awarded the prize offered by Lesley Alexander for a pianoforte quintet. His other compositions include two cantatas, an overture and a number of pianoforte and violin pieces, songs and part songs. He is at present music master of King's school, Canterbury.

Mme. Rejane will make her bow as Zaza at the Imperial theater, under the management of Arthur Lewis, May 26. The French actress will play only one fortnight here, as she sails for Buenos Ayres on June 16 next for a tour in South America. The advance booking already amounts to nearly £2000. When Mme. Rejane leaves the Imperial arrangements are being completed by Mr. Lewis to bring the entire company from the Folies Dramatiques, with "Le Billet de Logement" and other farces. The company will include the beautiful Cassive, of the Nouveutes, the original "Girl from Maxim's."

GROUP OF CHARACTERS FROM "PINAFORE," TO BE PLAYED BY DULUTH TALENT AT LYCEUM TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY.

their truthfulness he returns and drives her from the house. This is the strong episode of the play. All the characters of the story are upon the scene, and when the stern old countryman orders the betrayed woman out into the snow, his son declares he will accompany her; then comes the old man's bitter renunciation of the girl, of her admission of guilt, and finally her statement that the man who is responsible for her betrayal is an honored guest in the house. As she points him out, his manner betraying guilt, all the other personages impulsively turn beseeching her to remain. The girl's indignation is great and she dashes out into the snow, the son following the wronged woman, the love of whom fills his heart.

Of course the heroine has been far more sinned against than sinning, and all the crinkles are so straightened out that there is a happy ending. There are many amusing scenes, in fact the play is full of homely humor. And in all it is said to be a st ing drama of rusticity, bubbling with sensation and showing humor enough to stay sweet all the time.

Among those in the company are Grace Hopkins, Estelle Ward, Nellie Hart, Charles Reizel, Julia Hanchett, Loyola O'Connor, Gracie Hill, Thurlow Bergen, John E. Brennan, Charles N. Burke, John C. Hickey and others.

EMMA NEVADA.

The success of Madame Emma Nevada, who is booked to appear here Monday night at the Lyceum theater, must be gratifying in the greatest degree to the famous songstress and her many friends. that is, deep, warm and sweet and marvelous in its dynamic variety, and his conception are characterized by a temperamental magic and repo'sedful mastery that stamp him as among the truly great.

"PINAFORE."

Next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Lyceum Gilbert & Sullivan's famous opera "Pinafore" will be presented under the auspices of the ladies of the First Presbyternan church. In the cast will be found the best musical and dramatic talent in the city and supporting the principals will be a large and finely drilled chorus.

New York, May 10.—Three days of THOUSANDS

Spent In Opening Wine By New York Salesman.

New York, May 10.—Some idea of the fabulous prices paid to salesmen for wine houses for the purpose of introducing their particular brand of champagne, not only in the shape of salary, but for their expense account, may be ganied from disclosures made in the supreme court before Judge O'Gorman during the argument of a motion in behalf of Count George A. Kessler, of George A. Kessler & Co., for the continuance of an injunction restraining Emanuel S. Chappelle, who is best known as "Mannie" Chappelle, and who was a former partner in business of James J. Corbett, from devoting his services to a rival concern, namely, Frederick De Bary & Co.

Kessler & Co. were represented by Edward Lauterbach and Herbert R. Limburger, and asserted that when Chappelle was engaged as a salesman by the firm in 1899 he knew little of the business, but since then, having been treated generously by Kessler and educated in the business, his salary increased from time to time, and his spending money doubled, with a promise to remain with the house for five years and not to go with any rival concern, it is considered that the court should now interfere and prevent him from violating his contract. Mr. Kessler wants to know whether agreements made with employes are of any value, although he avers it is of little moment whether Chappelle remains with the firm or not. The salary paid to Chappelle by Kessler & Co. has been $5000 a year, in addition to his expenses, and at times he has received as much as $40,000 a year for the purpose of opening this special brand of wine, or on an average of thirty quarts per night.

Mr. Kessler said he had spent $70,000 in introducing him to the trade and made him a present of twenty-five shares of stock in his corporation.

VIRGINIA.

Virginia, May 10.—Special to The Herald.)—Michael Kucharick, an Austrian laborer, was instantly killed by the Missabe passenger train bound for Duluth at 1 o'clock Wednesday. He and his partner, John Kapril, were returning home to this city from work at the Auburn mine, and had proceeded up the main tracks toward the depot to a spot about two miles and a half south of town ward the old Moon & Kerr Lumber company's mill yard, when the train came thundering on, and down a straight piece of track. The men stepped aside as the engine approached, and the way Kuchank almost voluntarily leaped before the engine looks to his partner and people here as though he meant to do the deed. Kapril states that Kuchank had been acting queer for several days and thinks there was some temporary mental derangement. The train was not brought to a standstill until all the coaches had passed over his body. However, the train backed up to the depot and the report given. Agent Sheehy and some of the section hands procured a hand car and brought the remains here, where they were taken to Mesberg's morgue. Kucharik was a married man and with his wife and child resided in this city on Walnut street. No family trouble is attributed to the deed whatever, his domestic relations are said to be affectionate. He was secretary of the Catholic Slavonic union, and in this society carried $1000 insurance. The funeral was held from the Catholic church Thursday afternoon, the Slavonic society attending.

The Virginia and Eveleth high school boys, or what was supposed to be high school, met on the diamond in a very well played game of baseball Sunday afternoon. The score stood 11 to 10 in the Eveleth boys' favor at the wind-up, but they had no license to beat Virginia, and the result came through carelessness on the local boys' part.

Virginia's city dads are at peace with all the world, at least for a while, as everything which had an exciting tinge attached to it was disposed of at the regular meeting Tuesday. The deadlocks were broken a few weeks ago, but there still remained a few matters which the aldermen were putting off and not at all willing to tackle. One of these matters was the city printing. The ways and means committee a few weeks ago brought in a report of the probable receipts and expenditures for the year, and amongst the departments which were slated for a cut was that of the printing. The printers were asked for bids, but those submitted were the same as those put in and accepted last year. They called for full legal rate. Some of the aldermen still stuck to the report of the ways and means committee and the bids were rejected. It was then up to the printers to get together and agree on a small cut, which they did, and it will be this way: The Enterprise will be designated the official paper and publish the legal work at full legal rates, and the two papers to print the council proceedings at 25 cents per folio each. The Virginian will do all job printing. When the sum of $600 is reached between the two papers the pay for future work ceases. This was presented and carried. Fred Verrille was elected dog catcher and poundmaster. Jacob Johnson received 6 and Matt Bentti 2 for scavenger. The firemen's tournament was talked over and a meeting will be called next week some time for the citizens to get together to make arrangements for finances and other details. The tournament will be held in August and will be the fourth annual meeting. William Rooney has purchased the old Moon & Kerr Lumber company office and asked for and received permission to move it to his property northeast of the city. Judge Nelson's April report of fines collected loomed up pretty big and amounted to $241. This beats all records for years. The city is again afflicted with some smallpox bills. These were incurred in April by the patient at the penthouse. While the law says that these are county cases a communication from Assistant County Attorney Crosby states that the bills should be paid by the city first. The matter was referred to the city attorney. The dog owners come next and the loose dogs around the city without a tag after June 1 will be taken under the gentle care of the new dog catcher.

Seth Bjurkquist, a young man of 25 years, died of consumption at his boarding place on Maple street Tuesday morning, after an illness of but a few weeks. He had been a resident of this city for about two years and was all that while employed by N. A. Holmer, the tailor. He leaves a father in Sweden and two brothers in Minneapolis. One brother was in attendance at the funeral, which took place from the Swedish Methodist church Thursday afternoon. The Scandinavian lodge, of which deceased was a member, and the Scandinavian ladies' lodge, took a prominent part in the funeral.

The local Engles meet Sunday afternoon to learn young Eagles how to "pray."

Oscar Anderson, John and Henry Johnson, three woodsmen, were arrested Sunday morning by Chief of Police Gronberg on suspicion of breaking the seal on a beer car standing on the Missabe company's track near the Duluth Brewing company's warehouse. Mr. Trampush, the local agent, went to look at the car early Sunday morning and found the door to be open several inches. On going inside he discovered a shortage of one case of beer and began a search, with the assistance of the chief. They found the case under the warehouse near the track. Aside from several broken bottle and nine full ones there were two woodsmen's packs. They felt certain that the men would return shortly and claim their property and incidentally dispose of the rest of the beer, and in anticipation of this idea being carried out, placed to boys to watch. Their men returned and were caught taking the packs. They were pretty "full" and were placed in jail. County Attorney McClintock was notified and stated he would hear evidence Wednesday forenoon. He failed to come and Judge Nelson heard the testimony of three witnesses, but finding it not strong enough to bind them over he gave them some good advice and they went their way rejoicing.

Some of our enterprising citizens have been trying to persuade the county commissioners and other authorities that a good road between Biwabik and St. Louis river is a very necessary thing to the village. The old trail is in such bad shape that it is impossible to drive over it. The Duluth & Iron Range railroad consented to repair it as far as the dam, because this part of the way was made impassable by the raising of the railroad grade. The agreement that has been reached between the county and the railroad is that the latter promises to pay for the road and the county will see that it is built properly. This will be received in the meantime. The country between here and the St. Louis river is interesting and picturesque. The road will run by Lake Esquagama, which is famous for beauty and is visited every summer by many camping parties.

HOME AND ITS MISTRESS

What the Young Housewife Should Seek Advice About and What She Should Avoid.

There is nothing one can secure so much of and at so cheap a rate in this world as advice; and furthermore, there is nothing so little appreciated or followed. Generally when we solicit it we know that unless it coincides in the main with our views we will not heed the advice we ask for. Afterwards, after we have folowed our own sweet will and consequences prove disastrous, we recall the wholesome, if entirely disagreeable, advice to which we paid no attention. Perhaps it might be well for us sometimes to consider suggestions from those whom we know have learned whereof they speak through that only infallible teacher, experience, before deciding against acceptance. We may find it an advantage to be acquainted with such snares and pitfalls as are to beset our pathway; so we may save ourselves from many a wearying scramble out of them.

To apply this to my text: You are the young, ambitious wife, about to take your first venturesome step into the, to you, absorbing business of housekeeping. Upr life does not circumscribe your ambitions as your days on this earth so far have been passed in acquiring book-learning, music, and so on, having a good time generally. You have perhaps made an occasional visit to the kitchen to make "fudge;" or quite likely you have served some dish of your own preparation along with your cookingschool class, to an adoring, admiring audience. You are, in your own opinion, more than able to cope with any and every emergency, however startling, that may confront you. Advice? You will have none of it! Your ways are all to be new ways; the old-fashioned ching worth knowing about housekeeping and its duties.

Well, my dear, unless you are willing to accept some of the good and tried suggestions you will receive you will find yourself in a very short while imploring your neighbor, whose experience has been dearly bought, possibly to please tell you how she makes her rolls so light; or what does she do with too fierce an oven; or what is her remedy for insect pests, or any one of a thousand perfectly unthought-of exigencies that have arisen before you like spooks and hobgoblins, chanting in deep tones to frighten and perplex you. I refer to these purely practical and outwardly visible trials, because there are other perplexities and vexations that you must not seek advice concerning. There are bickerings, maybe; thoughtless words and nets between you and your best beloved, where no such thing as advice or suggestion should be asked of your neighbor; where the truest, most womanly and therefore most correct course is silence. It would be difficult to gauge or measure the irreparable damage done by the seeking of and listening to unwise counsel in such cases. The little "rift within the lute" grows wider; the tiny cloud spreads until your whole horizon is darkened, because your wounded dignity and hurt feelings have been unduly aggravated by a mistaken sympathy.

And this is where a line should be clearly drawn; no amount of experience justifies advice in such cases, for the simplest of all reasons—people are not alike; no two persons can see the same thing exactly the same way, yet neither one may be in the wrong. Also are there but few who see all around a matter, as it were, clearly enough to be quite impartial. You may safely conclude in this, at all events, that it is entirely your own affair and nobody has a right to meddle; then you will be safe.

"There is nothing new under the sun," said Solomon, the wise king, ages and ages ago. If nothing was new then, how can there be now? Yet there are ways of doing things which, while not new in any sense, may be of assistance where they have not been thought of. Take, for example, the hiring of a new maid. Perhaps a hint, I'm afraid to say a bit of advice, after exploring the cheapness of such a commodity—may prove helpful. Try making an arrangement for a trial term of one week, at so much; during that week leave the new maid largely to herself, as far as her work is concerned, if so she is anyway experienced. It frequently happens that too many suggestions, or rather commands, are given her altogether, piled up, you might say; and naturally she forgets some of them in the strange place and new environments. There may be, impossible though it appears to be, other ways of performing certain duties quite as good as yours; the maid may have originality, if she be let alone, and you may find a treasure unawares. After such trial, if your ways suit you best, instruct her, but a little at the time; remember, she is most likely ignorant as well as inexperienced, and can only remember so much. Let the understanding be mutual, even in writing if possible, that if at the end of the trial week you can not possibly keep her, she is to accept a certain agreed sum and her dismissal. I have known many cases of the mistress being obliged to either retain a perfectly unsatisfactory maid the whole month—a trial beyond bearing almost—or pay the entire wage, because of the claim made that she was engaged 'by the month," and a threatened law suit unless either retained or paid the full amount for that period.

If you are contemplating a stay-at-home summer, do not fail to make the home a pleasant sojourning place by taking some little trouble in certain ways. For example: You have carpets everywhere; take them all up; have them thoroughly beaten, sprinkle thickly with ground black pepper, which will not injure them, but is disliked exceedingly by the boring moth, and lay carefully away until fall. A cheap matting makes a delightful summer floor covering, but maybe you can not afford it; then paint your floors; put away all your fur and woolen rugs, clothe every plush or velvet or brocade chair and couch with cool white covers that will wash; buy a dozen palm-leaf fans for a few cents; make some gingham slips for all your sofa pillows; contract for plenty of ice; spend all you can spare on white lawn and dimity gowns for yourself and family; lose the thermometer; darken your rooms by 10 o'clock in the morning, and open the windows at sundown; in a few words, do as does the Southern mistress when dog days are upon her, and you will be so comfortable you'll forget to be cross, and then you'll never be too warm. If to these doings you add a diet of fresh fish when you can get it; unlimited ripe fruit; scant rations of heat-producing meats; none at all of pastries and pies, why you will be glad to know summer is upon you.

Suppose, too, you try the experiment of looking at all the pretty wash goods so temptingly displayed, and then buying only white. That it is the most economical for yourself as well as for the small daughter is easily proved? You can always remodel a partly worn white frock; but can you a striped or plaided or figured gingham or lawn? The little white slip does not show soil any more than does any light color, and if you are sensible and make it plain, with no extra frills, it is really easier for the laundress. So, as I said, just try the experiment, and—the white frocks will do the rest.

A FAMOUS DUEL

Reported of Lincoln Which Was Not Fought.

Within a few months the famous old dueling ground in St. Charles county, Mo., will have ceased to exist. The shifting current of the Mississippi river has attacked the little plot of land and it is rapidly succumbing to erosion of the waters, writes the Alton, Ill., correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The St. Charles dueling ground has been the scene of more "affairs of honor" than any other one spot in the Western country. Its chief title to fame, however, rests on the fact that it was there that Abraham Lincoln met James A. Shields, afterward brigadier general and United States senator from the states of Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri successively, in the only duel to which he was ever provoked.

The dueling ground is directly across the river from this city. In the early days of the state it was much frequented by those who thought their honor required vindication with the pistol or sword, and the accessability of the place soon gave it a wide reputation. The laws of Illinois did not look kindly on the practice of dueling, and prescribed such penalties for the practice that even the most hot-headed fire-eater was glad to get outside of the state before a hostile meeting with an adversary. The laws of Missouri took no cognizance of the dueling habit, and it was considered quite the proper thing then to determine disputes by the shedding of blood.

That was in the old days, however. A more enlightened spirit has since prevailed in reference to such customs, and in consequence it has been many years since a duel has taken place on the St. Charles ground. Its fame has made it consecrated ground in the memory of many Illinoisans and Missourians, and a few years after the war steps were taken to preserve the spot in its original shape. The dueling ground was bounded on the north by a creek at one time wound its way. This disappeared one summer and left nothing to show its former presence but its desolate bed and a number of huge boulders that the waters had left sticking up from the ground. Enough money was raised by subscription to remove these boulders and to erect an iron fence around the grounds, and in that condition they have remained ever since.

Mr. Lincoln's meeting there with Shields has furnished one of the few ludicrous episodes with which the duelling field has ever been credited. Shields was then auditor of the state of Illinois. The finances of the state were in a deplorable condition; the treasury was empty; auditor's warrants were selling at half their nominal value; no more money was to be borrowed, and taxation was prevented by both political parties more than disgrace. The currency of the state banks was well nigh worthless, but it was virtually the only circulating medium in Illinois.

In the middle of August, 1842, the governor, auditor and treasurer issued a circular forbidding the payment of state taxes in this depreciated paper. This order was taken by the Whigs as indicating on the part of these officers a keener interest in the integrity of their salaries than in the public welfare, and it was therefore severely attacked in all the opposition papers of the state. The sharpest assault it had to endure, however, was in a communication printed in the Sangamon Journal, which not only dissected the administration circular with the most savage satire, but covered the auditor with merciless personal ridicule. It purported to come from a farmer's widow, who expressed in this fashion her discontent with the evil course of affairs.

Shields was a man of inordinate vanity and a corresponding irascibility. He was for that reason an irresistible mark for satire. His fury against the unknown author of the satire was the subject of much merriment in Springfield. The next week another letter appeared from a different hand, but adopting the machinery of the first, in which the widow offered to make up the quarrel by marrying the auditor, and this in turn was followed by an epithalamium, in which this happy compromise was celebrated in very bad verse. In the change of hands all the humor of the thing had vanished, and nothing was left but feminine mischief on one side and the exasperation of wounded vanity on the other.

Shields had talked so much about the matter that he felt imperatively called upon to act. He therefore sent a messenger to the editor of the paper and demanded from him the name of the author of the articles. The editor was in a quandary. The first article had been written by Mr. Lincoln, but the two following it had been written by two young women who took an active interest in politics and could not let the chance slip to have a little fun with Shields. The editor appealed to Mr. Lincoln in his dilemma, and the latter answered:

"Oh, tell Shields that I wrote them. Don't let the names of the women appear in the matter."

As soon as Shields had the name of Mr. Lincoln given to him he began to boast of the vengeance he would take, and sent representatives to Mr. Lincoln with a challenge couched in the most blustering terms. Mr. Lincoln was disposed to laugh at the matter, and his friends tried in every way to patch the thing up with Shields, but nothing would do the latter but a hostile meeting. Mr. Lincoln had to finally consent to this, but he never seemed to divest himself of the idea that the whole proceeding was a huge joke. They repaired to St. Charles, and Lincoln, being the challenged party, had the choice of weapons. After the arrival at the dueling grounds he was asked what weapons he would select. With a quizical twinkle in his eye he replied:

"Let's have some originality about this duel. I prefer cannon at fifty paces."

The absurdity of the proposition created a general laugh, in which even Shields was forced to join, and while he was in this tractable frame of mind the seconds reasoned with him, with the result that he and Lincoln were soon after seen amicably together as if nothing had ever happened, and the duel was off.

The prominence of the men had attracted general attention to the duel, and when the boats carrying the principals and seconds were seen crossing the Mississippi back to Alton, a large crowd stood on the shore awaiting news of the result of the supposed encounter. Again Mr. Lincoln's whimsical tendencies saw the chance for another joke. Placing a log in his skiff he had it covered with clothes, and as the boat approached the shore the spectators thought was the body of one of the principals. When they reached the shore Mr. Lincoln coolly reached down, took the clothes off the log and rolled the latter into the river. It took the spectators on the shore a moment to realize the situation, but when they did, a roar of laughter went up that dispelled the general tension.

The duelists remained in Alton all night and diner at a hotel with their friends, and although both men fought each other with intensity during political campaigns, they remained firm friends ever afterward. The old dueling ground at St. Charles thus brought together two statesmen who would have probably remained bitter enemies throughout their life and made bosom friends of them.

TO SPOT CRIMINALS.

Their Identity Established By Record of Measurements.

The criminal who conceals his identity from the police nowadays must do something more than get a hair cut and a shave. At the National Bureau of Identification, which has just been established in this city, may be seen the pictures of 11,000 or 12,000 criminals, collected since the starting of the bureau at Chicago four years ago, says the Washington Post. Within a year it is expected the collection will be increased to 25,000, and in a few years here in the national capital will be the largest gallery of pictures of crooks and all-around lawbreakers in the world.

The bureau is in charge of the acting superintendent, Edward A. Evans, a young man who has been connected with the bureau since its beginning. Unlike most rogues' galleries the one here is not overcrowded with murderers who have been hanged or crooks whose days of evil are over, but it is composed of the bad men of today, who may commit crimes in any part of the country almost at any time.

At present the membership of the bureau includes only the large cities of the United States and Canada, but it is desired to have all the police departments of the world join in the movement for the running down of these lawbreakers. At the next convention of police chiefs, which will be held at Louisville, in May, a delegation of foreigners representing the heads of the departments of most of the large European cities, is expected to be in attendance. Already a bill, drawn up by Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of police of this city and president of the Association of Police Chiefs, has been introduced in congress asking an appropriation of $25,000 for the support of the movement. It is hoped action will be taken on the measure early this session, as it is a matter which affects the whole country.

The majority of the pictures in the gallery are of pickpockets. Then there are sneak thieves and burglars by the hundred. Women crooks are well represented and a more hardened set of faces would be difficult to imagine. Strange to say, the largest number of these are "knockout" artists, such as only the large cities harbor. In Chicago, New York and elsewhere where women are permitted to loiter about saloons and low dives, this crime has been one of common occurrence.

Washington can boast of being absolutely free from this class of wrongdoers. This, it may be said, is because the vigilance of the police prevents these persons from loitering about saloons and other places. Shoplifting is the cause of the downfall of most of the other women represented. Here in the national capital there has been more or less of this form of crime, especially during the Christmas holidays.

"We do not depend on faces in identifying criminals," said Mr. Evans yesterday in speaking of the workings of the bureau. "We depend on measurements." He then drew forth two pictures of Pat Crowe, the alleged Cudahy kidnaper, which bore no resemblance to each other. One was taken in the Illinois state penitentiary July 5, 1899, with Crowe in prison garb, the other at St. Louis, Mo., eight years later, with the fugitive in citizen's attire and wearing his hair pompadour style and a mustache. He had given a fictitious name when arrested in St. Louis, and it was only by the measurements that he was identified. The two corresponded exactly as to height, arms, trunk, length and width of head, length and width of hair, left foot, left middle finger, left little finger, left forearm and color of eyes.

Pat Crowe had a record before the kidnaping of young Cudahy, the son of the millionaire packer, about a year two years ago. It will be remembered that the boy was returned only after the payment of a large ransom, and that Pat Crowe managed for a long time to elude the police of the country, with a reward of $50,000 hanging over his head. He is not known in the East, but has spent most of his time in the West, and has worked in numerous cities. He was born in Chicago thirty-one years ago, and has a brother who conducts a hotel opposite the Northwestern station in that city.

He was a butcher by trade and had never committed any serious offense until the fall of 1899, at the house of Mrs. Carrie Watson, in Chicago. As he was leaving the house one evening one of the women boarders came to the door with him and he attempted to snatch a diamond earring, valued at $800, from her ear. She screamed and he shot her in the right arm. Officers Briscoe and Lindville responded and attempted to arrest Crowe. He shot Lindville in the head and arm and Briscoe was shot in the left breast, an inch below the heart. Both recovered and Crowe was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment at Joliet. He was pardoned by Governor Fifer after serving about a year and a half.

He was sentenced for other petty offenses in Chicago, and also served thirty days in jail in Cleveland for petit larceny. On August 3, 1898, he attempted to work the "short-change" game on a merchant in St. Louis, when the merchant grabbed him to hold him for the police. He broke away and jumped into a buggy and forced the occupant to jump out at the point of a revolver. A patrol wagon with officers followed, and he was only captured after having driven into a blind alley. No one in St. Louis knew the prisoner, who had given the name of John Wilson, and he was identified by having the picture forwarded to the bureau at Chicago, where an examination of the files disclosed his identity. He had also traveled under the name of Harris. Crowe was sentenced to sixteen months for this crime, but after serving about five months was pardoned on the plea of insanity.

Next Pat Crowe was heard of in Chicago again, about two years ago, in connection with the holding up of the Northwestern train at Tower, one of the suburbs of Chicago, where the robbers secured about $98,000 in cash and valuables. He was arrested, but proved an alibi. After this he was lost sight of until about the time of the kidnaping of young Cudahy.

One picture in the gallery represents a man with a bullet wound in his left breast, who was one of the most noted burglars in the West. He was released from Joliet October 15, 1899, and shortly thereafter appeared in Chicago and lived in luxury in the up-town section under the name of Elmer Reed. Numerous burglaries were perpetrated about this time. On February 15, 1900, Officer Murtagh noticed a man go into an alley near Fiftieth street and Perry avenue, and followed closely. In a few minutes he heard some one working on a second story window. Murtagh started up the steps, when the burglar looked down from above and fired four shots, one of which struck the policeman in the ear and another went through his coat.

Murtagh returned the fire and the burglar jumped from the porch and ran two blocks, when he dropped dead. The only bullet which Murtagh fired struck the burglar, entered the right side, penetrated the heart and came out on the left side. It was rather a remarkable feat for the man to run two blocks after having been wounded in this manner. Every effort to identify the man failed, though the police and detectives from Chicago and elsewhere looked at the body. Edward S. McGuire, one of the experts of the bureau, took his description and measurements, and on examining the files at the bureau found that Elmer Reed's correct name was Elmer Wright, and that he was once connected with a fine family.

Wright had been released from Joliet for ten years in 1891 from Chicago for robbing twenty-one houses on the Northside, and was released in 1899. Previous to this he had served a term of eight years in Joliet and two years at the Wisconsin state penitentiary. In his room were found the proceeds of fifteen burglaries, which had been committed during the two months previous in Chicago. In fact, all his plunder was found in his trunk, with the exception of some furs. He had been in the habit of going out at night on the pretext that he repaired pool tables. He always carried a green candle, a putty knife and a revolver, and in all the houses which he had burglarized was found green candle grease.

NEW LAW OF LONGEVITY.

Not only life insurance experts, but a great many other people also have observed that longevity or the reverse runs in families, says the New York Tribune. Some persons have better constitutions than others, and they are apt to transmit them to their children. A man both of whose parents were long lived has a promise of a good old age himself. This, of course, is an old story. A much less familiar principle affecting the duration of life has been presented by Miss Mary Beeton, of Cambridge, and Professor Karl Pearson, of London, in a new periodical called "Biometrika."

A comparison was made between the length of the lives of two adult brothers or two adult sisters to ascertain if there was a perceptible difference between the older and younger members of a pair. The figures here given represent the average of over 1000 cases, and hence would seem to point to a general law. It may be added that the particular persons under investigation belonged to the Society of Friends. That organization placed its records at the disposal of Miss Beeton and Professor Pearson.

It thus appears that the average age of the elder brother was 58.56 years, the younger brother 54.575, the older sister's 59.824 and the younger sister's 55.667. There is a difference of over four years in favor of the older adult brother or sister. This does not signify that the older brother or sister will survive the younger. The mean interval between the births of the members of all the pairs under consideration was about six and a half years. Hence the older brother or sister would ordinarily die first, though attaining a greater age.

The first inquiry here mentioned was limited to pairs, the younger members of which had attained the age of at least 21. A second comparison was made that included minors with adults. It gave results closely resembling the other. The mean access of life in 1853 pairs was 4.8 years. But the interval between the births appears to exert some influence. "Biometrika's" contributors furnish a formula by which one's expectations can be computed and add: "Thus a brother born ten years before another brother has probably seven years' greater duration of life. A sister born ten years before another sister has probably about six years' greater duration of life."

HOW MAMMY JOE TOLD OF THE SINKING OF THE MERRIMAC

BY MARTHA S. GIELOW

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

A country village in the South is especially peaceful and quiet, except perhaps on Saturdays and court days, when the negroes came to 'town from miles around to buy and sell and to attend court. The picture of Main street, Greensboro, Alabama, on those days is a sight for the unbelievers. One could hardly imagine that so many mules, wagons, ox carts, people, watermelons and watermelon rinds could be gotten into so small a space. The road, the sidewalks, the side streets and the stores are literally jammed.

On one exceptional occasion only was the like ever equalled in our quiet little city. It was on the 5th of June, 1898, the odor of roses and honeysuckle hung heavily upon the warm summer air, the peaceful stillness was only broken by the caroling of mockingbirds among the shade trees and shrubbery. Mammy Joe was on one of her occasional visits to "Miss Ma'y."

Her arrival from the old home was always a great event, and no queen ever received a warmer welcome than was accorded our fa...ful old nurse whenever she came. She had heard that "Miss Morthy" had arrived from New York, so the ox-cart was hitched up and Isum and Jake had forthwith brought her to town.

"Lawd, honey," she exclaimed, as we helped her into the house, "you might er know'd you is one uv my fav'rits, or you wouldn't see me takin' dis long ride to town in dat ole rickety ox-cart. Bless de Lawd, how glad I is to see you all ergain. Hit's good for de sore eyes. But, chile you ain' lookin' ve'y well; I feered you doan' git de right things to eat in Noo York. I hyear tell dey doan' even know what beat biskits is up dar, an' I know dey doan't, 'kase I never seed none when me an' Mistis (yo' gran'mar) usen to go dar befo' de war, nuu...n tall but des light braid an' rolls, not even er sign uv aigbraid, an ef dey doan hab good braid, dey done hab nuffin' good."

"But, chillun," she continued, after making her expressions of happiness to each and all of us, "is you all hyeard de news uptown" No news had been heard by the family up to that time—it was then about 11 o'clock in the morning. "Why, chillun," she exclaimed in astonishment at our having heard of nothing unusual, "why, chillun, hit's des lak Chris'mus uptown, de gentmuns is all stan'in' togedder on de corners, an' I hyeard 'um hoorayin' an' goin' on at sich er rate dey hit most skeer me. When de evening train came in from Selma, however, the Stars and Stripes, which had been telegraphed for, were unfurled by the side of the mementoes of the Lost Cause. The flag of the nation took on a new meaning to us, and for the first time since the war the Stars and Stripes floated peacefully over many proud mansions and devastated Southern homes.

"'Why, Aunt Joe,' he say, 'ain't you hyeard de news?'"

"'No, sir, I say, 'what news? I is jes driv up fum de country an' I ain' hyeard er thin.' Wid dat, I thought Unc' Billy would bus' open.

THE ARENA OF SPORTS

Scheme of a Co-operative Baseball Team Is Meeting With Favor.

Duluth Tennis Club Organized For the Season With F. W. Paine As President—Jim Corbett In Training.

"Move a single muscle and you die like dogs."

The command came from an unseen voice. The Twentieth avenue west White Stockings were looking right into the muzzle of a 91-caliber communication to a newspaper. The speaker was a minister with determination plainly written in at least two places on his face.

"If you attempt to play the West Duluth Muskrats, I will have this communication published in full. Now duck, everyone of you, and don't be long about it!"

"Duck!" said Olson, the little giant, in stentorian tones to his trusty followers. And they "ducked."

"Apologies to Dick Dead-Eye, author of "Thirty Buckets of Blood" and other tales of daring.

The scheme for organizing a crack co-operative baseball team to take the place of the late all-star aggregation which was death-stricken from an overdose of puritanical nostrum, is meeting with more favor among the fans than the players.

The scheme is to have nine or ten of Duluth's best ball players organize a team in which each player would become a stockholder by simply investing his services and ability.

This team would be controlled exclusively by the players themselves, would divide the profits among themselves. The team would not play Sunday games in Duluth, thus paying a beautiful, great and glorious tribute to the Civic Federation of West End ministers, and at the same time playing for their patronage.

A team organized on such a basis could play in Oneota park because it overcomes all the objections of the West End ministers, at least all that have been publicly expressed thus far.

All that is lacking in the plan now is for some good popular player to take the thing in hand and organize the club. It would certainly be good for at least $25 a month for each man on a winning team.

Next week the Endion Tennis club will start the work of repairing the Tenth avenue club grounds. The old fence will be torn down and rebuilt, the club house and fence painted and the courts put in good condition. F. W. Paine has been elected president for 1902 and A. S. Ames secretary and treasurer to receive applications for membership. Messrs. Paine, Ames and C. B. Miller have charge of the grounds for the season.

Jim Corbett has begun training for a prospective fight with Jeffries. "Gentleman Jim" arises nearly every day at noon. After making his toilet he plays ping-pong until 3:30 o'clock. From then until dinner he takes a ride in an automobile. After dinner he dresses for the theater. Just before retiring he drinks a cup of cocoa and manicures his face. It is reported that he is gradually returning to his normal fight condition.

New York automobilists complain that the jolt occasioned by running over pedestrians is annoying, very annoying. A full-grown man or woman shakes the chauffeur up terribly. Infants are less trouble, while dogs and chickens are hardly noticeable. Even chauffeurs have their troubles.

English journals are so accurate, doncher know? They tell us that Nasturtium is a roarer. Also that Nasturtium is not a roarer. Then we learn that Nasturtium has the English Derby by the throat, and later that Nasturtium has no such hold. Continuing, we learn that Nasturtium looks like a dray horse, and the next morning we are informed that he could almost be taken for Flying Fox.

Jack Jeffries, the giant brother of the giant champion of the heavyweights, will make his first appearance in the ring for many months at Los Angeles, Cal., on May 12. In appearance Jack resembles his brother Jim to such an extent that he has often been mistaken for the champion. Several years ago in Washington Jim Jeffries was carded to appear at a certain theater, but was not feeling well and asked Jack to take his place. Jack went on and was given a hearty reception. After the show Jack walked to his hotel, followed by a mob of kids, while Jim Jeffries sat up in his room wondering what all the cheering was about on the outside.

Not one event in the intercollegiate conference meet will be watched so closely as the pole-vaulting contest, which will bring together Charles Dvorak, of Michigan, and Jerome Magee, of Chicago. The former is the present champion of the Western colleges, holding the record at 11 feet 6 inches, and has been credited with 12 feet in practice. At Philadelphia last week Magee did 11 feet 5 inches in competition, and he has done 11 feet 8 inches and higher in practice trials. Dvorak has been doing no indoor work this winter and quit last year with a lame heel, but is reported in fair condition now. Magee has shown constant improvement this spring, and Stagg expects him to eventually reach 12 feet. If both of these stars are in form, it seems certain that at least the Western and perhaps the world's record—11 feet 10½ inches—will be broken in the big meet on Marshall field this spring. The accompanying pictures show how cleanly each clears the bar. Magee was abroad last season and two years ago—when Dvorak made his record—the Chicago man was not vaulting much more than 10 feet. The meeting this spring will be the first contest between the men since they have both sprung into prominence. As an individual contest this promises to bring out even more enthusiasm than the old rivalry between Hayes, of Michigan, and Moloney, of Chicago, in the middle distance runs.

Frank Hahn, of Cincinnati, twirled a double-headed paragraph for himself in the history of the campaign of 1901 when he struck out sixteen Boston batsmen at the Hub. The other afternoon he and Jack Taylor, of Chicago, were joint architects of a record that will not be broken very many times this year. A game like that 12-inning no-run draw is always responsible for the unearthing of dusty dope books. The 1-to-0 18-inning game of 1882, which Charley Radbourne won for Providence over Detroit by a home run, was almost equaled last year when Bill Dineen, of Boston, lost his famous hard-luck game here in Chicago, 1 to 0 in seventeen innings. Chicago figured in another victory of that sort in 1900, when Pittsburg was beaten 1 to 0 in fourteen innings. The runless draw will be prolific of good results, for it has showed the faithful of two cities that they have pretty fair teams to root for, at least when Frank Hahn and Jack Taylor are serving the assorted slants.

IRON ORE.

April Record Broken By Receipts at Lake Erie Ports.

Cleveland, May 10.—The Iron Trade Review says: The figures representing iron ore shipments to May 1 are surprising large. There has never been such an April record since ore began to come to Lake Erie ports. From all the docks on Lake Superior and Lake Michigan the shipments for May 1 were 1,854,902 gross tons. This does not include the ore sent from Michipicoten bay to Lake Erie ports—about 70,000 tons, beside which there are the Michipicoten shipments to Midland and Hamilton, Ont. The May 1 total given above is 265,000 tons more than the total to June 1 last year, when there were no April shipments. At the rate of April, during which month a number of mines made no shipments, there is little doubt that nearly 4,000,000 tons could be shipped in May, bringing the total to June 1 in the neighborhood of 5,500,000 or 5,800,000 tons, an unparalleled record.

Estimates continue to be made of the amount of ore that will come down this season. If the next six months show an average of 3,500,000 tons, which was the average of June, July and August last year, there would be a total of 22,854,000 tons by Nov. 1. There is vessel capacity to do this, and the docks will be equal to it if they give no better dispatch than last year's, which was generally poor. With about 3,000,000 tons of ore on the docks April 1, this year, a date corresponding to May 1 of last year, when over 3,000,000 tons was carried, it has been estimated by some authorities that no great increase would be made this season over the shipments of 101. However, it is now known that the United States Steel corporation mines will make larger shipments than were estimated earlier in the season, and this year's total performance may exceed 22,000,000 tons. From the present outlook this can be reached, if there is a demand for the ore.

"ARISE NOW."

Message Miss Ullery Claims She Heard and Obeyed.

Belleville, Ohio, May 10.—"Arise now." Such was the command of God which Miss Belle Ullery, of this city, claims she heard. For years Miss Ullery had been the victim of a form of rheumatism which rendered her perfectly helpless. She appealed to medical science in vain. She at last despaired of ever rising from the bed which had held her wasted form for so many months.

Tuesday night Miss Ullery, who is but 23 years old, offered a fervent prayer to God for her relief, and following her ptition she heard the words "Arise now." She admits that she was surprised by this remarkable occurrence, but immediately obeyed the command, and was more surprised to find that she was able to rise and dress. Miss Ullery stated to a reporter next morning that she never felt better than she does at present, although she is very weak and emaciated.

She says that she has always had the most profound faith in prayer, and believes that Divine power effected her cure in answer to her earnest petition.

She's a radiant, witching, wondrous gem that beautiful, blushing wife of mine. She is an angel on earth, so you can be, only take Rocky Mountain Tea. Ask your druggist.

WORLD OF LABOR

Strike of Iron Molders a Paramount Issue In Duluth.

Gordon O'Neil Boomed For International President of Longshoremen.

Unions of Team Drivers and Team Owners Formed.

Labor meetings scheduled:

Longshoremen meet tonight at 320 North Fifty-fifth avenue west.

The Team Drivers' union meets tomorrow, 320 East Superior street.

Building Trades' council meets Monday, at 31 West Superior street.

The Carpenters' union meets Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Cooks and waiters will meet Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Sheet Metal workers will meet Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Freighthandlers' union, Thursday, at 18 West Superior street.

The strike of the iron molders has become a sort of paramount issue locally. This union has been out since May 1, and naturally the local shops are getting shy of union made castings.

On Thursday an effort was made to introduce non-union castings into the Clyde Iron works and the machinists declined to work. Up to a late hour today the machinists were still out at the Clyde, but there were indications of a conference later in the afternoon, which might possibly lead to an adjustment.

The machinists of the National Iron works are ready to join the men from the Clyde in case non-union made castings are introduced in the shop.

The castings are being made in a little shop that has just started up on Garfield avenue.

There is some talk of booming Gordon O'Neil, president of the local Longshoremen's union, for president of the Longshoremen's International at the next convention. He has made quite a reputation for himself in organizing and other union work, and is certainly as capable of holding down the job as the present incumbent.

The Team Drivers' union and a union of team owners have been organized by J. W. Richardson, Henry Perault, William Moran and Victor Johnson, of the Federated Trades' assembly. The meetings were held Thursday evening, and considerable interest was shown by the men. The team drivers will hold another meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at 320 East Superior street for the purpose of completing their organization, and the team owners will meet on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the same place.

The Chicago Federation of Labor has asked Duluth unions to join in a movement to prevent members of the meat trust from fencing in all the remaining agricultural and grazing lands of the West, and also to aid in securing irrigation legislation for Montana, Wyoming and other states. A committee, consisting of H. W. Lanners, G. Anderson and J. W. Richardson, will take up the matter on behalf of the Trades' assembly.

J. H. Johnson, for many years a resident of Duluth and a charter member of the local pressmen's organization, has left the city permanently and will take up farming in North Dakota. Hosts of friends wish him success in his new venture.

Delegate Rakowsky of the local Iron Molders' union has located permanently in Butte, Mont.

George Kingsley, business agent of the Minneapolis Team Drivers' union, has been on the city during the past week on business.

The Duluth Typographical union will give a banquet to the West Superior printers in Kalamazoo hall a week from tomorrow. The program is not yet complete, but there will be addresses by J. Adam Bede and William E. McEwen.

William Prindle, the new business agent of the Building Laborers' union, is making a good record and has the appearance of a hustler. He resides at 608 East Eighth street and can always furnish union laborers for building purposes.

Vice President Wilson of the Northwestern machinists is up from Minneapolis on business. Mr. Wilson was in Duluth recently and addressed the Trades' assembly and other union meetings, making many warm admirers.

This is the age of organization. Why not organize a snow-shovelers' union of Duluth for summer purposes only.

The Machinists' union has affiliated with the Federated Trades' assembly. The delegates are Messrs. Ewald, Pringle and Hunt.

H .C. Stivers, secretary of the Trades and Labor assembly of Superior and city statistician of that place, made a very interesting address last evening before the meeting of the Trades' assembly.

The Retail Clerks' union held a very interesting meeting on Tuesday evening. The early-closing movement was discussed at length and the grievance committee instructed to wait on several down-town stores and endeavor to have them join with the larger stores and close at 6 o'clock.

Actual work of construction on the Tenth avenue west viaduct has begun. This is good news for the men that work along the harbor front.

The Painters' union reports that John Hogan's shop, 111 East First street, is on the unfair list.

At the meeting of the Building Laborers' union on Thursday night 26 new members were admitted. The union now has a membership of 212, and 45 additional members will be added at the next meeting.

The Carpenters' union on Tuesday night took in 12 new members. This organization seems to be getting stronger and more popular every week.

LABOR NOTES.

Chicago bootblacks want an A. I. of A. charter.

The Ohio legislature passed a police and fire pension bill.

Marion, Ind., chain workers won after nine weeks' strike.

Chicago bricklayers now get 55 cents an hour. In New York they are paid 65 cents.

Massachusetts house of representatives last week passed the bill making eight hours' work the limit on all city work.

Mr. Mulock has introduced a bill in the Canadian legislature providing for compulsory arbitration in cases of railway labor disputes.

Toronto coal drivers have succeeded in getting their wages advanced to 17 cents an hour for double team drivers, and 15 cents for single teams.

Florence, Col., unions have organized a building association and incorporated under state laws. The purpose is to erect a fine two-story building for store and labor meeting uses.

The Philadelphia United Labor league lost its American Federation of Labor charter. A new organization, controlled by the councils of Allied Building Trades, will probably replace it.

St. Louis tent and awning makers went on strike a few days ago and were out only one day. The bosses signed the new scale, which calls for $15 a week for skilled labor and $12 a week for helpers.

Toronto iron moulders won in their demands for higher wages without having to resort to a strike, and now a clear field for making preparations for the international convention to be held there in June.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has issued a circular to secretaries of Chicago trades and federal labor unions, warning them of the danger in the attempt to form an international laborers' union.

Barn makers in the shops of the Long Island, N. Y., Railroad company have been granted an increase of 10 per cent in wages, recognition of the business agent of their union and the union's price and a half more for overtime work.

Efforts are being made by the organized machinists of the Greater New York to organize all workers in machine shops; boring, milling, and monitor machine hands, drillers and chippers, into a local union of the American Federation of Labor.

Labor organizations throughout the Greater New York are almost a unit in favor of the abolition of tariff tax upon foreign meats in consequence of the recent increases in price which almost place the purchase of domestic meats beyond the means of a great portion of the wage-earning community.

No surprise need be felt at the decision of the parliamentady committee of the Canadian manufacturers' association to oppose the bill introduced into the Dominion house by Ralph Smith to transfer the power to settle labor troubles from the department of the minister of justice to that of the minister of labor.

At the last session of the Kentucky legislature there was passed a child labor bill fixing the age limit at fourteen years, a factory inspection bill providing for two factory inspectors, the legalization of Labor day as a legal holiday, repeal of the turnpike law, a two-week pay bill for miners, and a compulsory examination law for barbers.

Racine, Wis., has been struck by a housemaid famine, and the persons who employ housemaids are puzzled as to how they are going to overcome the condition without doing their own work. The cause of this state of affairs is the old one of the girls going to wark in the factories, where they can earn $4 or $5 a week and have their evenings and Sundays to themselves.

One thousand molders, pressers, blasters and laborers in five brick and terra cotta works at Cheltenham near St. Louis are out on a strike. The skilled men struck out of sympathy for the laborers, who demand an increase in wages of 15 cents a day. Though grievances are so far confined to the laborers, officials of the firms anticipate that the skilled employes will soon present demands for salary increases.

After a conference that lasted for two days, the committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and the officials of the American Tin Plate company reached an agreement. The mills at Pittsburg, Pa., will now be in operation uninterruptedly during the summer months, when the scale of wages is formulated. This, it is declared, means practically a continuous scale, preventing the mills of the American Tin Plate company from closing and renders a strike impossible.

San Francisco street railway men won their strike, gaining these points: A flat rate of 25 cents an hour; a 10-hour work day, to be completed within fourteen hours; 30 cents an hour for overtime; the reinstatement of the men discharged by Manager Vining because they joined or were promoting the union; the abolition of Manager Vining's iniquitous spy system; the abolition of the burdensome insurance system; the privilege of employes riding on their badges on the division on which they have their runs; employes not to be marked on their runs oftener than one day in ten, unless by previous agreement; a practical, if not a specific recognition of the union, and a pledge that there shall be no discrimination.

The American Flint Glassworkers' union may take a step in the annual convention to be held in Wheeling in July that may be but the first in a general movement for the ownership and control of mills and factories by national and international labor organizations. It is proposed, on account of the impending strike in the chimney branch of the trade, to use the money which would be paid out in strike benefits, in erecting factories to give employment to the strikers. The suggestion is the outgrowth of the threatened trouble with the chimney trust. The possibilities which it unfolds are limitless, and they might well claim the attention of students of economic conditions. The new scale of the A. F. G. W. U. for the chimney branch does not go into effect until Sept. 10, but a fight seems inevitable and both sides are preparing.

Important Change of Time.

IN COPPER DISTRICT

Reduction of Calumet & Hecla Dividend and the Cause.

Output of Mines This Year About 200,000,000 Pounds.

Vast Amount of Lake Capital Going Into Western Mines.

Houghton, Mich., May 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The reduction of the Calumet & Hecla's dividend to the old basis of $5 per share quarterly has proven a sad surprise to many of the shareholders, who had grown to consider $40 to $60 per year the proper return, but the cut in dividend rate is not at all surprising to the people who have kept posted on the trend of events in the copper trade. Copper is now selling on the basis of about 12 cents per pound for lake ingots and wire bars, f.o.b. Atlantic coast points. This price means that the lake mines are not netting much more money per pound at present than they were making seven years ago when copper touched the low-record price of 9 cents, owing to the very great increase in wages, supplies of all sort, machinery and building material. Only the best mines can make money at present prices for their product. The American copper mine that is now earning a good profit is necessarily rich in mineral resources, well opened, well equipped and well managed. Given a continuance of 12 cent copper and the Wolverine is the only lake mine that can maintain its former dividend rate, and in the case of that mine an increase of about 60 per cent in output, to follow the completion of the new mill, will aid greatly in holding profit disbursements to the former standard. It is difficult to see where the Tamarack and Osceola mines will be able to secure money for dividends this year, without seriously impairing their surplus funds, although both mines should earn profits this year. The present financial situation of both mines is due directly to the sadly mistaken plan of holding last season's copper, or the larger portion of it, to "steady the market." Both mines paid dividends that were not earned last season. The Osceola management has been most severely criticized, and while much of the censure is deserved, some misleading statements have crept into print. The Osceola is not a played-out mine, as Eastern investors seem to fear. The mine and its equipment were never before in anything like as good shape as at present. The local management is excellent, and the results secured at the new mill are much the best known in the district, the percentage of copper lost in the talings being less than one-tenth of 1 per cent, or about half the previous low record. It is an injustice to Capt. Parnall and his assistants in the direct management of the mine that they should be censured for a mistake in the financial policy of the company for which they were in nowise responsible.

The 1902 production of the lake mines should fall but a trifle short of 200,000,000 pounds, or more than one-third greater than in 1900. The new mines and new mills are getting into line as producers, and while it will take ten years for some of the new mines to grow to their full stature, their production is already a factor of importance in the output of the district.

The strike at the Mass mine has been settled, the men getting their wages restored to the old basis. The wage question is a serious one, and is giving rise to a great deal of anxious thought on the part of the mine managements. It is hard to see how the mining companies can maintain the present wages, and on the other hand, it is difficult to see how a reduction can be made without incurring hardships to employes and producing much friction, with unpleasant consequences for all concerned. The miners aver, and with reason, that the cost of living has advanced to nearly or quite the same extent as the advance in wages, consequently a reduction now would put them in worse case than they were during the period of business depression, from 1893 to 1897. There are no labor unions among the miners, and neither workmen nor employers are anxious to have such unions gain a foothold in the district, but a reduction in wages would almost certainly result in attempts to unionize the mine labor. The problem is one that has a variety of sides, and its solution is not yet in sight.

A vast amount of capital from the lake district has been invested in Western mines in the past few years. One Arizona property alone has stock to the market value of nearly $5,000,000 held in Calumet alone. Houghton county investors own a big interest in the wonderful new camp at Tonopah, Nevada, and other mines in practically every Western mining state and in British Columbia are controlled by local capital.

The mines that are building new mills are experiencing the same delays in shipments of machinery and structural steel that have caused so much trouble in the past three years. No matter what may be the situation in copper, it is certain that the iron and steel trades are still blockaded with orders.

The Baltic is getting a better return from its rock than last year. The Baltic secured only seventeen pounds of copper per ton of rock stamped during its first year's production, but has gained steadily in each of the two following years, and should eventually turn out about the same percentage as the Quincy. The Champion mine, which is the other end of the Copper Range Consolidated, is making about thirty-five pounds per ton; and the Trimountain is doing about the same. The ultimate consolidation of the Baltic, Trimountain and Champion is the logical end of these mines, and such a merging, while it may be delayed, is probable to come in time. The consolidation of these three mines would make one property that within a very short time would rank second only to the Calumet & Hecla as a producer in the lake field.

The projected mill of the Phoenix will be the smallest in the district. It will have but a single stamp, with jigs and tables to handle the crushed rock from one head. The old Wolverine mill will furnish the machinery, and as Eagle River is to furnish the power for operation, the Phoenix mill will not only be very cheap in cost, but will give very low operating expenses. It is the expectation of the management that the old Phoenix mine proper will be reopened eventually, which will give three fissure veins to mine from, as the Garden City and St. Clair fissures are already working.

The assessment of $2 per share levied this week on Michigan was anticipated. The Michigan has expended much less money than the average new mine of the district, and the present showing is highly pleasing.

The assessment just called on Victoria will be used to build a mill. The Victoria has been managed with great prudence and economy, and it is the opinion of the management, which is composed of conservative men, that the mine has no wreached a stage of development where its future is reasonably certain, and that a stamp mill is warranted by the present showing.

Despite a popular impression to the contrary, presumably caused by the recent sale of heavy machinery to the Trimountain, the Arcadian mine is not being stripped or abandoned. The northernmost shafts, which were never successful, are being despoiled of their machinery, which was of no particular use where it stood, but the southernmost shafts on the Douglass end of the mine, are in commission, and it has been evident for some time past that it is this end of the Arcadian that offers the best prospects of future development.

The Isle Royale is making a larger return of copper under the stamps than was secured last year. The openings on the Portage lode are giving more metal than was secured per fathom of ground stoped in the Isle Royale bed, and the southern openings from No. 2 shaft are decidedly better than the ground to the north. The "dead work' at the Isle Royale is nearing an end and the present year's operations should make a much more satisfactory showing than was secured in 1901.

HORACE J. STEVENS.

HOW TO MAKE A MILLION

chased. I didn't say a word about what I was up to until I had 300,000 shares, a majority of the stock.

"They thought I was going to call the stock. If I had done so the customers of this house would have made a lot of money. I told them it was not policy to make money that way. I said that a healthy market requires short sellers, and if any of them wanted to borrow the stock to cover let them have it.

"I don't need money bad enough to ruin any one.

"They said I was trying to hurt Mr. Belmont. I wasn't fighting Mr. Belmont at all. I had never met him. Some of the people I knew said they would like to have me meet him, and that they would bring him over. I said that it wasn't necessary, that I would go to his office, and I did. I found him a very pleasant gentleman, and I am very glad to have the privilege of knowing him. I told him just what I was trying to do. I told him that I didn't want any place in the company, and that, whatever was done with the Louisville & Nashville. I would like to see him have a prominent place in its affairs. There has been no disagreement between us and I don't think there ever will be."

"What is the outlook in the market?"

"Things are going up. The standard stocks will show an advance of 10 or 20 points in the next three months. I don't think there will be a big speculative boom. I hope there won't be, anyway, for that always brings disaster in its wake. Over-speculation is as bad as under speculation. There has got to be a certain amount of speculation to establish prices."

"What do you think about gambling, Mr. Gates?"

I always like to get opinions from experts. He smiled quizzically and answered slowly:

"I am not opposed to gambling. I have bet on horses and played cards ever since I was 14, and I suppose I will keep it up if I live to be a hundred. But I never gamble beyond my means. I never made a bet that I was not able to pay if I lost without crippling myself.

"I like to bet on a horse race and I like to play poker. I don't think that people have any right to criticise me for it."

"How do you think you stand on your gambling?"

"About one-tenth of one per cent of the amount that the newspapers have declared I have won and lost. I should say that was about right."

I made a rapid calculation and decided that Mr. Gates had won and lost $1,322,000.

"I never gambled as heavily as people say I do. I play a little poker, but I would rather play whist. Bridge whist is my favorite game. I play it nearly ever night for a cent a point. If I am lucky I win $5 or $6 a night. If I am not lucky I lose that much."

Mr. Gates looked virtuous and calm. I looked convinced as I thought of the times when he made the plungers on the English race track gap with amazement, when he paralyzed Paris with his baccarat playing, and when he made Monte Carlo sit up and take notice. I also recalled certain games of poker with Joe Leiter and with some of the steel trust magnates. There was one little game that began in Europe and ended in Chicago, in which more than half a million dollars changed hands. I think it is true that Mr. Gates likes to play a little poker.

"What dou you think of the beef trust?" I asked in order to get my breath and a little time to recover from the shock of bridge whist at a penny a point.

"Don't think there is any," said Mr. Gates, promptly. "There's a scarcity of cattle to begin with, and corn in Kansas City is worth a cent and a quarter a pound. Manhattan wants the best there is, and the best in beef is corn-fed cattle. That is all there is to it. I happen to know Mr. Armour, Mr. Swift and Mr. Morris, and I don't believe they speak to each other once in three months. I know they bid against each other in the Chicago markets. There may be some sort of an agreement between them, but there is not anything like a trust."

"Do you think you could beat Mr. Morgan playing golf?" I went on. I was still pretty groggy, you know.

"Well, I think I could," said Mr. Gates, with a smile.

"And could you beat Mr. Schwab with your automobile?"

"No; he has a better machine than mine."

"Mr. Gates," I said, firmly, "what are you in the Wall street game for? What do you want out of it?"

"Fun."

"Do you want more money?"

"I have a little more than I can spend now."

"Do you want power?"

"No. I would rather be a high private. I don't want to be in a position where any one can criticise me if it pleases me to go hunting, to play golf or to run over to Europe. I play the Wall street game because it amuses me. Golf and hunting, horse races and poker and things like that are pleasant recreations, but when I really went the finest amusement in the world I get in the Wall street game. The greater part of the time I put in from six to sixteen hours a day—often sixteen than six—at it, and enjoy every minute of it. I have always been a hard worker, and I cannot be comfortable for long without working. I never feel the need of rest, although a change is grateful sometimes.

"I am in Wall street because I like it better than anything else, because it gives me more satisfaction than any other game, and not because I want to make a lot of millions or obtain great power or satisfy a huge ambition. I am in Wall street for fun, but I never found that there was any fun in losing a whole lot of money."

MET AWFUL DEATH

Aeronaut Severo Killed In a Shocking Manner.

Not a Bone In His Body Was Left Unfractured.

Paris, May 12.—The death of Senor Severo, the Brazilian aeronaut, who, with an assistant, was killed this morning by the explosion of his airship La Paix, in which he was making a trial trip, created terrible consternation.

Senor Severo had invited a number of friends to witness the ascension; and his wife and a number of relatives were following the course of the balloon in motor cars. Suddenly the spectators were horrified by a bright flash of light, followed by a loud explosion. The balloon, which at this time was 1500 feet above the ground, fell rapidly, landing on the roof of a house.

The aeronaut fell into the avenue Du Marne, and was dashed to pieces. The bones of his legs were forced through the soles of his boots. The engineer who accompanied him burned to death. The accident is said to have been caused by a leakage of gas. Senor Severo started with the intention of sailing to the military parade ground, at Isy, and a large number of friends and relatives were proceeding in the direction of the village, situated five miles southwest of Paris. With an engineer named Sachet, Severo sailed out of his balloon house, near the Boulevard de Vaugirard, at 5:30 a. m., in excellent spirits and full of confidence. The aeronaut put his airship through a series of evolutions before starting in the direction of Isy. There seemed to be some hitch with the steering gear, and the rear propelling screw turned with difficulty. Nevertheless after several stoppages, the airship sailed off, moving steadily enough through a light breeze. Suddenly a puff of wind caught the ship and whirled it over the Avenue du Marne. The ship turned completely around and veered about in a fashion showing that control of her had been lost.

Then from the center of the outer envelope a tongue of flame darted out. This was followed by a loud report, resembling a cannon shot and the ship sank like a stone, falling on the roof of a house, thence into some trees, and finally reaching the Avenue du Marne almost on top of its occupants, who had previously been precipitated to the stone pavement. The fearfully mangled corpses of Severo and Sachet were conveyed to a neighboring police station. The bodies presented a horrible spectacle, especially that of Sachet. The flame which caused the explosion burned the engineer in a most shocking manner. Practically not a bone of either victim was left unfractured, and both skulls were terribly crushed.

THEIR HOURS TOO LONG

Flour Mill Employes Who Are Working Ten to Twelve Hours a Day Appeal to Employers For Less Labor.

Minneapolis, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Flour Mill Employes' union held a lengthy meeting yesterday afternoon, when a report was received from the committee of ten appointed some time ago to take up the matter of shorter working hours with the employers.

The men represented by this union are what in the craft are known as "trick" men, being all others than nailers, packers and loaders, who have their own organization. None of these men works less than ten hours a day, and the majority twelve hours. They have felt that these hours are too long, and for the purpose of securing a more satisfactory adjustment, the committee was appointed to confer with the employers. The matter was taken up in the form of a request and not a demand. The report received yesterday was not the most promising, and the committee will continue its deliberations.

"We are not threatening to strike," said one of the officers of the union yesterday. "We have opened overtures with our employers at the dull season, so that it could not be said we were taking advantage of them. I believe that many of them appreciate that we are working very long hours; in fact, several of them are members of the Eight Hour league.

"We are seeking an 8-hour day at the present scale of wages, which, of course, would be a great shortening of the day for the men who work twelve hours. According to the report received from our committee, the employers do not feel that they can afford to make such a reduction in hours. The matter has been taken up in the most friendly spirit and there are no signs of hostility. We shall continue to press the matter, and hope ultimately that we shall be successful."

TO BE TRIED AT LAST

After Remaining In the County Jail For Eighteen Months, A. George de Essauer Will Be Tried For Forgery.

Chicago, May 12.—After a sojourn of more than eighteen months in the county jail, A. George d'Essauer, under indictment on charges of embezzlement and forgery, will be called for trial today before Judge Bretano.

D'Essauer is accused specifically in one indictment of embezzling $8000—the proceeds of a note secured by bonds which belonged to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Eliza J. Harvey, of Evanston.

He is also charged with the forgery of indorsements on notes and bonds which involve $50,000 according to the statement of Assistant States Attorney Barnes, who will prosecute him. William W. Van Nortwick and J. S. Van Nortwick, of Appleton, Wis., both heirs of Mrs. Harvey and who are said to have suffered by the alleged forgery, will be witnesses. D'Essauer escaped to Europe, was pursued, fled back to America and was arrested in New Orleans. He has been arraigned for trial several times, but his cases were continued at his own request.

ATTACKED WITHOUT NOTICE

New York, May 12.—Great carnage was wrought at Carupano, the Venezuelan seaport town which was attacked, says the Port of Spain, Trinidad, correspondent of the Herald, by land and sea on May 6 by government troops and gunboats, without twenty-four hours' notice having been given to non-combatants could leave the town.

Foreigners in Carupano are without assistance from their respective governments, notwithstanding their appeals. Many women and children were killed.

ADAM AND EVE STORY A MYTH

New York, May 12.—Rev. Adolph Roeder, pastor of the new church (Swedenborgian) of Orange, N. J., has taken a severely practical stand on the Adam and Eve question.

He said: "Adam is simply the Hebrew word for man, and the word "Chevvan," or "Eve," is the Hebrew word or symbol for life. The story of Adam and Eve is the story of intellectual manhood, and of the creation of the life forces which God has implanted, and by which he controls the destiny of the race."

SINGLE WOMEN NOT WANTED

New York, May 12.—Miss Belitza M. Hull, of New Haven, Conn., who is teaching school under government auspices in the Philippines writes home, says a special to the World that she hopes the government will not appoint unmarried women to places as teachers in the future, or if it must appoint them, that they will be sent to the cities. "The provinces are no place for unmarried women," she says, and adds:

"Next to the folly of coming out here unmarried is that of getting married here as many of the women teachers are doing."

REVOLUTION

On the Point of Breaking Out at Hayti.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, May 12.—The report that a revolution is on the point of breaking out here as a result of the recent resignation of President Sam and the questions arising from the choice of his successor, is now confirmed. Three parties have taken up arms and they are all ready to begin hostilities. Gen. Leconte is supported by the military element; Gen. Vilbrun, the minister of war, has the sympathy of the former president, Gen. Sam and Gen. Saint Folx Colin. The latter favors the resignation of congress which is to assemble today and elect a successor to President Sam.

STRIKE AT DENVER.

Denver, May 12.—Eight hundred men are now on strike in Denver. Six large unions are involved and the trouble shows signs of spreading. The lumber yards, woodworking mills and the livery stables are completely tied up, while many bakeries are practically closed, owing to the strike of bakers which began yesterday.

The odganizations on strike, with the number of men out are as follows: Woodworkers, 300; lumbermen, 150; stablemen, 130; bakers, 110; machinists, 65; team drivers, 25. There is a further possibility that the grocery clerks will be drawn to the support of the union bakers if the retail grocers attempt to handle "unfair" bread.

HILL IS INVITED.

Chicago, May 12.—David Bennett Hill, of New York, has been asked to be the guest of honor at the annual picnic of the Cook county Democracy, June 7. Mayor Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, has accepted an invitation to be present.

ON THE RORAIMA.

Casualties on Board the Quebec Company's Steamer.

New York, May 12.—A. E. Outerbridge, of the Quebec Steamship company, whose steamer Roraima was lost in the bay of St. Pierre, Martinique, received the following cablegram from Dominica today: "Chief officer and assistant purser taken by Korona at Fort de France. Engineer Morris and names cabled Saturday are left in hospital in Fort de France seriously injured. Mugga and Braun and all others dead. Mugga was captain of the Roraima. Others members of the crew. The message received by Mr. Outerbridge Saturday was as follows:

"Survivors Roraima on Korona: First Officer Scott and Assistant Purser Thompson, in hospital at Fort de France, Morley, second officer; Thompson, third officer; Moore, Evans, second engineer; Beson, carpenter; Mayer, second steward; Leady, messman; quartermaster; Mrs. Reid, stewardess; three sailors."

Both messages came from R. M. Gordon & Co., the company's agents in Dominica.

The following cablegram to Charles Van Romondt, of this city, was received today from Joseph Duvallon, dated Fort de France: "St. Pierre totally destroyed. The families Devers and Girard also. Entire city with inhabitants buried up. Provisions at Fort de France requisitioned by the government. Madame and Mlle. De Furgy saved."

Mayor Low gave out a statement today in which he said: "The appalling calamity at Martinique and in the neighboring islands makes an appeal to the generosity of New York which I am sure will not be disregarded. It is hoped that New York will maintain its old time reputation for liberal giving."

RACE WAR

Is Making Things Lively at Braggs, Indian Territory.

Muskogee, I. T., May 12.—A race war is on at Braggs, twenty miles east of Muskogee. Five negroes and one white man have been shot and stabbed. Seventy-five negroes attempted to wipe out the white settlement of fifteen families near Braggs, which is one of the worst districts in the Indian Territory. The whites have applied to the United States marshal for protection and have been instructed to arm and protect themselves.

TO DEDICATE

Helen Gould Building at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

New York, May 12.—Preparations are being made by the sailors and marines of the Brooklyn navy yard for the dedication on Thursday next of the $100,000 Y. M. C. A. building erected by Miss Helen Gould. Ex-Secretary of the Navy John D. Long will make an address. Miss Gould will also speak. President Roosevelt has been invited but it is not likely he will be able to attend.

TEN THOUSAND

Londoners Take Part In Anti-Corn Demonstration.

New York, May 12.—About ten thousand people took part in an anti-corn demonstration which has just ben held at Hyde Park, says the London corespondent of the Tribune. Numbers of trade unions and friendly societies marched from all parts of London to the park. Banners were borne with inscriptions such as "No protection" and "Down with the bread tax."

A resolution denouncing the government for imposing the tax was carried with tremendous enthusiasm. A large force of police was present, but the proceedings were quite orderly.

INCENDIARY

Fire Under Mill Warehouse at Fergus Falls.

St. Paul, May 12.—A special to the Dispatch from Fergus Falls, Minn., says: Fire was discovered underneath a warehouse belonging to the Fergus Flour Mills company last night, but the department extinguished it before much damage was done. The fire was of incendiary origin, and an attempt was made to burn a box car in the same locality two days ago.

ITALIANS STRIKE.

Chicago, May 12.—One thousand Italian laborers, employed in track elevation work for the Chicago & Northwestern struck today. Some of the men have been receiving $1.65 a day; and the rest who have been receiving $1.50 struck for 15 cents additional. The men are not organized.

NOT A SOUL FOUND ALIVE AT ST. PIERRE

A Fearful Scene of Death and Devastation Greeted the Searchers at the Buried City.

Many of the Victims Met Death as If By a Lightning Stroke---Darkness Adds to the Horror.

New York, May 12.—Successful attempts have been made to reach St. Pierre, says a London dispatch to the Tribune. Cabling from St. Lucia, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says the town is a heap of ruins, and dead bodies are lying all around. Few ever will be recognized, so great are the mutilation and distortion.

Search parties have found 3000 charred corpses on the site of the cathedral. All appear to have been asphyxiated at first. Not a soul was found alive in the whole town. Describing the destruction of the island city, the correspondent says that last Monday Mount Pelee poured forth a stream of molten lava twenty feet high and half a mile wide. Its progress was appalling. Rushing down the dry bed of Riviere Blanche, it reached the sea. The force of the impact was such that the sea receded for 360 feet for miles along the western coast. Loud detonations followed at irregular intervals, absolutely awe-inspiring, and so loud that they were heard 300 miles away. At night the volcano crater was a mass of lurid flames which shot high up over the mountain, while all the time the cannonading went on. It continued at intervals on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Thursday morning it was relatively still. St. Pierre was, as usual, early astir, and business was partly going on about 7 o'clock when a sort of whirlwind of steam, boiling mud and fire suddenly swept with incredible rapidity over the city and roadstead. At once the town was in a blaze. The fire seemed to run over all. The ships were instantly canted over and began simultaneously to burn and sink in the sea, which was then a raging cauldron. The whole destruction had taken place within less than twenty minutes of the eruption.

SCENES OF HORROR

Greeted View of Rescuers at St. Pierre.

Fort de France, Island of Martinique, Sunday, May 11.—Several steamers, including the government vessel Rubis, started from here yesterday for St. Pierre. They had on board a government delegate, a number of gendarmes, a detachment of regular infantry and several priests. The vessels also carried a quantity of firewood, petroleum and quicklime, for use in the cremation of the bodies of the victims of the terrible volcanic outbreak of Thursday last. Large quantities of disinfectants and stocks of clothing for the refugees were also shipped to St. Pierre. The refugees had, as a rule, assembled at Le Carbet and Case Pilote, not far from St. Pierre, and it is reported over 1000 of them have died since the fearful stream of lava poured down Mont Pelee.

The sea for miles round was covered with the wreckage of the vessels sunk off St. Pierre at the time of the disaster, and ashore only a few trees, all bent seaward by the force of the volcanic eruption, were left standing. When nearing St. Pierre the Rubis met a number of tugs towing lighters filled with refugees.

The heat from the smoking, lava-covered ruins at St. Pierre, was suffocating, and the stench from the corpse-strewn streets was awful. Only a few walls were standing. The report that the hospital clock was found intact with its hands stoped at 7:50, was confirmed, as was the statement that the offices of the cable company had entirely disappeared.

On all sides were found portions of corpses, which were gathered up by the soldiers and gendarmes and burned on one of the public squares.

Not a drop of water was procurable ashore. The darkness caused by the clouds of volcanic dust shrouded the town and continuous rumbling added to the horror of the scene.

The fort and central quarters of the town were razed to the ground and were replaced by beds of hot cinders.

The iron grillwork alone of the government offices was standing. There was no trace of the streets. Huge heaps of smoking ashes were to be seen on all sides.

At the landing place some burned and ruined walls indicated the spot where the custom house formerly stood, and traces of the larger shops could be seen. In that neighborhood hundreds of corpses were found lying in all kinds of attitudes, showing that the victims had met death as if by a lightning stroke. Every vestige of clothing was burned away from the charred bodies, and in many cases the abdomens had been burst open by the intense heat. Curiously enough the features of the dead were generally calm and repose-ful, although in some cases terrible fright and agony were depicted. Grim piles of bodies were stacked everywhere, showing that death had stricken them while crowds were vainly seeking escape from the fiery deluge. On one spot a group of nine children were found locked in each other's arms.

The vaults of the Bank of Martinique, at the head of what had been the Rue de L'Hopital, were found intact. They contained 2,000,000 francs in specie.

The vaults of the government treasury are now being searched in the hope that a large amount of money and other valuables deposited by the principal merchants of the city may be saved.

Nearly 4000 of the refugees from the vicinity of the village of Le Precheur, a suburb village to the north of St. Pierre, were rescued by the French cruiser Suchet, and the cable repair ship Pouyer Quertier and were brought here.

As a result of his inspection, the commander of the Suchet reports that crevices and valeys are constanly forming in the northern portion of the island, where the land is in a state of perpetual change. Fortunately that part of the country was evacuated in good time by the inhabitants, who fled to Fort de France.

Lava continues to stream down the mountain side, accompanied by terrific thunder and lightning.

The dearth of provisions is beginning to be felt throughout the island. Numerous families are completely ruined and even shelterless, while the means at the disposal of the authorities are much too inadequate to cope with the distress.

Communication is practically cut off from all the surrounding islands, except by stray vessels, which are seized upon by the inhabitants to flee from Martinique.

RUSHED TO CATHEDRAL.

Stricken People Attempted to Find a Holy Refuge.

New York, May 12.—Relief parties have ventured into the streets of St. Pierre, says a Castries, St. Lucia, dispatch to the Herald. It was not expected that survivors would be found, and so there has been no disappointment at the mournful reports that have been returned.

Piles of dead in the vicinity of the site of the cathedral tell a story of the attempt to find a sanctuary and refuge in the great structure of worship. Men and women panic stricken at the cataclysm turned in the moment of their despair to the cathedral, and were, apparently, overcome before they could reach its doors.

So far the search has been hindered by the fires that are still raging, and the investigators are in great danger. From the positions of the bodies the opinion is formed that many were overcome almost before they realized the extent of the peril. Many of the bodies are in lifelike positions, as though death had come with a breath, as indeed may have been the case.

Steps have been taken to prevent disease from resulting from the disaster. Burial parties are working night and day, but it is impossible that the dead can be cared for as their friends would wish.

Military rule is established in the town to prevent vandals from working. Such property as has not been destroyed will be protected. One of the great misfortunes arises from the fact that the storehouses of provisions have been swept out of existence.

CONSUL IS DEAD.

American Representative and Family Lost In Disaster.

Washington, May 12.—Secretary Hay has received the following cablegram, dated May 11, from United States Consul Ayme, at Guadaloupe, who went to Fort de France, Martinique, by instructions from this government:

"The disaster is complete. The city is wiped out. Consul Prentis and his family are dead. Governor says 30,000 have perished and 50,000 are homeless and hungry. He suggests that the Red Cross be asked to send codfish, flour, beans, rice, salt meats and biscuits as quickly as possible. Visits of war vessels valuable. The navy department this morning was informed of the departure of the cruiser Cincinnati from San Domingo city for Martinique.

An important feature of Consul Aymes' cablegram is the reference by him to "the governor" as an authority for the estimate of the loss of life. Preceding dispatches, including the official messages received at the French colonial office in Paris, reported there was no doubt that Governor Mouttet as well as Col. Dain, the military commander at St. Pierre, had perished. The navy department has been informed of the departure of the ocean-going tug Potomac from San Juan, Porto Rico, for Martinique. She probably will arrive there by tomorrow night.

Rome, May 12.—The pope today summoned the French ambassador to the Vatican, M. Nisard, and expressed to him his keen sorrow on hearing of the St. Pierre disaster. The pontiff requested that he be kept informed regarding the details of the volcanic outbreaks.

Wiesbaden, Province of Hesse-Nassau, Germany, May 12.—Emperor William has telegraphed to President Loubet in French as follows: "Profoundly moved by the news of the terrible catastophe which has just overtaken St. Pierre, and which has cost the lives of nearly as many persons as perished in Pompeii. I hasten to offer France my most sincere sympathy. May the Almighty comfort the hearts of those who weep for their irreparable losses. My ambassador will remit to your excellence the sum of 10,000 marks in my behalf as a contribution for the relief of the afflicted."

President Loubet replied: "Am greatly touched by the mark of sympathy which in this terrible misfortune which has fallen on France, your majesty has deigned to convey to me. I beg you to accept my warm thanks and also the gratitude of the victims whom you propose to succor."

New York, May 12.—A melancholy fact in connection with the death in the fiery outburst at St. Pierre of Customs Director De Surgys, whose sister, Mrs. Charles Van Romandt, resides here, is that Capt. De Surgys, of the French navy, is due in New York shortly on the battleship Gaulois, which is bearing to the United States the French commission which will attend at Washington the unveiling of the Rochambeau monument. Capt. De Surgys sailed from the other side before the news of the disaster arrived.

Paris, May 12.—King Edward has sent 5000 francs as his contribution to the sum being raised for the relief of the sufferers from the Martinique disaster.

The czar has telegraphed to President Loubet, expressing the sincere sympathy of himself and the czarina, who share with France the sorrow caused by the terrible West Indian catastrophe.

MORE TERRIBLE

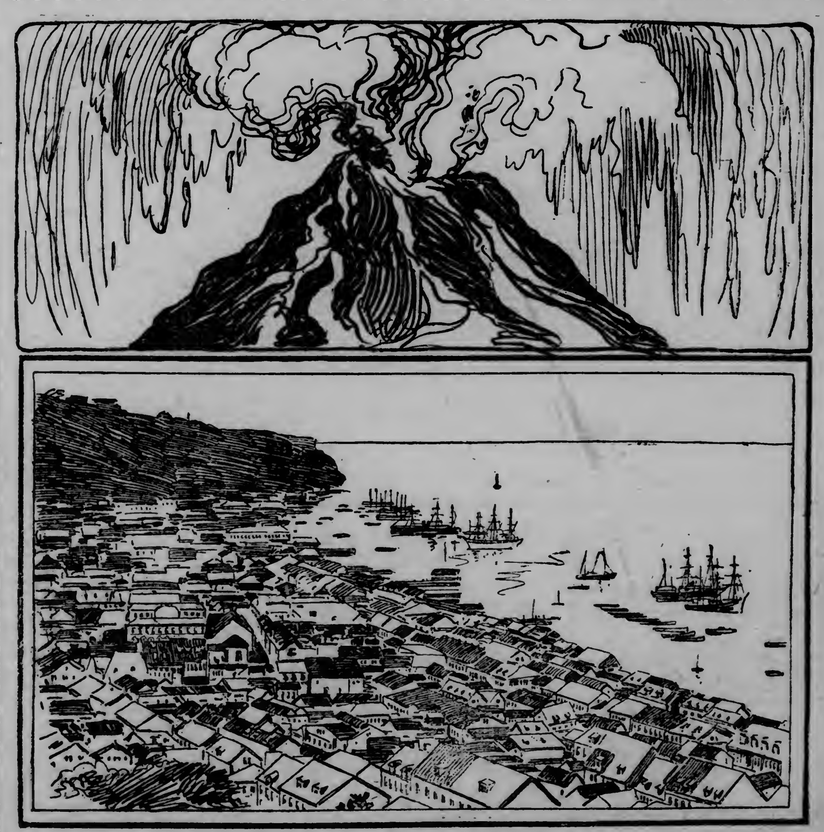
Is Martinique Disaster Than at First Reported.

London, May 12.—The colonial office received the following dispatch this afternoon from Administrator Bell, of the Island of Dominica, British West Indies:

"The Martinique catastrophe appears to be even more terrible than at first reported. Refugees arriving here this morning say that new craters are open in many directions; that rivers are overflowing and large areas in the north of the island are submerged. Other districts are crowded with survivors. Almost total darkness continues. I do not believe Guadaloupe can adequately relieve the stupendous distress."

BOUTELL RENOMINATED.

Chicago, May 12.—The Ninth district Republican congressional convention today renominated Congressman Henry S. Boutell by acclamation. In the Eighth district no candidate was named, as the district is regarded as solely Democratic.



ST. PIERRE, MARTINIQUE, WHICH HAS BEEN DESTROYED BY THE VOLCANO MONT PELEE.

The town of St. Pierre is the commercial center of the island of Martinique, which, with the neighboring island of Guadeloupe, forms the last of the French possessions in the West Indies. Martinique is about 350 miles southeast of Porto Rico. The island's greatest length is forty-three miles and the mean width is nineteen miles. A cluster of volcanic mountains in the north, a similar group in the south and a line of lower heights between them form the backbone of the island, which culminates in the northwest in Mont Pelee, which rises 4,430 feet above the level of the sea. The port of St. Pierre has only an open roadstead. The town has a population of about 25,000. The island has something more than 200,000 inhabitants and is nearly as densely populated as Belgium.

MAY VETO LICENSE

Mayor Hugo Expected to Disapprove of Joseph Sheehy's License.

A. H. Polinsky's Pawnbroker License May Suffer Same Fate.

W. H. Alexander May Have to Change His Office Location.

Mayor Hugo will probably veto the council resolution renewing Joseph Sheehy's employment agency license.

It is also probable that he will exercise the veto in connection with A. H. Polinsky's license as a pawn broker at 511 West Superior street.

The report that he would veto the employment agency license of W. H. Alexander is without foundation, especially in view of the fact that Mr. Alexander's license has not yet been passed upon by the council.

While the city authorities consider Mr. Alexander one of the most reliable employment agents in the city they consider his location too near a saloon and for that reason it is not likely that the council will allow the license unless a requisite change is made. However not one has anything to say against Mr. Alexander personally, or his method of conducting business. It is simply the announced policy of the council not to allow employment offices too near saloons.

The council did not have much to say in regard to Joseph Sheehy and Al Polinsky but the mayor probably will as there have been a number of complaints made about both men.

OUT STERN FIRST.

Iroquois Passes Through the Canal In That Way.

The force of the current setting in or out through the ship canal since the canal was widened was shown again yesterday when the steamer Iroquois was obliged to back out of the canal. Inasmuch as the Iroquois is supposed to have the strongest engines relatively of any craft that has ever entered Duluth ahrbor and handles with as much ease than any vessel that has entered the harbor, the strength of the current will be better understood. The Iroquois is said to have steered out of the Lake avenue slip bow first on leaving on her south shore trip last night. She had to circle around some scows at the mouth of the slip and the canal was occupied at the time with some dredge scows. She planned to go out head first, turn a sharp corner and cut through the canal. She behaved as she invariably does like a beauty until the strong current setting in through the canal got a good hold on her forward quarter. Then it was all off, and the captain with quick forethought simply eased her around and backed out into the lake.

The ancient mariner of the harbor says that this is the first time this has occurred for twenty-eight years. He recalls that in 1874 it used to be one of Capt. Barton Atkins' favorite maneuvers to start out of the harbor with his "palace steamer" Metropolis always stern first. The Metropolis was a sidewheeler, and probably did not have any too much power, as power is reckoned in these days. She never could head out of the Lake avenue slip, where she always landed, and continue out through the canal head first, so her master gave up trying and simply ran her out head first into the current of the canal, which would sweep the bow around and then gracefully back out where he would be out of the current.

In the case of the Iroquois, however, the experience was due to unusual conditions, and her action under the circumstances is commented upon as a fine piece of seamanship with a queen of a boat.

RIGHTED A SCOW.

Process Was Watched By Thousands From the City.

A gathering of tugs out in the lake just off the harbor yesterday afternoon caused much perturbation of mind in the community, and for a couple of hours the telephones in the office of the Union Towing and Wrecking company were jingled so constantly by anxious inquiries that Dispatcher Bennett hardly had time to sit down.

The cause of the excitement was the scow that was overturned in a storm a few days ago. The dredge tugs were taking advantage of the Sunday lay-over of the dredge work to turn the scow back in its proper position again. Six tugs worked most of the afternoon, and finally pulled the scow over, when it was towed back into the harbor again. After the scow turned turtle, drowning a scowman, it was towed into the harbor, and yesterday afternoon it was towed out into the lake to be righted. In its position it did not ride very smoothly, and two tugs traveled rather slowly with it.

Many people seeing the six tugs working on the scow, imagined that there had been a disaster of some sort, and hundreds called up the tug office to inquire about it.

MURPHY'S RECORD

Shows Half His Life Spent In Prison.

New York, May 12.—When Henry Murphy, alias "Bob" Suffrage, is arraigned today in Brooklyn on a charge of grand larceny, Police Capt. Reynolds will submit a statement of Murphy's career, which alleges, despite the fact that he is only 36 years old, half of his life has been spent in prison, and that his entire gains through robberies of which he has been convicted was only $1750, or less than $100 a year. Murphy is now charged with snatching $370 in a bank and is liable to ten years more in prison.

MINERS RESPOND

Mitchell's Temporary Strike Order Obeyed to the Letter.

One Hundred and Forty Thousand Men Quit Work.

Are Electing Delegates to Big Convention on Wednesday.

Scranton, Pa., May 12—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers stated this morning that the tie-up in the three anthracite districts is complete. Approximately 140,000 men and boys are idle, of which number only half are in the Lackawanna and Wyoming region. In every instance, Mr. Mitchell said, the order to suspend operations had been obeyed. About 20,000 mine workers are out in the Lehigh district, and 50,000 in the Schulykill field.

An official of the Delaware, Laskawanna & Western Railroad company said today that that corporation had no intention of resorting to a lockout. Continuing, he said: "We do not intend to irritate the men and the other companies are of the same mind. Nothing will be done until after Wednesday. The situation is now in the hands of the miners. After Wednesday it will be in our hands.

"We appreciate the fact that John Mitchell does not want a strike. Neither do the companies, despite what has been said to the contrary. While we do not want a fight, we will give the men all the fight they desire if they decide that there is to be one."

From the same source comes the announcement that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company has stopped selling coal. Not a carload has been shipped since Saturday morning. Any order must now be approved by the head of the coal department before being filled. The other companies have taken similar action, and it is believed a coal famine will speedily result if the suspension is made permanent on Wednesday. The election of instructed delegates is in progress today, and will continue tonight and tomorrow. Mr. Mitchell went to Wilkesbarre last night but he says there was no significance in the trip.

The Diamond and Bellevue coal washeries owned by the Lackawanna company are working. They turn out 1700 tons of washed culm daily when all of the sixty men are at work, but they are working short-handed today. With this exception, every coal operation in the region is idle.

There was no gathering of mine workers about any of the operations, the miners and boys simply staying away and preparing for their local meeting this afternoon for the election of delegates to the Hazelton convention. A number of locals met this morning and instructed their delegates to favor a strike. But despite this action there is a growing belief that this district will be considerably divided on the strike issue.

Neither President Mitchell nor the officers of District No. 1 will express any opinion today regarding what may be determined at Hazelton.

Tamaqua, Pa., May 12.—Of the 7000 men employed by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, in the Panther Creek valley, less than a score reported for duty today. At the No. 4 breaker the picker boys went to work as usual, and the breaker is now cleaning the coal which was mined on Saturday. No effort has been made to force the boys to quit work. During the strike of 1900 the Panther Creek valley men remained at work, and up to the time the whistles blew this morning the company expressed the belief that a sufficient number of men to operate the collieries would report for duty.

This afternoon the various locals of the United Mine Workers will hold special meetings and elect delegates to attend the convention on Wednesday. The delegates will be instructed to vote for a strike unless concessions are granted in the meantime.

Pottsville, Pa., May 12.—From the Panther Creek valley, in the extreme east of this coal basin, to Williamstown in the west, and from the Mahanoy and Shenandoah valleys comes the same story of idleness at the hundreds of collieries, in obedience to the order of National President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers of America. Meetings will be held today and tomorrow by the locals to instruct delegates to the Hazelton convention, and the sentiment of opinion at this time is favorable to a strike.

Nothing of an exciting nature was reported, and the augmented police force was not called upon for any special duty.

Shamokin, Pa., May 12.—The forty-five collieries in the Ninth mining district were completely tied up this morning by the 20,655 employes, excluding bosses, firemen, engineers and pumpmen, enforcing the three days' suspension order by the Scranton convention. Two-thirds of the collieries are in the vicinity of this place, and are owned principally by the Philadelphia & Reading, Pennsylvania and Lehigh Coal companies. While all of the colliery whistles were blown, the men kept away from the operations. There were no disturbances. Miners will be addressed in numerous sections of the district today by their leaders, who will explain all that occurred at the New York and Scranton meetings. Afterward the "locals" will meet to elect delegates and instruct them whether to vote for or against a strike at the Hazelton convention.

Hazelton, Pa., May 12.—Mining operations in this portion of the seventh district are completely suspended today. The whistles at many of the collieries were sounded this morning as usual but not a signal for the men to come to work, for none of the companies made an effort to start up their collieries, appreciating the fact that the strength of the union was such that the attempt would be futile. The only class of employes at work are the firemen, the engineers, the pump runners, a small number of non-union repairmen and clay stripping hands who have no connections with the miners.

Coal company officials refuse to say whether they will make a move for a resumption on Thursday in case Wednesday's convention declares in favor of the continuation of the strike. Sunday quiet reigns through the district.

Reading, Pa., May 12.—The coal shortage is already apparent here. Coal dealers were besieged all of Sunday by customers, and they say that they have more orders than they can fill in a month, even with the mine running. On an average the Philadelphia & Reading railroad transports through this city about 1600 cars of anthracite coal daily. This does not include what is carried West, via Newbury. To handle this traffic required a large number of engines, all of which will be thrown out of service. Besides the main line coal train crews, it will affect many of the shifting crews all along the line.

Mahanoy plane will be thrown out of service, and with few exceptions all the crews employed at Palto Alto, Cresson, Gordon and Shamokin will be put on shorter hours.

New York, May 12.—There will be a coal operators' meeting today and the question of arbitration may come up. It is possible that J. P. Morgan may be heard from by that time. Still, the opinion is that the operators will maintain their stand. Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the National Civic federation, has left the city on a secret mission from which he is expected to return today.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 12.—Every mine in the Wyoming valley is idle this morning and the tie-up is complete. The only employes reporting for work were the engineers, firemen and pump runners.

Burns, cuts and other wounds often become troublesome sores. Even where delay has aggravated such injuries DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve effects a cure. Cures all skin diseases. Piles yield to it at once. Max Wirth.

CASS COUNTY

To Vote on Bonding Propositions on Wednesday Next.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—On Wednesday next the voters of Cass county will vote on two propositions to bond the county, involving a total of $60,000. One proposition is to bond the county in the sum of $30,000 for the erection of a new court house at Walker the other proposition being to bond in the sum of $30,000 for roads and bridges. A red-hot campaign has been put up by the people of Walker in favor of the bonds, while some quiet but very effective work has been done by those opposed to bonding the county at the present time. Those in favor of the bonds argue that the present court house at Walker is entirely inadequate, is not fire-proof and an unsafe place in which to keep the records of the county. Those opposed to bonds state that the present court house, with its fire-proof vault, is all that the county requires at this time, and that the issuing of bonds in $30,000 would be but a started for a much larger expenditure, more than the taxpayers will tolerate. A careful and unprejudiced forecast of the result of the election, made by those who have been among the voters in different parts of the county, indicates that the bonds will, in both cases, be defeated, the court house proposition by a vote of 2 to 1, and the road and bridge fund by a small majority.

MITCHELL THE MAN

City Attorney Said to Be Morris Candidate For Congress.

No Doubt That Bede Will Not Have Clear Field.

Peculiar Feature Is That Both Men Are Gold Democrats.

It was reported Saturday afternoon that Oscar Mitchell had been decided upon as the candidate of the Morris organization for congress.

The rumor was well-defined, and it came from reliable sources, but it was evidently premature, because nobody in a position to possess the secrets of the Morris organization could be induced to discuss it.

Oscar Mitchell, who is city attorney of Duluth, has been frequently mentioned in this connection, and his name has been regarded as one of the most likely of those that had been discussed.

He is a man of enviable attainments and of solid worth, and his candidacy would find many supporters. It is said that his selection followed immediately upon the refusal of J. B. Cotton to become a candidate. It has been generally considered that J. Adam Bede would not be permitted by the Morris organization to have the field to himself and get his nomination by default. At the same time it has been recognized that if a candidate was to be brought forth to run against him it would have to be done soon, as every day was adding strength to the forces of Mr. Bede.

It would be a curious thing if the report should prove to be true, as both Mr. Bede and Mr. Mitchell were gold Democrats, and the fact that either of them was not a simon-pure Republican of long standing could hardly be brought up as a campaign issue.

"They cannot do anything that will shake J. Adam Bede loose from the situation," said a prominent Republican, who has committed himself to Bede, Saturday afternoon. "Mr. Mitchell is a strong man, and he has many friends in Duluth, but it is too late now to put anybody out that can beat Bede. In all parts of the district his strength is growing daily, and I do not believe he can be defeated now."

THE GRADES

Asked to Join In a Big Field Day May 31.

Every grade school in Duluth is asked to send a track team to represent it at a big juvenile field meet to be held in Oneota park on May 31.

It is the first time in the history of Duluth athletics that such an event has been held for grade schools, and it promises to be one of the most enthusiastic meetings in recent years.

It is estimated that about twenty schools will be represented. This will mean a big string of contestants in each event.

The program announced includes five events, including a 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, running broad jump, one-half mile run, and a one-mile relay by teams of six men from each school.

The contestants will be entered from the Seventh and Eighth grades, and medals will be given the winners. The entry fee is only 10 cents, the money derived from this source to be applied on the purchase of the medals.

The meet is promoted by J. G. Hamaker, physical director of the Young Men's Christian association. He has been training many of Duluth's young athletes all winter, and predicts some very interesting sport.

The idea is to have an annual track and field meet between the schools of the city in the interest of pure amateur sport and also to represent Duluth on the interscholastic field in later years. Briefly those back of the present movement are aiming to develop athletes, that will be heard from in later years.

The first even in the coming meet will be started promptly at 9 o'clock in the morning of May 31, and those entering can secure all necessary information at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

Scratch, scratch, scratch; unable to attend to business during the day or sleep during the night. Itching piles, horrible plague. Doan's Ointment cures. Never fails. At any drug store, 50 cents.

ONE COMES IN.

Globe Foundry Settles With the Striking Iron Molders.

The iron molders have won their strike so far as the Globe foundry is concerned.

C. F. Doherty, proprietor of the Globe works, this morning signed the union scale for a nine-hour working day at $3. This shop will be running full time with only union men by tomorrow morning.

On May 1 the molders at the Globe joined those from the National and Clyde foundries in a strike for a raise of from $2.75 to $3 a day and a reduction of working hours from ten to nine.

At the other shops there is no change reported in the strike situation. The molders are still out at the National Iron works and the molders and machinists are both out at the Clyde.

Acting on instructions from the Federated Trades' assembly a committee consisting of Leo Ewald, J. W. Richardson, William Moran, and Henry Pereault, held a conference with President Luster of the Clyde Iron works.

President Luster made a proposition to the effect that the Clyde would agree to take back the union machinists as soon as there was work for them and competent union men were obtainable and would not discriminate against either union or non-union men.

The machinists' union, on hearing the report of the committee, voted not to return to work at the Clyde until it was made a strictly union shop.

The matter stands there, the union men saying the next proposition is up to the Clyde people.

$100 Reward $100.

CERTAIN TO COME

E. D. Nelson of New Federal National Bank In the City.

There Is No Question of Establishment of the Bank.

Details as to Location, Local Stockholders, Etc., Not Settled.

E. D. Nelson, of Ironwood, Mich., who is at the head of the movement for organizing the new Federal National bank, arrived at the Spalding yesterday. It is understood that Mr. Nelson has come to make definite arrangements for the opening of the institution. There has been some gossip to the effect that it was not settled that the bank would be organized. This phase of the subject was all that Mr. Nelson would discuss this afternoon. "There is one thing you can say," he observed, "and that is that the new bank is coming. There is no longer any question about that."

Further than that, Mr. Nelson would not talk for publication or discuss any of the questions that were put to him. From business friends of his former days, however, it was learned that the capital for starting the new institution is all provided. It is said to be the purpose of the organizers, however, to place stock locally where it may interest local parties. The slate of officers is said not to have been arranged for the same reason. It is quite likely that some local people will figure prominently among the officers.

The location of the new bank is not definitely settled, though it is said this will be accomplished within the next two or three days. It is denied that the people back of the project have had any connection with the negotiations for the purchase of the new Wolvin building, or know anything about it. Indeed, it is said the quasi-option that is held on the building is held in an entirely different quarter geographically than the controlling interests in the new bank.

"The organizers of the new institution believe," said a local man who is close to Mr. Nelson, "that there is room for another large bank here. They have no thought that there is any dissatisfaction whatever with the present institutions. They recognize that these are excellent institutions, and that their treatment of their patrons has been such as to leave no room for criticism. They think, however, that the development of Duluth is going to be so great in the near future that they can come in here now and grow up with the city and grow rapidly."

WAS SLOW.

May Term Jury Cases Get Under Way Very Slowly.

The trial of jury cases in district court opened this morning, but owing to strong counter attractions it was difficult for the court to get started, and only one case was taken up this morning.

Attorneys that had cases on this morning's call are engaged in the supreme court, the United States court of appeals, the United States court and the Duluth municipal court, or are expecting to be so engaged, so few of them were ready to go to trial this morning. The result was that only one case was taken up.

That was the case of Elma E. Olson against the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company and its logging railroad, the Minnesota & Northern Wisconsin railroad, to recover $1650 damages for trespass. The plaintiff owns a farm in section 27, 51-15, and she alleges that the company entered upon it without any right and cut down timber, tore up the ground and committed other damages, amounting in all to $550. As she claims the trespass was willfull, she asks treble damages. John Jenswold, Jr., is her attorney, and John A. Keyes appears for the railroad.

There was a shortage of jurors, only twenty-seven out of fifty-two being available, so a special venire was issued.

SMALL SALE.

Delinquent Tax Sale Is the Smallest Held In Years.

County Auditor Halden made his annual appearance as an auctioneer this morning, the occasion being the sale of property for delinquent real estate taxes.

The sale is not a large one, there being only about 4000 descriptions. This is the smallest there has been since Mr. Halden became auditor, and this means a good deal because the number of descriptions of property taxed in this county has been multiplied three or four times during the period he has acted as county auditor.

A small delinquent sale means, of course, that more pepole are paying taxes than ever before and paying them more promptly.

There was not a large attendance at the sale as it did not include a great deal of very desirable property.

Burglars Rob Carl Thiel and Leave a Note.

The photograph gallery of Carl Thiel, on the second floor of the Ingalls block, was burglarized last night.

The safe was opened and five shares of Calumet & Arizona copper stock was taken.

There was nothing in the safe of any value except the copper stock and the disappointed thief left the following note:

"Dear Sir: Hereafter please leave your money in the safe instead of taking it home with you. LONDON."

The thief gained entrance into the photograph gallery by climbing on the roof of the Peerless saloon and working open one of the side windows of the studio.

The search through the studio for valuables was very thorough and exceedingly disorderly. It looked as if some anarchist had thrown a bomb into the place.

The burglary was reported to the police at noon today and detectives were sent out to follow up several clues that the thief left behind.

The five shares of Calumet & Arizona stock which were taken are valued at $245, based on today's market quotations. It is not likely that they can realize anything on it, however.

PRISON FOR LIFE.

Youthful Murderers of Grocer Fafinski Sentenced.

Chicago, May 12.—Guy Locke, aged 18, and Edward C. Puffey, 20 years of age, were today sentenced to penal servitude for life for the murder of Peter Fafinski.

"You ought to be hanged. You deserve it; but being minors protects you," said Judge Brentano, in pronouncing sentence.

Buffey ran away from his home in New York with the idea of seeing some of the wild life he had read about in dime novels. Locke's home was in Rowletts, a village in Hart county, Ky., where his father keeps a general merchandise store. The murder was committed while the boys were attemting to rob Fafinski's store.

RAILROAD MATTERS

Wisconsin Central Said to Contemplate Several Improvements.

Will Build Direct From Phillips, Wis., to Duluth.

Two Lines From Twin Cities Northward Are Proposed.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Wisconsin Central is understood to be considering several important schemes for improvement. A plan is being discussed which involves the building of a line direct from Phillips, Wis., to Duluth, which would require about 100 miles of new track. The Wisconsin Central now gets into Duluth over the Northern Pacific tracks from Ashland, having the privilege of running through trains. It is rather a roundabout way and the building of the 100-mile cut would greatly reduce the distance between Chicago and St. Paul considerably.

The first steps toward securing two new lines of railroad from the Twin Cities northward, through Central and Eastern Minnesota to the Canadian boundary in Beltrami county, and to Superior, Wis., were taken today, when articles of incorporation of the Minneapolis, Superior, St. Paul & Winnipeg Railway company were filed with the secretary of state.

The articles call for a line or lines to be constructed from a point at or near the cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul, running northerly through the towns of Anoka, Mora, Aitkin and Grand Rapids, thence to a point on the Rainy river in Beltrami county, there to connect with the Canadian Northern railway. Also a line from a point in Anoka county northeasterly to Superior, Wis.

The amount of the capital stock is $100,000 for incorporation purposes. The articles provide for an increase of the capital stock to $10,000,000 as well as a bonded indebtedness of the same amount.

The incorporators are Samuel M. Hanley, John J. Elliott, Harlan P. Benton, Ervin M. Fuller, of Minneapolis, and James Lovering, of St. Paul.

A SETBACK

To Aerial Navigation Will Be Caused By Severo's Death.

Paris, May 12.—Santos Dumont, who has been confined to his bed for three days suffering from nervous trouble, said to a reporter of the Associated Press: "I do not want to talk about Severo, as I did not see the disaster. I have not read the accounts in the papers and only know what my friends have told me. From what Lachambre, the builder of Severo's and my balloons says, I think Severo lost his head. I understand he threw out ballast as the airship was rising rapidly. This, if true, is sufficient to explain the accident. Rapid rising would drive out the gas through the valve and sent it against the motors, thus causing an explosion. One defect of Severo's airship was that the motors were to near the balloon.

"No, the catastrophe does not discourage me, but I fear there will be a setback to aerial navigation. It will frighten many persons and discourage those who were inclined to spend money in such undertnkings."

The Chancellor Yields On Proposed Check Tax.

London, May 12.—The chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicksbeach, has yielded to the storm of disapproval aroused by the feature in the financial bill affecting checks and today definitely announced in the house of commons the withdrawal of the extra tax of ne penny placed on checks. He added that he reserved the right to impose another tax to meet the resulting deficiency.

On the second reading of the finance bill, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Liberal, moved "that this house declines to impose duties on grain, flour and other food stuffs."

The chancellor of the exchequer, in replying, denied that there had been any general rise in the price of bread.

BLACKFEET INDIANS.

"The Indian chief of today is robbed of all his glory and poetry. He is nothing more than a wardheeler for his people. His power is practically all gone, but he is something of a leader and acts as a sort of spokesman and schemer for his people." This was the estimate placed on the leaders of the red men by J. H. Monteath, who has charge of the Blackfeet reservation in Northern Montana. Mr. Monteath is a guest at the Egglt house, and will remain in Washington for several days, looking after Indian affairs, says the Washington Post.

"All the war chiefs of the Blackfeet are dead," Mr. Monteath continued. "The last great chief was Lame Bull. He has been dead many years. The present chiefs on the Blackfeet reservation have never distinguished themselves in battle. White Calf is the best known Blackfeet chief who is now living. He is more than 75 years old, and has considerable influence among the members of his tribe. He has three wives, which is a sign of his importance. His favorite wife is 'Yells in the Night.' He likes her so well that he permits her to do all the work around his home. Another one of his wives is 'Wades in the Water.' Plural marriages are prevented on the agency now, but White Calf had all these wives when the reservation came under government control, and no attempt was made to interfere with his household.

"Little Plume, Wolf Tail, and Runaway Crane are other influential Blackfeet chiefs. None of them has as much influence, however, as White Calf. Age is supposed to add much to the wisdom of a chief. Still this old leader finds himself on the level with the humblest men of tho tribe when he deals with the government. His ration ticket calls for no more provisions than that of any of his subjects. It is amusing to hear the various steps which the chiefs create for the purpose of getting more rations. But Indians are all the same in Uncle Sam's eyes. He treats them all alike.

"The Blackfeet will soon disappear. At one time the reservation contained nearly 7000 Indians. Now there are only 2100 Indians there. The Indians who are on the agency have intermarried for so many years that many of them are weaklings. When they were in their savage state they roamed about and marriages were entered into with members of other nations. The more enterprising Blackfeet have left the reservation and are making their own way in the world. The indolent ones are contented to remain on their old hunting grounds and let the government take care of them.

"Most of the young Indians have come to the conclusion that they must work and are taking care of cattle and making some attempt at farming. The older ones still live in idleness. The Indian schools maintained by the government are well attended and the government employes have very little trouble in keeping the young Indians in school. Years ago many of the men who went into the far North with the Hudson Bay company married Indian women. For the most part these men were a thrifty lot and did much to improve the condition of the tribes. Of late years, however, a worthless lot of schemers have married women on the reservations that they might get hold of lands and receive supplies from the government.

"If the Indians on the reservations continue to decrease as rapidly as they have in the past quarter of a century, the government will have but few wards to care for. Reservation life has no charm for the better class of Indians, and the worthless redmen are dying off and intermingling with the whites so rapidly that they will soon be a race of the past."

TOO CANDID.

He was an owner of landed property. One morning a stranger entered his office and said to him:

"Are you Mr. Highrent?"

"I am."

"You own the property at 600 Honeysuckle terrace?"

"I do."

"And you are going to sell it?"

"I am."

"I should like to buy it, then. I have purchased the house next to it for a residence, and, to be candid, I don't like the kind of tenants you let your house to. I wish to buy it and select my own neighbors."

"No, sir," answered the owner of the property. "That puts a different aspect on the matter. I don't care to sell the place now. I shall keep it, and raise the rent on the ground that the neighborhood is improving."

THE RATE ON FLOUR

Much Speculation as to Result of Tomorrow's Meeting.

Northern Line Seems Prepared to Maintain Lower Rate.

Other Lake and Rail Lines Have Held Out Thus Far.

Which way will the cat jump at the joint meeting of the rail and lake lines to be held in Chicago tomorrow? That is the question that is causing much speculation among flour shippers and traffic men in Duluth and Minneapolis today. Although all the other lake and rail lines have refused to join in a 15½ cent export rate on eastbound flour shipments out of Duluth, or 20½ cents out of Minneapolis, the Northern Steamship company and the Eastern Minnesota road are quoting these rates, and new tariffs just issued indicate that the action has been taken irrevocably.

Thus far the other lake and rail lines east of Duluth have advised their agents here that they will not quote these low rates on export flour, at least until after the meeting in Chicago tomorrow. The general offices of the companies have all been notified, it is said, of the action of the Northern Steamship company in quoting a 15½ cent rate out of Duluth in face of their refusal to protect it, and their action temporarily at least is simply a refusal to meet the cut.

It is believed, however, that if the Northern line persists at tomorrow's meeting in leaving in its 15½ and 20½ cent rate, the other lines will be obliged to name it.

Those familiar with the policy of Mr. Hill in this matter believe that he will insist in protecting northwestern millers with a 2½ cent differential in favor of export flour. It is known that he believes the northwestern milling interests need this differential against domestic rates in order to do business abroad with the present differential against them in England occasioned by the war tax, which is figured out as equivalent to four cents a hundred pounds in favor of imported wheat. Moreover, it is intimated that Mr. Hill has made arrangements with Eastern lines for the protection of this differential on export flour, whatever action the competing lines may choose to take.

The Northern Steamship company has issued two tariffs in this connection, both of them in accordance with the interestate commerce law, and both effective May 10, which was last Saturday. One of the issued in connection with the Baltimore & Ohio, Pittsburg & Westurn, Central Railroad of New Jersey, Philadelphia & Reading, and the Staten Island Rapid Transit company. This provides for the handling of the business via Fairport, Ohio. One lake and rail man thinks this is due to the fact that Fairport harbor was closed the early part of the season, on account of low water over the sandbar at the entrance, the result being that the Baltimore & Ohio is said to have gotten little or no flour traffic this season. This tariff quotes the following rates on export flour from Duluth and Superior: To New York, 15½ cents per cwt.; Philadelphia, 13½ cents; Baltimore, 12½ cents.

The other tariff is issued in conjunction with the Lackawanna, the Erie, Lehigh Valley and the West Shore. This provides for the routing of the traffic via Buffalo. Inasmuch as the Lehigh Valley joins in it, it is supposed that the Lehigh Valley Lake line will join in a tariff from Minneapolis, via Lake Michigan points on the same relative basis. This tariff names the same rates as above to New York and Philadelphia, but makes a 15½-cent rate to Boston.

Comparatively little flour business has been contracted during the first ten days of May.

FORCE WASTED IN WINKS.

A man with a mania for figuring and not enough to do to keep him out of mischief has been making calculations regarding the manner in which the life of the—ordinary man, says the New York Press, who both works and plays, is divided up.

When such a man has reached the age of 60 he will have spent his time as follows, according to the statistician: Twenty years in sleep, three years and nine months in eating; seventeen years and six months in working; seven years and six months in pursuit of pleasure; six years and three months in walking and other exercises; two years and six months in making his toilet, and six months in doing absolutely nothing. The item for toilet he subdivides into seven months shaving, eleven months washing, and one year dressing.

Persons mathematically inclined can find the flaws in these figures—if there are any—most people will be content to take them on faith. This remarkable dissecter of human life by the mathematical process has also discovered, he says, that the average man speaks 1,800,000 words a year, and shakes hands 1200 times, thereby using up energy enough in 50 years to lift 2500 tons.

The amount of force a man uses up in winking is truly appalling. Our statistician calculates that the average man in a single year opens and shuts his eyes no less than 93,600,000 times, and doing this uses force enough altogether to raise an electric car filled with passengers. Consequently in 50 years he develops enough force to wink 60 trolley cars off the track. This is the moderate, average, sober, respectable man, mind you, not the frivolous person who winks at all the pretty girls he sees. The "wink power" developed by a flirtatious man probably is enough to run the new subway system.

POPES OF HUMBLE BIRTH.

Many of the popes have sprung from low origin. Alexander V. (1409) was also a beggar boy. Benedict XII was the son of a baker; Sixtus IV (1471) was the son of a fisherman; Sixtus V (1585), whose name was Felix Perretti, was a pig driver at Montalto, and attracted the attention of a Franciscan monk, who educated him, writes the Rome correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald. He rose to be Bishop Fermo, soon after to be cardinal, and was then elevated to the papal throne, and celebrated his reign by erecting many of the finest buildings in ome. Nathaniel Hawthorn, writing of his tomb in the grand old church of St. Marfia Maggiore says: "If anything can still the spectator to silence and awaken him to great recollections it is the monument of this anstonishing man, who as a child herded swine, and as a man commanded kings and filled Rome with so many works that from every side his name, like an echo, rings upon the traveler's ears."

Urban IV (1261) was the son of a French cobbler; Adrian VI was the son of a weaver; Benedict XI was the son of a shepherd; Boniface the Great was a street gamin and held horses for pennies. In recollection of his earlier days he invited two kings to lead his mule when he rode to his coronation as pope of Rome. Hildebrand, the great orator monk, who became Pope Gregory VII (1073) was the son of a carpenter from Tuscany and one of the most brilliant statesmen of his age. He practically revolutionized Europe.

ENORMOUS PURCHASE

Duluth and Other Capitalists Buy Million Canadian Acres.

Among Choicest Lands In the Famous Saskatchewan Valley.

A. D. Davidson President of Company---Headquarters at St. Paul.

An enormous purchase of farm lands in Canada, probably the largest ever made in that country, has just been closed and Duluth men figure largely in it. Through the firm of Osler, Hammod & Nanton, of Toronto and Winnipeg, and Amos L. Warner of this city, there has been sold to a syndicate of American and Canadian men, the entire land grant of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatchewan Railroad company, comprising more than 1,000,000 acres of land in the valley of Saskatchewan river in Western Canada.

The parties interested in the purchase are George C. Howe, A. D. Davidson, J. L. Washburn and A. D. McRae, of Duluth; W. D. Douglas, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa; George F. Piper, E. C. Warner, F. E. Kenaston and H. P. Watson, of Minneapolis; A. R. Davidson, of Little Falls; James D. Anderson, of Two Harbors; T. E. Wells, of Chicago, and Donald J. McDonald and A. J. Adamson, Canadian bankers.

The men in the deal are all strong financially. The Duluth men are well known. Of the others, Mr. Douglas is the president of the famous Quaker Oats company. Messrs. Piper and Warner are heavy crushers of flaxseed and manufacturers of linseed oil.

To handle this immense purchase a Canadian land company has been formed, known as the Saskatchewan Valley Land company. It is capitalized at $3,500,000. At a meeting held in Minneapolis Saturday the following officers were elected: A. D. Davidson, of Duluth, president; W. D. Douglas, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, vice president; George F. Piper, of Minneapolis, treasurer; A. D. McRae, of Duluth, secretary. The Duluth interests are represented on the board of directors by Messrs. George C. Howe, A. D. Davidson, J. L. Washburn and A. D. McRae. The main offices will be in St. Paul.

The Saskatchewan valley has long been famous as the greatest producer of hard wheat in the Canadian Northwest. It is to that vast territory what the Red River valley is to the spring wheat region of the Northwest. It is, of course, far from reaching that state of development which is found in the great American wheat district, but that it will ultimately reach it is evidenced by the fact that such men as are in this company have taken it up. The Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatchewan railroad is already built into the country from Regina to Prince Albert and is operated by the Canadian Pacific railroad. Within a few months the Canadian & Northern road, the McKenzie & Mann system, will be extended through the same territory.

The company is planning the development of the country on a large and complete scale. The heavy investment which has been made and the long experience of the management in the opening up and development of the prairie country of the United States is assurance that that will be its policy.

From one of the directors it is learned that the plans of the company contemplate the erection of elevators to care for the grain raised in the district. This will provide for a want which has been felt in nearly all parts of the rapidly developing Canadian country.

There will undoubtedly be a feeling of regret that men of such capital and experience as these are to devote their capital and energies toward the development of territory outside of the United States, but the Canadians are undoubtedly to be congratulated at securing their co-operation in the colonizing and settling of the great empire in the Northwest. They are among the representative men of the West and have for years been interested in large land transactions and have contributed much toward the development of this state and the Dakotas.

Mr. Davidson left last evening for St. Paul and today will leave for the locality where the lands are with a company of twelve men, who will spend several months in making the selections of lands for the company. Among those who will go is A. L. Warner, of this city.

There is already an enormous tide of emigration to that country. Mr. Davidson says that from four to eight trainloads of people are going in there every day and lands are being taken up with great rapidity.

STEAMER BURNED.

The North Dakota Lost on the Missouri.

Yankton, S. D., May 12.—The steamboat South Dakota, J. Lach, captain and owner, was burned yesterday at the first landing, north of Greenwood, Neb., while on a trip up the Missouri. The loss was $22,000 on the boat and $10,000 on the cargo of general merchandise. There was no insurance. The passengers and crew escaped.

DULUTH WINS.

Local Gun Club Defeats Superior For the Interstate Cup.

A team of crack shots representing the Central Gun club, defeated a team from the Superior gun club, for the interstate cup yesterday.

The Duluth team broke 89 targets out of a possible 100, as against 70 for the Superior quartet.

The local club has held the interstate cup for some time past and recently the Superior men sent over a challenge, claiming that they had decided unanimously to lift the cup and hold it for the remainder of the season. The score was:

DULUTH TEAM.

THE GUESTS

To Alphonso's Inauguration Will Be Royally Entertained.

New York, May 12.—The Spanish government is following English precedent in entertaining a large body of European princes and foreign representatives who will witness the king's civil inauguration, says a Madrid dispatch to the Tribune. The princes are either guests of the crown in palaces, or houses where complete retinues of servants are placed at their disposal. Special Ambassador Curry and Gen. Florentien, as representative of the United States and France are provided with houses, and all the special ambassadors are treated with distinction. Each has a royal carriage at his command and a Spanish grandee to wait upon him. Spain may have lost her colonial empire, but she has her old time pride in conducting state functions with dignity and ceremony.

The king has impressed the diplomatic corps here as a remarkably capable and clever sovereign who is both precocious and resourceful. While only 16, he is tall, graceful, self possessed and has a manner of great distinction. He is an accomplished linguist. The diplomats who have met him this week have been astonished by the maturity of his character and the air of dignity and statelliness in a boy who has not yet obtained his full stature.

Arrangements for decorating the route of the royal progress are now being made. The streets are lined with Venetian masts from which banners will be hung over the roadways. There will be few flags, but the sides of the buildings will be decorated in the Spanish style with rugs, carpets and hangings of brilliant colors. The decorations will be simple, but not ineffective.

See, young maiden, that thou takest not a substitute for the genuine Rocky Mountain Tea made by the Madison Medicine Co., if thou likest thy fair face. Ask your druggist.

CROWDS LOOKED ON

While Unfortunate Women Cleaned the Streets.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 12.—Arrayed in silks and satins and wielding large, cumbersome brooms, a half dozen girls, inforced employ of the city, spent the day as improvised "white wings" in cleaning up the streets. It was a curious spectacle, and hundreds looked upon the sad and dissipated faces of the girls with mingled awe and pity as they swept the dirt into small piles, which were loaded into the garbage wagons and hauled to the outskirts of the city. The women had been warned by the mayor not to appear upon the streets after sundown under penalty such as was meted out to them, but they heeded not his instructions, and they were arrested and spent the night in prison. In the morning they were given their sentences and placed on the streets immediately to work them out.

TWILIGHT A FLYER

Omaha Train Makes Record-Breaking Run Into Duluth.

It Makes Sixty-Seven Miles In Exactly One Hour.

First Time Engineer Frazer Had Handled the Engine.

Though very few passengers on last night's Twilight Limited were aware of the fact, a record-breaking run was made into Duluth by Engineer William Frazer and Conductor Kelly's train. Two sustained spurts of better than a mile a minute were made—one of nearly fifty miles at the rate of a mile in 56 seconds, and the other a distance of about 70 miles at the average rate of a mile in 54 seconds. This is said to mean that at times the train must have run as fast as nearly 80 miles an hour.

The north-bound Twilight left Minneapolis an hour late. Just as the train pulled into the depot to start for Duluth a drawbar was pulled out of the cafe car. The car had to be taken back into the yards for repairs, and when it was coupled on again and a start made it was 5 o'clock instead of the schedule time of 4.

Only last Saturday the big engines that have been pulling the Chicago fast mail were hitched on to the Twilight, in order to allow it to make the better time scheduled by the new time table that went into effect Sunday. It was Engineer Frazer's first handling of the throttle of the big engines, and he was not as well used to his new machine as he will be in a few days, but he showed a master hand.

From Minneapolis to St. Paul a few minutes were gained, and from St. Paul up hill out of the valley to Hudson, five minutes was cut off the schedule time of 30 minutes for the 20 miles. When Engineer Frazer reached the bridge crossing the river to Hudson he found a river boat passing through the draw with one brail of a raft. Owing to the stiff current the passage is made very slowly, the boat pulling back instead of pushing the raft ahead. Twenty minutes more were lost here.

But with the start from Hudson the engineer's blood was up. He coaxed, wheedled and spurred No. 251 from Hudson to the next stop at Turtle Lake and the 44 miles were made in 41 minutes. A large part of this run was over a fine track, with most of the original curves taken out or largely reduced, but a good deal of the run is up some rough grades.

The next good chance for a run was from Spooner to Itasca, but at Superior Junction, just this side of Spooner, another layout occurred. Orders were received to set out a coach for the Ashland train, and twenty minutes were lost here.

The distance from Spooner to Itasca is just 67 miles. Making allowance for the twenty minutes lost at Superior Junction, the running time from Spooner to Itasca was just an even hour, or equal to an average of a mile in 54 seconds.

The watch was held on the train by Division Supetrintendent Bennett, who was aboard.

Both conductor and engineer feel just a trifle proud of their run. How fast the best time was for short spurts nobody knows, but it is believed that the record beats anything ever made in regular service for sustained runs on a north bound road. The train was made up of five heavy cars. As a general thing the record-breaking runs that one reads of in newspapers are made by specials, made up of two or three cars chosen for their lightness and easy pulling. But the Twilight is a heavy train for its length, and the record made last night is of more interest for this reason.

When Engineer Frazer was asked about the matter this morning, he said he guessed from what he had heard that he had made a "pretty fair run." He disclaimed any knowledge of just what had been accomplished, and would not express an opinion as to how fast he might have crowded "251" at its fleetest moments. He said all he knew of what had been accomplished was what Superintendent Bennett had told him.

The beauty of the engine's handling was that none of the passengers knew they were traveling very fast. Though the train left Minneapolis an hour behind time, and was laid out at Hudson altogether nearly half an hour, and at Superior Junction twenty minutes, it arrived here only half an hour late. The schedule running time northbound is six hours from Minneapolis and four hours and twenty-five minutes from St. Paul. Last night's train made it in four hours and forty minutes, which is considered pretty good wheeling for the distance of 186 miles, particularly in view of the fact that No. 251 was new to Engineer Frazer, and because she is said to be the slowest of the three that are used on the Fast Mail and Twilight Limited runs.

The southbound Twilight shortened its running time last night half an hour, leaving Duluth half an hour later than formerly and arriving at St. Paul an hour earlier. The southbound run is considered easier to make than the northbound, for the reason that the down grade at the other end is on straighter track than the down-grade coming this way.

The actual running time of the Fast Mail from Duluth to Eau Claire is shortened ten minutes by the new time card. The time allotted for making the run from Spooner to Eau Claire is five minutes longer, but three more stops are provided for southbound, which makes the running time faster.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluth interests will occupy much of the attention of the city council this evening and the citizens of this part of the city are watching the course of events quite closely. It is pretty certain that the committee on railways to whom was referred the resolution of Alderman McEwen relative to the substitution of Norton avenue for the street railway extension line instead of Grand avenue will not receive much consideration this evening for the reason that the committee will not be ready with a definite report. The sentiment is growing that more trouble has been over the introduction of the McEwen resolution than it really warranted, that the introduction of the resolution was simply for the purpose of bringing the matter to the attention of the council and to get it referred to the proper committee.

It is not likely that the resolution introduced by Alderman Barnes for the sidewalk on Polk street will come up for passage this evening, as it is understood that the city engineer has not yet made a report as to which side of the street the railroad is located on and the work could not be started until this is determined.

The matter of the confirmation of the P. O'Donnell contract for the Jenswold street subway is also scheduled to come up. It has been stated before the contract was let and confirmed and then the confirmation was reconsidered as there was not enough money in the permanent improvement fund to go ahead with the work. Since the vote for reconsideration, the board of public works has bought the old viaduct timber and the money for it has been transferred from the board of public works fund to the permanent fund, bringing the amount in the latter up to that required. The contract will likely be confirmed again this evening.

Sentiment in favor of the purchase of the West Duluth water plant has been spreading much more rapidly since the company has agreed to the offer made by the water board of $140,000 for the plant. The unanimous action of the water board, together with the concurrence of the council committee has had a great deal to do in putting the proposition in a more favorable light with some of those who have raised objections heretofore. A large number of favorable comments were heard this morning from business men and taxpayers in this part of the city.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

The death summons came suddenly last evening to Mrs. Henrietta Loar, of Kansas City, Mo., who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. T. H. Miller, of 11 Sixtieth avenue west, for the past week. She expected to return to her home tomorrow. She had not been feeling very well for the past few days and shortly after 7 o'clock last evening was taken violently ill and before a physician could be summoned she died. Mrs. Loar was 68 years old. The cause is supposed to have been heart failure. Thomas Miller, the son-in-law of the decedent, is a member of the West Duluth fire department and was at the fire hall when the message was sent to him of Mrs. Loar's sudden sickness. Before he could go for a physician another message came announcing the death of his relative. Arrangements are being made to send the remains to Kansas City for burial.

LEG TAKEN OFF.

John Carlson, the young man that was brought to the Red Cross hospital last week from the range, had his right leg amputated above the knee this morning by Drs. David and Robert Graham. Carlson was employed on a track laying gang near Virginia, and in some manner that has not yet been fully explained, he had his leg crushed above the ankle under a moving train. When he was brought to the hospital it was hoped that the leg could be saved, but the injuries were too severe. Carlson is about 20 years of age and says he has no relatives in this part of the country. He has been resting quite easy since the operation and the chances are favorable for his recovery.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The Misses Lena and Mamie Markuson and Hilda Hanson have accepted a position at the match factory.

John Kennedy, superintendent of the Electric Light company at Virginia, was a visitor here yesterday. Mr. Kennedy formerly lived here.

Mrs. Carl T. Bailey, of St. Paul, is spending a few days at the home of W. T. Bailey, of 5310 Main street.

Harold S. Ames, of Chicago, is visiting friends here.

Mrs. Arthur Hunter, of Fifty-eighth avenue west is entertaining her sister from Carlton.

Mrs. S. J. Brotherton, of 222 Fifty-third avenue west, is quite sick.

James Feehly, of Carlton, returned to his work this morning after spending Sunday with his family here.

J. Allyn Scott has purchased Herman Schreck's residence on Olney street. Mr. Schreck will leave shortly for Lake City, Minn., to engage in the meat business.

Mrs. M. C. Brackett and granddaughter arrived in West Duluth from Pine City, Minn., this morning to visit the former's son, Frank Brackett.

Rev. John Mattson, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church at West Duluth, will relinquish his charge here about the middle of July and go to North Dakota, where he has accepted another call.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Knute A. Jackson, of 220 Central avenue.

H. Breen has returned from a business visit at Grand Marais. Mr. Breen reports matters as lively in the north shore town.

A daughter was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lund, of 620 Fifty-sixth avenue west.

The Orange ladies are arranging for a social party in the Odd Fellows' hall Wednesday evening. They will have a program.

O. V. Murray expects to build an addition to this place of business on Ramsey street.

George Campbell, who resides at 317 Forty-second avenue west, is recovering from an operation for appendicitis at St. Luke's hospital. Campbell walked out to West Duluth Tuesday evening and was sent to the hospital, where Dr. David Graham operated on him Wednesday.

Mrs. F. F. Lynch has gone to Rush City, Minn., for a few days' visit.

Henry Skelton is recovering from a severe attack of penumonia and Mrs. Skelton has been taken sick with the same disease.

POPULATION IN ARMS.

Stirring Scenes on the Island at Hayti.

Port au Prince, Hayti, May 12.—At the meeting of congress today, called to elect a president of the republic, the minister of the interior formally handed the resignation of President Sam to the house. A member of the chamber of deputies asked the president of the house to order the withdrawal of the strong force of troops which occupied the chambers.

The president replied that the troops were necessary to protect congress while engaged in its deliberations, and said that he approved of the presence of the military. The meeting of congress was then suspended. The whole population is now in arms.

HOLDS UP A CONGRESSMAN.

"At the end of the campaign," writes Champ Clark, Missouri's brilliant congressman, "from overwork, nervous tension, loss of sleep and constant speaking I had about utterly collapsed. It seemed that all the organs in my body were out of order, but three bottles of Electric Bitters, made me all right. It's the best all-round medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter." Over-worked, run-down men and weak, sickly women gain splendid health and vitality from Electric Bitters. Try them. Only 50c. Guaranteed by W. A. Abbett.

MARKET IS QUIET

Some Small Lumber Sales Pending But None Reported Closed.

Eastern Buyers Beginning to Appreciate the Situation Here.

Inland Mills Still Handicapped By Shortage of Water.

No sales in the local lumber market have been reported during the past week, although there are still several small deals for special stocks pending, and which may possibly be closed this week. Some of the lumbermen are said to have expressed an opinion that prices are about high enough for the present and that their business has felt a decreased demand because of high prices. This sentiment is not general, however. Reports from the Eastern markets indicate that there is more than the usual amount of speculation being indulged in by lumbermen as to the supplies of lumber in the Northwest and the impression is gaining ground that, at the present rate of consumption, the stocks will not be equal to the demand.

It has been hard to convince the Eastern buyers that the cut of 1902 in this district will not be so large as it was last year, but since their inquiry has shown them that there is practically no dry lumber unsold on Lake Superior, and with a heavy percentage of the 1902 cut already disposed of, they are being convinced that conservative buying at this period of the season is not the best policy.

Prices may not go higher, but there is no expectation of lower prices ruling before next season, nor even then, unless some disturbing business factor intervenes. The general advance of white pine lumber prices has strengthened the hemlock market and hemlock lumber is said to be held at $11 at all of the lake mills where it is cut, with little or no stocks available. A local scarcity of lath and shingles is still reported.

The cut of the local mills is on the increase. The last mill of the district to start up was the W. T. Bailey mill at Virginia. The output of the mill will be about 2,000,000 feet.

The latest reports indicate that the inland mills are still handicapped by lack of water in the rivers to get the drives to the mills and while some of the mills have not yet begun operations, others that are running are not operating full time. Even the Brooks-Scanlon new mill, at Scanlon, Minn., which has been depending largely on its railroad logging, has been compelled to cut down operations to half time. The effect of this hold-up, of the mills will, it is claimed, not only make the mills fall behind the requirements of their trade, but will prevent them from accumulating any surplus stocks to carry them through another winter.

The John Schroeder Lumber company, which has been operating heavily in north shore pine, at Cross river, has recently made a purchase of 200,000,000 feet of Oregon fir timber, making the company's holdings about 300,000,000 feet of that kind of timber. It is said that the company does not contemplate a cessation of its operations in the Northwest at the present time, because of the purchase, but the fir tracts will be held in reserve and no mills will be built upon them for some time to come.

Contracts continue to be made for the hauling of Northern Minnesota pine to Stillwater, by rail. Within the last ten days one firm has increased its contracts for log-hauling from Bemidji to Stillwater to 20,000,000 feet.

The first raft of the season to come through the Duluth ship canal, under the new regulations, was a small one towed through yesterday afternoon. The logs were for the Merrill & Kling company and came from the north shore. Two tugs brought the raft through the ship canal.

Lumber shipments from Duluth-Superior continue lively and the tangle of lumber boats is being straightened out rapidly since the settlement of the longshoremen's strike. It is understood that the settlement effected here was not entirely satisfactory to the lumber shovers at Ashland, who have objected to the clause in the agreement which said that in all cases of dispute the loading of boats shall continue uninterruptedly and the matter in question shall be settled by arbitration, the president of the Lumber Carriers' association to represent the association and the president of the International Longshoremen's union to represent the union.

The Ashland longshoremen object to the clause on the ground that numerous disputes have occurred every summer that had to be settled by the local union and could not be settled by people outside of the city because it would take too long and outsiders would not understand the conditions prevalent.

It is claimed that any action the Ashland longshoremen may take will be supported by the lumber shovers at Washburn.

River driving on the Wisconsin rivers is expected to begin this week. The largest operations will be conducted on the Nemadji river. Large crews of men have already been sent out to points along the river to assist in the drive.

WHAT YOU DO, DO IT WELL

This Is Important for Health Building in May.

THOUSANDS OF CURES MADE BY

Paine's Celery Compound

Should Convince You of Its Value.

"What you do, do it well," is the golden rule of business life. This rule and far-reaching command can be profitably observed in many other conditions of life. In sickness and suffering it is all-important that "what you do" to banish disease and restore lost health, should be well done. While prudence and common sense will, in nearly every instance, direct you aright, the experience of your friends and neighbors and the thousands rescued from sickness and suffering, will point directly to Paine's Celery Compound as the infallible health giver.

People who think they will get rid of troubles such as rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, and nervous disorders by medicines which have not yet passed the experimental stage, will be sadly dissapointed and find their sufferings increased.

To get rid of rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, and nervous complaints, it is wisdom to use Paine's Celery Compound, a medicine that proceeds at once to make the appetite normal, sleep natural and refreshing, the nerves strong, as a foundation for building up health and vigor.

If sick people in May look for a true nerve strengthener, an honest blood purifier, a reliable diuretic, that will restore strength, renew vitality, regulate the kidneys, liver, and bowels, they should at once make use of Paine's Celery Compound, and note the speedy and pleasing results that flow from its use.

It's easy to dye with Diamond Dyes Simple. Durable. Economical.

"Way Down East" was very good. Miss Grace Hopkins as Anna Moore, the young woman wronged by Lennox Sanderson, the city man, who inveigles her into a false marriage and then deserts her, made a good impression. Charles Riegel as Squire Amasa Bartlett made a typical down-East magistrate, and Thurlow Bergen filled the part of David Bartlett, the son, admirably. John Brennan was as popular as ever as Si Holler, the chore boy, and the other eccentric characters, Rube Whipple, the village constable, played by C. A. Burke; Martha Perkins, the village gossip, represented by Miss Loyola Connor, and Seth Holdcombe, her beau of many years' standing, played by John C. Hickey, were constant sources of amusement. The village quartet sang several selections, all of which were quite old but well rendered.

The stage settings were very good, the snow scene being exceptionally realistic.

EMMA NEVADA.

Madame Emma Nevada, the famous songstress, will be heard at the Lyceum this evening. Accompanying her is a fine young French pianist, Leon Moreau. He is a brilliant artist and is meeting with warm praises wherever he is heard. He is also a composer of considerable note.

FLOATER FOUND.

Body Turns Up at Superior and Is Unidentified.

The body of an unknown man was found yesterday in Hughitt slip, in West Superior. It had evidently been in the water a long time and was in a bad state of decomposition. The body seemed to be that of a laboring man about 30 or 35 years old, medium height and weight, and with a short reddish mustache. In the pockets of the clothes were 25 cents in change and a card so water-soaked that the writing on it was illegible. Coroner Dudley of Douglas county took charge of the remains, and they will be buried today unless identified. The description of the body found does not, it is claimed, tally with that of any of the men reported missing.

The Northfield Work.

A new feature will be added this year to the regular appointments of a Northfield season. Beginning at July 1st and extending throughout the entire month, will be a Summer School of Bible Study. Daily consecutive courses will be given by Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, Rev. W. W. White, and Rev. John Kelman. Besides the lectures, there will be opportunity for careful preparation for those who wish to derive the most benefit from the studies. Accommodations will be provided at lowest rates in the buildings of Northfield Seminary. Portrait circular, giving details of the courses sent on application.

Other events of the Northfield season will be: Student Conference, June 27 to July 6; Camp Northfield, June 26 to September 1; General Conference for Christian Workers, August 1 to 17. Among the speakers will be Rev. John Kelman, Edinburgh; Rev. C. W. Gordon ("Ralph Connor"); Robert E. Speer, John R. Mott, Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, Dr. Woodrow Wilson, Rev. F. B. Meyer, Rev. G. Whitcomb Brougher, Rev. C. I. Scofield, D.D., Rev. A. C. Dixon, D.D., Rev. A. T. Pierson, D.D., Rev. Henry G. Weston, D.D., Henry Varley. Upon application to A. G. Moody, East Northfield, Mass., full details of these events, and of accommodations, etc., may be obtained.

The Baseball Game.

Threatening weather conditions all day kept the Duluth and Minneapolis high school baseball teams guessing as to the game that was scheduled for Oneota Park at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The line up announced for the game in case it should be played was as follows:

Minneapolis—		Duluth—
Howard	Catcher	Potter
Getty	Pitcher	Cummings
Marshall	First base	Congdon
Duffy	Second base	Peterson
Condon	Third base	Stuake
Courtney	Shortstop	Scoble
Brooks	Center field	Dash
Lusk	Right field	Summers

DIES FROM PTOMAINE

Henry E. Harris a Sudden Victim of Deadly Poisoning.

Taken at Midnight Saturday and Died Early Sunday Morning.

Attorney and Author of Note---Body to Be Cremated.

Henry Evans Harris, lawyer and author, died suddenly yesterday morning of ptomaine poisoning.

His death occurred in his apartments at the Ralston house, 122 East First street, about 7 o'clock in the morning.

Saturday evening Mr. Harris gave a little informal luncheon for a number of friends, and seemed in the best of health. At midnight he retired and shortly afterward he awakened Mrs. Harris, complaining of very severe pains close to the heart.

Dr. James McAuliffe was summoned, administering medicine that gave immediate relief, and Mr. Harris soon went to sleep again. About 6 o'clock in the morning the pains in the region of the heart again became very severe.

His condition became so serious that several urgent calls were sent out for physicians. Dr. J. M. Robinson was the first to reach the bedside, only to find that life had been extinct for at least several minutes.

Later, when the body had been removed to Tibbett's undertaking rooms, Dr. Robinson and Dr. McAuliffe held a post-mortem examination and pronounced death due to ptomaine poisoning caused by decomposed food in the stomach.

Mr. Harris was in the 35th year of his age. He was the eldest son of the late Col. A. A. Harris and Isabella Evans Harris.

For many years Mr. Harris was the law partner of his father, who made a great record for himself in the suit of the Merritts against John Rockefeller, obtaining a judgment of $340,000 for his clients.

His ancestors were prominent in every American war, from the revolution down to the Spanish-American war, in which Mr. Harris enlisted with Company G, Fourteenth Minnesota Volunteer infantry. During the long encampment at Chickamauga and Knoxville Mr. Harris was very popular with his fellow soldiers.

Mr. Harris had considerable literary ability and an admirable style, and after writing several successful short stories for magazines, he brought out a clever novel, "The King of Andora," in 1899. This novel was thought to be a great money maker, before it was sufficiently placed before the public, the publishing firm of F. Tennyson Neely & Co. failed and the publication was tied up until recently, when Mr. Harris arranged with the Abbey Press for a new edition.

At the time of his death Mr. Harris was incidentally working on a Spanish historical novel, and in connection with this book was contemplating a trip to Spain during the coming summer.

During the past year Mr. Harris has also been practicing law with F. A. Teall, but his literary work required much of his time that this partnership was dissolved in February.

In 1900 he was married to Miss Grace Ashcroft, of this city, and he is also survived by a daughter by a former marriage. It is reported that Mr. Harris carried life insurance policies aggregating about $20,000.

Since the death of the late Col. Harris, his mother has been living in Minneapolis with a younger son, Laurenz R. Harris, who is a prominent electrician of that city.

Mr. Harris is said to have been feeling not quite himself physically for two or three weeks. He complained a couple of weeks ago of having been almost sick with a cold. Last Saturday he told a friend he met on the street that he had taken a couple of Turkish baths in succession, and felt a little unwell from the double shock to the system.

"I should think that this double shock would be a bad thing," commented the friend.

"Well, it might be for the ordinary man," responded Mr. Harris, with his customary optimism, "but two for me are about what one would be for the average person. I feel a little weak just now, but will be all right tomorrow."

He added that he had weighed himself when he went into the bath and weighed out again, and that he had lost six pounds. He seemed to rejoice over this. For some time he had been growing heavy rapidly and had taken measures to train down. He weighed about 210 pounds, but being of such great height and so well proportioned, through his early athletic diversions, he appeared to be only of good build.

He was a pronounced Bibliophile, and possessed perhaps more than anybody else in Duluth an inclination for accumulating rare editions of his favorite authors. His greatest favorite was Dumas' "Three Guardsmen," and he said once recently that he had the work in about fifteen different editions, most of them editions de luxe. Over a lunch or dinner, for he was a gourmet as well as discriminating in literature, he was one of the most fascinating companions a man of literary tastes could desire. It was very exceptional if one could mention any work of fiction, either modern or classic, that he had not read and thought about. Though during his residence in Duluth he had made few speeches, his ability as an orator wes speedily recognized. A brief speech he made at the St. Cloud congressional convention in 1896 renominating Congressman Charles A. Towne was considered by many the most eloquent effort that was made in that year of great efforts, with the possible exception of Senator Lodge's speech at St. Louis, which it resembled in point of literary charm and style.

Mr. Harris had intended to leave in a day or so for Fort Scott, Kan., for the purpose of erecting a monument over the grave of his father, the late Col. A. A. Harris. He expected to go to Chicago in connection with some plans he has been developing for the promotion of a Mexican mining corporation, which has taken most of his time since last fall, and thence South.

The remains of Mr. Harris will be taken to St. Paul for cremation, in accordance with a wish expressed by him some time ago. The full arrangements for the funeral will be announced later.

ABANDONED

Ship Recovered But No Trace of Crew Found.

Vancouver, B. C., May 12.—Dismasted and half smashed from a battering by the rough waves of the Northern seas, the steamer Concordia was picked up off the coast of Vancouver by the Vancouver steamer New England.

Not a living soul was found aboard. The boat was fully equipped, well engined, and had apparently been fitted out ready for a long cruise. It would have carried at least a crew of four, and had sleeping apartments for half a dozen others, so that probably at least eight or nine persons were aboard. Where they are now no one knows. The New England made a search of nearby coasts, but found nothing.

When found the vessel was being swept from stem to stern by every wave, and getting away in a small boat would have been impossible. What was the fate of the crew and the passengers is a mystery. They were probably swept overboard.

The New England ran across the derelict Friday afternoon. The hull of the steamer was fifty miles off the northern end of Vancouver island and fifty miles west of Fitzhugh sound.

It was away out in the open sea, twenty miles from the regular course of north-bound vessels. It was drifting northward toward the Queen Charlottes, from whose halibut banks the New England was coming. The pilot-house and the after-house over the boiler had been carried away by the monster seas which were still rolling.

The vessel was rolling heavily, and Capt. Gott of the New England does not believe it would have staid afloat another two hours. Its hold was more than half full of water, and small casks and boxes of provisions were floating around, with a scum of coal dust over the imprisoned water. There were several large barrels and chests of hams, bacon, sugar and other staples, and a half dozen boxes of sea biscuits.

The steamer had evidently fitted out on Puget sound, for there were Seattle labels on some of the boxes, and it had probably coaled at Nanaimo or Union. There were two rifles and two shotguns, which would indicate that the passengers were either mine prospectors or timber hunters who had been searching along the coast.

There was some clothing scattered and under pieces of displaced machinery, but nothing to show the names of the people who had been aboard. The coal was still well stowed, and there was enough to last the boat for a month. The hull over all was about sixty feet in length and between twelve and fourteen feet beam.

The vessel was apparently new and may have been built at some one of the cannery posts along the coast. The only name like it in the coast shipping register is that of the Concord, a smaller vessel, whose home port is St. Michael, Alaska.

Capt. Gott got the derelict in tow of the New England, and after giving it enough speed to make steerage way, bailed it out and shoveled the coal overboard to lighten it, and finally towed it into a secret cove at the northern end of Vancouver island, where it now lies.

Officers of the New England are convinced that the crew met their end somewhere off the rocky coast, and the wonder is that the derelict staid afloat so long. Its provisions and outfit are destroyed, but as it stands the vessel should be worth several thousand dollars.

MEAT QUESTION SETTLED.

Right Food to Take Its Place.

The shortness of the meat supply and the high price of steak is not an unmitigated evil. On the contrary it is a probable blessing," says the Brookiyn Eagle.

"If meat could be raised to a price that would make it prohibitory, it might still be of good result, because it would teach those who depend almost entirely upon it to widen their dietary and learn to enjoy many good things of which they are now ignorant. To many, especially in the cities, there are but three foods; meat, potatoes and bread. The weary monotony of this program, the unsatisfied but indefinite longings for a widening of it, affect appetite and surely affect spirits and temper.

"The laborer goes to his work filled with meat, potatoes and bread. An noon he finds cold meat and bread in his dinner pail and at night he is confronted by meat and potatoes, sometimes separate, sometimes combined into a greasy stew, sometimes chopped into hash.

"This kind of thing fills him, but in a finer sense it can hardly be said to feed him. Physicians have discovered that a limited and unchanging diet lowers vitality and health."

Such a time as this gives every one an opportunity to test the value of Grape-Nuts as a food and prove to themselves that it more than takes the place of meat and really furnishes more nourishment for the body and greater strength and vitality for the brain and nervous system: it is also an economical food that reduces the cost of living to the minimum.

Grape-Nuts are probably entitled to the claim to be the most perfectly adapted food for human needs now extant. The meat eater and the vegetarian are alike charmed with its crisp taste and the delicate flavor of grape sugar and the careful housewife is attracted by the fact that there are fourteen portions in a 15-cent package.

FIRST MINISTER

To Cuba Had Experience as an Eloper.

Washington, May 12.—Private Squiers, artilleryman, stationed at Fortress Monroe, was very good to look at, and that is why he is now the president's choice for minister to Cuba.

Of course, it is a case of a girl, and in this case it happened that she had a very rich and influential father, none other than Gen. Fargo, of the Wells-Fargo Express company; so after the elopement, he gave them his forgiveness, and set to work to get Private Squiers transferred to the signal corps. From that he could resign.

Then a position in the diplomatic service, second secretary of embassy at Berlin, whence he resigned in May, to take an appointment in January as secretary of legation at Pekin. The siege of the legationers brought no harm to the lucky Squiers; his military experience—to which allusion is in very general terms—qualified him for an important part in the defense. And so why not send him as first ambassador to Cuba?

Roosevelt does not see any objection, and if the senate is agreeable, it looks as if that is what would be done.

A Progressive Newspaper.

Cass Lake Times: Soon after launching the Cass Lake Times in April, 1899, we received in exchange for our modest effort a copy of The Duluth Daily Herald. With daily regularity it has come to our table since that time and has become almost a necessity in our weekly attempts to gather and collate the news of the state. We look upon The Herald as one of the progressive newspapers of the Northwest, and should have a wide circulation in the region contiguous to the Zenith City.

Acquiring the Friars' Lands.

It appears, from all information that can be gleaned on the subject, that it is really necessary for the United States to acquire the land in the Philippines, now owned by the Friars. Just how to acquire it has been a matter of much consideration and study. The holdings of the friars amount to more than 400,000 acres, and it is estimated they can be secured for something like $7,000,000. The United States can acquire the lands arbitrarily by exercising the right of eminent domain. It hesitates to do this. Never in the history of the republic has such a right been arbitrarily exercised to the extent of establishing that one class of people and not another may hold lands. The administration wishes to avoid this necessity. The United States wants to pay the church for its holdings. It wants to turn over portions of the land to the tenants who have occupied it for years, and who, through the long term of occupancy of more than one generation, they believe are entitled to secure title for it. Legislation as proposed in part in the Philippine bill is the first step toward the solution of what Governor Taft believes to be the most important problem of the islands. Consent of the church authorities is next necessary. An agreement as to a fair compensation for the lands is next, and the final authority of congress in providing the necessary funds or permitting the use of funds from the insular treasury is the final necessity. Much is expected from the visit of Governor Taft to the pope on his way back to the Philippines. While Governor Taft is expected to make clear to the pope and his officoal representatives just what the conditions in the islands are, and that it is futile for the church to harbor an idea that church and state can be associated in any way, he will not finally close the deal for the transfer of the lands. He has neither the money nor the authority to do so. Until the Philippine bill, which is now pending in the senate, and which has not yet been considered in the house, is passed, no authority can exist for the acquirement of the lands by this country.

Building Up a Political Machine.

It has been apparent for some time, as has been occasionally commented upon in these columns, that President Roosevelt was laying the foundation for a powerful political machine which he hopes will land him safely in the White House in 1904, for another term. It is now announced from Washington that the president will shortly place all the fourth-class postmasters of the country under the charge of the first assistant postmaster general, taking them from the fourth assistant. This is a significant announcement for the simple fact that it will be an easy matter to put men in these positions each of whom would have a personal interest in maintaining the present administration in power. There are between 70,000 and 75,000 fourth class postmasters and they can be used to great advantage to strengthen the machine. The postmaster general is recognized as the political member of the cabinet and it is proposed that he shall have direct supervision of the reorganization of the fourth class postmasters. If these offices should be given over to the first assistant, it would amount to putting them under the immediate control of the postmaster general on account of the close relationship, between the postmaster general and the first assistant, both personally and officially. It has always been the custom to order wholesale dismissals among the fourth class postmasters with every change in the administration. These places are now practically the only ones outside of the classified service, and it is evident that the Republicans propose to work them for all they are worth. As postmasters of this grade are not commissioned for a stated period, there would be no difficulty in making changes. In recent years it is has been the practice to keep a postmaster in office for four years, provided he is satisfactory to all hands. It is no infrequent thing, however, for a man to be removed merely to make room for another. The local congressman provided he be a Republican under the existing order of things, is the sole judge of who shall be appointed. If the local congressman is a Democrat, the appointment is placed at the disposal of the Republican senator from the state, provided there be one. If not, the chairman of the Republican state committee, or the state committee or the national committee is authorized to say who shall get the offices. Postmaster General Payne could accomplish wonders in the way of building up a political machine with 70,000 appointments of this kind at his disposal, and there is no doubt but what he will do so.

MINNESOTA'S GROWTH.

The state of Minnesota was forty-four years old yesterday, the bill admitting Minnesota into the Union having been enacted May 11, 1858. It was a frontier state, with a small and widely scattered population and with few signs of the marvellous growth and development that has taken place during the years that have passed. Many columns might be written to tell the story of Minnesota's progress, and yet the subject would not be exhausted. Heroic were the struggles of the pioneers who carved out homes for themselves from the wilderness and laid the foundations of this glorious commonwealth, which now ranks among the greatest states of the American Union.

Today Minnesota ranks first as a wheat growing state, first as a flour milling state, first as an iron ore shipping state, eighth as a butter producing state, eighth in value of dairy herds, ninth in value of horses, sixth as a potato producing state and fourth as an oats growing state. And it is still advancing with rapid strides.

The state's increase in population has been steady. In 1850 it was 607; in 1860, was 172,023; in 1865, 250,099; in 1870, 439,706; in 1875, 597,407; in 1880, 780,773; in 1885, 1,117,798; in 1890, 1,301,826; in 1895, 1,574,619; in 1900, 1,751,394. In 1850 the state ranked 36 in the list of states according to population; in the census of 1860 it ranked 30; in the census of 1870, 28; in the census of 1880, 26; in the census of 1890, 20; and in the census of 1900, 18. It is confidently believed that the census of 1910 will give Minnesota a further increase in rank.

CHILD WORKERS.

It is sad to learn of the great number of English children of school age who are wage earners, not only in the city, but on the farm. The committee of the home office has given out the total figures of child-workers in England as follows:

Factories and workshops—children employed as half timers	45,000
Home industrial work	15,000
Shops	100,000
Domestic work, allowing for deficiencies and half timers	60,000

In the May Forum, Thomas Burke, who has made a special study of the wage-earning children of Liverpool, which he submits as characteristic of the state of things all over the country: "Under 7 years of age, 131; 7 years, 1120; 8 years, 4211; 9 years, 11,027; 10 years, 22,131—making a total of 38,489 children between 6 and 10 years of age who were employed in some form after the school was ended for the day, instead of being permitted the recreation so much needed for such tiny scholars. The following are the figures for ages above 10: Eleven years, 36,775; 12 years, 47,471; 13 years, 18,556; 14 years, 1787; ages not stated, 817—making a total of 104,589 employed in a similar way to the above-mentioned. The rate of pay for the child-worker is very interesting reading, and tells its own tale. A total of 17,084 children earned sixpence per week each; 47,273, sixpence to a shilling; 40,240, 13 pence to 2 shillings; 19,757, 2 to 3 shillings; 4927, 3 to 4 shillings; 1813, 4 to 5 shillings; and 805, 5 to 6 shillings. Sometimes a meal would be added. It will be seen that nearly three-fourths of these children earned less than half a dollar per week. The hours of labor as ascertained by this inquiry, though open to grave doubt as to their accuracy, are as follows: 39,355 children were said to be employed under ten hours per week; 60,268 from ten to twenty hours; 27,008 from twenty-one to thirty hours; 9778 from thirty-one to forty hours; 2390 from forty-one to fifty hours, and the remainder from fifty to eighty hours."

Such a condition is to be deplored, but at the present age it seems unavoidable in the thickly populated cities. Want is there; self-preservation is the first law, and there is no other alternative for the poor but work, work, work, from the cradle to the grave.

LARGE LAND DEAL.

Announcement that several Duluth, Minneapolis and Iowa capitalists have purchased 1,000,000 acres of land in the great Saskatchewan valley in the Canadian Northwest and will proceed at once to place it upon the market for colonization purposes. This land is the great part of the land grant of the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatchewan railroad, and includes some of the finest wheat raising land in the Northwest. Some of the heaviest yields of No. 1 hard wheat ever recorded in the Northwest have been reported from that section, and when the newly organized company carries out its plans there will undoubtedly be a rush of settlers to get the pick of the lands. There are excellent railroad facilities and the new company proposes to erect elevators and provide all necessary facilities for shipping the products of the farmers who settle upon their lands.

A. D. Davidson and A. D. McRae, of Duluth, are president and secretary, respectively, of the Saskatchewan Valley Land company which will colonize these lands, and Duluth is also represented on the board of directors by George C. Howe and J. L. Washburn. The settlement of the Canadian Northwest must prove of benefit to Duluth commercially, because that great country is naturally tributary to this city, and in the not distant future, when the tariff wall between Canada and the United States has been razed, our business relations with that section will reach large proportions.

THE COAL TRUST.

An interview with George H. Crosby, published in The Herald last week, drew attention to the manner in which the people of Duluth are "held up" by the coal trust. Mr. Crosby urged that the people should take action to bring the matter before President Roosevelt in order that action against the coal trust may be taken through the department of justice of the federal government, the same avenue through which the beef trust is being probed and through which railway freight discriminations to favored shippers were stopped. The attention of Mr. Crosby, as well as other Duluth people, has been directly drawn to the methods of the coal trust by the change in policy that is being pursued this year. Heretofore it has been the custom to reduce the price of hard coal 50 cents a ton at the beginning of spring and raise it to the winter rate again about Sept. 1. This year the price was cut 50 cents a ton on April 1, but it is proposed to raise it 10 cents on the beginning of each month until the old rate is reached—and then possibly it may be jolted a little higher on the ostensible ground that supplies are short and the cost of handling has increased. Of course, the local agents are not to blame, as they act directly under orders from the central corporation in the East.

It is gratifying to notice that a Washington dispatch says that President Roosevelt has decided to go after this coal trust and give it a taste of the Sherman anti-trust law. It has long been known that there is a combination of railroads and mine owners that absolutely controls the anthracite coal fields and regulates the price, but recent developments and the conference of the arbitration committees have developed new facts in regard to the control of the mines, facts which lead the attorney general to believe that this combination is fully as amenable to the law as is the beef trust or any of the railroad combinations. Information which has come to the attention of the president is to the effect that there are half a dozen railroads which are large owners in the coal mines, and that they are in the combine which regulates the price of coal at the seaboard and at every important city in the United States. There is absolutely no suggestion of competition. The various interests are represented on a board, which meets and fixes carrving charges, apportioning the amount to be carried among the various roads party to the combination, and naming the price at which retailers shall put the coal on the market. Any retailer who attempts to sell for less than the trust's price is blacklisted and refused coal. The few independent mine owners are forced to sell at the prices of the trust, otherwise the railroads which control the situation refuse to carry their product at the rates granted to the other shippers.

If these facts—for they undoubtedly are facts—can be proven by indisputable evidence, the attorney general may be able to make it decidedly warm for the coal trust and possibly force its dissolution.

An important contribution to scientific data bearing on the necessity of Sunday rest from labor has been made by a Pennsylvania railroad official. He selected two groups of laborers from the working force of a certain freight house controlled by his road. He measured the working capacity of each group in terms of tons handled daily for a week. On Sunday one group rested; the other worked as usual. On the following Monday the men who had been continuously at service showed a decrease of 10 per cent in efficiency as compared with the previous Monday and each day after their comparative delinquency became greater. The men who had their Sunday respite, on the other hand, were as valuable to the company the second week as the first.

When Mr. Carnegie says that "trade does not care a fig for the flag—it's the dividends that count," he simply states a plain, every-day fact, and one strikingly illustrated in the American purchase and consolidation of English steamship lines. The idea that trade follows the flag is fanciful to the last degree.

A bit of history will be preserved in the inscription on the pedestal of the bronze statute of Richard Parks Bland, shortly to be erected at his old home at Lebanon, Mo. It reads as follows: "I do speak for the great masses of the Mississippi valley when I say that we will not submit to the domination of any political party, however much we may love it, that lays the sacrificing hand upon silver and demonetizes it." No more fitting inscription could be chosen for a man whose political life was nearly wholly devoted to "the silver cause."

The Virginia farmers complain that they cannot get labor enough to warrant planting as much tobacco as they could profitably grow. This scarcity of farm labor in Virginia is getting chronic. The negroes are depended upon, but they do not supply the demand; meanwhile, white laborers in the North will not go South to work side by side with a class of people that the Southern whites look down upon.

Havana will be a gay city when Palma is inaugurated president. American rule has cleaned up the town until it is almost "the City Beautiful." Triumphal arches are being erected all over the Cuban capital and the decorations are planned on a large scale. The merchants and business men are contributing liberally to the fund for these purposes.

The folly of being in too great a hurry has again been illustrated. The American commander was preparing to liberate the entire bunch of 84 Moro prisoners captured in Mindanao, but they got in a hurry to leave and he found it necessary to shoot 35 of them.

Senator Hanna is evidently in earnest in his efforts to save Rathbone. He now threatens to divulge some secrets if the president refuses to help out his friend.

Although he is now 82 years old, Senator Pettus, of Alabama, expects to be re-elected for another term of six years in the fall.

A Colorado court has decided that women have not the same rights as men to enter saloons, and yet women can vote in Colorado.

Miss Lulu Silence, of St. Louis, was married last week, and now her name is Mrs. John W. Gabb. Comment is superfluous.

With Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma admitted to the Union, there will be forty-eight stars in the flag.

The Des Moines News says you ought not to speak of the ice trust as a warm contribution.

JAMES J. HILL'S AMBITION.

Sauk Rapids Sentinel: For some ten years prior to 1876, Northern Minnesota was continuously having its hopes raised as to railroad construction by reason of large bonuses, and all sorts of concessions offered, and was continuously being disappointed by abandonments of work begun, and by repeated extensions of time for consummation secured by the land-grant companies holding from settlement and taxation all the odd numbered sections. Discouragement and desperation were prevailing in the North, when in 1875 and 1876, a determined raid, having its origin in St. Cloud, was begun in the legislature against the old St. Paul and Pacific company to force immediate construction in the right direction, or immediate forfeiture.

During this contest which terminated most successfully to Northern Minnesota interests, James J. Hill, who was then better known in St. Paul and the Red River valley than elsewhere, had made known to a few persons that he was connected with men of capital who would complete the St. Paul and Pacific railway from St. Paul to Winnipeg if given a fair opportunity to do so. While Mr. Hill's assurances were not then, as now, known to be worth their size in gold, he was given, in the successful legislation, the opportunity he desired, and the result the world knows. With that legislation, and the resulting action of Mr. Hill there began an era of hopeful progress in Northern Minnesota through railway construction which has enlarged and extended to a degree and in a manner unequalled in the history of the world: That is to say, no other unaided person has caused to be built unaided by subsidies, or grants of land, so many miles of road, nor facilitated the settlement and cultivation of so great an area of wild land, nor furnished so much work to well-paid laborers since the world begun.

Twenty-five and thirty years ago it appeared to be to the extravagant ambition of Mr. Hill to connect St. Paul and Winnipeg by rail. Having since done many times more than that—covering Minnesota with roads and connecting the great oceans, his present ambition is to direct the traffic of the greatest part of the civilized world over the lines he has built or controls. To accomplish this extraordinary undertaking he is having constructed the largest freighting steamships in the world to connect his railway lines at Pacific coast ports with the great Asiatic and intermediate ports, having, through personal representatives, established amicable relations with the various officials and great mercantile establishments in China, Japan, Siberia and other countries, in this great undertaking, which is of such vital importance to the agricultural and mechanical producers of the United States. Mr. Hill has very powerful opposing interests to contend with, among which are the Suez canal, and the numerous and wealthy Atlantic steamship lines, the Nicaragua and Panama canal propositions, but most particularly the more Southern lines of railway crossing the United States and leading to San Francisco and there connecting with established Pacific steamboat lines. Those railway lines combine and join interests to draw traffic from all territory north of them and to strip our lines of business. Mr. Hill is contending, not only to hold the traffic of our home lines, but, through the Burlington system and Northern Pacific, and through the several instrumentalities named to make these lines, passing by our doors, the greatest, and thereby the cheapest thoroughfares in the world, which significant fact is of vital importance to all within their scope, in the matter of general utility, and in enhancing the value of property.

But however important to the state has been this development, from the beginning demagogues and political aspirants needing votes have always been ready with pretexts for inciting the rabble to hostile action, and political parties often yield meekly to the rabbic when corporations can be punished; and Mr. Jill has had his full share of opposition of that character. His ambition for the accomplishment of great results, however, has led him on until he now stands at the very head in the railroad world; and in the upbuilding of Minnesota, he will in future years be regarded as having, by far, excelled all others. Under these conditions, present and prospective, he can regard with complacencey the efforts to make political capital at his expense.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Reform is lots of fun til you have to practive it on yourself.

One member can begin an argument, but the whole family can't end it.

No man can keep on being a sinner without the money to support his sinning.

It makes a man's blood run cold to hear one woman drive a bargain with another.

Persuasive Power of Money.

Chicago Chronicle: Senator Money has succeeded in having the prosecution dismiss the case against him in which he was charged with stabbing a Washington street car conductor. Money, it thus appears, is powerful in more senses than one.

Settling Some Doctors' Bills.

Philadelphia Record: There will be no professional wrangling and jangling over the Buffalo doctors' bill in the McKinley case. They will get $31,000 out of an appropriation by congress of $50,000 for the obsequies, and are satisfied therewith. So ends what promised at one time to develop into a squeeze of the government, with history repeating itself.

The Face In The Smoke

By Blanche Maude Heywood.

(Copyright, 1902, W. R. Hearst.)

There was an unusual flutter about Winnifred Dean's lips as her aunt stopped sipping her chocolate and looked at her. The pause was ominous, but when Mrs. Madrox spoke, her voice was modulated low and gave no hint either of surprise or displeasure, for she was a clever woman, and always felt the ground carefully beneath her feet.

She leaned back in her chair and smiled.

"I thought you were rather cordial toward operas, Winnie," she said; "but suit yourself about going."

And as her niece left the room she went over to the piano and played softly a few bars of the ballet music from "Sylvia." The strains floated after the girl, and she said half aloud to herself,

"I have more than a suspicion that you, Aunt Lenn, are thinking things you wont say, but thinking is very inappropriate just now. Ah, me! I wish I could forget! To laugh and jest—that is all we are made for—is excellent in theory; I like it; but I hate not to be able to carry it out."

Then she sighed again. Upon her table was a letter from her betrothed, and two boxes. She toyed absently with the letter a moment and then broke the seal and read:

"Awfully sorry not to see you tonight, dearest, but am called out of town on pressing business. I send you a box of violents. Your devoted Phil."

"It strikes me that you, Phil Swayne, are carred out of town very often, and that business is awfully democratic and levelling," she said; "but in this instance I bless it, for now I will go to the opera and forget my devoted Phil."

She rang the bell for her maid.

"Marie," she said, "you may tell my aunt, Mrs. Madox, that I will accompany her to the opera, and in an hour come and dress me."

Then she opened the box of flowers that Phil Swayne had sent her, but they were not violets. They were poppies, great scarlet popples. She pushed the box from her and took up the other box.

In it lay a bunch of wild asters, delicate purple, with golden hearts. On what happy fields those flowers had grown! She buried her face in them, and stood with the purple blossoms against her heart, let as she had beside the stream in the alder's shade, he and she, and the purple asters peeping up at them, through the long summer grasses.

"Oh, Tom, Tom, Tom, my dear, my darling," she cried, "you belong to the things of the long ago—but I loved you then and I love you now, with a love that will never grow old."

He must be near, for no one else could have sent her the asters. She thought of Phil Swayne, and a shiver of mortal agony went to her heart.

The odor of the poppies oppressed her. Their gorgeous coloring scored her eyes like flame. She put out her hand to push them farther from her, the box tottered, and the flowers fell a great splash of color on the floor, with a little white note lying on top.

Mechanically Winnefred Dean bent and picked it up. Her blue eyes blazed with anger. She trod upon the popples and crushed them under her feet.

The man who had professed to love her, whose wife she had promised to be, had dared to send popples to her rival. He had even gone further, and made business a ruse to join a country house-party, where she was staying—and they would both be at Mrs. Hyland's ball—

"He thought I and Aunt Lena would be on our way to Palm Beach, but you, Phil Swayne, will find that I will be never more completely present in my life, and then"—she said.

"Rollington," said Joe Dale, "why do you smoke such a confounded pipe? That little old man carved on the bowl is disturbing, by Jove, he seems to be uncanny."

"I like it," answered Tom Rollington, and he puffed more slowly. "It once belonged to a wizard in India."

"Well, it has a curious effect on me. I must get out of its way," answered the other, and he seating himself out of the club.

"And so the queer old pipe had an effect on others," Tom Rollington mused to himself. He had begun to think that pipe was bewitched. He had grown suspicious of it when in Paris, and now that he was back in New York it was more freaky than ever.

Tom Rollington blew the smoke through its bowl with a sigh and gave a great start.

He tried to keep his eyes steady, but he could not, for right before him was a face wreathed around by the smoke.

A girl's face, with wonderful gold hair and dreamy eyes—a face of breathing loveliness. The face of the woman he loved? The face that had broken through all his dreams of life!

Two great tears gathered in his honest gray eyes, and he was not ashamed to let them roll down his face, and then the smile on the face in the smoke changed to such a look of sorrow that the smoker's heart grew still softer and he forgot the letter that brought him back his ring.

That dear face! He would forego all his hopes of heaven just to see her again. He went into the street and bought a bunch of purple asters and sent them to her.

The curtain had just gone down after the first act when Tom Rollington took his seat in the opera house. He looked about a bit, then pulled himself together and looked hard at a box on his right.

How his blood tingled, how his heart leaped, for there, so near that he could reach out his long arms and lift her over to him, sat Winnefred Dean, in a waste silk gown, how beautifully her neck and shoulders rose out of it. To the left of her low bodice, resting on her soft white flesh was the bunch of purple asters.

Tom Rollington's heart grew softer and softer. He rose and went over to her. She held out both little hands to him.

"Tom," she said, and her eyes asked another question.

"My little heart," he answered. But Mrs. Madox interposed. They were due at Mrs. Spencer's dance, would Maj. Rollington go? At a look from Winnie Tom assented.

When he lifted her from the carriage after the dance was over, he held her just an instant to whisper: "At 10 tomorrow. You will not fail me, love of my life?"

"No, Tom," she answered; "just because—because I love you"—

When Phil Swayne got home he found a little package on his table. He opened the little white box and there, looking up was the ring he had given Winnefred Dean. Not a word—that was deuced odd!

He seized his hat and rushed wildly off to see her, but Miss Dean and her aunt had gone out with Maj. Rollington. Phil Swayne ground his teeth at the sound of Rollington's name. So she had gone out. He had always thought she liked that other man.

Somehow he had never felt so uncomfortable in his life as he did that night at Mrs. Hyland's ball. He looked at Nell Melton and wondered how he could ever have fancied her.

Just then the butler announced Maj. Rollington, Mrs. Rollington, Mrs. Madox. There was a hush, then the fashionable world recovered and crowded around them, but Phil Swayne pushed his way through them in a dazed way.

"Winnie! Winnie!" he gasped. "Is—is it true that you have left me nothing to"—

"Oh, yes; I have Phil," she answered. "I have left you a box of poppies, and I—I have married the other man."

WILL TELL THINGS.

Hanna Promises to Divulge Some Interesting Facts.

Washington, May 12.—"If the president doesn't settle this Rathbone business by May 20, I want you newspaper men to come to me and I'll give you some facts and figures about Gen. Wood's expenses at Santiago that will be spicy reading."

Thus spoke Senator Hanna Saturday. He has been working hard with Roosevelt to get a review or pardon for his friend, the former chief of the Cuban postal service.

AT THE HOTELS

W. H. Bradley, of Tomahawk, Wis., is at the Spalding. Mr. Bradley was one of the pioneer lumbermen of the Tomahawk region, and subsequently engaged in the paper-making business at Tomahawk. He owns large land and industrial interests in the upper Wisconsin river valley.

James Massie, Manitoba government grain inspector, arrived at the St. Louis this morning from Winnipeg. He says that Friday's heavy snow was general all over Manatoba, and that the soil in the wheat country is reported too wet for seeding.

Editor Fred J. Stevens of the Grand Rapius Magnet arrived at the McKay this morning on his way home from Mount Clemens, where he has been to take the baths. He is feeling much beter.

Mme, Nevada Palmer, the concert singer, Dr. R. Palmer, and Leon Moreau arrived at the Spalding last night.

George M. Patterson, of Aitkin, is a guest at the St. Louis.

James J. Bezenek, of St. Paul, mechanical engineer of the Pioneer Fuel company, is at the McKay.

G. N. Welshius, a Stillwater logger, is at the St. Louis.

At the Spalding: H. P. Louden, W. F. Smith, Henry Monsch, Minneapolis; W. E. Black and wife, Fosston; W. G. McFarlane, Winnipeg; Sam Eckstein, Chicago; Dr. Henry Hutchinson, St. Paul; C. G. Rogers, Lockport, N. Y., and Richard . Mattson, Philadelphia.

J. M. Wiser, Fred Jones, . . Hatch, E. H. Holmes, St. Paul; William G. Muller, Chicago; F. W. Brownness, Minneapolis; F. Houghton, Racine; Henry Silvo, Kendall; W. E. Weeks, Grand Rapids, and Robert M. Cleminson, Marquette, are at the St. Louis.

A. S. Hyman, Milwaukee; Clarence Dennis, Ashland; Alice B. Van Auken, Lansing, Mich.; J. H. Friday, Mosinee; Barney Keegan, St. Paul; Jack Cahill, Ashland; D. J. Murphy, and W. E. Flanigan, St. Paul, are at the McKay.

THE DAKOTAS.

Boy Accidentally Killed Sister On Farm Near Langdon.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Langdon—Shortly after 6 o'clock Friday night, at the farm home of William Kinna, four miles west of town, a fatal shooting accident occurred, the victim being the 6-year-old daughter of Kinna, who was killed by the discharge of a shotgun in the hands of her brother, aged 9. They were playing around the barn, where the gun was hanging and was only obtained by the children climbing after it. The barrels of the gun were supposed to have been empty. The charge took effect in the face of the girl, who died after suffering a few hours.

Grafton — The discussion regarding drainage culminated in a large and enthusiastic meeting. Mayor Leistikow presided and state that the meeting had been called to determine whether the drainage system should be put in by direct taxation or by bond issue. The subject was thoroughly discussed by Senator Cashel, Attorneys Gray and Sinkler and it was the unanimous decision of the meeting that the city council be authorized to call a special election to vote upon the issuance of the sewerage bonds. The question of paving was also discussed and it was agreed to make all the improvements immediately and not have the streets torn up but once. The election will take place about June 1.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Aberdeen—Seventy-five carloads of cattle went through here last night to Evarts for transfer across the Missouri to the range beyond the Standing Rock reservation. This is the first shipment of young stock from Texas to go to the range this spring, though there have been others for this side of the Missouri.

Deadwood—Laura, the 6-year-old daughter of Mrs. Carl Cedarholm, of Deadwood, was severely burned while playing around a bonfire. Her clothing caught fire and her face and neck, hands and one side were badly seared and blistered. James Munn, the contractor, was attracted by her cries. She was running frantically about the yard, thus fanning the fire to a fury. Mr. Munn's hands were severely burned in putting out the fire in the girl's clothing. There is fear that the injuries to the child may prove fatal.

Redfield—The May term of the circuit court for Spink county is now in session here, Judge J. H. McCoy, of Aberdeen, presiding. The most interesting civil suit is that of James Avery, a prominent farmer in the southern part of the county, against Mrs. Esther Nichols. The suit is for damages in the amount of $10,000 for alleged slander. There are some forty witnesses to be examined. Mrs. Nichols is said to have accused Avery of an infamous crime.

Parker—C. G. Pratt, an old resident, has received word that he is one of the chief heirs to the estate of the late Daniel Wells, of Milwaukee. The whole estate is worth from thirty to fifty millions and Mr. Pratt, who is a nephew of Mr. Wells, will get enough to make him one of the wealthy men of South Dakota.

Scotland—The proposition to bond the town for $10,000 for the purpose of building a new school house was carried by a vote of 112 to 20. A light vote was cast. Farmers in this vicinity have started planting corn. A larger acreage will be planted than last year.

IN MICHIGAN.

Big Sturgeon Caught By Fisherman Off Poplar Point.

Menominee—Frank Rasor, a young fisherman, caught a sturgeon weighing 125 pounds in his pound net which he had placed off Poplar Point. He experienced great difficulty in getting the fish in, as it beat about vigorously. Owing to its size and weight he could not well carry the fish in his boat, so he fastened a rope around its head and towed it ashore. This is the first sturgeon caught in this part of the bay for a long time.

George H. Smith, the boon companion and friend of Archie V. Freeman, while in Mexico, is being eagerly sought by the Chicago police for embezzlement. Circulars bearing the description and portrait of Smith have been sent out and a reward offered for his capture. Smith and Freeman had gay times together while they were in Orizaba, Mexico. They lived in the same hotel and might have been together today in Argentine Republic and not Detective Schumacher appeared upon the scene and arrested Freeman, who was using the name of Norton.

The Evening Leader started a penny paper Saturday. This is something new in this part of the country, there being no other penny daily in Northern Wisconsin or the Northern Peninsula of Michigan.

Houghton—The Houghton council has acted very favorably upon two suggestions made in the intercsts of the people generally in the village. At its meeting the council passed an ordinance to tax all transient traders, peddlers and representatives of outside business houses who sell goods in Houghton. The other suggestion that the council has taken favorable action on is the cow nuisance. East as well as West Houghton people have made numerous complaints about the freedom of the bovines on the streets. The council now says that owners of cows must keep their animals off the public highways or the cows will be taken in charge by the village poundmaster.

Ishpeming—Because of the heavy drain in the direction of the Maas, Negaunee and Regent mines, Teal lake, from which the city secures its water supply, is this spring much lower than it was a year ago. The boathouses built along its banks are high and dry, and there are some fears that the city's water supply will be materially affected, although the lake is fed by springs. At the three mines the water is causing considerable trouble, particularly at the Maas, where a shaft is being sunk through quicksand, through which water constantly bubbles, it requiring the efforts of several pumps or large capacity to keep the water down.

Because of the appointment of a new superintendent of schools, the boys of the high school are up in arms and the people of the city are generally with them. The boys have announced their intention of playing no more football or of participating in the Upper Peninsula athletic meet to be held in this city the latter part of the month, and many of them have declared they will quit school altogether at the end of the term. Dr. G. J. Sweetland, former principal, has been acting as superintendent since the recent resignation of Dr. Mayne and it was generally supposed he would be appointed to the position for the coming year. Instead, the board engaged Professor Scribner, of Dunkirk, N. Y.

PRICES GO UP.

All Things In Iron and Steel Being Advanced.

Pittsburg, May 12.—Builders' hardware prices have been sent up fully 20 per cent within a few weeks. This is said to have been arranged before the new consolidation of hardware interests was perfected, and is the sequence of the higher prices in all raw materials.

The furnace operators give little credit to the repuort that the organized blast furnace workers will on June 1 stand out for an 8-hour instead of the time-honored 12-hour working rule. An important group of the furnace operators had had no official notice of such intention. The work of the blast furnace worker is merely labor, and radical action on a demand for four hours less work at the pay for twelve hours would certainly be a short-lived affair.

Executives of the American Federation of Labor, with which the Blast Furnace and Smelter Workers' association is affiliated, last month ordered that no move be made on May 1, suggesting to the furnace operators for June 1, but in no known instance has this been done.

Some of the heavy foundry iron producers are demanding a much higher rate. The announcement was made by a leading interest that it would sell no foundry iron of the No. 2 grade for delivery before the end of the year at a price less than $22 a ton. On the other hand important Pittsburg purchasers say that they have bought this grade of iron in the fortnight past at $20.25 the ton.

Bessemer iron is also somewhat higher in price regardless of the efforts of the leading producers to keep a check on anything like artificial values. The iron is so very scarce that the higher prices are practically forced on buyers turning to old material to fill their needs find that the prices have gone up sharply in sympathy.

Most of the available pig iron is sold till the end of the year. The furnaces have not been able to keep up to specifications, with the result that steel mills have been running short of their normal output.

Within a few days there have been several transactions in rails reflecting the condition of the market. One of the leading producers, finding that he had two car lots of standard sections of second grade ready for delivery in the East and not satisfactory to the original buyer, disposed of them at a price equivalent to $31 the ton at the mill. Ordinarily these rails would be worth 5 per cent less than the association price of $28. At the same time old steel rails for rerolling are worth from $26 to $24, and iron $27, while old steel rails good for relaying are worth $28 the ton and upward.

PREFERS GOOD MEALS

To Husband and Beautiful Hortense Rejects Henning.

Indianapolis, May 12.—Miss Hortense Abromet, who is in jail here on the charge of arson, received a letter from a Piqua (Ohio) man which contained a proposal of marriage. From other sources came several boxes of candy and a bouquet of carnations. The name signed to the letter is "Harry Henning, Piqua, Ohio," and it reads as follows:

"My Dear Friend, Miss Hortense Abromet: Well, my friend, I have seen your picture in the Cincinnati Enquirer and I read about you, and I thought that you would like to leave and get away from that place. I like your picture very well. Now, if you want to get acquainted with a nice young man of 25 just write and let me when you come out of the trouble, and if you want me to I will send you a ticket to come here. I go not think you will have any friends to amount to anything. I am hunting for a match to suit me. I would like to have you come to Piqua. It is only a short distance to come, and you can write as long as you care. Send me one of your pictures and I will send one to you. Well, Miss Hortense, I have written all for this time. If you are pleased, answer this letter. Good-by; best to you and I hope you will come."

The leter is poorly written and almost illegible in places. With Miss Abromet in the jail are Mrs. Julia C. Herman, an alleged blackmailer, and Mrs. Frank Robinson, a confessed forger. All three of the women are of striking appearance and well educated, and a bond of friendship has been formed betwen them during their imprisonment. The letter was thoroughly enjoyed by the trio. Miss Abromet said she would not accept Mr. Henning's proposition. She also said that she preferred a good meal to a husband, as she still cannot accustom herself to prisoner's fare.

STONE DEAD.

Lieutenant Governor of Wisconsin Succumbed to Cancer.

Watertown, Wis., May 12.—Jesse Stone, lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, died at 8:17 o'clock last night after a lingering illness, from cancer of the stomach. Mr. Stone spent some time in the South in the hope of getting relief, but without avail. On his return North he underwent an operation in a Chicago hospital, where the real cause of his ailment was ascertained. After the operation he was removed to his home in Watertown, and death had been expected for several days.

Jesse Stone was a capitalist, banker and manufacturer, and was born Aug. 23, 1836, in Lincoln, Lincolnshire, England, coming to this country at the age of 5 years.

He was twice elected to the office of lieutenant-governor of Wisconsin on the Republican ticket. He served three terms in the state assembly and held various other offices of trust. He was one of the delegates to the National Republican convention in 1888 and also in 1892, and was a member of the Republican state central committee from 1884 to 1894. He received the title of colonel during Governor Heard's administration, serving on his official staff. He was also prominent in Masonic circles.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

United States Ambassador von Meyer at Rome cables the state department to the effect that Consul Person has informed him of the arrest of Clara Taylor, the woman charged with the abduction of her niece, Margaret Taylor, and of her incident in jail at San Remo.

Word was received of the death at St. Martins, B. C., on Friday night of James Ross, who was 111 years old. On the occasion of his 110th birthday the municipality of St. Johns presented him with an easy chair.

A complete jail delivery occurred at Mansfield, Ohio, Sunday night. Charles Burkett, Niles Beal, Edward Melchoir, Albert Mackley and G. W. Burkhart escaping from the Richland county jail. Both the outer door and door to the inside corridor were locked. Sheriff Payne's little daughter was alone in the jail at the time. Bloodhounds are on the trail of the fugitives.

Walter Spradley shot into a large filled with excursionists at Spottsville, Ky., Sunday and killed Deputy Sheriff Jesse Mitchell. The crew with difficulty kept women from leaping into the river. Spradley was arrested.

There were no attempts to play a game of professional baseball at Cleveland Sunday by the Cleveland American league team. The baseball people decided not to oppose the sheriff's determination to stop any attempt at a game, and President Kilfoyle of the local team said that in deference to the court before whom the argument for an injunction was made, and which has not yet rendered a decision, no game would be played.

FIENDISH

Assault of Italian Fireman on a Hotel Butcher.

Bridgeport, Conn., May 12.—Lawrence Bresano, a fireman in the Atlantic hotel, crept into the meat room yesterday morning and split the skull of Michael Tornish with a meat cleaver. He then took a large butcher knife and slashed the body, cutting off the nose and ears, gouging out the eyes and cutting strip after strip of flesh off the face of the victim. When the upper part of the body was unrecognizable, Bresano jumped on it and danced from the head to the feet until the arrival of the police, who were attracted by the frenzied yells of the murderer. Bresano then turned his attention to his would-be captors, and was not subdued until one policeman broke a club over his head and another knocked him senseless to the ground with the brass buckle of a belt. Bresano at police headquarters acknowledged the murder, and said he felt better for having committed it. It is believed that trouble over a woman led him to kill his fellow-workman.

MAJ. SCOTT

To Remain as Indian Agent at Leech Lake Agency.

The Herald has received the following from Maj Scott, the acting Indian agent at Leech Lake agency:

Leech Lake Agency, Minn., May 9, 1902.—To the Editor of The Herald: I enclose herewith a copy of the telegram this day received, which I request that you give space in your paper. A report has been published in Minnesota papers, I think including your paper, that I was to be relieved because I was not competent to handle the business here and Capt. Mercer was to be reinstated. This I promptly referred to the depatment, to which this is a reply. Very respectfully,

G. L. SCOTT,
Major Tenth Cavalry, Acting Indian Agent.

Washington, D. C., May 9, 1902.—Maj. Scott, Acting Agent, Leech Lake, Minn: The department informally advises me that there is absolutely no shadow of truth in the published report that you are to be relieved as agent by Capt. Mercer or anyone else.

A. C. TONNER,
Acting Commissioner.

MALARIA An Invisible Enemy to Health

Means bad air, and whether it comes from the low lands and marshes of the country, or the filthy sewers and drain pipes of the cities and towns, its effect upon the human system is the same.

These atmospheric poisons are breathed into the lungs and taken up by the blood, and the foundation of some long, debilitating illness is laid. Chills and fever, chronic dyspepsia, torpid and enlarged liver, kidney troubles, jaundice and biliousness are frequently due to that invisible foe, Malaria. Noxious gases and unhealthy matter collect in the system because the liver and kidneys fail to act, and are poured into the blood current until it becomes so polluted and sluggish that the poisons literally break through the skin, and carbuncles, boils, abscesses, ulcers and various eruptions of an indolent character appear, depleting the system, and threatening life itself.

The germs and poisons that so oppress and weaken the body and destroy the life-giving properties of the blood, rendering it thin and watery, must be overcome and carried out of the system before the patient can hope to get rid of Malaria and its effects.

WINE FOR THE LADY

Was Charged to Account of James Whitcomb Riley.

Gay Dentist Made Hoosier Poet Pay For the Liquor.

Sensational Stories Told By Two Alleged Blackmailers.

Indianapolis, May 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Herman, the alleged "badger game" people, who were arrested at the instigation of Dr. Sabil J. Stembel, who claimed that he had been robbed of $72 and a diamond ring and then forced at the point of a revolver to write for a draft calling for $7000, were sent to the grand jury in a police court trail that lasted for five hours. There were some developments of a sensational nature.

Mrs. Herman, who is a handsome woman, formerly of Lynchburg, Va., testified that she and Dr. Stembel had fallen in love with each other and that after they had been caught by Herman in Mrs. Herman's apartments in the Oxford flats, Stembel asked her to elope with him to Colorado, and that in two years she could secure a divorce and marry him.

Stembel said he had about $25,000 in ready money, and Mrs. Herman said she was offered a life of ease if she would accept his proposition. From the testimony submitted, Mrs. Herman and Stembel have had several "frolics" during the past two months, in which wine flowed freely.

Mrs. Herman is well educated, and she spoke for an hour in her own behalf, detailing her relations with Dr. Stembel, much of which cannot be repeated. She said at her first visit to Dr. Stembel's office he gave her whisky to alleviate pain which she suffered in having dentistry work done. She became intoxicated, she said, and Stembel took advantage of her. She also said that he had caused strained relations between herself and husband by telling falsehoods regarding Herman's alleged actions with other women. At each visit to the physician's office whisky and champagne were served, and indirectly it was charged to James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier.

"He called his whisky Riley's Honeydew," she said, "and then he explained that Riley was one of his customers, and could afford to pay for it because he made over $10,000 a year. Riley had a debit on the books at one time of $40, and in my presence Stembel said 'Let's make Jim pay for a bottle of champagne.' Stembel altered the account on the book and made it read $45. He then gave me $5 and I purchased a bottle of Golden Seal and a quart of whisky.

"That night he came to my apartments by arrangement, as my husband said he was going to Marion and would not be back. Stembel drank heavily of the whisky and wine and then produced a bottle of blackberry wine, which he had brought to him. He became intoxicated and so did I. While the drinking was going on he slipped his diamond ring on my finger. We intended to go out for supper, but Stembel had changed his clothing and left all his money at home, and he would not use mine. He could not have been robbed, as he did not have a cent."

Stembel admitted that he had worn Mrs. Herman's pin for several days, but he emphatically denied all of Mrs. Herman's statements. He said he had never made any protestations of love to the woman, and did not ask her to leave her husband. Herman was not put on the stand. Captain of Detectives Gerber testified that in a preliminary examination Herman told him that he knew his wife and Stembel had fallen in love with each other.

"I made up my mind," Herman said, "that I would have some money out of Stembel, and I made a demand on him for $1000. I did not have a reviliver. I told Stembel if the money was forthcoming I would not be robbed. He was cutting up with Mrs. Herman, and James Whitcomb Riley was unconsciously paying the bill."

The court was satisfied that Mrs. Herman did not rob Stembel and dismissed the charge of larceny. The couple were then held on the charge of attempting to blackmail under bond of $2500 each. The Hermans lived in St. Louis before going to Davenport, Iowa, and were recommitted to jail.

LEADER

Of Society Charged With Exposing Babe to Inclement Weather.

Danville, Ky., May 12.—A sensational indictment was filed against Mrs. Mary Greene, a widow and prominent society leader of Perryville, ten miles west of Danville.

Crying and almost chilled to death a tiny baby boy was discovered on the doorstep of Ben Rains, three miles west of Danville, four weeks ago. The discovery was made about midnight and the infant was thinly clad and appeared to be on the doorstep several hours. W. G. Goode, a well-known farmer, adopted the child and named it J. C. W. Beckham Goode. With the assistance of the officers an investigation was made by Mr. Goode and sufficient facts were obtained to warrant the indictment of Mrs. Greene on the charge of exposing the infant to inclement weather. Until recently she has been living in Lexington, having moved to that city some years ago from Perryville.

It is alleged she came to Danville on the night train and that she drove to the home of the Rains in company with a Danville society man who has left town since the investigation by the grand jury began. Miss Amanda Crain, a Lexington nurse, was before the grand jury to tell what she knew about the case. It is currently reported that a Central Kentucky traveling man is the faher of the child and further investigation will be instituted.

Mrs. Greene is a sister-in-law of W. W. Greene, president of the bank of Perryville. Her husband has been dead three years and she is the mother of five little girls.

TOM PLATT

Wants to Stay In United States Senate.

New York, May 12.—Senator Platt in reply to a direct question said if his health continued as good as it is now he would be a candidate for re-election to the United States senate. He takes it for granted that Governor Odell will be renominated. He was asked if Lieutenant Governor Woodruff is to be renominated.

"My understanding is that Lieutenant Governor Woodruff does not desire a renomination," he said. "He is not here to speak for himself, and I don't know as there is anyone in a position to speak for him. I think Senator Higgins would make an acceptable running mate for Governor Odell. Of course, the convention is a long way off."

"Five years ago dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes George S. Marsh, Nocona, Tex. "I took quantities of medicine but nothing helped me. MILLIONS DIVIDED

Mrs. Tevis Conveys Fortune to Heirs Before Death.

Goes to Surviving Children and Dead Son's Offspring.

Baby Hugh, Born After Father's Death, a Millionaire.

San Francisco, May 12.—The will of Miss Susan G. Tevis, which has just been probated here, disposes between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000. By the terms of the testament is divided among her four living children and the two children of her deceased son, Hugh Tevis, her four children each being given one-fifth of her property and the other one-fifth being set apart for her two grandchildren.

Mrs. Tevis, after finishing her will, however, conveyed to the legatees all of her millions, with the exception of about $20,000 worth of personal property, and this is all that remains for administration. The conveyance to each legatee covered the share mentioned for each one in the will.

The possessions thus apportioned were all of the estate with the exception of the family residence, at 1316 Taylor street, which was bequeathed to her son, Harry L. Tevis, and some pieces of jewelry, which were given to several of her children and grandchildren individually.

The children are Harry L. Tevis, of San Francisco; William S. Tevis, of Bakersfield; Mrs. Margaret T. Blanding, wife of Gordon Blanding, and Mrs. Louise T. Charon, of Paris, wife of Frederick W. Sharon. The grandchildren are Alice Boalt Tevis, whose mother was Hugh Tevis' first wife, and Hugh Tevis, son of Mrs. Cornelia Baxter Tevis, his second wife. As Mrs. Tevis owned property worth between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, Baby Hugh, who was born after his father's death, is now a millionaire. The value of the Tevis estate has been estimated as high as $20,000,000, but the probability is that it does not go beyond the $15,000,000 mark.

Florence L. Breckinridge, who is now in Europe, and John C. Breckinridge, the children of Mrs. Charon by her first marriage, were adopted by Mrs. Tevis, but she made no mention of them in her will. Their mother's legacy covers their claims.

The will was made on July 3, 1901, after the marriage of Hugh Tevis to Miss Baxter and his death on the honeymoon trip.

"I purposely omit," said Mrs. Tevis, "to make provision for any child or children who may be born to my deceased son Hugh by his widow, it being my present purpose to make ample provision other than by my will for such child or children."

The will originally gave one-fifth of the estate to Hugh's daughter, Alice Boalt Tevis, and a codicil, dated Aug. 13, 1901, provided that her share should be taken in charge of by her uncles, Harry and William, and be kept in trust for her until she should reach her twenty-fifth year. Another codicil took the place of the one on Feb. 26, 1902, and by it half of her share was given to her infant stepbrother, Hugh.

Harry and William Tevis, who are appointed executors of the will, were designated trustees of Little Hugh's portion also, to keep it for him until he attains the age of 25 years.

The will was witnessed by Frank G. Durm and Fred W. Elsey, and a codicil of February 26 by Edith S. Hunter, of Kentucky, and John S. Durm.

Mrs. Tevis directed that no inventory of the estate should be fed. A similar provision was in the will of her husband, Lloyd Tevis, but an inventory and appraisement were necessary under the law, and so this direction was void.

Lloyd Tevis' estate was appraised in 1899 at $7,873,531.54, but it was understood that the valuations xed by the appraisers were low, and that the estate was conservatively worth $10,000,000. All of the estate was bequeathed to Mrs. Tevis, her husband trusting her to provide for their children. Besides the property which she thus acquired in her own name, she had a separate estate of large value before her husband died. The inventory of Mrs. Tevis' estate, which will be filed in court, will cover merely the comparatively small amount of personal property which she did not transfer to her heirs before her death.

MURDER CLUE.

Well Known Milwaukee Couple Suspected of a Crime.

Milwaukee, May 12.—The mystery surrounding the finding of the body of a full-grown infant in a valise at a Van Buren street boarding house, formerly kept by Miss I. Shea, is still puzzling the police department. However, it is believed that the persons involved in what is thought to be a murder will be apprehended. The officers have a clue which points to a well-known woman and a prominent business man. The valise in which the body was found was first said to be one left at the house by Mrs. Eliza Coffin, a widow, since married.

Two years ago she roomed at 521 Van Buren street. She had only a room there and did not take table board at that place. When she left she was not in debt to the landlady, as she had paid her room rent in advance. At that time the proprietress was a Miss Shea. Mrs. Coffin, after rooming there six months, left and went to do sewing. She was unable to take her trunk and satchel with her, and left them with the understanding that she should pay storage charges. This was two years ago. The body found in the satchel was not badly decomposed. It looked as if it might have been there for eight or nine months, rather than two years.

Mrs. Fay, the present proprietress of the establishment, moved to the house June 4, 1901. The servant girl now engaged at the place worked for both Miss Shea and Mrs. Fay. This girl says that there were two satchels in the house which were similar in some respects, but one was considerably larger than the other. The satchel left by Mrs. Coffin was almost as large as a trunk. The satchel containing some dishes and some clothing belonged to Mrs. Coffin's 14-year-old son. The body was found in a satchel which was much smaller than that owned by Mrs. Coffin and differs from it in several respects, it is said.

CIRCUS IN TROUBLE.

Barnum & Bailey's Employes Mobbed In France.

Beziers, France, May 12.—Barnum & Bailey's circus was the cause of a serious riot here yesterday afternoon. The crowd seeking admission to the performance was greater than the tent could accommodate, and those who were unable to enter began stoning the circus employes, five of whom were injured.

The skull of one was fractured, and he will probably die.

The crowd numbered about 7000. They cut the tent ropes, and several thousand persons forced their way to the arena. The police were powerless to check them.

Troops were called out, and restored order, finally driving the rioters away. The performance was concluded, but at its termination the tents were taken down and arrangements made to start immediately for Carcasonne, the next place on the route.

The circus had trouble similar to that which occurred here at Cette and Norboune.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discoloration of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage which was duly executed and delivered by Charles J. Frederickson and Clara M. Frederickson, his wife, J. F. (or John F.) Fredin and Anna Fredin, his wife, and C. W. Wilson and Augusta Wilson, his wife, mortgagors, to Frank L. Murray, mortgagee, bearing date April fifth (5th), 1894, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on April tenth (10th), 1894, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book eighty (80) of mortgages, on page four hundred eighty-four (484); such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum thereby secured, with interest thereon from April 5th, 1894, and also in the nonpayment of taxes upon the premises described in said mortgage for the year 1894 and subsequent years, which said mortgagors had covenanted to pay in said mortgage, but which became delinquent, and which said mortgagee was compelled to pay, and did pay, as follows: On April 28th, 1899, the sum of $21.96; on May 31st, 1899, the sum of $8.79; on May 31st, 1900, the sum of $7.78, and on May 31st, 1901, the sum of $8.25, no part of which principal, taxes, or interest thereon has ever been paid.

And whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, at the date of this notice, upon said mortgage debt, the sum of two thousand seventy-nine and 10-100 ($2079.10) dollars, principal, taxes paid and interest.

And whereas, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned; and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered forty-nine (49), in block fifty-seven (57), in Duluth Proper, Third division, according to the recorded plat thereof; also lots numbered seven (7) and eight (8), in block six (6), in Martin's Division of Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof, in the register of deed's office for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of St. Louis County Minnesota, at the front door of the court house in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the 11th day of June, A. D. 1902, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and said taxes and interest thereon, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated, March 29th, 1902.

MARKET STRONG

Wheat Started Out Steady and Advanced Nearly a Cent.

Cables Were Firm and the Statistics Somewhat Bullish.

Government Report Was Also Expected to Be Bullish.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 12.—The wheat market was strong again this morning and prices rose nearly 1c before the noon hour. The cables were firm and the statistics were rather bullish while the forthcoming government crop report was also expected to be of a similar tenor. The world's shipments showed a decrease, being 7,794,000 bus against 9,415,000 bus last year, while the breadstuffs on passage fell off 552,000 bus.

After the noon hour there was a slight decline but the market closed fairly strong. There was a decrease of about 1,000,000 bus more than was expected in the visible supply and this stiffened the market.

The Liverpool market closed ½d higher and Paris was unchanged to 1¼c higher.

The decrease in the visible supply was 3,026,000 bus, and the total now is 36,-302,000 bus, against 45,760,000 bus a year ago. Primary receipts of wheat were 360,000 bus, last year, 615,000 bus. Shipments were 225,000 bus, last year, 731,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 1,401,00 bus.

Corn in the Chicago market advanced ⅝c and oats ¾c. Primary receipts of corn were 228,000 bus; last year, 851,000 bus. Shipments, 418,000 bus; last year, 498,000 bus. Clearances were 8600 bus. The visible supply decreased 576,000 bus, and is now 6,157,000 bus, as against 17,268,000 bus a year ago. The world's shipments of corn last week were 4,247,000 bus, as against 3,733,000 bus, the week previous, and 3,760,000 bus last year.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 252 cars, and at Chicago, 12, a total of 264 cars, against 315 last week and 351 last year.

There was active trading in wheat on the Duluth board and the market was strong. It opened unchanged at 76¾c, sold at 76⅞c at 9:50, at 77c-⅛c at 9:40 and advanced to 77-⅛c at 10:38. It sold at 77c at 10:41, and advanced to 77¼c at 11:20, falling to 76⅞c at 12:30, and closing at 77¼c, an advance of ⅝c. Chicago and Minneapolis advanced ⅝c.

Cash sales were 5000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2, and 3½c under for No. 3.

Flax was fairly active and steady most of the morning but toward the close fell off a little. Cash flax declined 1c. September, 1c, while October showed an advance of 1½c. Rye advanced 1c and September oats declined ⅝c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash, 1 hard, 80¾c; 1 northern, 77⅛c; 2 northern, 75½c. 3 spring, 73⅝c; to arrive, 1 hard, 80¾c; 1 northern, 77⅛c; May, 77¼c; July, 75¼c; September, 75c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Everything Hanging Fire In the Grain Markets.

Chicago, May 12.—Grain trade was dull and of a waiting character at the opening today. Everything was hanging fire, pending the issuance of the government crop report this afternoon. July wheat opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 75¼c to 75⅛@⅜c, on firm cables and somewhat bullish statistics. Possibly as much as anything to effect an upturn in prices was the expectation that the forthcoming report would be bullish. There was still a little rain in the Northwest that worried the farmers, but in general experts said the weather was almost ideal. Some small demand on the cash situation sent July up to 75½c, where it steadied. Local receipts were very small, at 12 cars, Minneapolis and Duluth reported 252 cars, making a total for the three points of 264 against 315 last week and 351 a year ago. In passage breadstuffs decreased 552,000 bus. The world's shipments were 7,794,000 bus, compared with 9,415,000 bus last year.

A decrease of 3,026,000 bus in the visible wheat supply, firmness in corn and a gossip of chinch bugs in the Kansas fields sent July wheat up to 76¾c. Trade, however, was rather quiet and prices eased a trifle from the high point. July closed firm ⅝c up, at 75¾@76c.

July corn started unchanged to ¼c higher at 61⅜c to 62c, on slightly better cables and the position of the leading bulls. Statistics were bearish and reports indicated excellent weather for corn. In the face of these arguments, however, July, though quiet in trade, was bulled to 62¼c. Receipts, 95 cars.

Active covering led by St. Louis houses, together with some bulling by the leading bull houses here started some activity in corn and July went up to 63c. Liquidation for profits, however, took off much of the gain and July closed firm, ⅝c up, at 62⅜c.

Corn on passage increased 1,496,000 bus and the world's shipments were 4,247,000 bus against 3,784,000 bus a year ago.

Trade in oats was quiet, but the tone was improved. Shippers were still taking stuff and one clique of operators was trying to bull new July options. July opened unchanged at 37c, and sold to 37¼c. Receipts were 126 cars.

Provisions were still subject to the manipulation that has dominated the pit for several weeks past. Hogs were 5c to 10c lower at the yards, and arrived in liberal numbers. Despite this, prices started rather firm and soon advanced on packers' support, July pork started unchanged to 5c up, at $17.30 to $17.35, and sold to $17.37½. July lard opened unchanged, at $10.25, and July ribs 2½c lower to unchanged, at $9.60 to $9.62½ and advanced to $9.65.

Close, wheat, May, 75¼c; July, 75⅜@7⅜c; September, 74⅝@74¾c; December, 75¾@76c. Corn, May, 61¾c; July, 62¾c; September, 61c; December, 47½c; May (1903), 47⅝c. MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Broad of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, May 12.—There was a alarge and active trade in wheat today and the market ruled firm on covering by shorts as well as good buying for long account. Prices advanced 1c a bus, but a little realizing toward the end of the session caused a slight set-back. The market closed firm, ⅝c higher than Saturday. Liverpool closed firm, ¼d higher for the day. World's shipments were larger than expected, the increase coming from Russia and the Danube. The total was reported at 9,440,000 bus, compared with 8,352,000 bus last week. Our Liverpool house cabled crop prospects in Europe are generally favorable and, if they remain so until harvest, it is estimated the requirements from America will be fully 50,000,000 bus less than from the present crop. The season, however, is generally late. There are a good many complaints received today from Kansas, the weather being too dry. Conditions in the Northwest have improved some. It will be some time before seeding will be completed, and the acreage is generally thought to be less than a year ago. Shorts have been good buyers all day in anticipation of a bullish government report which will be issued this afternoon. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 50 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in corn today and the principal feature of the market was covering by Southwestern shorts. Prices sharply advanced, but free realizing on the bulge caused some set back. The market closed quiet, ⅝c higher than Saturday night. Country offerings were light, cash demand fairly good. Weather generally favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 120 cars.

Trade in oats was light today and there was no special feature to the market which ruled firmer in sympathy with wheat. Country offerings were moderate, cash demand fairly good. The weather generally favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 240 cars.

Provisions opened weak on lower hogs and liberal receipts. The market was given support by one class of brokers, while another class sold lard and ribs freely. Later on covering by shorts by local operators July pork had good advance but quickly declined again and closed easier with the gain for the day on pork small. All options of pork other than July were freely offered at tempting discounts without many sales. It looks as if the market was evening itself up and we look for light volume of trade. The market is too uncertain and too much out of line to be attractive. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 22,000 hogs.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

Sensational Weakness In the Specialties Forced Down Others.

Prices Hardened a Shade and Closing Was Steady.

The Market as a Whole Was Sluggish and Heavy.

New York, May 12.—The opening of the stock market was very irregular and the movement of prices was without consistency. Some of the grain carriers were up a fraction and some declined. The coalers were firm, opening unchanged or at slight advances. Louisville & Nashville lost nearly 2 points. Amalgamated gained about a point and Chicago Great Western preferred "B" 1½.

Prices wavered and then yielded when some of the active specialties weakened. Sugar sold 1⅝ under Saturday's close and Amalgamated lost its rise. Louisville & Nashville, on the other hand, rallied 2½ to 141½. International Power rose 2⅝. International Silver 2 and Rutland preferred and Third Avenue 1. Iowa Central, Lake Erie & Western, North American, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred, New York Air Brake and Pere Marouette declined 1@2 points. Prices hardened again to the best before o'clock. Dealings were very small.

Selling was renewed, forcing some of the coalers, grangers, trunk line and anthracites to new low ground Saturday. Delaware & Hudson broke 3¾, North American 5, Northwestern 4⅞ with a recovery and St. Paul 4. Rise and Sharp declines were made in many of the minor stocks. Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were little affected. Des Moines & Fort Dodge rose 1½. Trade irregular.

Declines of 2½ to 2¾ were scored by Rock Island, Jersey Central and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Rutland pfd, Rio and Reading, under last week. Louisville recovered again to 141. The market as a whole was much neglected, sluggish and heavy.

Stocks were very active and yielding when the high-priced specialties showed sensational weakness. General Electric slumped 21 points, Lackawanna 13, Westinghouse Electric 11, Brooklyn Rapid Transit 9½, American 6, Delaware & Hudson 5, and Sugar, Metropolitan Street Railway, Colorado Fuel, Pullman and Consolidated Gas, 2 to 3 points. Large declines were also made by some of the leading railroads, especially St. Paul, Louisville & Nashville, Union Pacific and New York Central, which fell from 2@2½. Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, 5¼; Northwestern, 6, and New Haven, 8. General Electric, recovered to 318 and there were other violent rallies.

Prices hardened a shade in the general list, but there were continued wide recessions here and there in the inactive list. Long Island dropped 4½. New Jersey Central, Michigan Central, 3; Pittsburg, Cleveland, Columbus & St. Louis, 2½; New Central & St. Louis and C. C. C. & St. L. 2½, and Colorado Southern, 2nd pfd, 1½. Covering by room shorts caused some rallies. The closing was steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Josef to Paine, Webber & Co.: You can not detect any signs of alarm among the coal operators over the prospects of a coal strike. Why? Because they believe there can be no better time to test the questions involved. If a strike is decided upon, we expect at its conclusion to hear less about "Leader Mitchell," the man who has brought on the conflict. This afternoon at 4 o'clock the government crop report of May 1, will come to hand. There is a general belief that it will not be a very favorable showing, but since May 1, meteorological and other conditions have been substantially improved. The bank statement which showed such modest surplus reserves means that a firm money market will continue throughout the week. It is likely that attempts will be made to further reduce loans, but as no broad speculation is in progress, the contraction will not seriously affect the stock market. Calamity shouters are let loose and find material on which to base prophecies of disaster. The Webb Beyer incident has been played upon to the highest limit, but the exaggerated importance attached to a teapot tempest has not served to even ruffle the market.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The strike situation simmers and are only bluffing. The mine owners are determined to either force a strike or make the miners recede from their position. The chances are that the miners will climb down, and that the owners will yield some trifling concessions. Stocks ought to be lower today. Sugar might be bought. T. C. & I. is always a purchase around 61. I hear Western Union is good for a long pull. I continue bullish on Brooklyn Rapid Transit though the 20 point advance from 66 may be delayed. Three points margin ought to hold Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

McEver to Paine, Webber & Co.: I do not see any hurry to buy stocks, especially with the uncertainty as to the coal strike and money situation. I would rather sell on scale up. Watch the growing crops. They will exert more influence over this market more than anything else.

Town Topics: The coal strike and an adverse bank statement should be operative toward a reactionary opening in the stock market this morning. Our advance to exercise caution in trading is reiterated. On declines the Standard dividend paying R. R. issues are purchases. Let industrials alone for the present. We advise the purchase of the coalers on sharp breaks with a subsequent moderate profit-taking. Southern Pacific is safe to buy on any decline. The Wabash issue we place in the same place. Southern Railway common has a bright future, because of the industrial development of the South, and is sure to show good returns if held. Conservative interests look for a short strike. Money flurries may be expected from time to time, but good stocks bought on breaks brought about by bears will show profits when the bears begin to cover crop conditions reasonably favorable.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Copper producers report a good demand for the metal on a basis of 12 cents for lake brands. The Calumet & Hecla people have sold large quantities of the metal at 12½c, notwithstanding reports to the contrary. Some of the largest consumers of the metal report exceedingly small stocks.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: John Stanton says: The present market for Lake Copper is on a basis of 12¼@c. We have made sales at that price."

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—The copper market today was decidedly irregular and weak. There is no disposition on the part of traders to buy stocks, pending a more denite knowledge of labor troubles and an easier money market. Anaconda offers to sell coppers found no buying support, and as a result the market sold off and closed weak. The immediate future for the market does not look brilliant, but for a pull we think the better class of coppers are a purchase on reactions.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 12.—The cotton market opened steady with prices unchanged to 3 points lower, although Liverpool was weak and down 3 points. After the call the market worked higher until July touched 9.17 and August 8.91. During the rest of the first hour, the tendency was downward. At 11 o'clock the market was weak and irregular with July at 9.08 and August at 8.85.

Cotton spot closed quiet and steady; middling uplands, 9¾; middling gulf, 9¾; sales, 1800 bales. Cotton futures closed quiet and steady; May, 9.28; June, 9.10; July, 9.04; August, 8.78; September, 8.31; October, 8.12; November, 8.06; December, 8.06; January, 8.06; February, 8.05.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 12.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balances, $185,850,-102; gold, $98,832,628; silver, $19,793,600; U. S. notes, $7,601,826; treasury notes of 1890, $164,178; national bank notes, $8,991,563; total receipts today, $2,079,093; total receipts this month, $18,948,842; total receipts this year, $483,167,117; total expenditures this day, $2,035,000; total expenditures this month, $17,886,000; total expenditures this year, $416,604,599; deposits in national banks, $122,915,276.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 12.—Close: Money on call, firm, at 6@10 per cent; closing bid and asked, 6@6½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 4½@6 per cent; sterling exchange weak, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.86⅞@4.87 for demand, and $4.84¾@4.85 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85½@4.86 and $4.88@⅞; commercial bills, $4.84@4.85; bar silver, 51½c; Mexican dollars, 41¼c; government bonds, weak; state bonds, inactive; railway bonds, weak.

OYSTER BAY

Getting Ready to Welcome President to His Home.

New York, May 12.—Oyster Bay is getting ready to welcome home the chief magistrate of the nation. The home of President Roosevelt, on Sagamore Hill, is undergoing extensive improvements, the grounds are being put in order, and the outbuildings are being thoroughly renovated.

Mrs. Roosevelt and children are expected about June 8 and the president is to follow as soon thereafter as public business will permit. The Roosevelts will not entertain very lavishly this summer, as Mrs. Roosevelt's health will not permit.

Secretary Cortelyou and Mr. Loeb have leased offices in the Oyster Bay bank building, conditionally, for the summer, and there the official business of the nation will be transcated during the president's stay.

OF COURSE NOT.

Morgans Have Heard Nothing About Manchester Canal.

London, May 12.—The Westminster Gazette says it understands that while there is no question of J. P. Morgan buying the Manchester ship canal, there is a possibility of an agreement by which the vessels of the fleet controlled by Mr. Morgan's syndicate will proceed to Manchester instead of discharging their cargoes at Liverpool. Ships dues and port charges are both considerably lower at Manchester, and the latter city gives greater facilities for the distribution of beef and steel throughout the midlands and the North of Great Britain.

The Morgans informed the Associated Press that they did not know of any negotiations on the subject of the Manchester ship canal until they saw the report in the newspapers.

Homeseeker's Excursions to California.

March 18, April 1 and 15, May 6 and 20, the Northern Pacific railway will sell homeseekers' excursion tickets to all points in California at one fare, plus $2, for round trip tickets, good twenty-one days from date of sale, with stop-over privileges on going journey. For tickets and full information, call at city office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Tug Company Has One of Its Tugs In Commission.

Is Manned By Association Members In Good Standing.

Association as Body Will Stand By Grand Lodge.

The Union Towing and Wrecking company last evening started out the tug H. B. Abbott, manned by Capt. J. P. Thompson as master and Simeon Smith as engineer.

Both men are members of the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association in good standing, but they were not among the employes that went out when the strike was declared.

At the same time the strike is still on, the men having decided at a meeting held Saturday night not to go back to work until they received orders to do so from the grand lodge officers that called the strike. This was something of a surprise to the local tug company, as the expressions of the men during Saturday had led to a belief that they would go back to work. It is understood, however, that the local association has condemned the calling of a general strike, and entered a protest, though being members of the association they have decided to stand by it as regards organization in its fight in behalf of the Cleveland local.

Capt. Thompson, who signed for the tug Abbott yesterday, was master of the Buffalo last year, but did not get on the list this year because the Buffalo did not go into commission. Simeon Smith, the engineer, was employed by the old Inman line as tug engineer.

H. G. Inman, local manager of the tug company, takes exception to a statement in the morning paper to the effect that the company found Capt. Thompson incompetent.

"Capt. Thompson is just as able a man as some of those that have gone out," said Mr. Inman. "In justice to him and to the company the statement ought to be corrected. The fact that he was not employed this year was simply not to the company but to the L. T. P. A. One of the things the association insisted upon when making arrangements for the season at Cleveland was that all of the old men, captains and engineers, should go back in the same tugs they had last year. This the company agreed to. As the Buffalo does not run Capt. Thompson was employed, was not put into commission this year, and probably will not be brought out, this arrangement having been without a berth. That is the reason, and the only reason, he was not employed this spring."

The tug company officers state that while they have but one tug running at present the prospects are good for having others out very soon.

"The deal is rather a hard one on the tugmen," said one of them this morning, "as they have already lost time because of the firemen's strike, and now they are losing more because of the Cleveland trouble, although they have no grievance of their own. Of course it is easy to say that we ought to throw up the association and look out for our own bread and butter, and perhaps we ought, but those who have

PROMPT RELIEF

For the People of Martinique Urged By President Roosevelt.

Special Message Sent to Congress On the Subject.

Treasury, War and Navy Departments Are Acting Jointly.

Washington, May 12.—The president, after a conference this morning with several members of his cabinet, has ordered the war, navy and treasury departments to co-operate in the adoption of steps for the relief of the Martinique sufferers. The state department already is acting through its consuls in that section. The navy transport Dixie will be ready to sail from the Brooklyn navy yard for Martinique on Wednesday. The revenue cutter service also will render all possible aid and having at least two cutters in Southern waters, one will be ordered at once to the Western Antilles. The war department has already on hand at New York a large amount of food supplies, and these probably will be drawn upon. The president has prepared a message which will be submitted to congress today urging an immediate appropriation to which those steps are preliminary and anticipatory.

Later, by the president's direction, orders were telegraphed to the Dixie to load the stores which are to be furnished by the army as rapidly as possible and clear for Martinique at the earliest practicable moment.

After consultation between the secretaries interested, the appropriation of $100,00, which congress is expected to make today for relief of the Martinique sufferers, has been alloted as follows:

$.5,000 to the subsistence department of the army. Commissary General Weston has notified Col. Brainard, the commissary officer at the York depot to expend this fund in the purchase of tea, coffee, sugar and canned soups. Five thousand dollars will be given to Capt. Gallagher, of the commissary department, who will leave Washington immediately to take charge of the stores, and who will go to Martinique on the Dixie and make the distribution in person. Twenty thousand is allotted to the quartermaster's department, and Gen. Luddington has ordered the immediate expenditure of this amount for clothing. $5000 of it being set apart for medicines. All these goods will be loaded on the Dixie.

Following is the text of the cablegrams between Presidents Roosevelt and Loubet on the Martinique disaster:

"Washington, May 10.

"His Excellency M. Emile Loubet, President of the French Republic, Paris:

"I pray your excellency to accept the profound sympathy of the American people in the appalling calamity which has come upon the people of Martinique.

"THEO. ROOSEVELT."

"Paris, May 11.

"President Roosevelt: I thank your excellency for the expression of profound sympathy you have sent me in the name of the American people on the occasion of the awful catastrophe in Martinique. The French people will certainly join me in thanks to the American people.

"EMILE LOUBET."

The president today sent the following message to congress:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: One of the greatest calamities in history has fallen upon our neighboring island of Martinique. The consul of the United States at Guadaloupe has telegraphed from Fort de France, under date of yesterday, that the disaster is complete, that the city of St. Pierre has ceased to exist, and that the American consul and his family have perished. He is informed that 30,000 people have lost their lives, and that 50,000 are homeless and hungry; that there is urgent need of all kinds of provisions, and that the visit of vessels for the work of supply and rescue is imperatively required.

The government of France, while expressing their thanks for the marks of sympathy which have reached them from America, inform us that Fort de France and the entire island of Martinique are still threatened. They, therefore, request that for the purpose of rescuing the people who are in such deadly peril and threatened with starvation, the government of the United States may send, as soon as possible, the means of transporting them from the stricken island. The island of St. Vincent, and perhaps others in that region are also seriously menaced by the calamity which has taken so appalling a form in Martinique.

I have directed the departments of treasury, of war and of the navy to take such measures for the relief of these stricken people as lies within the executive discretion, and I earnestly commend this case of unexampled disaster to the generous consideration of the congress. For this purpose I recommend that an appropriation of $500,000 be made, to be immediately available.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

White House, Washington, May 12, 1902.

The Scow Sunk.

One of the scows that was sent to Sault Ste. Marie with the Duluth Dredge and Dock company's big dredge Napoleon, was sunk in one of the channels there last Friday. It is thought that it will be raised by Saturday of this week. It was one that formerly belonged to Williams & Son, and was wrecked last summer in the local harbor. At that time it was wrenched and twisted so that it was in a leaky condition. When raised it will be repaired and kept in use with the Napoleon until the close of the season.

Renewal of Fishing Excursion Rates.

May 1 the Northern Pacific railway will put in effect the following rates:

Deerwood and return, going Friday and Saturday, return Monday $2 85

Deerwood and return, going any day, return thirty days 3 80

Sturgeon Lake and return, going Saturday and Sunday, return Monday 1 50

Pine City and return, going Saturday and Sunday, return Monday 2 00

OVER FIVE HUNDRED

Reported to Have Perished At St. Vincent By Volcano.

La Soufriere Breaks Out About Every Hundred Years.

King Edward Orders That Relief Be Furnished to Island.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 12.—Reports from the island of St. Vincent say that up to the afternoon of Friday last over 500 deaths had occurred there, owing to the volcano in that island. Definite news, however, is lacking. Many estates were destroyed, and steam and ashes were belched forth from 7 in the morning until 9:30 at night. The eruption is now visible at Kingston. Huge dust clouds were blown eastward. The majority of the corpses are still unburied.

AID FOR ST. VINCENT.

King Orders Governor to Spare No Expense.

London, May 12.—King Edward has commanded the colonial secretary, Mr. Chamberlain, to telegraph to the governor of the Windward Islands, Sir Robert Llewelyn, his majesty's deep regret at the calamity which has visited the island of St. Vincent and his sympathy with the sufferers and the bereaved. The governor has also been instructed to spend all the money necessary for their relief.

The dispatches in the London afternoon papers from the West Indies add nothing to the information regarding the volcanic outbreak contained in the Associated Press cable dispatches from various points though, in some cases, the facts contained therein have been revamped here in highly florid fashion.

Washington, May 12.—St. Vincent, where several hundred deaths are reported owing to the eruption of the volcano La Soufriere is an island that is due to have a volcanic eruption about once in 100 years. And when a crater opens at the top of the terrible La Soufriere and the lava streams begin to flow, the islands of the sea for hundreds of miles around hear its roaring and are shrouded in its ashes.

The last eruption was in 1812. The one before that was in 1718, and was even more violent in character. Unless this year's outburst is a trifling one compared with those of the past, it is certain to have sacrificed many lives and inflicted most heavy losses.

St. Vincent is the middle one of the three Windward Islands belonging to Great Britain, and it lies about as far to the south of St. Lucia as St. Lucia lies to the south of Martinique. The distance that separates the two great volcanoes, Mount Pelee of Martinique and La Soufriere of St. Vincent, is almost exactly 100 miles.

St. Vincent is a little oval island 18 miles long and 11 miles wide, with an area of 132 square miles. It is beautiful and healthful. Its green hillsides slope gradually down toward the sea, and form terraces that seem as though especially designed for plantations and settlements. The highest peak, Morne and Garou, towers to 5200 feet above the sea, green to the summit, and outtops La Soufriere, at the extreme north end of the island, which is 4084 feet in height.

But the traveler through the island, full of the feeling of its peace and quiet, cannot go far without a sudden shock. Whatever way he may start out for a day's journey he will be sure to come to one of the "dry rivers," the channels for the torrents of lava that have marked the days of horror in former centuries.

There are three of these great dry rivers, averaging about 200 yards in width, barren of vegetation, though inclosed between high cliffs hung with vines and palms and tree ferns. And in the lava streams and in the travertine are to be seen half-carbonized tree stems, revealing the history of forests destroyed and forests regrowing.

The reports of the eruption of 1718 are contradictory in details, but they al agree in the general fact that La Soufriere hurled the whole island in ashes and spread the dust over all the surrounding waters. The whole upper part of the cone was blown away, and years afterward the wide, deep crater filled up with a wonderful pool of still water, fathomless. Its surface 1200 feet below the top of the perpendicular walls, which marked the limit of human approach.

In 1812 La Soufriere played a trick that is still written about and commented upon by students of physical geography. For it sent great masses of black ashes to an altitude of 15,000 or 17,000 feet, so high that they were above the currents of the trade winds blowing from the northeast, and were carried eastward in the contrary direction to the lower winds. Barbadoes, 120 miles to the east, was covered inches deep with this dust, and the residents there thought the fall must have come from some new crater thrown up in the sea to windward.

The thunder of this eruption was heard on the llanos of Venezuela, 600 miles away, while on Barbadoes the rattle was so loud and continuous that the troops stationed there fancied a great battle between two fleets, and put themselves under arms day and night, awaiting attack.

Previous to the eruption the appearance of the Soufriere was most interesting. The crater was half a mile in diameter and 500 feet in depth. In its center was a conical hill, fringed with shrubs and vines. At its base were two small lakes, one sulphurous, the other pure and tasteless. From the fissures of the cone a thin white smoke issued, occasionally tinted by a little blue flame. Evergreen flowers and aromatic shrubs covered the steep sides of the crater, which sent, as the first indication of the eruption on April 27, a tremulous noise in the air, a severe concussion of the earth followed, and then a column of thick black smoke burst from the crater.

Volumes of sand darkened the air, and woods, ridges and cane pieces were covered with light gray ashes, which speedily destroyed all vegetation. The sun for three days seemed to be in a total eclipse, the sea was discolored and the ground bore a wintry appearance from the crust of fallen ashes. Carib natives who lived at Morne Ronde fled from their houses to Kingston. As the third day drew to a close flames sprang pyramidically from the crater, accompanied by loud thunder and electric flashes, which rent the column of smoke hanging over the volcano.

Eruptive matter pouring from the northwest side plunged over the cliff, carrying down rocks and woods in its course. The island was shaken by an earthquake and beaten by cinders and stones, which set houses on fire and killed negroes and natives.

The population of St. Vincent in 1891 was 41,000 of whom less than 2500 were white. The population has increased since then and is nearly 50,000 souls. Kingston, the capital, with a population of 5000, is at the southern end of the island.

The island was first touched by Columbus in 1498, but even as late as the seventeenth century no settlements had been made upon it, either by the English or French. A ten years' war with the black Caribs began in 1775, after the English were formally in possession, and it ended with the transportation of practically all of the natives to the island of Roatan on the Honduras coast.

The planters grew very wealthy growing sugar with slave labor, but after the emancipation their wealth was lost, and now most of the owners of the soil are the descendants of the old slaves, who, with little patches of land, live a happy, contented life.

Sugar, rum, cocoa and spices are produced, but the chief product is arrowroot, which has finer qualities and more exquisite flavor here than anywhere else. In 1900 the imports amounted to about $500,000 and the exports to a trifle less.

"I have used DeWitt's Little Early Risers for constipation. I am glad to indorse them," writes Alfred Heinze, Quincy, Ill. Max Wirth.

LAST OF IT.

Prediction That Canadian Grain Will Cease Coming Here.

William Massie, Canadian government inspector of grain, returned to the St. Louis this morning from a visit to Winnipeg. He is here to finish loading out the remaining stock of Canadian grain in store here. Mr. Massie says that there are only 200,000 bushels of this wheat to load out.

"And it will be the last Canadian wheat of any consequence that is likely to come here," added Mr. Massie, "for some time to come at least. What makes me think this in view of the rapid development of the Western Canadian wheat fields? Well, simply because most of the wheat that has come to Duluth in bond has come from points on lines in Manitoba that used to be owned by the Northern Pacific. These lines are now controlled by the Canadian Northern, the new line built by McKenzie & Mann, and the Canadian & Northern's policy has been announced to be to route the wheat hereafter via Port Arthur.

"I don't want to say anything about this in an official way, because I know nothing about it except what has come to me in an individual way. Consequently, I can tell you only what is generally understood in Manitoba to be the policy of the road. The Canadian Northern naturally wants to get all the haul it can out of this wheat. It would not naturally get very much of a haul out of it by sending it down to Duluth. Routing it via Port Arthur would give the Canadian Northern more of a haul and it would also give it a chance to earn storage charges on the wheat until the opening of navigation in the spring.

"The movement of wheat in bond has just about ceased now, though an occasional scattering car comes in. The total movement through Duluth for the last crop has been about 7,350,000 bushels. More Canadian wheat was received here in bond last October than during any entire crop year previously in the history of the market. Of this large movement, only about 250 cars of wheat grown along the Canadian Pacific were received here. Allow 1000 bushel to a car, and you have something over 200,000 bushels coming from the Canadian Pacific railroad out of over 7,350,000 bushels received. Practically all the Canadian wheat that has been received here in the past has come from the same lines that furnished it last year—the old Northern Pacific lines—but the Canadian Northern will be prepared in another year to handle most of this itself at Port Arthur."

Mr. Massie said he had heard little about the prospects for wheat crop area in Western Canada the coming year. Conditions at present, he said, seemed to be better in Alberta, which is naturally dryer than other parts of the wheat country, and where seeding is progressing more rapidly now.

The Federal Court.

The October term of United States circuit court was adjourned this morning and tomorrow morning the May term of the court will begin. Judge Shiras of Iowa, who will preside in the absence of Judge Lochren, is expected to arrive on the morning train. The first case that is noticed for trial is the damage suit of the Edward Hines Lumber company against A. W. Comstock and W. B. Comstock, who are doing a lumber manufacturing business under the firm name of Comstock Brothers.

Cards were received in Duluth today from Mr. and Mrs. John A. Innes, of Canton, Pa., announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith May, and Arthur Gardner McKinley, of Chicago, to take place Tuesday, May 27. They will be at home after June 20 at 492 Forty-second street, Chicago. Mr. McKinley is a brother of John and William McKinley, and lived in Duluth for a number of years, leaving here about five years ago.

BROKE A WHEEL.

Second Accident on the California Limited.

Keokuk, Iowa, May 12.—The California limited on the Santa Fe at Revere, Mo., near the scene of the wreck of the same train two weeks today, broke a wheel on the dining car and ran into a switch, striking a freight car. Casualties thus far reported are a man named Anderson killed and one woman injured.

ANOKA CASE DISMISSED.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of the city of Anoka et al against the Onoka Waterworks, Electric Light and Power company was dismissed by stipulation without costs to either party.

NAMED ON COMMITTEE.

Chicago, May 12.—President Furber, of the Olympian Games association, today announced the appointment of Hobart Chatfield Chatfield-Taylor as chairman of the committee on credentials. The duties of the committee will be to decide upon the question of precedence among the various dignitaries of other countries. Mr. Furber also expressed the opinion that results might be soon looked for from the committee on preliminary athletics.

STABBED BY A WOMAN.

Des Moines, May 12.—Following a quarrel between Louis Wade and a young woman named Thomas in the kitchen of a restaurant in which they were employed at Newton last night, Miss Thomas plunged a butcher knife into the abdomen of Wade. She alleges it was accidental. Wade will die.

REVEALS A GREAT SECRET.

It is often asked how such startling cures, that puzzle the best physicians, are effected by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Here's the secret. It cuts out the phlegm and germ-infected mucus, and lets the life-giving oxygen enrich and vitalize the blood. It heals the inflamed, cough-worn throat and lungs. Hard colds and stubborn coughs soon yield to Dr. King's New Discovery, the most infallible remedy for all Throat and Lung diseases. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at W. A. Abbett's drug store.

Important Change of Time.

On and after May 11 the Twilight Limited over "The North-Western Line" will leave Duluth daily at 4 p. m., arriving in St. Paul at 9 p. m., making connections in Union depot with the Omaha & Kansas City limited for Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles and points West.

Berth reservations for points South and West of St. Paul can be made by calling or writing to S. A. Love, city ticket agent, "The North-Western Line," Duluth.

A RELIEF MEASURE

Appropriating $200,000 For Martinique Passes the House.

There Were But Nine Members Voting Against It.

Consular Appropriation For Cuba Considered By the Senate.

Washington, May 12.—In the house this afternoon, Mr. Hemenway, on behalf of the house appropriations committee, presented a substitute for the senate bill appropriating $100,000 for the Martinique sufferers. The substitute bill appropriates $200,000.

Mr. Hemenway secured unanimous consent for its immediate consideration. He stated that the amount had been limited to $200,000 as the committee was informed that large contributions were being made by private parties.

Mr. Underwood (Ala.) stated that he was opposed to the measure and would vote against it. He believed it would have been more appropriate for the president to send a message of condolence to the government of France.

The bill appropriating $200,000 for the relief of the Martinique sufferers passed the house by a vote of 196 to 9.

Legislation affecting the district of Columbia was the special order in the house of representatives today, and an extended discussion occurred on the bill consolidating the local gaslight companies. Mr. Babcock (Wis.) chairman of the district committee, was able to be present after an absense of some weeks caused by illness.

IN THE SENATE.

Washington, May 12.—At the conclusion of routine business in the senate today, the resolution offered by Mr. Bailey (Tex.) on Saturday relative to special embassies to coronations was called up, but after some discussion went over.

A conference was agreed to on the bill providing diplomatic and consular appropriations for Cuba, and Messrs. Cullom, Lodge and Morgan were named as conferees.

Mr. Cullom presented to the senate and had read the cablegram received by the state department from Consul Ayme at Fort De France.

A bill to fix the compensation of criers and bailiffs in United States courts at $3 a day instead of $2 a day was passed.

Consideration of the Philippine government bill then was begun, Mr. Foraker (O.) addressing the senate in support of the measure.

CONFERENCE

To Try and Settle the Strike at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—A conference was begun late this afternoon between the committees of the Building association and the labor assembly with a view of reaching some basis upon which the pending building trades strike might be settled.

Representatives of the striking carpenters and some of the other crafts involved were present.

It is not expected that this conference will settle the strike. It is looked upon by both sides as preliminary, but it may serve to define specifically the attitude of both sides toward a settlement and the terms upon which a settlement may be reached.

DETECTIVES

Of Minneapolis Are Charged With Receiving Bribes.

Minneapolis, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—John E. Morrisey and James C. Howard, detectives on the Minneapolis police force, were arraigned in the Hennepin county district court today and each pleaded not guilty to three indictments. The formal charges against each man are: Asking for a bribe, agreeing to receive a bribe, and receiving a bribe. The indictments are all based upon the same indictment, the arrest of Charles Howard for vagrancy last November.

The detectives, it is alleged, took $25 apiece from him, and did not appear against him in court. Charles Howard has since been convicted on another charge of swindling and was the principal witness before the grand jury against the detectives. The bond of each man was fixed at $2500 and their cases were set for May 20.

CROP REPORT.

Condition of Winter Wheat Is Much Reduced.

Washington, May 12.—The government crop report shows the condition of winter wheat is 76.4, against 94.1 last year. Acreage, 27,103,000.

STATE SENATOR IN TROUBLE.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 12.—A criminal warrant has been issued for State Senator George E. Nichols of Ionia, on a charge of attempted subornation of perjury, alleged to have been committed in an endeavor to influence one of the people's witnesses in the trial of City Attorney Salisbury for bribery. Nichols came here voluntarily today and will be arraigned in police court.

HOD CARRIERS' STRIKE.

Milwaukee, May 12.—Several hundred hod carriers employed on buildings in course of erection throughout the city struck today for an increase of 5 cents per hour in wages. In several instances the demands were granted and work was resumed.

Ottumwa, Iowa, May 12.—All the union hod carriers struck at Ottumwa today, tieing up every building under construction in the city.

INDICTED.

E. C. LaChance, of Hotel Northern, Charged With Serious Offense.

The grand jury this morning returned an indictment against Eugene C. LaChance, proprietor of the Northern hotel, on a charge of running an assignation house.

LaChance was arrested on a bench warrant this afternoon and arraigned before Judge Ensign in district court at a late hour. Bail was fixed at $1000, which he will furnish.

The charge is that on Aug. 15, 1901, in the city of Duluth, he kept a place of assignation at 308 West Superior street, the location of the Hotel Northern. The evidence on which the indictment is based is understood to have incidentally cropped out of the case against Joseph LaPage, charged with having improper relations with a young girl.

The grand jury at the same time returned ten other indictments, three of which were withheld because the parties are not yet in custody. Bench warrants have been issued and the parties will be brought into court as soon as they are apprehended.

The seven indictments that were made public are all ordinary criminal matters. No bills were found against Thomas Faubster and W. B. Mallough, charged with grand larceny, or against William Olds, charged with rape.

Alexander Tifer was indicted for assault in the second degree, the charge being that on March 31, at Duluth, he assaulted Herman Greenwald with a wooden club.

John Murphy was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree and burglary in the third degre. He is accused of breaking into a building at Hibbing on the night of May 2 and stealing a suit of clothes from Joseph Wakely.

Anton Hriber is indicted for assault in the second degree. He is accused of assaulting Anton Kosmerl at Eveleth March 31 with a knife.

Richard Harper is charged with forgery in the second degree, the indictment charging that on May 7, in Duluth, he disposed of a forged check for $79.25, signed "R. Drummond," to A. S. Hyman.

John Foley is indicted for a crime against nature and for burglary in the third degree, both committed at McKinley April 2.

DEATH LIST.

St. Paul, May 12.—A special to the Dispatch from Chippewa Falls, Wis., says: Patrick Morris, ex-city treasurer and a prominent business man, died today of lockjaw. His father is city attorney of Iron River.

New York, May 12.—Mrs. Mansfield Lovell Lithouse, eldest sister of the late Collis P. Huntington, is dead at the home of Mrs. Huntington, in this city.

Cleveland, O., May 12—Patrick Smith, one of the oldest vessel and dredging men of this port, died yesterday, aged 57 years. Mr. Smith was struck by a street car a few days ago and the injuries which he recieved then undoubtedly hastened his death.

HEAVY FAILURE.

Miller's Liabilities $677,249.13; His Assets $3009.

St. Paul, May 12.—(Special to The Herald.)—Moulton D. Miller has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the federal court. Mr. Miller was formerly one of the most ambitious and hustling promoters in the city and was one of the founders of St. Paul Park. He finally became involved in his extensive operations.

His liabilities are given as $677,249.13 and his assets at $3009. The secured claims amount to $19,745 and unsecured claims to $624,064.80.

GIBBONS AND IRELAND.

Prelates Hold Important Conference at Baltimore.

Baltimore, May 12.—Cardinal Gibbons, who was to have left for St. Augustine, Fla., today to take part in the consecration of Bishop-elect W. D. Kenny, in the cathedral there next Sunday has altered his arrangements and will not start until the middle of the week. Archbishop of St. Paul, arrived in Baltimore today and proceeded to the cardinal's residence, where the two prelates were in consultation until noon. It is not known what was the subject discussed at their meeting, though it was probably the Philippines as well as the successorship to Archbishop Corrigan. Cardinal Gibbons will probably visit his brother in New Orleans, while in the South.

FROZEN HORSEWHIP.

Farmer Fuller, who lives near the great Pink Mink marsh, is telling his friends about a most peculiar and exciting experience he had one day last week, and in proof of it he exhibits the skin of a monstrous snake that was one of the principal actors in the episode. Fuller had made a horse trade with a neighbor, and, hitching up his new steed, went to the edge of the swamp after a load of wood, writes the Winamac correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean. The horse developed some unexpected traits, one of which was a propensity to balk, and Fuller jumped from his sled and looked about for a switch of goodly size to be used as a "persuader."

Near the roadway he found what seemed to be a tree branch that he thought would answer his purpose. Grabbing it with both hands, he belabored the balky horse, and finally, after ten minutes of hard effort, induced the horse to move on. Getting back into the sled, he laid the "switch" at his foot in the folds of the blankets, ready for use if the horse should balk again. He had gone but a little ways when he thought he saw the "switch" move. He looked at it closely and detected signs of life. Becoming interested, Mr. Fuller looked more closely and discovered that what he had been using as a horsewhip was in reality a huge black snake, and before it got life enough in it to become troublesome he killed it by beating its head against the edge of the sled box.

The warm weather that prevailed just before the recent cold snap had beguiled the snake from its winter quarters, and in moving about the swamp it was caught by the sudden freeze before it could get back to its hole. It was frozen as stiff as a stick when Fuller picked it up to beat his horse with, but warmth of his hands, the violent swaying in the air, the contact with the horse's body, and later the warm nest in the sled blankets thawed it out enough to make it move so that Fuller's attention was attracted to it. The skin shows that the snake must have been fully seven feet in length and nearly nine inches around the body.

MRS. MCKINLEY'S LIFE.

"Her one comfort is in her daily visit to the tomb of her husband. She seems to be living only in his memory and for the purpose of honoring him."

The words were spoken of Mrs. McKinley by an intimate friend of hers, says a Canton dispatch to the Philadelphia North American. They tell in a nutshell the daily life of the woman who has not recovered, and never will recover from the effects of the shock by the assassin's bullets that cost the life of her illustrious husband at Buffalo.

Mrs. Ida McKinley lives in the past more than in the present. Her one desire is to pay homage to her dead husband. To that end she has daily made visits to the vault in Westlawn cemetery.

For her convenience at the vault a rocking chair has been placed in the house of the dead near the McKinley casket. A heavy rug on the floor protects her from the dampness. When she enters the tomb she is always clothed with heavy wraps, so as to prevent any cold from getting hold of her system. The guards of national soldiers on duty have come to regard her daily visit to the vault as sacred, and they pay to her the most profound sympathy and attention. Visitors to the cemetery who witness her enter the vault bearing with her daily her offering of flowers, stand in silence and utmost respect.

Her daily visit of love and honor to the cemetery is not completed, however, at the tomb of her husband. She drives farther into the cemetery grounds proper and lays a tribute of flowers and sheds tears over the graves of her two infant daughters. All her hopes and her best friends lie mouldering in Westlawn cemetery.

The home life of Mrs. McKinley does not differ now from what it has been for ten or fifteen years past, save that part which connected her in word and deed with her husband. Her habits of rising and retiring when she feels at all well are systematic. The members of her household follow everything on schedule time. All meals are promptly served at a fixed hour. Her wants are cared for as closely as possible at all times.

Her bosom companion and attendant now is Miss Mozer. Mrs. McKinley's sister, Mrs. Barber, has practically devoted all her time to Mrs. McKinley since the late president's death. If Mrs. Barber is compelled to be away for a day or more, Miss Mary Barber or some other member of the family remains at Mrs. McKinley's home.

In diversion Mrs. McKinley's chief pastime, as the people in general know, has been making fancy slippers, her skill in which has become widely heralded. She bestows these slippers on friends here and all over the world. They go to individuals and to charitable enterprises. Her latest gift of slippers has been to the little daughter of Judge and Mrs. Byron Ambler, of Salem, Ohio, who leaves this week for the Philippines, where Judge Ambler will be on the bench for the United States.

Her health, according to a statement made repeatedly by her attending physicians, is as good now as it has been any time in the last ten years. Her old family physician, Dr. Phillips, sees her frequently, but he says his services are not needed. Her mind is keen and active. Her sensitive nature still feels poignantly her grief, and at times she gives way to her emotions and seems unable to control herself. There are times, too, when she renews the expression made shortly after his death, that she wishes she, too, were dead, but constant friends seek to prevent such emotions as much as possible. Her daily drives are continued, by her own desire and by the advice of physicians. Her interest in people and things seen during her drives has increased in recent months to a marked extent.

CANNONADE MADE THE HILLS QUAKE

Burning Naphtha and Red-Hot Iron Rained Upon the People.

Twenty-One Dead and at Least Three Hundred Others Injured.

Pittsburg, May 13.—Twenty-one are dead and not less than 300 others injured as the result of the terrible catastrophe at Sheraden last evening. Of the 300 injured, the physicians say at least fifty will die. At 9:30 o'clock this morning nine bodies were at the Pittsburg morgue and twelve at the Carnegie morgue.

The officials of the Panhandle road fear a worse explosion than the four which wrought so much damage yesterday. A danger line has been established 800 yards on all sides of the burning wreckage and the railroad police are keeping the curious crowd back. A few feet below the burning wreckage the big thirty-six-inch main of the Philadelphia company, which comes from the gas fields in the southwestern portion of the state and supplies McKees Rocks and Lower Allegheny districts with natural gas, lies.

It is feared that the concussion was so great yesterday that some of the jets or even the pipe itself might have been damaged, and if such is the case, the gas which is under great pressure will soon force its way through and a terrific explosion will follow.

About twenty cars are piled up between Sheraden station and Corks Run in the Sheraden yards. This is still a mass of flames. It covers an area of 40 by 150 feet. In this there are all kinds of merchandise. The fire department of Sheraden is throwing streams on the burning debris, but little headway is being made owing to the fact that the entire wreckage is saturated with naphtha and kerosene.

A long list of dead and wounded is the result of a series of four accidents, culminating in a frightful disaster. The telescoping of naphtha tank cars in the yards of the Panhandle Railroad company in Corks Run, was followed by the ignition of the naphtha by an open switch lamp, by the flowing of the ignited naphtha through the culvert leading to the Ohio river half a mile away and its explosion with attendant damage to life and property and by an explosion of three other naphtha tanks at the point of the original mishap after hundreds of people had been attracted to the spot by the burning naphtha, which was sending up flames 100 feet high. The detonations of the explosions were heard as far away as Duquesne Heights.

All the story can hardly be told, for no words can picture the horror of the scene.

The telescoping of the cars was one of those things that not infrequently happen without serious consequences. Its subsequent ignition by an open switch lamp is a matter which will later be given full investigation. The cause of the explosion at the point where it once again broke out is still a matter of conjecture. It seems that the flames followed the flowing naphtha, and exploding at the culvert's opening, ruined half a dozen houses in the neighborhood, setting them on fire, and injuring not less than 100 people. The shock from the explosion was felt across the river in Allegheny, where windows were broken. The burning of the naphtha at the fountain head, the two naphtha tanks, was spectacular. It was a great pillar of fire, surmounted by a glorious crown of irridescent hue. People came from far and near to view the sight. There were three other naphtha tanks in the immediate neighborhood of the two tanks that had been Latest Reports Show That the Eruption of Soufriere Caused More Deaths Than at First Reported.

Survivors of the Roraima Tell of the Awful Experience of Those on the Vessels at St. Pierre.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, May 13.—It is announced in advices received here this morning (Tuesday) from the Island of St. Vincent, British West Indies, that 1600 persons have perished there since the Soufriere volcano has been in eruption.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 13.—Advices received here from the Island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., forwarded on Sunday last, announce that 700 deaths had occurred on the island as a result of the outbreak of the Soufriere volcano, which was still slightly active.

Fort de France, May 13.—The British royal mail steamer Solent brought awful news from the British Island of of St. Vincent. May 8 and 9 a volcano there, the Soufriere, broke into violent eruption. Mud, ashes, stone and fire were hurled into the town of Kingston, the capital of the island, and over the country. From the meager reports obtainable here, it is known that 500 deaths had occurred in St. Vincent up to Friday night, and the volcano there was still active at that time. The volcanic detonations were distinctly heard in Barbadoes, 100 miles away, and the fall of ashes there was so heavy that it resulted in total darkness for several hours during the afternoon.

Hamilton De Lourcy, a passenger from the royal mail steamer Esk, reports that between 11 and 1 o'clock of the night of May 8, a huge black mass of vapor hung over the volcano on St. Vincent, and that the mountain was raining ashes, while there was a continuation of electric flashes about the mountain top. A boat from the Esk went in toward the shore with mail, but had to return.

WORK OF RESCUE.

Vessels Carry Many Survivors to Fort de France.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., May 13.—The Danish cruiser Valkyrien has taken on board 500 refugees from the north and northeast coasts of the island of Martinique.

The French cruiser Suchet has rescued 2000 persons from Martinique and the French cable repair steamer Pouyer Quertier has saved numbers of the suffers from the volcanic outbreak there.

All the rescued persons have taken to Fort de France, Martinique.

Only one man escaped from the jail at St. Pierre when that two was overwhelmed by the flow of lava from Mt. Pelee.

The stench from the unburied corpses at St. Pierre is still almost intolerable, according to the advices received, and the desolation is indescribable.

GRAPHIC STORY

Told By Officer Taylor of the Roraima.

New York, May 13.—James Taylor, who was one of the officers of the Roraima, the Quebec Company's steamship which was destroyed in the harbor of St. Pierre, gives a graphic story of the tragedy on last Thrusday, says a dispatch to the Herald from St. Kitts, island of St. Christopher, B. W. I.

"We experienced the greatest difficulty in getting into port," said he. "Appalling sounds were issuing from the mountains behind the town, which were shrouded in darkness. All the passengers were up and some were trying to obtain photographs."

"Suddenly I heard a tremendous explosion. Ashes began to fall thicker upon the deck, and I could see a black cloud sweeping down upon us. I dived below and, dragging with me Samuel Thomas, a gangway man and fellow-countryman, sprang into a room, shutting the door to keep out the heat that was already unbearable.

"The ship rocked and I expected every moment that it would sink. Outside I heard a voice pleading for the door to be opened. It was Scott, the first officer, and I opened the door and dragged him into the room.

"It soon became unbearably hot and I went on deck. All about was lying the dead and the dying. Little children were moaning for water, but when it was held to their swollen lips they were unable to swallow, because of the ashes which clogged their throats. One little chap took water in this method and rinsed out the ashes, but even then could not swallow, so badly was his throat burned. He sank back unconscious and a few minutes later was dead. All aft the ship was afire, and from the land came draughts of terrible heat. At last when I could stand it no longer, I sprang overboard. The water was almost hot enough to parboil me, but a wave soon swept in from the ocean, bringing with it cool water.

"I was caught in the receding wave, which was of tidal velocity, and was carried out to sea. Then on the second return of the wave, I was washed against an upturned sloop, to which I clung.

"A few minutes later I was joined by another man, whom I learned was Capt. Muggah of the Roraima. He was in dreadful agony, and kept begging piteously to be put on board his ship.

"Picking up some wreckage and a tool chest, I and five others who joined me, succeeded in forming a rude raft, on which we placed the captain. Seeing an upturned boat, I asked one of the five to swim out to it and bring it over so that Capt. Muggah might have an opportunity to leave. The man succeeded in getting the boat righted, but instead of returning, he picked up two of his countrymen and went away in the direction of Fort de France.

"Seeing the Roddam, which had arrived in port soon after we anchored, making for the Roraima, I said goodbye to Capt. Muggah and swam to the Roddam. Before I could reach her she burst into flames and put to sea. I finally reached the Roraima about 2:30 in the afternoon, and later was taken off by the cruiser Suchet."

Samuel Thomas, gangway man, whose life was saved by Taylor, describes a woman who was burned to death while she held her baby in her arms protecting it with her own body. The child was alive long after its mother had ceased to suffer.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Had Officer Scott Who Saw Whole Eruption.

New York, May 13.—The Herald has from Dominica, B. W. I., the story of Ellery J. Scott, first officer of the Roraima, who saw the whole eruption and narrowly escaped death. He says:

"It was about daylight on the morning of May 8 when we sighted the island. We had run through a thunder storm, and when we arose, Capt. Muggah pointed to the volcano and said: 'Scott, I do not like the looks of the old fellow this morning.'

"There were smoke clouds, or steam clouds over the peak, but I knew the captain was always prophesying bad things about the mountain, so I said: 'I guess it's all right, captain.'

"Anyway, we steamed ahead for St. Pierre, and at 6 o'clock were at our anchorage off the place.

"There were about eighteen other steamers and coasting craft anchored, like us, in the open harbor, one of them being the Tamaya, a bark from the French port Nantes, her captain being called Moritz, or Maurice. There were four other large sailing vessels, and just as we had fairly got the stevedores jumping, the British steamer Roddam put into the berth next to ours, and let drop her anchor.

"Then something happened. There was, first, a rattling sound or feeling, I don't know which; but as the Roddam's chain was running out, and our winches were clanking, I thought for a second the rattle might be from them.

"Then came a shaking in the air, so that I felt as though some one had jostled me. Some man near me cried out: 'My God, look at that!'

"He was gazing at Pelee, and every soul on board looked, too.

"I can't describe what I saw, of course, but my first thought was that the end of the world would look just like that. It was just as though the mountain had been blown up by all the dynamite in the world.

"First of all a great pillar of flame rushed straight up in the air. Then it opened out wider than the mountain itself, and came roaring down out of the sky upon us. I wonder I did not go crazy.

"I remember, now, noticing that, as the head of the thing came on, it twisted and whirled like a waterspout, and that out of it dropped blotches and streaks of fire, and that, as it whirled and twisted, it got bigger all the time.

"I remember, too, now, that beside the great, spreading clouds of fire, there were streams of lava left behind that ran and wiggled down the mountain side.

"Next came the roar—not like thunder, but like everything in the world going to pieces.

"That roar seemed to bring us to our senses. Some of us, with Morley, the second officer, rushed to the forecastle head to heave the anchor. I saw the captain shouting orders, and I saw McFear, the engineer, drop below. As we reached the ship's head, the fiery cloud was upon us. Red hot stones, scalding mud and real splashes of flame dropped and clattered all over the ship, while the air was full of a sulphur reak that choked us.

"Then a new thing happened. There was another roar, and with it all the water in the harbor seemed to gather up and rush upon the shipping.

"Every craft heeled over to the great tidal wave and seemed to careen and sink. When the wave struck us, it flooded us fore and aft, sweeping away the masts, the funnel and the boats, save one, and all the raffle of the dock.

"There was a ventilator at hand, and to save myself I seized it and was nearly killed thereby, being driven into it by the force of the oncoming waves.

"A couple of stevedores pulled me out of the ventilator and dragged me into the steerage. There I remained half dead for quite a time, during which the ship rolled and the fire and rocks battered the decks.

"Now and then a charred sailor rolled down the hatchway and died as he came, so that quite a pile of corpses lay over me.

"Some one pulled me from under these and I clambered to the deck and began turning a hand toward saving the injured who were lying all about, though even then small, red hot stones and mud were falling.

"As I was about this work, Capt. Muggah came along. I knew him by his clothes, though they were smoldering, but his face was scorched beyond recognition.

"'Lower the boat,' he said, 'and let's try to get out of this hell.'

"I could not obey orders, however, for the boat that was left by the tidal wave was burned full of holes by the flaming rain. I saw no more of the captain after that, but I was told by a stevedore of St. Kitts that he jumped overboard and got on a raft that had hurriedly been put together and that he died there.

"All this time the sea was rolling like the heaviest kind of ground swell. Pelee was roaring and the air was full of strange shocks.

"When I looked to St. Pierre the sight was so terrifying that I freely confess it made me cry. The town was gone and in its place was a long stretch of gray, smoking, flaming dust.

"Pray God I never see anything like it again. Indeed, I do not think I could and live.

"Some hours afterward, I didn't know what hour it was, but I've since been told it was at 3 o'clock in the afternoon—the French cruiser steamed in and rescued seventeen of us, more dead than alive. We were carried to Fort de France and put in the hospital."

ALL THOSE SAVED

Left St. Pierre Before 9 O'Clock Thursday Morning.

Paris, May 13.—An official dispatch received by the minister for the colodies, M. De Crais, today, says that the 450 refugees landed at Fort de France by the French cable steamer Pouyer Quertier were all from the village of Le Precheur, near St. Pierre, and that the only inhabitants of St. Pierre who were saved were those who left that town before 9 o'clock on the morning of the disaster. Thursday last.

SITUATION VERY GRAVE

Fighting In Streets of Port au Prince Continues--- Whole Population Is Armed and Insists On Departure of President Sam.

Port au Prince, Hayti, May 13.—Further fighting occurred in the streets here before and after midnight. Some of the leaders of the revolution have retired to the United States legation. The situation is very serious. The whole population is armed and insists on the immediate departure from the country of former President Sam.

Clashes between the partisans of the numerous presidential candidates continued yesterday afternoon. The followers of Gen. Saint Foix Colin attacked the adherents of Gen. Deffy, the military commander here. The firing was severe for about an hour, but so far as known very few were killed or wounded. Gen. Deffy was compelled to evacuate the Hotel de la Place and retreated to the palace, where he barricaded himself and his followers, having previously secured a good supply of ammunition.

Sometime before midnight there was another outbreak of firing, and this time the casualties were somewhat severe. In the meanwhile firing occurred in other parts of the city, and lasted until after midnight, when the situation became calmer.

Former President Sam, Tancrede Auguste, the minister of the interior and of police; Gen. Deffy and M. C. Leconte, the minister of agriculture and public works, had gathered their forces in the palace at about midnight, where their position was strengthened by the fact that they had the presidential guard on their side. Opposed to this party was Gen. Saint Foix Colin, at the head of a large body of armed citizens. The latter are determined that the members of the former government of Hayti shall embark today on the French mail steamer. If they do not do so it is almost certain that the fighting will recommence and will be continued with the greatest severity.

Gen. Vilbrun, the former minister of war, and M. P. Faine, the former minister of finance and commerce, have sought refuge in the French legation.

Early in the morning M. Tancrede Auguste seemed to have abandoned the Sam party, for he sought safety in the United States legation. His example was followed by M. Brutus Saint Victor, the minister of foreign affairs and public instruction, who also sought the protection of the United States flag.

As this dispatch is sent early Tuesday morning, occasional shots can be heard, but the situation has not materially changed.

Nobody seems to know what has become of the provisional government, which was understood to have been established yesterday under M. Boiserond Canal, a former president.

Ex-President Sam embarked at 11:30 a. m. today on the French steamer Olinde Rodriguez. He was accompanied to the landing by the American, French and German ministers.

BLOW UP DAM.

Farmers Destroy Structure at Outlet of Otter Tail Lake.

St. Paul, May 13.—A Fergus Falls, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: A party of twenty-five farmers living in the vicinity of Otter Tail lake gathered shortly after midnight last night and deliberately blew up the dam at the outlet of the lake. At points where the dynamite did not do its work thoroughly they used axes and saws. The dam was put in several years ago in order to make the big lake a storage reservoir and regulate the flow of the river, water being held back in the spring and allowed to come down for power purposes for the dams in this city during the summer. Farmers have frequently threatened to destroy it, as they claim it flooded their meadows, and have finally made good their threats. There is no secret about who were engaged in the work and quite a number are likely to be prosecuted.

OBJECT TO EXPENSE.

Virginia Town Does Not Want Murderer.

St. Paul, May 13.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Sheriff O'Connell has received notice that the county commissioners at Independence, Va., would not stand the expense of returning to that state for trial of James Greer, who surrendered here two weeks ago with a statement that he had murdered his cousin and desired to be exonerated by a jury, alleging self-defense. The Virginia sheriff used a postal card requiring Greer's release.

WORKING HARD

To Secure Pardon of Rathbone and Neely.

New York, May 13.—Friends of Rathbone and Neely, convicted here of post-office frauds, says a Havana dispatch to the Tribune, have appealed to President-elect Palma for his aid in the effort being made to secure their pardon. They ask Senor Palma to recommend their liberation to President Roosevelt. It is reported that the supreme court has reached a decision on the appeal of the Neely and Rathbone cases adverse to the appellants, but nothing has yet been made public.

Havana is filled with office-seekers, but Gen. Palma has had little time to talk with them thus far.

Gen. Wood is initiating President-elect Palma into the mysteries of government affairs. Their interviews will continue all week from 2 to 5. Between times the president-elect works on his message.

KITCHENER'S BUDGET

Showing British Victories Over the Boers.

London, May 13.—The weekly report of Lord Kitchener, received today, shows that nineteen Boers were killed, that six were wounded, that 802 were made prisoners, that nine surrendered, that 600 rifles, 157 wagons, 400 horses and 4300 head of cattle fell into the hands of the British.

RATE WAR

Will Be Fought By Alaskan Transportation Companies.

Seattle, May 13.—The Alaska transportation cut-rate war, which probably will be bitterly fought with disastrous results to the lines engaging in it and corresponding benefit to the traveling public, has been inaugurated. The tickets to Linn canal points have already been sold at $7.50 and $5, first and second class respectively. The prevailing tariff has been $30 and $20. The Pacific Clipper line steamer Santa Ana, on the Linn canal run, precipitated the fight because she was refused admission to the Alaska Steamship association.

COLIMA IS VERY ACTIVE

Mexican Volcano Shows Strong Indications of a Great Eruption and the Inhabitants Nearby Are Moving to Safe Distance.

Guadalajara, Mex., May 13.—The Colima volcano shows strong indications of a great eruption, and the inhabitants living in the valley at its base are moving to a safe distance from the peak, from which smoke and puffs of flame have been belching for several days. Mount Colima has threatened renewed activity for several weeks, this condition causing the work of constructing the extension of the Mexican Central railroad to Manzanillo, passing near to the base of the mountain, to cease temporarily. The route of the extension will probably be changed in order to avoid any possible disaster that an eruption might bring.

THIRTY LIVES SAVED

Presence of Mind of Young Woman Enables Miners to Escape From a Terrific Explosion of Powder House.

Norristown, Pa., May 13.—The presence of mind of Miss Katie Henderson saved thirty men employed in the quarries at West Conshocken from death or injury. Miss Henderson resides a short distance from the quarry, and as she looked from a window she saw that the roof of the powder magazine was blazing. The men at work in the quarry were not aware of their danger until she ran to the quarry and warned them, not a second too soon. While the men and Miss Henderson were fleeing for their lives there was a terrible explosion. The air was filled with cinders, stones and dirt which showered upon their heads.

In the magazine which exploded there were thirty kegs of powder and 300 pounds of dynamite. Nothing but a hole in the ground marks the place where the powder house stood.

O'DONNEL BROTHERS DEAD

New York, May 13.—Hugh and Neal O'Donnel, who have given to Catholic institutions throughout the world thousands of dollars, are dead. The former was buried a fortnight ago and Neal has just passed away. Both were octogenarians.

Hugh O'Donnel became a member of the produce exchange thirty years ago, and later with his brother organized a cooperage manufacturing concern. After they had acquired large fortunes they began distributing the entire profits of their business, which exceeded $40,000 annually. For eighteen years they have followed this course.

It was provided that upon their death the estate should be divided into 250 parts, which are to be distributed among numerous institutions named by the brothers.

NEBRASKANS FEAR ERUPTION

Omaha, May 13.—According to dispatches received from Pender, Mount Cona, Neb., a miniature mountain has been for two days sending up smoke and steam. The volcano is situated on the Missouri river, in Cedar county, about 150 miles above Omaha, and has been practically dead for thirty years. Reports say that all settlers in the immediate neighborhood are preparing to move.

Geologists have said the smoke is caused by water from the Missouri seeping into the limestone rock formation of the mountain, but the people are fearful of an eruption.

Duluth People Praise SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR.

Splendid Local Record of the Great Medicine. Less than one year ago I became the sole agent in this city for Smith's Green Mountain Renovator. At that time not five people in this vicinity ever heard of this medicine. In eleven short months I have watched it grow in popularity and have been more and more impressed with its unusual and remarkable merit.

I believe the Renovator is the best medicine made to clean out the blood, strengthen the nerves, cure rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion and kidney or liver trouble. A large number of Duluth people vouch for it from personal experience.

Editor Mitchell's Experience.

OFFICE OF DULUTH TRIBUNAL. April 23, 1902.

"Your Green Mountain Renovator has given most excellent satisfaction and it certainly appears to be all that you claim for it. I predict that it will have a large sale." Yours truly,
R. C. MITCHELL.

The Finest Blood Purifier.

Geo. H. Higgins, chief engineer of the Anglo-American Copper company, under date of April 22, writes as follows:

"I take great pleasure in recommending your Smith's Green Mountain Renovator to any person during the spring months. It is unquestionably the finest blood purifier and regulator of the human system which I have ever used."

Gained in Weight.

Mr. W. C. Wright, who lives at 326 Seventh Avenue West, says—

"After taking three bottles of your Smith's Green Mountain Renovator I feel splendid. When I began its use my weight was 154 lbs. It is now 170 lbs. and this great change I owe to Green Mountain Renovator and nothing else. I am going to take more of it and advise others to do the same."

Cured of Eczema.

2402 West Second St.
April 29, 1902.

"I have been troubled for nine months with eczema and although I have only taken so far one bottle of your Green Mountain Renovator, I am so much relieved from this trouble that I can sleep soundly all night. Before I began its use I would lie awake for hours with the awful itching." Yours truly,
HAROLD WOHLSTROM.

A Family Medicine.

"My father suffered with the backache and other troubles and although he has used less than a bottle of Green Mountain Renovator he is now all right. My mother also is taking it with splendid results. It is a grand medicine." Yours truly.
JOE CARLSON.
613½ Second Avenue East.

These convincing letters from Duluth people simply bear out my frequent statements that Smith's Green Mountain Renovator cures disease.

Every bottle of this remedy which I sell carries my absolute guaantee to refund your money if a trial does not prove satisfactory. Buy a bottle today.

STRUCK IT RICH.

87-Year-Old Miner's Faith Rewarded.

Winnipeg, Man., May 13.—News has reached this city of the striking of a rich pay streak by an aged miner, Sam Montgomery, on Lightning creek in the Cariboo country. Montgomery washed out 80 ounces of gold, the value of which was $1,85 in twenty-four hours with an expense not exceeding $20.

Dr. Reynolds, who is an authority on Cariboo matters, recently returned from a visit to Lightning creek. He says that Montgomery's prize is well earned. The miner, who is 87 years of age, had owned his claim for many years. When he lost the streak in one place he found it in another. He always maintained that the pay lead extended a certain way and he went on drifting until he has struck it rich.

Montgomery had sunk a shaft about 100 feet in depth upon the strength of his theory. The way he dug the shaft unassisted is interesting. He worked for the government at odd jobs and when he had secured sufficient to obtain a grub stake he continued his mining. With two buckets he worked laboriously and not until he discovered the pay streak which had so long evaded him did anyone offer to join with him. He has worked in all the rich diggings of the North and West. He says Cariboo is equal to any of them.

OFFICIALS WILL COME

Party of Steel Corporation Officers to Visit the Mines.

President C. M. Schwab May Be Among the Visitors.

Options For Leases of the Oneota Company Lands Closed.

The local representatives of steel corporation interests have been advised that a party of the executive officers of the United States Steel corporation will arrive here the last of the week, probably about Friday. The object of their coming is chiefly to look over the mines, note the development work that has taken place and the mining operations this season. They will probably spend most of their time at the mines.

Just who will be in the party in addition to Vice President James Gayley and Mr. Kerr, the ore expert of the corporation, is not known. It is rumored that President Charles M. Schwab will also be a member of the party, but if this is true, the fact is not definitely known at the local offices.

Most of the executive heads of the company attended a banquet at the Carnegie works last Friday night, and it is said that quite a few of those guests may conclude, if their interests will permit, to accompany Mr. Gayley, whose particular branch of the corporation is supervision of the mining interests.

President T. F. Cole of the Oliver Iron Mining company is absent on a trip to the old ranges.

ONEOTA LEASES.

Options Have Been Finally Closed---Expire Jan. 1.

The options for the lease of properties owned by the old Oneota Iron company and one adjoining property, which were referred to in The Herald some weeks ago, have been finally closed. Exploratory work on the properties is to begin within thirty days, and the option is good until Jan. 1. The identity of the real parties in whose interest the options were taken is not given out for publication, though they are taken in the name of a local man. It can be said, definitely, however, that the steel interests are not concerned in the matter as has been reported.

The leases, if made, will be on a 20 per cent royalty, with a minimum output next year of 25,000 tons and 50,000 tons a year thereafter on each of the three properties. The land optioned by the Oneota company consists of the northeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 12-59, 14 and the southwest quarter of section 13-59, 14. Besides that, Frazer and Middlecoff option on the same terms the northwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 12, in the same township.

AT THE HOTELS

"There is little building at Cass Lake this season," said George Lydick at the St. Louis this morning. Mr. Lydick was a pioneer of Cass Lake before the town of Cass Lake was ever thought of. The only things he didn't beat there were the lake itself and the Indians.

"The burning of the Scanlon-Gipson sawmill was an unfortunate thing for Cass Lake," he continued. "The owners tell me that they don't intend to rebuild unless possibly if the reservation should be opened for settlement. There has been no dead and down timber cut the past winter, and the lessening of logging operations has tended to make matters a little more quiet. We still have one sawmill there that is sawing day and night and making a good sized product. The farming country northwest of us is setting up in good shape, but as yet, owing to the fact that Cass Lake is surrounded by reservation land, we are getting little benefit from that development. We have fine farming country to the north of us on the reservation. The settlers along the new Northern Pacific line running north from Bemidji, in the vicinity of Guthrie station, are opening up a fine piece of country.

Vice President J. M. Hannaford of the Northern Pacific and Chris D. O'Brien, of St. Paul, were at the Spalding again last evening on their way home from the Brule, where they had been at Winnibigon lodge trying to fish for trout. Mr. O'Brien came in wearing a winter cap, which he said he had to pull down over his ears while he was out after trout. They got to the Brule just in time to receive Friday night's snowstorm and caught more snow than trout. Mr. Hannaford and Mr. O'Brien left for St. Paul last night.

AT WEST DULUTH

"Please let me go. I was chased by a man and was trying to hide in your barn," was the plea made to W. C. Gray, the other evening when he seized a young man that was escaping through the back window of his barn.

Mr. Gray's young son had been out to the barn shortly after 7 o'clock to take care of the horses. He noticed a gunny sack lying on the floor with some of his father's chickens in it and at once suspected that there was a chicken thief in the hay loft. Back to the house he hurried and notified Mr. Gray, who locked the door of the barn and sent his son for a policeman. The thief had evidently prepared for emergencies, for no sooner was the door shut than he was heard trying to escape through a rear window that he had removed.

Mr. Gray was just in time to grapple with the young man as he came through the window, and attempted to hold him until the policeman arrived. The young man begged hard to be let off and struggled so violently that he finally got away and escaped detection by running between some buildings.

Mr. Gray, during the struggle, had a good opportunity of seeing the young man's face, but he says that he does not remember ever seeing him in West Duluth before. He says that it is to be regretted that the thief got away, but there is much consolation in the thought that none of his choice chickens are missing. Had Mr. Gray's son been a little later in attending to his work the thief would have made a clean sweep of the chicken coop.

ATHLETIC CLUB FORMED.

The West Duluth Athletic club was finally organized last evening with a membership of fifty. The club is said to be starting out under favorable auspices financially, and a fairly equipped gymnasium will be had from the start. Other features will be added as the organization progresses. A committee was appointed last evening to draft a constitution and set of by-laws. One of the first events is likely to be a wrestling match.

TWENTY-SECOND CHILD.

The announcement that a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Young, of Forty-eighth avenue west and Anthony street, Sunday, is a matter of no small interest to Mr. and Mrs. Young's many West Duluth friends and acquaintances. The last son is the twenty-second child that has been born to them, though five, only, are alive at the present time. Mr. Young is a member of the local union of the longshoremen, and has resided in West Duluth for a long time. So far as known Mr. and Mrs. Young hold the record of this part, if not for the whole city, for the number of children born to one family.

WANT FIRE CISTERNS.

For some time past it has been felt among the people of the western part of West Duluth that in order to give them adequate fire protection the city should establish fire cisterns at points convenient to the dwelling houses that are now located so far from the hydrants that in case of a fire the fire department is of practically no use because there is no water available. An ordinance relative to the establishing of such cisterns was introduced in the council last evening, and the council committee will investigate the feasibility and advisability of establishing the protection asked for.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The Young Ladies' Sodality of the St. James church was entertained last evening at the home of P. H. Martin, by his sister, Miss Alice Martin. There were about sixty young ladies present and a very enjoyable evening was spent in social amusements, followed by refreshments.

Dick Sullivan, of Fond du Lac, was a business caller in West Duluth this morning. Mr. Sullivan says that early seeding out his way has received a serious setback by the continued cold weather.

John Beuttner, former deputy game warden, returned last evening from St. Paul.

J. A. Murray, who was recently appointed health inspector for West Duluth, has purchased a horse and carriage with which to effectively cover the district in the discharge of his duties.

A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Lamb, of 132 North Sixty-first avenue west.

The funeral services of Mrs. Henrietts Loar were held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Miller, of 111 Sixtieth avenue west, at 10 o'clock this morning. The remains were shipped to Kansas City for burial.

VICTIM OF HARD LUCK

John McClark Wants to Go to Prison and Cannot.

Witnesses Fail to Turn Up In Case Against Him.

Anxious to Go to Penitentiary to Get Away From Drink.

John McClark wants to go to the penitentiary.

He has earned the right to go there by stealing a watch, as he himself confesses.

But the failure of the witnesses to appear against him, and the fact that the law prohibits the finding of an indictment upon the testimony of the accused, have combined to turn McClark loose on the cold world again.

If that is not a hard luck story, it would be interesting to hang on the words as they fell from the lips of the raconteur that was telling a real one.

Some time ago McClark stole a watch. Then he went and sold it to another man. Then he was arrested. He did not meet this fate as most men meet it, with reluctance and shamefacedness. He embraced it, and hailed with pleasure the prospect of a term in the penitentiary. He says he is a victim of drink, that he wants to get away from it, and that the best way he can brace up would be to go to the pen and take a rest where the smell of Bowery liquor could not penetrate temptingly to his nostrils.

If he looked upon conviction of crime as most men look upon it, and hated to go to the state prison as most men would hate it, those witnesses would have haunted his footsteps and told their tales gleefully into the ears of a jury without fail.

But it's just his luck! Because he wanted to go to the penitentiary, those men both disappeared. After entering complaint and procuring his arrest, the man that lost the watch lost himself, and he was followed by the man that bought it from McClark. Neither of them could be found when the case came before the grand jury, and that body was forced to return "no bill" in his case, because the law does not sanction an indictment based on the testimony of the accused.

So yesterday the report of "no bill" was returned, and McClark was turned loose to face with trepidation the temptations of the Bowery saloon.

Perverse are the dictates of fate. Truly, this is a hard world.

ARE IMMUNE.

Justices of Peace Cannot Be Sued For Damages.

The justices of peace up on the iron ranges will have more admiration for the law hereafter than they have had before.

The law protects them from damage suits for their action, and holds that their acts cannot be inquired into even if they are mistaken or malicious.

This came out in the damage cases of H. Graichen and Peter Blesi against S. Lekve, justice of the peace at Hibbing, who sentenced the plaintiffs to long terms in the county jail for violating a quarantine on a smallpox camp, though the law provides only a small fine for such offense.

Each of the men sued for $2000 damages, and the cases came up yesterday afternoon before Judge Dibell, in district court. C. O. Baldwin appeared for the defendant, and he moved that the cases be dismissed. Judge Dibell granted the motion in both cases, and the defendant went out of the court room happy.

Judge Dibell held that the acts of a justice of the peace, acting in his proper jurisdiction, are not subjects for damage suits, even though they are mistaken or maliciously intended to injure. This let the defendant out.

The two men who brought the suits only spent eight days in jail, as the district court released them on writs of habeus corpus, when it was shown under what circumstances they had been sentenced.

IS THROUGH.

Grand Jury Finishes Its Labors---Several Indictments.

The grand jury finished up its work yesterday afternoon and adjourned, after looking at the indecent picture machine and returning an indictment upon it with six others, one of which was withheld because the accused person is not in custody. This indictment is not really a new one, however, as it is simply a corrected bill against a man who was indicted several days ago and who has not yet been found.

The indictment on the picture machine was against Charles M. Frost and Alphonse LeTourneau, who were each fined $50 and costs in police court last week for the same matter. That prosecution was on a municipal ordinance, and the indictment is under a state law. They were released under $100 bail each.

Arthur Cox and Irvin Bronger, for stealing thirty bushels of flax from a box car in the yards of the Northern Pacific road, are indicted for grand larceny in the first degree. The serious nature of the charge is due to the fact that the stealing is alleged to have taken place in the night time. The flax is alleged to have been worth $50, and the theft is claimed to have taken place May 2.

Julius Hagen drew two indictments, both for grand larceny in the second degree. He is charged with stealing clothing from Joseph Sosnovsky, 27½ West Superior street, on April 29. Each indictment refers to a different outfit of clothing, differing only in that respect, and it is not stated whether he took both in one haul or whether he came back a second time, finding it easy money.

Frank Shearer is indicted for grand larceny in the first degree. The grand jury charges that on the night of April 8 he stole $80 and a watch from Frank Smith at the Denver lodging house on Fifth avenue west.

Charles H. Rupp was indicted for forgery in the second degree. He is accused of forging and passing upon Herman Mutch a check for $20, alleged to have been signed by John W. Nelson March 31.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The Central W. C. T. U. held its regular meeting in the M. E. church parlors yesterday. A fine program, consisting of songs, papers and short talks, was given by the members of the West Superior union, who came in large numbers. Notice was given of a series of meetings by the young woman's department, beginning June 6. A letter was read from the war department in response to a protest against vice, and a report from the inter-county meeting. A hearty vote of thanks closed the session.

TO PUSH THE WORK

Directors of the Highland Company Take Formal Steps.

Electrical Operation of Twin City Road Never Thought Of.

Use of Electric Power In Switching Is a Possibility.

This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, there was a meeting of the officers and directors of the Highland Canal and Power company and definite action was taken instructing the attorneys of the company to begin the proceedings for the condemnation of lands and secure the appointment of commissioners for that purpose as soon as possible.

The executive committee was authorized to carry out the financial plans of the company as proposed with a view to securing the completion of the entire project in accordance with the plans that have been outlined.

In the News Tribune this morning the impression was given that the company is considering the idea of furnishing electricity to operate railroads, possibly between the Twin Cities and the head of the lakes.

C. C. Cokefair said today that such a proposition has never been considered for a moment. Mr. Cokefair had shown to some persons a clipping from the Electrical World which said that Cornelius Vanderbilt was investigating the substitution of electricity for steam on the New York Central system, the power to come from Niagara Falls, and the suggestion had been casually made that some day the railroads in the vicinity of Duluth might take the matter up with the water power at the head of the lakes brought to a state of development.

Mr. Cokefair says, however, that it is possible and even probable that after the power is established the company can furnish electricity for all of the switching that is done at the head of the lakes. This could be done conveniently with the third rail system. It is entirely practical to use electricity for this purpose; in fact, it has been in use at Lockport, N. Y., for more than a year, the power coming from Niagara Falls and being transmitted for a distance of thirty-five miles. At that place 40-ton locomotives are used and they haul from 25 to 35 loaded cars. In all of the Baltimore tunnels electricity is used. Tests have been made that show that an electric engine can outpull a big mogul.

GRABBING.

Garfield Republican Club Pulling For Police Force Places.

It may be that Duluth's classified civil service is merely an unclassified fizzled farce.

The members of the Garfield Republican club, it is claimed, are trying to dictate a certain police appointment despite the fact that their candidate was cleanly beaten in the recent competitive examination for promotion in the department.

The same politicians are urging the removal of Acting Chief of Police C. H. Troyer and the appointment of W. B. Henderson, salesman for A. Booth & Co., and president of the Garfield club.

The office of the chief of police does not come within the civil service system. It is reported on good authority that any attempt to make political pull take precedence over the merit system will be fought in the courts by a prominent organization of the citizens who were largely interested in having the civil service provisions inserted in the new charter.

Section 181 of the city charter says that all appointments to any department of the city government coming within the classified service, shall be made solely on the ground of merit and fitness, ascertained by competitive examination, open to the public, and without reference to the manner in which the appointee shall have acted or voted in politics or to the political party with which he is connected.

The ratings of the recent civil service examination, published in The Herald, evidently did not please certain politicians and their activity has been something fierce ever since.

The attack on Chief Troyer's position came rather unexpectedly and while the chief is in Louisville attending the international convention of chiefs.

His friends, who are many and influential, are greatly stirred up by the announcement. It was reported today that a prominent Superior street business man was with the politicians in the movement against Chief Troyer.

This morning he volunteered a denial of the report in the following manner:

"My name used in connection with the naming of W. B. Henderson, as chief of police, has been used without my consent and I shall very plainly tell those that are in the movement where I stand.

"Mr. Troyer knows the police service thoroughly, and as a citizen and taxpayer I am one of those that think it absolutely necessary to have the office of chief of police out of politics, if the best results to society are to be obtained.

"I have absolutely nothing against the man selected by the politicians—that is nothing against him personally but police and politics cannot mingle without danger to the police service."

RATHBONE CASE

Will Be Reviewed By Cuban Court of Appeals.

Washington, May 13.—The president has directed Secretary Root to confer upon the Cuban court of appeals the right to review the testimony in the case of Estes G. Rathbone, convicted of complicity in the Cuban postal frauds, with authority to take additional evidence if it so desires. This authority will be immediately conferred, and it is presumed the court will act at once.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

NO VESSELS.

Missabe Dock Without Any to Load---Railroad Matters.

The Missabe ore dock had not a single vessel to load this morning. The tonnage famine also affects both of the other ore-hauling roads. The Duluth & Iron Range had three boats Sunday, two Monday and only one today.

As a result the movement of ore to the docks has been falling off rapidly of late, and today is down to a very small minimum. If present conditions continue much longer, it will be necessary to lay off a good many of the ore train crews.

The difficulty is due to the continuance of the strike of the licensed tugmen. The Soo passages indicate quite a movement of vessels bound up, but for the past three or four days they have been badly bunched at the other end of the lakes.

It is now expected that the Duluth & Iron Range ore dock No. 4 may be ready for use by soon after June 1. The timber work, which was delayed largely by blockades on the transcontinental roads, is now progressing rapidly, and it is predicted that it will be completed before the pockets and spouts are ready for the structure. No. 4 is being raised to the highest standard above the water, and incidentally being increased in capacity somewhat. The interior of the upper floor of the Union depot is being remodeled in preparation for the removal there of the Northern Pacific division headquarters. It is expected that the new offices will be ready for occupancy within two weeks.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota, the Alger-Smith road, is having twenty flat cars rebuilt.

The Duluth & Iron Range road has always as an independent road carried its own insurance, creating a fund for the purpose. It is said that the policy of the Steel corporation in the matter has not been definitely determined as yet with regard to the insurance question, and that the chief officials still have the matter under consideration.

Superintendent Vanderslice of the Northern Pacific will leave this afternoon in company with the division superintendent for a trip to Ashland.

Cashier Fred White is up the Duluth & Iron Range line paying off.

DECLINES.

Oscar Mitchell Declines to Be Candidate For Congress.

City Attorney Oscar Mitchell, who has been mentioned prominently for the Republican congressional nomination, says that he is not a candidate and has not even thought of being a candidate.

However, many of Mr. Mitchell's friends are anxious to see him change his mind, and a number have already assured him of support in case he should become a candidate.

SURPRISED

Was Samuel Thompson When His Pick Struck Some Dynamite.

Judge Dibell, in district court this morning, took up the case of Samuel Thompson against John Runquist, a construction contractor on the Duluth & Iron Range. Thompson was picking away with his pick one day in the pursuit of the duties for which he was employed, when the pick affronted the repose of a stick of dynamite that was resting on the ground. The dynamite blew up and blew Thompson's eye out, besides doing him other ills. He is suing for $15,000 damages, and the case is on trial before Judge Dibell and a jury.

The defense claims that when Thompson was in the hospital he accepted $150 and his hospital expenses from the contractor, and signed a release of all claims. Thompson alleges that he was not in his right mind when he signed the release. W. R. Spencer is his attorney, and H. T. Abbott appears for Runquist.

The case of Selma Olson against the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company and others is still on trial in room No. 2 today, before Judge Cant. The evidence was nearly all in, and the case was due to go to the jury this afternoon or in the morning.

ADMITS IT.

Marshal O'Hara Pleads Guilty to One Indictment Against Him.

William O'Hara, marshal of the village of Biwabik, who was indicted at the March term for presenting fraudulent bills to the county, pleaded guilty in district court this morning before Judge Ensign.

He pleaded guilty to one of the three indictments that were returned against him, and the other two will be dismissed. Sentence was deferred to next Monday afternoon, and in the meantime O'Hara goes free under his old bail.

The bills on which he was indicted were for bringing prisoners from Biwabik to the county jail. In two cases he sent in his bills and they were allowed, and later he sent in others for the same items. The third indictment was based on a bill for bringing a prisoner to the county jail when the prisoner escaped from him at Two Harbors.

County Attorney McClintock stated to the court this morning that he did not believe that O'Hara intended to defraud the county, and that he considered that his explanation that the second bills were sent before he knew that the first had been ordered paid was true. He had no inclination to be hard on O'Hara, though he thought that there was so much carelessness in this respect among range police officers that some punishment should be inflicted.

O'Hara was re-elected as marshal by the people of Biwabik after he had been indicted and arrested.

Will Finish This Week.

Hugo & Tims will complete the pavement of the Garfield avenue viaduct the current week.

The same firm of contractors completed the timber foundation for the new aerial ferry last night, and will begin work tomorrow on the concrete work for the foundation. This will take about two weeks time, and then there will be no further progress in the matter until the steel is ready. This will be some time next October.

Deal For Blast Furnace Said to Be Near Consummation.

The sale of the blast furnace at West Duluth is reported as consummated, but there is a decided reticence among those interested to saying anything about it.

J. L. Washburn is said to represent the interests that are purchasing, but when asked as to it today Mr. Washburn would say nothing but this:

"I sincerely hope that a deal will be consummated, but further than that I can say nothing at this time."

It is reported that the sale has been practically agreed upon but that it is in the condition of a deal not formally closed—open to cancellation should the parties see fit to change their minds.

The interests who are purchasing are understood to be buying the plant for the purpose of putting it in shape for actual operation at once.

TO RUN AGAIN.

Senator E. B. Hawkins to Be Candidate For Re-Election.

Senator E. B. Hawkins has returned from a ten days' trip East and has gone up on the range to look after the Drake-Stratton stripping operations at the Stevenson, Fayal and Buhl properties.

Several rumors became current while Mr. Hawkins was away. One was that he had gone East with the especial purpose of getting married. It is declared that the bride didn't return with him.

Another report was to the effect that he had decided not to be a candidate for renomination for senator from the Forty-ninth district.

While the senator has not been seen to speak for publication on the subject, it is said by a friend of his who has discussed the matter with him that there is absolutely no truth in the statement that he will not run for the senate.

Mr. Hawkins, it is said, has at no time considered withdrawing from the field. His candidacy is considered as equivalent to a renomination.

IN ISANTI.

J. Adam Bede Solid There, According to a Prominent Resident.

A. H. Southerland, of Cambridge, Minn., was in the city for a brief visit yesterday. He is one of the solid citizens of Isanti county, and he is a law partner of State Senator Henry F. Barker, of Cambridge.

Isanti county is a new acquisition of the Duluth congressional district, having been added to the new Eighth district, with Kanabec county, under the reapportionment.

"Isanti is solid for J. Adam Bede," said Mr. Southerland yesterday. "He has a remarkably thorough acquaintance throughout the county, and wherever the matter is discussed, both by newspapers and among the people, his name is on every tongue as the man to be sent to congress from this district. He is very popular in our end of the district, and he will get a tremendous vote there, both for nomination and election. As our county is next to your own in the district in the number of votes it will cast, we consider that our voice counts for something. We shall cast about 2500 votes this year, and Mr. Bede can figure on a good, large percentage of them. I am glad to find that you people up here seem to agree with us on that proposition.

"It is wonderful what a change in boundary line will work in the attitude of different communities. Since we got into the Duluth congressional district we have looked much more to Duluth, and we think of her as one of our near neighbors and as the capital of our district. Since the Eastern Minnesota cut-off brought us a railroad for the first time our county has taken a sudden leap, and its population and resources are growing apace. I see evidences of prosperity on every hand here, too, and I am very glad of it. You have a charming city and a lively one, with a full destiny that seems about to be realized. You have the best wishes of the southern end of the district."

HOLDS WITH LOCAL MEN.

New York Court Decision In Neilson-Record Case.

A United States court in the city of New York takes a different view of the accident in which the tug Record was sunk in the harbor three years ago than did John S. Sloane, government supervising inspector of vessels. In a damage suit brought about through the accident, the court did not agree with Mr. Sloane's decision, but held that the version of the affair taken by the local inspectors, Messrs. Monaghan and Chalk, was the correct one.

The facts of the case were as follows: On Oct. 18, 1899, the tug Record was towing the steamer J. B. Neilson up the harbor at an early morning hour, when it was dark and very foggy. The tug Record took the tow line and the steamer Neilson continued to work her own engines. When abreast of the Peavey elevator on Rice's Point, the Neilson overtook and struck the Record, rolling the tug over and capsizing her. The Record sank, carrying down her fireman, who was unable to get out of the engine room in time.

The accident was investigated by the local steamboat inspectors, who found that the Neilson, Capt. Hunt, master, was at fault and had run down the tug.

At that time the Nelison belonged to the Bessemer Steamship company and the company appealed to Supervising Inspector Sloane. The latter reversed the findings of the local inspectors and placed the blame of the accident on the tug Record, Capt. Burnett, master.

HE MEANS BUSINESS

Hill Determined to Give Northwestern Millers the Differential.

May Have Sharp Time With the Big Trunk Lines.

They Maintain Position That No Other Lines Insist On.

One notable feature of the Northern Steamship company's new flour tariffs, which provide for a 2½ cent differential on export flour, is that they declare "these rates expire with the close of lake navigation, unless sooner revoked." All the tariffs previously issued this season have been for a stated calendar period, or careful provision has been made for hurriedly publishing new tariffs in case of necessity. The Northern company does not deliberately deny itself the latter privilege, but it is said to declare its very set purpose when it says, "These rates expire with the close of navigation."

A certain man who is close to the general freight department of the Hill companies said this morning: "I know that the men connected with Mr. Hill's companies are determined to give Northwestern millers this differential of 2½ cents on export flour as compared with domestic shipments. Mr. Hill feels that he is not to be so lightly thrown aside in this matter as he has been in the past by the trunk lines. It is partly with this purpose in view that he has made affiliations in Wall street during the past few years that can exert a powerful influence, indirectly at least, on the trunk lines. He has a little the best of the other Western lines by being able to get his traffic as far east as trunk line territory proper on his own line. All he has to reckon with is the trunk lines from Buffalo to New York, and it is believed from the tariffs that have just been issued that he is prepared to maintain his position.

"Furthermore, there is more concerned in this fight on flour rates than the public has any suspicion. It concerns the whole question of lake and rail merchandise rates, east-bound and west-bound, during the season of navigation, and of all-rail rates during the closed season. It is true that during the closed season the Canadian Pacific railroad lines help hold the trunk lines down, but they never granted any concessions that would make them lose sleep. They insist on the full local arbitrary as their share of the through rate, something that is not demanded by any other group of roads in the country. An enlarged Erie canal would be one of the best influences in the world for bringing those trunk line roads to their proper place. I think, however, that Mr. Hill is finding a way out of the difficulty."

Flour shipments last week by lake from interior mills footed up 153,500 barrels, which was a falling off of about 4000 barrels from the last week. Local mills shipped, in addition to the above, 23,830 barrels, which was a falling off of about 7000 barrels from the week before. Receipts here for lake shipment from interior mills up to May 3 have been 822,300 barrels this spring. This is about 115,000 barrels less than a year ago, when navigation opened over a month later. This is claimed by shippers to be due in part to the uncertain policy of the lake and rail lines, which prevented the millers sometimes from figuring on rates as a known quantity any time ahead.

WILL MEET.

West End Business Men's Club to Get Together Soon.

Owing to the Twentieth avenue railway station matter that has been pending in the courts, the Business Men's club of the West End has not held a session in several weeks. It was thought that a decision would soon be rendered by the court and then a meeting would have been called.

President Nelson of the club said last evening that there will be no longer delay, and that if the committee appointed at the last session of the club to formulate the by-laws is ready to report, a meeting will be called within the next week.

The interest of the members has been centered in the case against the Northern Pacific company, the decision of which has not yet been rendered by the court. The club is beginning to realize that there is considerable work cut out for it within the next six weeks or two months, and the executive committee is anxious to get the organization on a working basis.

NOT LIKELY

Eastern Roads Have Abandoned the Faster Service Idea.

It is generally regarded by railway men that the proposition of the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania roads to put on 17-hour service between Chicago and New York has been effectually disposed of, for the time being at least. Moreover, it is more than suspected that the considerable amount that was printed about the proposition last week was an advertising scheme of the two roads.

The first talk of quicker service came from the Pennsylvania. It proposed to put on an 18-hour light train from Chicago to New York, charging excess fare. The Lake Shore suddenly concluded that it had been figuring on this for some time. The latter went the former one better by running a sample train over its line in order to test its ability to maintain Empire State Express time over the much longer run to Chicago. It was announced that this could be done. Then the Pennsylvania announced that it had concluded to make its time 17 hours. Of course, the Lake Shore could do the same thing.

After these achievements, actual and prospective, had been properly written up, it was announced the last of the week that the quicker service would likely not be put on right away. It had been found that in order to make the 17 or 18-hour time, it would be necessary to cut the train to five cars, which would reduce its earning capacity so seriously that it would be necessary to charge an excess of $10 over regular fare in order to make it pay expenses. Inasmuch as less excess for 20-hour service during the world's fair prevented that train from paying over the Lake Shore, it is believed that neither road, in the light of that experience, would attempt to make a higher excess now.

The fact of the matter is that when people can travel 35 or 40 miles an hour and make schedule stops, they are pretty well satisfied with the speed. The majority of people on a 500 or 1000-mile ride, if they have traveled much, would rather ride at the rate of 30 or 35 miles an hour. The latter speed is equal often to 60 to 75 miles an hour actual running time at times.

The Omaha Fast Mail, for instance, from Chicago to Duluth, is one of the fastest trains in this country considering the weight of its equipment when it leaves Chicago and the fact that it runs most of the way over a single track road, having to stop for both water and coal and a great deal oftener than through trains usually do for local traffic.

The fast mail is scheduled at thirty-six miles an hour, with stops to be made out of that. The Lake Shore limited and the Lake Shore fast mail between Chicago and Buffalo make only forty miles an hour, with comparatively few stops, a straight track through a country like a billiard table and a roadbed that has been built for fifty years, with never the necessity for taking a siding. The Omaha on the other hand runs over a single track through a very hilly country, in order to reach Duluth.

The fast mail is considered to have no rivals for speed among all the trains running out of Chicago considering the handicaps it has in the way of hilly country to run through. The fast mails to the West make a little better time, but they are part of through continental service, make fewer stops and have a prairie country to run through. Moreover, people who have traveled on them would just as soon ride a little slower if they want to sleep.

It is considered a difficult matter for the Omaha to better its present schedule materially north bound, from Chicago, until it double-tracks its line all the way and puts water troughs between the rails so water can be taken without stopping at a tank. Then it would also be necessary for it to put on another train to Chicago which would take care of business from Chicago to local points, and it is said to require all the business that can be picked up just now to make the present train approach an adequately paying basis on the upper end. If the train carried business to fill three or four sleepers, instead of one, there might be more incentive to add more service, and as it is it carries the lion's share of the Chicago business.

A Fine Concert.

The concert given last evening at Pilgrim church by the pupils of Mrs. Meloche was a fine musical and financial success. The church was well filled with a very appreciative audience, and the efforts of those taking part met with keen appreciation. The pupils gave selections by the best masters in a very artistic manner, and a number were compelled to respond to encores.

Mrs. Robert L. Knebel sang and was welcomed with much enthusiasm. Signor Valenza, the harpist, was also received with much favor.

SEEDING IS BACKWARD.

Progressing Better Now But Still Rather Slowly.

Information received by people here who are interested in farms in North Dakota or the Red River valley is to the effect that seeding is proceeding more rapidly but still slowly. It is thought from these advices that better than half the area that will be put into wheat is now seeded, for so much will be devoted to flax on account of the late spring. It is said that wheat sown between May 15 and June 1 stands a fair chance of maturing before the early fall frosts attack it, but that it runs some chances.

Register of Deeds Lofgren has received letters from the Red River valley district in Minnesota that farmers there are as far behind in spring work, considering the lateness of the season, as they are across the river in North Dakota.

THE DAKOTAS.

Court Denies Motion to Dismiss the Coleman Case.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Faulkton—The state rested its case in the Joseph Coleman murder hearing Monday. A motion by the defense to dismiss was denied. The defense is making a strong effort to draw out the theory of the state and the gist of its testimony so that in the event the defendant is held to circuit court they will know in advance the whole of the state's case. It seems almost certain the defendant will be held without bail unless the defense has some surprises in store and that does not seem probable. This is a long drawn-out case for a preliminary hearing and is an indication of what is to follow in circuit court should it reach there.

Edgemont—Thomas Gannon has resigned as roadmaster of this division of the Burlington, after a service that began when the road was built. He intends to engage in the contracting business with Mike Elmore, who has several large railroad contracts at present. He has been succeeded by Daniel Murphy.

Humboldt—F. A. Kruse has been arrested charged with embezzling funds belonging to the Farmers' Elevator company.

Deadwood—Six Indians from Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservations have been returned to Deadwood from Sioux City to serve sentences for larceny.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Jamestown—A wave of reform has struck Carrington and as a starter a disorderly house run by Tom Duffy, was raided and Duffy and two women and a man were arrested and fined.

D. A. Langworthy, a farmer, residing near Courtenay, is in a serious condition, as a result of a fall from a 40-foot windmill tower. He is 72 years of age, and as he has severe injuries besides a broken ankle, his recovery is doubtful.

Mrs. Stephen Abert lost a thumb in a peculiar manner. She was aiding her husband to extricate a horse from a well and in holding back a portion of the earth from the top of the well she was struck on the thumb by a shovel in the hands of her husband, severing the member completely from her hand. A few minutes later a tramp came along and while gazing into the well fell in and was rescued with difficulty.

Minot—The trial of Clarence L. Coats, charged with the murder of Fred Braatz near Kenmare on the night of April 30, was begun in district court today before Judge Cowan. States Attorney James Johnson will prosecute and L. J. Palda, of Kenmare, and Arthur LeSieur, of this city, appears for Coats. It is expected the jury will be selected before night, and the introduction of evidence will begin Tuesday morning. Braatz had threatened to kill his wife and family and they appealed to Coats for protection. Braatz assaulted Coats.

Fargo—Marital troubles in the family of George Sugg, a well-known farmer of Argusville, led to the recent publication of a notice that he would no longer be responsible for any debts contracted by Mrs. Sugg. The latter makes a hot reply and seeks divorce, and at the same time has asked the courts to prevent her husband disposing of his property pending the final determination of the divorce proceedings.

IN MICHIGAN.

First Fatal Accident Occurs on Houghton Street Railway.

Houghton—The first fatality on the Houghton county street railway happened near Calumet adjoining the Florida trestle at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Simon Simonson, of Calumet avenue, Laurium, was struck while walking on the track by through car No. 28 and was instantly killed. The car came around a sharp curve at this point and Motorman Goggin did not see the victim of the accident in time to stop the car. Simonson was identified by papers found in his pockets. The car was in charge of Conductor Livingway. Coroner Fisher called a jury to investigate the fatality.

The steamer Scnuykill of the Anchor line has arrived at Dollar Bay. The boat brought several carloads of sewer pipe for the village of Lake Linden and the rails and splice bars for the railroad which is now under construction for the Phoenix Mining company between the mine and the mill.

Menominee—A special meeting of the Menominee River Boom company has been called for May 22, for the purpose of diminishing the capital stock of the company from $1,500,000 to $250,000 and the number of shares from 15,000 to 2500. The old certificates will also be called in and new certificates issued, and the rights of the various stockholders will be adjusted accordingly. This action is deemed necessary on account of the decreasing business transacted by the corporation.

Hancock—The funeral of Mrs. Lowney, widow of the late Quinlan Lowney, was held from St. Patrick's church Sunday morning, with burial in the family lot in the Catholic cemetery, where her husband was laid to rest six years ago. The deceased was 75 years of age and died at Newberry. She was one of the original settlers in the Lake Superior region, coming to Ontonagon county with her husband in 1852. He was a miner in the Brearhaven mines in the county of Cork, Ireland. They moved to Hancock in 1861 and left for the Butte copper district several years ago. Longing to return they started back to Portage Lake. He died on the way at Duluth.

ON LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Minister to Sweden and Norway Comes Home.

New York, May 13.—Dr. William Widgery Thomas, United States minister to Sweden and Norway, has arrived here on a short leave of absence. He has been in the diplomatic service forty years, and has filled his present office three terms. Dr. Thomas spoke highly of King Oscar, who, he declared, has the confidence of the world. The king will take up the task of arbitrating the Samoan differences between the United States and Great Britain and Germany in June, after his return from a journey through South Europe.

Healthy Mind in a Healthy Body

Stomach and brain affect each other. A sick stomach sours the disposition and prevents sleep and brain rest, and a sick brain sours the stomach and clogs the bowels. Men of sedentary habits, brain workers who don't get much exercise, have sick stomachs and bowels, and wear out their brains and nerves.

"I work in the office and don't get as much exercise as I should, and when I feel bad I just take a Cascaret which always makes me feel alright."
—J. E. Roban, Q. & C. Route, Crescent, Ky.

"I had a torpid liver for months. I bought a box of Cascarets in Washington and have not only been put in perfect health, but have gained considerable in weight."
—Harry Hodgson, Rockville, Md.

"Cascarets were the only medicine I had with me when I beat the world's record as "Champion Corn Husker of America," husking 270 bushels in 10 hours."
—E. E. Kimberlin, La Harpe, Ill.

"Some time ago, while I was in Millersburg, Pa., Mr. Freck, the landlord, was afflicted with severe pains in the stomach. I insisted upon his taking a Cascaret before going to bed and next morning he passed 6 in. of a tape-worm. He bought a box of Cascarets and a tape-worm 45 feet long came from him head and all."
—Chas. E. Condon, Millinburg, Pa.

"Cascarets cured me radically of dyspepsia and headache and my weight which before was 170 is now 150 lbs."—S. Navarro, Biloxi, Miss.

"I find Cascarets beneficial after a spell of hard work, clearing the brain as well as the bowels, and also working off colds in good shape."—E. C. Stokes, Philadelphia, Pa.

A man who keeps his bowels regular with Cascarets Candy Cathartic, that is without strain or violence, can keep strong and healthy without much exercise. A famous professor in Jefferson Medical College used to advise his students: "Trust in God and keep your bowels open!" That's God's own wisdom, for when the bowels are regular and the digestion strong and healthy, then the system is safe and the brain and nerves will have inexhaustible elasticity and life.

UNFAIR TACTICS

Quit the Field Because Not Allowed Their Own Way.

Duluth Gave In Twice But Stood Firm the Third.

In the first half of the ninth inning, the game between Duluth and Minneapolis high schools at Oneota park yesterday was declared forfeited to the local school, on the failure of the Minneapolis men to abide by the decision of the umpire.

The game started out well—an even battle mostly between the pitchers. Cummings outpitched his rival, Getty, but the support given him was much inferior to that which the Minneapolis twirler received. In the third inning Minneapolis got two runs on errors by Summers and Stanecke. No more scoring was done on either side until the fifth inning when Duluth earned a run. Duluth with a man on both second and third pounded out a safe single. Duffy, the Minneapolis third baseman, apparently purposely, fell over and sat on the Duluth runner, preventing him from scoring. Umpire Bennett gave the man his base as is specified in the rules, but the Twin City players refused to abide by the decision. After disputing for some time, Duluth, though obviously in the right from every point of view, yielded the point, in order that the game might not be interrupted. By so doing the Duluth team gave up one and perhaps two scores that might as well have been theirs.

The game went on with all goose eggs and the score at 2 to 1 until the first half of the ninth, when Duluth got Summers on second and pounded out a two-bagger. Capt. Courtney and Duffy, the third baseman of the Minneapolis nine, both deliberately tried to trip the runner, succeeding in very effectively impeding his progress. He was awarded his base for interference. Again the Minneapolis men refused to cede the point.

Duluth has in the past presented the Minneapolis Central high school with more games than the conduct of its players merited, but now she stood firm. Minneapolis not resuming the game in the specified time, it was declared forfeited to Duluth by a score of 9 to 0. Had the Minneapolis players played a fair game the score would have been 3 to 2 in favor of Duluth.

With the Minneapolitans it was a question of forfeiting the game or being fairly beaten by the local team. They chose to do the former thus robbing the local boys of the honor which was really theirs of having fairly beaten them.

Such exhibitions as the Minneapolis Central high school players have been guilty of on the Duluth field, are seldom seen among any players who claim to be gentlemen. The Duluth boys are utterly disgusted with their conduct and in the future will have nothing more to do with them in any way.

'Lodie" Cline, the big Duluth professional, was at the game. His opinion of the Minneapolis boys was this: "For a lot of kids they play the dirtiest game I ever saw."

And that was the opinion of the crowd that attended.

Owing to the bad weather, only a small crowd was present. The High School Athletic association will lose about $75 on the game.

The line-up was as follows:

Minneapolis—		Duluth—
Howard	catcher	Porter
Getty	pitcher	Cummings
Marshall	1st base	Congdon
Duffy	2nd base	Peterson
Condon	3rd base	Stanecke
Courtney	short stop	Scoble
Brooks	center field	Dash
Lusk	right field	Summers

AMUSEMENTS.

EMMA NEVADA.

Rather a discreditably small house greeted the appearance of Madame Emma Nevada at the Lyceum last night. Discreditable, because there was not the excuse of counter-attractions or bad weather, for the weather would serve to pack the house for a much less notable and less satisfying performance. Those who did attend were largely music lovers, and if the house had been larger it could not have been more warmly appreciative.

The program was a long one, and full of choice things. Madame Nevada's part of it, especially, was most charmingly done. Her numbers included a wide range of themes, enought to test the range, compass, flexibility, power and sympathy of her voice in a thorough manner, and, of course, she responded nobly to all the demands made upon her inexhaustible supply of musical excellencies. On the lower register particularly her voice is mellow and flute-like, while the upper register is guilty of a bit of barely noticeable thinness. It was an exceedingly beautiful and interesting performance, and it was highly enjoyed.

Madame Nevada is ably assisted by Leon Moreau, a pianist and composer of note and of genuine ability. He had three numbers on the progrdm, and his selections included the works of Liszt, Moszowsky, Chopin, Raff and one charming number of his own composition. His mastery of the piano is uncommon, and in every respect he gave a thoroughly, delightfully and enjoyably celan-cut elevating performance.

"PINAFORE" TONIGHT.

Tonight and tomorrow night, at the Lyecum, the opera "Pinafore" will be presented under the auspices of the ladies of the First Presbyterian church. A very large audience is assured, for the opening of the sale of seats yesterday morning was marked by a rush similar to that experienced on the occasion of the opening sale of some of the largest attractions Duluth has had in recent months.

The opera has been carefully rehearsed and particular attention given to those little details that go to make up a perfect performance. The costuming and staging will be of the very best. The cast is made up of the best talent in Duluth and all have entered into the production with enthusiasm. Those who will have the parts are:

Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., first lord of the admiralty...Robert Cox
Capt. Corcoran, commanding H. M. S. Pinafore.....Philip G. Brown
Ralph Rackstraw, able seaman.....Cyril Tyler
Dick Deadeye, second seaman.....Charles Applehagen
Bill Robstay, boatswain....Roy Prytz
Bob Beckett, boatswain's mate.....Dave Evans
Josephine.....Mrs. James McAuliffe
Buttercup.....Miss Antoinette West
Hebe.....Miss Jane Everington

Harry Howell, of West Superior, is the musical director ,and the staging of the opera is under the direction of Lansing Robinson.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Stetson's mammoth double production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will appear at the Lyceum Friday evening. The rendition of Uncle Tom by this well known and well-liked company will never grow old. This management evidently believes in the maxim: "What's worth doing is worth doing well." There runs through this grand story a pathos peculiarly touching and sweet. It speaks the universal language of the heart. It reflects like a mirror the innermost phases of the human emotions. It is more than a play—it is a moral classic. It argues for two of the greatest themes that can engage the mind—human liberty and the immortality of the soul. Notwithstanding the frequent production of this play, it is never produced in the sumptuous manner by other companies that it is in Stetson's. It is like meeting an old friend after a year's absence.

AFTER IRON.

George H. Crosby Not Satisfied With a Single Strike.

George H. Crosby is said to have merely whetted his appetite for the mining business by his success in the Kinney-Hawkins-Crosby deal. He is now understood to be exploring some property near the Hale mine in sections 6 and 7. Test pits have been started and a diamond drill will soon be operated.

During the winter Corrigan, McKinney & Co. have developed the Stevenson mine considerably. The mine, which is an open pit, is entered from the east end. Last season this entrance was only wide enough for two tracks, but this has been widened until the entrance is broader than the pit of the mine itself. The result is that there will be plenty of trackage to handle all the ore that can be taken out by as many steam shovels as can be operated in the pit. It is estimated that the mine will ship 1,800,000 tons of ore this season.

The Biwabik mine is working four shovels and 130 men.

The first shaft is down 110 feet, having struck ore at 90 feet. The second is down 45 feet, and hoisting plants are being installed at both shafts.

FORESIGHT.

James J. Hill's Is Shown In a Comparison of Wheat Receipts.

"Did you ever study geography in figures?" asked a grain man this morning. Furthermore, they afford an excellent demonstration of the keen foresight of James J. Hill as a railway builder—using the term in its broadest sense.

"Up to this time, and including nine months of the current crop year, the Great Northern has brought into Duluth about 30,000 carloads of wheat. In the same time, the Northern Pacific has hauled here a little over 16,000 carloads. Now these figures do not represent essentially the results of competitive soliciting for wheat. That question in truth enters into the situation very little.

"The results simply tell the tale of the keenest foresight in the location of the two lines with regard to the wheat country. Mr. Hill could foresee where the wheat belt lay, just as iron men know how where the iron belt lies on the Mesaba range. He built his road through what would become this belt on this side of the border. Now that road is hauling two-thirds of the wheat.

"Carrying this computation into the aggregate figures for the receipts here of all grains and you find that in the same period the Hill road has received 40,000 cars, while the Northern Pacific has handled 25,584 cars. This indicates that the country through which the Northern Pacific passes has been more largely diversified in farming—that a larger proportion of other grains than wheat are being raised than farther north. It also may be carried to a further conclusion along the same line, and be accepted as proof that the Northern Pacific is carrying the form of live stock and other markets a great deal of the other grains raised in its territory. But on the whole the comparative showing is a fine tribute to the sagacity of Mr. Hill."

STARTED IT.

South Shore Originated Idea of Copper Country Excursion.

"The Herald ought to correct the published report," said a business man this morning, "that the Commercial club is trying to arrange with the south shore road for an excursion of Upper Michigan business men to Duluth. I happen to know that as long as six weeks ago the local representatives of the road were instructed by Mr. Fitch to take up the matter of entertaining such a party if the road would bring it here. There has never been any question of the road's willingness or anxiety to bring such an excursion. It originated the idea." The only question of whether the excursion should be given depended on the willingness of Duluth business men to entertain the visitors, and I never heard this hospitality questioned. The reason I speak of this is that it seems right that Mr. Fitch, who first thought of the excursion, should be given full credit for his thoughtfulness and generosity in the matter. There has never been a time when Mr. Fitch has not been broadly generous in his plans and efforts for bringing the two terminal sections of his line closer together, and I know the Commercial club feels that he should be given full credit for his interest in the matter."

NOT EVIDENCE OF MERGER.

Coincidence In Decoration of Ticket Offices.

Rumors that the Eastern Minnesota and Northern Pacific city offices are both closed for redecoration at the same time as a result of the merger are said to be wholly unfounded. It is a peculiar coincidence that workmen began redecorating both offices on the same day, and that about the same amount of progress is made daily in each case. Most of the day yesterday these operations were so all-pervading that the doors were locked. Each road claims that it will outdo the other in the extent and artistic beauty of its decorations, and insists that the other when it says the same thing is a mere braggart.

In spite of the merger being supposed to bring the two roads closer together, there is no outward evidence locally that such is the case. The representatives of each road have never hustled harder for business than they have this season, or put more personal interest and spirit into their efforts.

TO ASSERT ITS RIGHT

City to Get After Property Delinquent on Assessments.

Investigation of Methods of Employment Agents Is Ordered.

Estimates For Paralleling West Duluth Water System Received.

The council last night:

Instructed city attorney to assert city's forfeited property rights.

Ordered an investigation of methods and practices of employment agents.

Passed an ordinance strictly prohibiting sidewalk encroachments.

Received estimates for duplicating West Duluth's water system.

Called for an ordinance to restrict transient auctioneering sales.

Considered an ordinance to improve the poundmaster service.

Received appointments of three members of the library board.

The council instructed the city attorney to assert the municipal rights to the title of all property forfeited to the city by the non-payment of assessments.

If necessary, the city attorney is to bring suit to have the titles declared to be in the city.

At present there is considerably over $50 000 worth of property within the city limits on which the period of redemption for non-poyment of assessments, has expired.

Recently there was some question as to whether the sale for county taxes should not endanger the city's interest in this property, hence the iron-clad instruction to the city attorney.

If possible the titles of all this property will be registered under the recently inaugurated Torrens system.

Mayor Hugo sent in a veto of the resolution granting a pawn broker's license to Al H. Polinsky and an employment agency license to Joseph Sheehy.

The mayor stated that Mr. Polinsky had been arrested twice for fraudulent practices, escaping on payment of costs each time. Against Joseph Sheehy, laboring men had registered twenty-five complaints within the last four months.

The veto was sustained, and Aldermen Tischer, Trevillion and Kern were instructed to make a thorough investigation of the methods and practices of employment agents, before the council would renew any more licenses.

Alderman Havens ordinance prohibiting building permits where the plans and specifications show sidewalk encroachments, was passed. The ordinance makes it obligatory on the building inspector to examine the plans of a building and issue the permit before actual work on the structure begins.

The board of water and light commissioners, in response to a request for an estimate of duplicating the West Duluth water system, submitted an interesting report.

The board claims that the system which is without gas mains, could be built, at present for $129,306.29. To put the gas mains in the trenches occupied by the present water system would cost $55,420.50. A complete paralleling of the present system with gas mains in addition, would cost $190,905.

These estimates include the laying of a 10-inch gas main from Twenty-fifth avenue west to Thirty-fourth avenue west, a distance of 5409 feet.

The question of purchasing the water plant was not brought up last evening.

A resolution was introduced instructing the city attorney to prepare an ordinance restricting temporary sales and amending the auctioneering ordinance, so that no license should be issued for less than $100.

Recently a number of the leading jewelry stores of the city complained about the transcient auction sales of cheap jewelry, which not only proved detrimental to legitimate business, but pinnced the citizens that patronized. The new ordinance is expected to remedy this trouble.

Alderman Swenson introduced an ordinance which the residents in suburban districts will certainly appreciate. If passed it will make street formen or other designated city employes, poundmaster. Nearly every community has a city employe and nearly every community is troubled by stray cattle. The good effects of the proposed ordinance are obvious.

The mayor announced the appointment of S. T. Harrison, R. C. Mitchell and Dr. S. M. Stocker, as members of the library board.

A resolution was adopted, authorizing Aldermen Wing, Olson and Krumsieg to confer with the board of fire commissioners, in regard to the erection of suitable tanks along the harbor front for fire fighting purposes.

A drinking fountain was ordered in at the corner of Woodland avenue and Carlyle street.

LIFE FLOAT.

Life Saving Apparatus Invented By Capt. F. P. Houghton.

Capt. F. P. Houghton, master of the big steel steamer James J. Hill, which is engaged in the ore trade between Duluth and the lower lakes, is the inventor of a new life float that is said to bid fair to place the captain on a financial basis that will, in a few years, permit him to retire from active service on the lakes.

The appliance is called the Carley life float, and a company has been organized in Boston to manufacture it. Capt. Houghton, on his last trip to Duluth, brought a model of the float, which has been hung up in the office of the local steamboat inspectors, and which has attracted much attention from the marine men.

The floats are built in sizes of 5 by 8 feet, capable of holding seventeen persons, and 10 by 18 feet, capable of holding seventy-five people. They are constructed of copper tubing, varying in diameter according to the size of the float, which lies on the water in the form of an ellipse. The tubing is in one-foot sections, covered with a layer of cork, wound with copper wire, and the whole covered with canvas. Attached to the tubing by a strong netting is a wooden or metallic platform, while long ropes held to the surface by wooden floats radiate fro mthe top of the netting.

In case of an accident, it is claimed that two men can easily launch the largest float. It makes no difference how it is thrown in the water, for the platform hangs equally well from either side. Oars are tied to the sides of the float.

Capt. Houghton says that the merits his life float possesses above the ordinary life raft are many. It is not nearly so heavy, hence more easily handled than a life raft. Furthermore, when persons are once inside of it there is no danger of their being washed away, even if too exhausted to cling to the float. It has been tried with success by the navy, and accompanying the model are numerous photographs showing sailors experimenting with it.

TO BE ACTIVE.

Consolidated Land Company at Superior to Pursue Aggressive Policy.

Ogden Hammond, president of the Consolidated Land company, of West Superior, who returned yesterday from a conference with officers and directors of the company in the East, says that it will be the policy of the company to take a more active part hereafter in offering inducements to manufacturing concerns to locate in Superior. The company will not only grant concessions in the way of suitable sites, but it will put a certain amount of money into the new enterprises, taking in return a share of its stock.

Furthermore the company agrees to build dwelling houses on its East End property as fast as there is a demand for them. Relative to the report that he was East to arrange for the removal to Superior of a steel plant, Mr. Hammond says that he talked with a number of men engaged in the steel business and that while all agreed that the head of the lakes offered excellent facilities, they gave the impression that any success along the line of steel making will depend on the efforts of the people at the head of the lakes, rather than outside parties.

WANTS STRAIGHT FEE.

City Attorney McKay Declines Superior Council's Offer.

The city council of West Superior has offered former City Attorney McKay 10 per cent of all the money that he recovers if he will continue to prosecute the case against the land company for its back taxes. Mr. McKay has refused the offer. In reply to the council's offer he says that the proposition is an unusual one and there might be question as to its legality. He has offered to continue the case if he is paid reasonable fees, advanced in the usual way. It is believed that the council will not accept the terms of the former city attorney, but direct the new city attorney to institute proceedings against the land company.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time), May 13.—The low pressure area central Monday morning over South Dakota has moved to North Atlantic states, and the "high" that was developing north of Alberta has moved to Assiniboia, Manitoba and the upper lake region, while pressures continue low north from Nevada. These conditions favor a continuance of cold and threatening weather and northwest winds at the head of the lakes during the ensuing thirty-six hours. Light to heavy rains fell over the greater portion of the lake region and central Westas a rule the weather is a little warmer. The winds in the lake region are fresh northerly and easterly.

Transport Facilities Are Inadequate.

That the American troops will still be on the island of Cuba on May 20, when freedom is declared, is now a foregone conclusion. It is to be hoped that the presence of the boys in blue will not mar the pleasure of the Cubans for it was certainly the intention of the United States to have all the soldiers away excepting those who are to remain permanently. The war department is having difficulty in getting our soldiers away from the island, and there is little prospect that the original plan of having but 800 troops there on May 20 will be carried out. Lack of transport facilities is given as the cause of the failure of the quartermaster to get the troops off. When it was decided to evacuate Cuba on May 20, there were 4900 American soldiers in the island. It was determined to withdraw all but 500, who were to be left in the various fortifications which are to be retained by the United States government. Orders were given that the balance should be brought home, and the quartermaster general has been working on the task ever since. So far he has withdrawn about 1200, and he hopes to have 800 more out by the last of this week. This would leave about half of our force still on the island to witness the establishment of the new government. When Secretary Root abolished the army transport service at New York he left practically no war department vessels on the Atlantic coast. Consequently it has been necessary to charter private steamers to withdraw the Cuban forces. Trouble has been experienced getting vessels, with the result as before stated, that only about half of the troops will have been withdrawn by May 20. It ought to make no difference, however, to the Cubans. The American soldier boys will share their joy and assist in their glorious demonstration.

Land Lottery in South Dakota.

The United States is going to have another lottery. In spite of the adverse criticism that was made on the plan of settling the recent land opening by lot, the government found that it was the most satisfactory method that had been adopted and will try it again. About three hundred thousand acres of land of the Rosebud Indians, in South Dakota, were recently purchased by act of congress, the law providing that the territory should be prepared for settlement by the department of the interior. Secretary Hitchcock, in making arrangements to open up this land, has decided to follow the plan that was operated so successfully a year ago in connection with the Kiowa and Comanche lands in Indian territory. As soon as the land has been surveyed and divided into homesteads announcement will be made of the conditions governing the awards of lots. On a certain date applications will be received. As each application comes in it will be numbered and filed away. At the time duplicate numbers will be prepared and thrown into a huge receptacle. When the period for receiving applications expires a committee will be selected to award the homesteads. This will be done by the drawing of lots. If the opening of the Indian lands last year can be taken as a criterion, there will be several thousand of applications more than homesteads. In order to avoid favoritism by giving lands to a certain few and refusing them to others, the awards will be made by chance. Each applicant will be represented by a number in the receptacle containing the numbered slips and as many of these pieces of paper will be drawn out as there are homesteads. A record will be kept of the numbers as they are drawn, the first one receiving the first choice of the lands, and so on until the last division has been taken. Perhaps after all, the plan is as good as any which could be adopted. It, at least, has the advantage that every one has an equal chance, and that was not the case with the old-time methods.

SPANISH WAR CLAIMS.

In spite of the attempts of the brilliant attorneys to convince the members of the spanish claims commission that they ought to promptly allow the claims of American citizens against Spain, which were assumed by the United States by the terms of the treaty of Paris, it may be years before the claims are out of the way. When the treaty was signed the claimants thought all they would have to do would be to file big fat bills, which would be promptly paid. Not a cent has been given out yet, and the court of Spanish claims shows no disposition to satisfy without protest the demands for $60,000,000 which the various claims aggregate.

Arguments are now being heard by the court on a point which, if decided in favor of the government, will practically throw out every claim that is now pending. So determined a fight is being made against the claimants that they have come to think their chances of being paid would have been better had they continued their suits against Spain. It is claimed by the governmnt that there was a state of warfare in Cuba from 1895 to 1898, the period in which most of the claims originated, and according to the rules of international law, when a state of war exists the government is not responsible for depredations committed by its own subjects who have risen in revolt when such insurrection has passed beyond its control. Therefore, it is held that Spain was not responsible for the damages inflicted by the Cubans prior to the war, and that our government is not responsible either. It is argued that Spain, by the establishment of blockades and by her exchange of prisoners with the Cuban troops, and by conducting war in accordance with the rules of modern and civilized warfare, informally and tacitly recognized the belligerency of the insurgents, and that Spain also acknowledged a state of war to exist in the island in her diplomatic correspondence and proclamations. The general claim of the attorneys for the claimants is that a state of war never existed, and that a government is responsible for the acts committed by its subjects who may have risen in revolt up to the time it recognizes their belligerency.

There is no doubt that there are many just claims, but it will be a hard matter to sift them from the general mass. The whole matter hinges on the question as to whether there was recognized war on the island, and the majority of the cases will be settled on this point.

IMPORTANT TO DULUTH.

The assertion of a Canadian grain inspector that it is the announced intention of the new Canadian Northern road not to let any of the grain from its line come via Duluth hereafter is something that should urge immediate serious consideration by the commercial interests of this city of the question of closer and more reciprocal trade relations with Canada.

The question is slated to be considered at the monthly assembly meeting of the Commercial club the last of the week. This discussion alone should be sufficient to induce a large attendance at the meeting. This question of Canadian wheat is one that vitally affects the trade future of Duluth, at least in so far as it relates to the prospective commerce of the Canadian Northwest. In the early days, from the time of Proctor Knott's celebrated sophomorical, but very prophetic sarcasm, down to the sunny times of the boomer in the late '80s and the early 90s, we used to be told great things of what was coming to pass when that great undeveloped area, "the best wheat country on God's footstool," and a few other figures of speech, should be developed. It has been a long wait for many; and that particular part of God's footstool seemed to develop so slowly that many forgot it existed and seemed to regard it as a chimera of pipe dream days.

Meanwhile, "the best part of God's footstool" seems to be written again, this time not in the rhetoric of the after-dinner orator, but in actual progress and productiveness in the Canadian Northwest. Duluth will handle during the current crop year about 8,000,000 bushels of this Canadian wheat. It has been handled in bond. It could not be manufactured here, except at such great disadvantages that the proposition seemed unfeasible. How great that increase is may be best understood when it is known that in the year before only a little over 1,000,000 bushels were handled here.

From this time out, however, Duluth is to be denied all of this Canadian wheat, unless some more amicable arrangement can be made for closer commercial relations with Canada. We are not only not going to be able to grind the wheat, but we shall not have a chance to receive it. Canada is going to try to be as tight with its own products as we have been against hers in the past.

Just what the solution of the problem is cannot be suggested at this time. It is something for diplomacy, no doubt, but for a broader diplomacy than has been exhibited toward Canada in the past. That spirit may have been right then; it is penny-wise and pound foolish now. Duluth should take this matter up and help formulate a policy that will right matters. That policy seems to be a question of approaching the Canadians in the right spirit. We want their trade and they want ours. There must be an even exchange, and the time is past when this country may get the lion's share from Canada and give back not even a mouse's portion.

Bachelor Reflections.

New York Press: Most ambitions can come down very hard without going up very high.

The lesson which most appeals to a man is that of the loaves and fishes.

All women like men for sons; for all other purposes they can stand a little of the other kind.

Our own sins do not teach us charity for others; rather the sins of others teach us charity for our own.

It is easy enough to make a woman believe you love her—her vanity will take care of that. The hard thing is to make her believe you appreciate what a blessing it is to you to love her, and that is the same vanity.

The Fair Etymologist

By Charles J. Boyne.

(Copyright, 1902, by W. R. Hearst.)

When the destructive waters subsided in the Conemaugh valley, the Kenmores realized that they were destitute; and in the bitterness of his despair young Malcolm felt disposed to doubt the mercy of the providence which had spared his life. He had but recently been admitted to the bar, and the narrow margin by which that had been effected proved to him that he still had much to learn of "the codeless myriad of precedents, the wilderness of single instances."

He therefore decided to go South, where "Live and learn" took on a new significance for him. He had much to learn, and at the same time he had to live. Destiny, kismet, chance—what you will—had led him to one of the quietest and most picturesque towns among the Blue Ridge; but its natural advantages were evident, and Malcolm decided that he could do not better than raise his Ebenezer there and grow up with the community. The time dragged wearily enough for him—a struggler and a stranger. The winter seemed hardly able to become energizingly cold; the spring made him dreamy and restless, and the summer, now at hand, promised to put him asleep entirely.

Perhaps the promise would have been fulfilled had it not been for the paradoxical "commmencement" which brings an end to so many things. Beatrice, for instance, heartily rejoiced that it brought an end to the "finishing" process, and it was not long before young Kenmore began to rejoice that it had brought Beatrice.

She was not a blue-stocking. There was as much of Hygeia as of Hypatia about the exuberant child of the mountains, and the seminary could not rob her cheeks to enrich her mind. And yet, with an abundance of native intelligence, she had absorbed much in a general way and had developed a specific love for the study of words. Remembering that Emerson had called language "fossil poetry," she had strayed first into the language of flowers, for all the world as any other butterfly might have done. The narcissus led her to the fable of the youth who died of self love, and the forget-me-not to the German legend of one who lovingly died for another. The dandelion as "the lion's tooth" was no longer so commonplace, and when her little Latin turned the primrose into the "primus" rose, that first harbinger of the spring became, indeed, something more than a yellow primrose by the river's brim.

"How jolly," she thought, and that, throughout, remained the spirit of her investigations, although she dived into French and took up the Christian names in the back of the dictionary.

She was the daintiest dilettante that ever lived.

At least Malcolm Kenmore thought so. He easily convinced himself that she was not merely an oasis in the rural desert, that she would have "shone" in Johnstown, New York or Pekin. Miss Love-among-the-Roses caught some of the cunning of nature from her chosen environment, and in her tasteful muslins and bonnets, touched with just the right shades of color, she soon became to him the Miltonic "Proserpine, gathering flowers—herself a fairer mower."

During many months it looked ominous for the law. Kenmore was developing a fine passion for etymology, and forgot, or ignored, in the frequency of wild-wood rambles with Beatrice, that a certain competency did not spring from the hidden roots of words. And yet, if he had analyzed his heart more carefully, he might have discovered that that same competency was becoming more necessary than ever.

But he was full of the stern fibre of manhood, and the idyllic days were not allowed to wean him from his career; so he gradually became one of the thrifty citizens of the thriving town. The railroad, which had given a new impetus to the place, had given him an annual salary. With his prosperity he began to grow impatient for the "four feet on a fender" which he regarded as the real root of the word happiness. His further interest in etymology declined accordingly, for it was in a laughing, tantalizing display of her word-lore that Beatrice took evasive refuge whenever he began to tread impulsively on forbidden ground.

"Beatrice," he said one day, "this suspense is intolerable, and as sure as my name is Malcolm—"

Whether it was to be a proposal or a threat—or both—Beatrice saw that at any rate it spelled danger.

"By the way," she laughed innocently, "do you know what Malcolm means? No? Anglo-Saxon 'mael,' a pupil; Latin 'columba,' a dove.

With mock pedantry she gathered her brows archly.

"What a pretty compliment you might have paid me, if you had studied that out!" and she laughed again.

"Perhaps you would like to burrow through the whole genealogy," Malcolm rejoined sullenly.

"Oh, Kenmore," she said, with a wicked twinkle—"that simply means the big-head."

But the dove's pupil would take no more lessons, and flirted away in a passion to his den.

Malcolm knew something of the daughters of Eve. For two weeks he had not been near the pretty persecutor, and the interest with which she watched the shaded walk was growing into anxiety. It deepened daily, and she, too, began to lose her interest in derivatives. It seemed to her that years had passed when she finally caught the sound of his approaching footsteps, and a telltale flush suffused her cheeks as Kenmore led her, that sunny morning, to a seat under the trellis. He saw it and smiled. She saw that he saw it, and frowned. For a moment only, however, and then, to cover her confusion she rattled away:

"Oh, I have been having the most delightful time!"—

What must the recording angel think? "I have been writing a little book on—the study of words!"

Malcolm sighed despairingly, and said something about the mockery of it all, since Beatrice meant "the giver of happiness," but the misnamed culprit continued breathlessly:

"And I'm going to print it and show the world how very, very smart I am. But it wont do to have a woman's name on the title page. Nobody would look at it. Now"—she was fairly trembling, perhaps with scholarly enthusiasm—"now—of course you won't mind—I am going to use your name."

"Of course I will mind!" blurted out Kenmore. A moment later he vaguely felt that he had said the wrong thing. A delicious sense of having her take his name stole over him. He took her soft, pink hand in his, and his heart beat rapidly. But Beatrice gently withdrew her fingers and produced a title page.

"David Washington!" That isn't my name!" Malcolm's countenance fell.

"Oh, yes, it is. You see, Washington means the ca of the man who lived where the waters overflowed. That's really ture, Malcolm, how funny." She hurried on, as if to dodge that other word. "A long time ago the land where the capital is now was all swampy—"

"Yes, yes, I know," Malcolm broke in. At the same time a light broke in, too. The days of his scriptural studies came back to him, and the meaning of one flotsam word drifted down the wreck of memory.

"David"—"beloved!" Beatrice! Beatrice! Is it really, really true?"

But for some time there were good reasons why Beatrice could not reply.

Byron Was Not Prophetic.

New York Tribune: Byron wrote that man's control of the ocean stops with the shore. In his most poetic vision he never foresaw a community of interests in steamship lines.

Result of Postal Reform.

Chicago Chronicle: The receipts of the postoffice department for the quarter ending March 1 exceeded the expenses. This has occurred but four times in the receipts for any one quarter in the last eighteen years. The result was largely due to the exclusion from the mails of irregular matter, mostly advertising sheets and hooks that are not periodicals, which were carried at very low pound rates. The bulky matter dumped into the mails in evasion of the laws was transported at an expense of 8 cents a pound. The postage amounted to 1 cent a pound. With the reform of this and other abuses the postoffice department should be self-supporting, even if the expense is $130,000,000 a year—twice the total cost of the government annually before the war.

Mrs. Brown—Don't trouble. I'll call on you.

Land Lottery in South Dakota.

The United States is going to have another lottery. In spite of the adverse criticism that was made on the plan of settling the recent land opening by lot, the government found that it was the most satisfactory method that had been adopted and will try it again. About three hundred thousand acres of land of the Rosebud Indians, in South Dakota, were recently purchased by act of congress, the law providing that the territory should be prepared for settlement by the department of the interior. Secretary Hitchcock, in making arrangements to open up this land, has decided to follow the plan that was operated so successfully a year ago in connection with the Kiowa and Comanche lands in Indian territory. As soon as the land has been surveyed and divided into homesteads announcement will be made of the conditions governing the awards of lots. On a certain date applications will be received. As each application comes in it will be numbered and filed away. At the time duplicate numbers will be prepared and thrown into a huge receptacle. When the period for receiving applications expires a committee will be selected to award the homesteads. This will be done by the drawing of lots. If the opening of the Indian lands last year can be taken as a criterion, there will be several thousand of applications more than homesteads. In order to avoid favoritism by giving lands to a certain few and refusing them to others, the awards will be made by chance. Each applicant will be represented by a number in the receptacle containing the numbered slips and as many of these pieces of paper will be drawn out as there are homesteads. A record will be kept of the numbers as they are drawn, the first one receiving the first choice of the lands, and so on until the last division has been taken. Perhaps after all, the plan is as good as any which could be adopted. It, at least, has the advantage that every one has an equal chance, and that was not the case with the old-time methods.

TUG STRIKE.

Compromise Plan Suggested to the Company and Men.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The writer is not a stockholder in the tug trust, nor a member of the L. T. P. A. He is simply a rank outsider looking on. Although not in sympathy with the strike itself, he is acquainted with many of the strikers and hopes, for their sake, for an early and happy termination of the present misunderstanding.

The compromise plan here offered was suggested by certain remarks made in conversation during a chance meeting of persons affected by the strike, and is laid before the tug company and the men through The Herald so that it may be considered by both parties with as little loss of time as possible. It is not pretended that the plan is a finished product; it is rather but little more than a nucleus to be elaborated or developed by the parties concerned. It is intended also to apply only to the port of Duluth, but if the plan should be found capable of universal application, it might be well to say that it is not protected by a copyright.

But, now for the plan:

1. During the season of 1901 the tug company had twelve tugs in commission at the port of Duluth. The possible number of tug hours by a line of twelve tugs in thirty days is 8640. But after deducting lost time from all causes, we have a remainder of 3700; which represents the number of available tug hours in thirty days. Not having access to the actual figures, this result is obtained from careful estimates; but a comparison with the actual figures will show that the estimates are not exaggerated.

2. The cost per tug hour is estimated at $1.25.

3. The available total of 3700 tug hours in thirty days by twelve tugs equals the possible total of about five tugs in the same time. In other words if five tugs could have been kept at work all the time, they would have done the work that required the services of twelve tugs during 1901.

4. Assuming that the work to be done in Duluth harbor during 1902 will equal in bulk the work done in 1901, let it be proposed to put seven tugs in commission on the following basis:

Four tugs to be double-crewed throughout. Each crew to be twelve hours on duty and twelve hours off. The hour to change from night to day at 6 a. m. on every second Monday. These four tugs are to do as much of the harbor work as it is possible for them to do and as an inducement to hustle for business, the masters of these four tugs are to receive, in addition to a fixed salary, a certain sum for each job and every service slip they turn in at the office, C. O. D.

Three tugs to be single-crewed as at present. These tugs are to be sent out to make a tow only when there is no double-crewed tug within reach, or at the discretion of the dispatcher. One of the three tugs to be "off" every night.

By this plan the possible tug hours will be 4940, the available total about 4200 in thirty days. The cost per tug hour, about $1.15, but, it would reduce the operating expenses by fully $1000 monthly, besides leaving a few of the twelve tugs for other work.

The company should be allowed perfect freedom in regard to the hiring and placing and discharging of men for cause.

The tugs to carry no cooks except when sent outside. An eating station to be established at a convenient point, and when a tug is engaged in towing a boat during any meal hour, the boat towed to feed the crew of the tug and receive therefor a credit on her tow bill of a certain amount.

The writer wishes to repeat that he is not at present connected with either part in controversy; and that his motives may not be misconstrued he desires to remain strictly incog to both. 4170.

Duluth, May 13.

ONE IS HELD.

Blackmail Charge Against a Superior Newspaper Man.

A hearing was had yesterday afternoon before Court Commissioner Perkins, of Superior, of O. A. Britton and H. S. Fairall, proprietors of the Superior Leader, who have been charged with blackmail by Dr. Arons, known as the "bonesetter." Mr. Fairall was discharged, there being no evidence to implicate him in the case, but Mr. Britton was bound over to the next term of circuit court. He furnished bail in the amount of $200.

The complaint alleges that money was paid to the defendants to prevent the publication of certain articles detrimental to the business of Dr. Arons. A written transcript of the conversation that is alleged to have taken place between O. A. Britton and D. D. Lynch, advertising manager for the bonesetter, was produced and offered in evidence. The plaintiff claims to have had a stenographer concealed behind the door when the conversation is said to have taken place.

WILL SOON BE OVER.

Delays From Track Condition at Thirteenth Avenue West.

With the amount of track-laying that is now going on in the vicinity of Thirteenth avenue west, there is, of necessity, more or less inconvenience experienced in the operation of the street cars. Near the intersection of the avenue with Michigan street there is one short piece of single track that has to do service for the interstate, West Duluth, West Third street and the extra cars. A delay on any of the lines for even a few minutes is pretty sure to cause a blockade at this point.

Last evening the rear trucks of an interstate car left the rails on this single track and there was a blockade lasting half an hour, during which time there were about twenty cars lined up on either side of the derailed cad.

The street railway officials say that this trouble will be speedily remedied as soon as the viaduct can be used. It will take but a few days more to put the tracks from Eleventh avenue west to the viaduct in fine condition.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 13.—News has reached here of the lynching of Jim Underwood, a negro, at Decatur, Meigs county, Tenn. Underwood was in the county jail charged with carrying a pistol. He openly boasted that he had killed two men and threatened to kill two prominent citizens at the first opportunity. Early in the morning Jailor Legg was aroused by the breaking of the door of his room. A mob of a score of men with blackened faces forced their way in, secured the jail keys and taking the negro a mile from town, hanged him to a tree.

PREDICTED THE ERUPTION.

Louisville, Ky., May 13.—Felix Kerrick, professor of Physical geography at the Louisville manual training high school, predicted to his class a violent explosion in the island of Martinique, a few hours before the eruption of Mount Pelee. Professor Kerrick had read of the recent violent earthquakes and told his class that he thought the cracks and fissures in the earth's surface made by the seismic disturbances would not allow the interior melted and gaseous matter to escape fast enough and that a violent explosion would result. This statement was made on the afternoon of the explosion in Martinique.

GANS, VICTOR.

Colored Pugilist Defeats Erne, Winning Lightweight Championship.

Fort Erie, Ont., May 13.—Joe Gans, of Baltimore, colored lightweight pugilist, is champion in his class, after knocking at the door for the last ten years. Frank Erne lost to him in the first round last night at Fort Erie.

The end came with startling suddenness. The men were scarcely warmed up when Gans, trying cautiously, caught Erne napping and landed a hard right to the ear, which appeared to jar Frank badly. Erne sparred wildly, and Gans sent out a left jab as a feeler. It went home through Erne's guard, drawing blood from his nose. Then Gans rushed in. Erne's defense was pitiably weak, and Gans slapped his left to the face, and right to the point of the jaw.

The blow completely settled Erne. He sank slowly to the floor, fell on his back, and was rolling over on his stomach when Referee White finished counting him out.

The quick defeat astounded the thousands of Erne men at the ringside. The Herford party was overwhelmed with congratulations by friends at the ringside, and a crowd of negroes proudly escorted Gans to his dressing room.

At 8:30 when the preliminary began, there was scarcely a seat left in the house, which has a capacity of 5000. The first bout brought together Joe McMahon and Eddie Kelley, 115 pounds, for an eight-round bout. They fought a whirlwind first round. Chief Griffin, of the Fort Erie police, ordered the bout stopped in the fourth round. Referee McBride declared it a draw.

There was much quiet betting on the main bout, several thousand dollars being placed, with Erne favorite, 100 to 90.

Gans entered at 9:33, followed a few minutes later by Erne. Gans crossed the ring and shook hands with Erne, who received a great ovation. Terry McGovern, who has beaten both men, entered the ring and it was stated that he would soon box at Fort Erie himself. Art Simmons, Kid Parker, George McFadden and Kid McPartland challenged the winner.

Young Peter Jackson and Al Welnig entered the ring, challenged each other and were matched to box at Fort Erie in the near future. Erne's handlers were Jimmy Conners, Frank Zimpfer and Slip Kreiger. In Gans' corner were Al Ford, Herman Mitchell and Young Jackson. Both men wore bandages on their hands.

When the men stripped both seemed in fine form. It was announced that Gans weighed in at 133¼ and Erne at 132½. The weight for the bout was 135 pounds at the ringside.

Charley White, of New York, entered the ring and was introduced as the referee. He called the men to the center of the ring and there was a long discussion on the subject of rules. The Canadian interpretation of Marquis of Queensberry rules does not permit hitting in clinches or holding and hitting.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

As a result of revelations regarding the use of tainted meats in the chop houses and cheap restaurants in St. Joseph, Mo., warrants were yesterday sworn out for the arrest of many offenders. Detectives it is said, have traced carcases of "lumpy jaw" cattle and other diseased meats from markets to consumers.

The plaintiffs in the injunction proceedings brought Saturday to restrain the playing of Sunday baseball games withdrew their petition in Judge Babcock's court at Cleveland. Their attorneys stated that inasmuch as Sheriff Barry had prevented Sunday's game and agreed not to permit any Sunday games in the future, further legal action was not considered necessary.

Three hundred and fifty workers employed by the People's Gas Light and Coke company, and Ogden Gas company, at Chicago, went on strike at midnight Monday. It is claimed by the strikers that none of the companies' tanks will contain a foot of gas by Tuesday night, and that the city will be in darkness, unless the strike shall be speedily settled. The men quit work because several of their companions had been discharged for joining the gas workers' union.

Judges Tuilty and Fisher, in the circuit court, at St. Louis, refused a rehearing in the cases of Wallace, Harper and Heldrick, baseball players, whom the National league's local representative tried to have enjoined from playing ball. The courts had refused to issue an injunction in the cases mentioned.

DIED TOGETHER.

Physician and Young Woman of Moscow, Suicide.

Lewiston, Idaho, May 13.—A special to the Tribune from Oro Fino, Idaho, reports the death at that point by suicide, of Dr. E. J. Leadbrooke, a prominent physician, and Miss Winnie Booth, the 19-year-old daughter of Rev. G. M. Booth, pastor of the Methodist church at Moscow, Idaho. The couple arrived at Oro Fino Saturday and spent the night at the hotel. On Sunday evening they attend an Epworth League meeting and then retired to the hotel. They did not appear for breakfast this morning and at noon when the door of their room was opened the girl was found dead on the bed.

Beside her was Leadbrooke in a dying condition, he died at 3 o'clock. The couple had taken morphine by hypodermic injection. Leadbrooke was a married man and wealthy. Miss Booth was a school teacher and was employed near Kendrick. Leadbrooke came to Moscow about a year ago from Minnesota and became acquainted with Miss Booth in church work. He was also the physician of the Booth family.

A TRAGEDY.

Man Kills Woman and Himself In Minneapolis Hotel.

Minneapolis, May 13.—A murder and suicide, the motive for which is hidden in mystery, occurred at 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Parker house, a second class hotel. J. W. Voight, a commercial traveler, representing the Milwaukee Harvester company, shot May Welch in the head and then fired a bullet through his own brain. His death was immediate and the young woman died on the way to the hospital. Voight leaves a widow and family at Chaska, Minn., and his parents live at Belle Plaine, Minn.

The young woman, who was 24 years old, is supposed to have come here from Verndale, Minn., but little has been learned about her. Voight, who was 33 years old, arrived in Minneapolis Sunday night and registered at the Golden West hotel. May Welch also came here the same evening, but she found lodging with a friend at the Parker house. She assumed the name of Ruth Welch and it is now claimed that she did so in order to evade Voight.

According to her roommate, May Welch had been here before and had received attentions from Voight, accepting gifts and financial aid as well. It is supposed that she had decided to decline any further attentions from him.

Voight found her at the Parker house last evening. There was a brief conversation and the shooting followed. No one else was present and the details of the tragedy must remain conjectural.

CLOQUET.

DIED AT CASS LAKE.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—George F. Umland, a printer, 28 years old, died here on Saturday evening last, and his remains were taken to Fosston on Sunday for burial, the interment being made in the Fosston cemetery Sunday afternoon. The deceased formerly resided in Fosston for several years. He was a sufferer from consumption, the disease having fastened itself upon him about one year ago. The deceased was a member of the Masonic lodge of Fosston, and the members of the Cass Lake lodge attended the funeral services, which were conducted at the home of the deceased's mother. Archdeacon Appleby, of Duluth officiating.

A MATRIMONIAL TANGLE.

Father and Son Marry Mother and Daughter.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 13.—A strange matrimonial tangle has been woven at Klondike, a little mining town near here. John and James Dennis, father and son, aged 44 and 22, have married Amanda and Emma R. Rawson, mother and daughter, aged 47 and 25. A double wedding was held and the unusual event elaborately observed.

It has been figured out by experts that by the double marriage, James Dennis becomes stepfather to his son's wife and Mrs. Rawson stepmother to her daughter's husband. The father becomes father-in-law to his son and the son is now son-in-law to his own father. The daughter becomes her mother's daughter-in-law and the mother becomes mother-in-law to her own daughter.

Just what complications of kinship exist between any future generations that may exist has not been figured out.

BECOMING A MOTHER

Is an ordeal which all women approach with indescribable fear, for nothing compares with the pain and horror of child-birth. The thought of the suffering and danger in store for her, robs the expectant mother of all pleasant anticipations of the coming event, and casts over her a shadow of gloom which cannot be shaken off. Thousands of women have found that the use of Mother's Friend during pregnancy robs confinement of all pain and danger, and insures safety to life of mother and child. This scientific liniment is a god-send to all women at the time of their most critical trial. Not only does Mother's Friend carry women safely through the perils of child-birth, but its use gently prepares the system for the coming event, prevents "morning sickness," and other discomforts of this period. NAPHTHA EXPLODES

Many People Meet Death From the Burning Oil.

Train Load of Fluid Caught Fire at Pittsburg.

Many of the Injured Will Die From Their Burns.

Pittsburg, May 13.—The Sheridan yards of the Panhandle railroad were the scene last evening of a disastrous explosion and fire, in which a score of lives were lost, and 200 persons were so badly burned that, according to the judgment of physicians in attendance, nearly all of them will die from the effects of their injuries.

The dead are:

JAMES KEEN, aged 20, single, Carnegie, clerk on wreck train; died at Mercy hospital.

CHARLES HARTIG, aged 13, Chestnut mines, Pa., died at Mercy hospital.

W. W. TAYLOR, aged 27, brakeman, Miller's Station, Ohio, died at Mercy hospital.

HARRY F. SMITLEY, aged 20, Urichsville, O., brakeman Panhandle road, single, died at Mercy hospital.

— FINNERTY, Sisterville, W. Va., aged 40, died at Mercy hospital.

G. E. HUNTER, married, 28, five children, Sheradan, killed at wreck, body taken to McDermott's undertaking rooms, Carnegie.

WALTER E. WRIGHT, 26, Sheradan, killed at wreck, taken to McDermott's undertaking rooms.

DALLAS M. BYRD, Freeman, aged 28, Sheradan, killed at wreck, taken to McDermott's undertaking rooms, Carnegie.

PASCHAL MADERRA, 28, section foreman, badly burned, died at Allegheny hospital.

Unknown boy, badly burned, taken to Allegheny hospital, died in short time.

DONALD SMITH, aged 10, Sheraden, son of Jerome Smith, train dispatcher, badly burned, died at Allegheny hospital.

GEORGE WILSON, aged 15, messenger, of Sheraden, body almost cooked, died at 2:30 this morning at the Homeopathic hospital.

MATTHEW MARNON, teamster, aged 24, single, McKees Rocks, body fairly cooked, died at homeopathic hospital at 4:40 this morning.

JOHN SWAN, brakeman, aged 30 years.

The cause of the catastrophe was the explosion of a train of naphtha cars which were being switched at the yards. In the switching the rear car telescoped a car forward. The leaking naphtha ignited from the switch lamp, causing an explosion which threw the flames fifty feet high.

A large portion of the escaping naphtha ran through Corks run to Esplen borough, one and one-half miles, and caused another explosion, blowing to atoms the Seymour hotel and the Colvin house, on Esplen road, and badly wrecking a frame building near by in which were congregated 200 or more persons from Pittsburg and vicinity, betting on the races and baseball.

Few of the occupants of this building escaped injury, many being badly hurt. Mrs. Seymour and her daughter, of the Sheraden hotel, were fatally injured.

The first car of naphtha exploded at 4:40 o'clock, and attracted a large crowd on streets lining the hills on both sides of and parallel to the railroad.

The second explosion occurred at 5 o'clock, but it was 6:15 o'clock when three more cars of the deadly explosive went up with a roar that could be heard for miles, and the work of destruction really began.

A torrent of flame belched forth on each side of the track, sweeping back the terrified spectators and sending a shower of flame over their heads.

The successive explosions had heated the air to such an extent that before the third explosion hundreds were rendered unconscious by the extreme heat and gaseous fumes, and were being carried away when the torrent of flames swept over the excited crowd.

There was a hush for a moment, then followed a scene of frenzy. Men and women, the people of the suburbs, their faces scorched and blistered, and their hair burned off their heads, ran, wildly shrieking, hither and thither, only increasing the danger from the furnace of fire. Some gave vent to frenzied appeals to kill them and put them out of their misery, and little children, with their curly locks and light summer clothing, small pillars of fire, cried piteously as they were swept along by the tide of human humanity.

The townspeople did all in their power for the stricken victims, and all the Pittsburg ambulances were immediately dispatched to the scene, with a corps of physicians. Many of those not seriously burned were removed to their homes in Sheraden, while others were sent to the various Pittsburg hospitals, and the dead removed to undertaking establishments in Sheraden and vicinity and to the Pittsburg morgue.

The accident happened in the railroad yards at Sheraden, where the Pan Handle railroad makes a turn at Cork's Run. Banked in by two hills hundreds of people were caught. At this point, which is about one-fourth of a mile from the city line, there are thirty-three tracks. Upon these tracks there were several hundred cars. About the middle if these tracks about 4:45 o'clock a heavy freight train was being made up for the West. In this train were ten tank cars containing fine petroleum and naphtha. In the shifting necessary to prepare the train for her journey, a switch was made with too much force. Five tank cars, two of them filled with refined petroleum and two with naphtha, were switched with too much force and one of the cars of naphtha was broken. Instantly the inflammable by-product poured out in a stream. The trainmen seeing that one of the cars was damaged, started to pull them all out of the way.

Already the man in charge of the switch lights had made his rounds, and the light was burning. As the tank car passed over one of the light the dripping naphtha caught on the little flame and almost instantly an explosion followed. Two brakemen were on the car. One of them jumped and escaped injury. The other, Clyde Fare, of Sheraden, was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital.

The first explosion sent showers of burning naphtha over the freight station near at hand and also enveloped a number of carloads of coke and lumber that were close by, and in a moment all were blazing. Knowing that there was imminent danger of another explosion, there was no attempt to save the freight station or the cars, for the time, and all sought safety in flight. This fact saved many lives, for at 5 o'clock, fifteen minutes after the explosion, the two cars of refined petroleum that had been damaged, blew up with a terrific report. No one was injured by this, however. The noise of the two explosions, the smoke of the fire and the crackling of the flames told the people of Sheraden that something unusual was going on in their usually peaceful valley and they crowded down the street of the borough to watch the scene. School had been dismissed for some time, and troops of children ran from their play to see the fire.

The yards at Sheraden lie in a narrow valley, the hills on each side running up from the tracks. On the south side of the yards, cut out of the hillside, is a road on which are the tracks of the Sheraden branch of the Pittsburg Railway company. Above these tracks is a rounded hill, bare of trees. Cross the cut on the other side of the yards a hill fully 200 feet high rises sheer above the round house, so steep that the thick trees and the score or more of homes there seem to cling to their hold with difficulty. In less than fifteen minutes after the first explosion both of these hills were black with men, women and children, who were eagerly watching the flames, in the cut below, unconscious of the fact that two tanks filled with naphtha and with power enough to bring death to many and suffering to scores, were lying in the heart of the flames.

Great clouds of smoke arose in masses from the burning debris on the tracks, the flames crackled and hissed as they took hold of the masses of coke that had been waiting for shipment and great tongues of flames leaped from the burning skeleton of the freight station, suddenly a third explosion was heard, muffled this time, as though from a distance and eventually coming from the mouth of the valley on the Ohio river. Between the time when the first tank of naphtha was damaged in switching and sprung a leak, and the moment when it exploded, enough of the dangerous liquid had escaped to work its way into the sewer that empties in to the Ohio river near the mouth of Cork Run. Burning oil, too, found its way into the sewer, and explosion followed.

This third explosion, separated as it was by a mile from the scene of the burning cars at Sheraden, served as a warning to but a few of the spectators there. The hillsides were fairly packed with interested spectators, without a moment's warning, there was an awful roar loud enough to be heard in the heart of Pittsburg, five miles away, and a sheet of solid flame shot up from the wreckage and enveloped both hillsides even to their tops. Both of the two remaining tank cars had blown up. Aid was sent from Pittsburg and Allegheny. Surgeons hurried to the scene of the catastrophe and worked hard for hours to aid the injured and alleviate suffering, but it was after midnight before the last of those who were injured had been given attention.

TRIBUTE OF HIS CHIEF.

La Follette's Proclamation on Loss of Lieut. Governor.

Madison, Wis., May 13.—A proclamation officially announcing the death of Lieutenant Governor Stone and paying him high tribute was issued by Governor La Follette yesterday afternoon. In it the governor says in part:

"As a private citizen Mr. Stone attained an honorable reputation and large measure of success in the business world by reason of his industry and honesty. As a public servant he earned the enduring respect of the people of the state as well as the high honors accorded him by the exercise of large abilities, modest dignity, unfailing courtesy and unswerving integrity. Few men in public life in the state have acquired a larger circle of personal friends. The charms and qualities of his social character disarmed all personal antagonism.

"The repeated bestowal of public honors upon Mr. Stone in a district division of the state almost invariable opposed to the party with which he affiliated, is an evidence of the general confidence reposed in him. As a legislator and as the presiding officer in the higher legislative body, he justified public judgment by the discharge of his responsible duties in high-minded fairness and impartiality."

The governor directs that in respect to Mr. Stone's memory the capitol be suitably draped in mourning, the flag displayed at half mast and that on the day of the funeral the executive and state departments be closed.

People Who Live Longest.

From statistics it is learned that the longest-lived people of the world are Norwegians. They are temperate and simple in their habits and preserve in great vigor their digestive powers, which is most necessary in the maintenance of good health. The American usually lives so fast that the stomach is neglected until his health is completely undermined, and he finds himself gradually getting weaker and weaker. If you are one of these sufferers we offer you a medicine that will strengthen your stomach and start you anew on health's pathway, and that is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will cure flatulency, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, insomnia, chills and malaria, fever and ague. Don't fail to try it. For sale by all druggists.

Half and Half.

The dyspeptic may well be represented pictorially as being half masculine and half feminine, and combining the least desirable characteristics of either sex. He has all the stubbornness of the man with the peevish irritability of a sick woman. He's not pleasant company at home or abroad.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It renews physical health which carries with it cheerfulness of temper, and makes life a pleasure instead of a penance.

The "Discovery" purifies the blood by eliminating the corrupt and poisonous accumulations from which disease is bred. It increases the activity of the blood-making glands, so increasing the supply of pure rich blood, which gives life to every organ of the body. It gives new life and new strength.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' has performed a wonderful cure," writes Mr. M. H. House, of Charleston, Franklin Co., Ark. "I had the worst case of dyspepsia, the doctors say, that they ever saw. After trying seven doctors and everything I could hear of, with no benefit, I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and now I am cured."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach, blood and lungs.

KILLED BY A CAT

Eight-Months-Old Baby Suffocated In Its Carriage.

Breath "Sucked" By a Maltese, Causing Infant's Death.

It Shut Out Supply of Air to the Lungs.

Denver, Colo., May 13.—Mrs. Gustave Brown's 8-months-old baby was killed by a cat, a large pet Maltese. The physician who attempted to resuscitate the infant says: 'Death resulted from shutting off the supply of air to the lungs."

The coroner's verdict gave as the cause of death "suffocation."

The neighbors say: "The cat sucked the child's breath until the baby died."

This is the mother's story of the child's death:

"About the middle of the forenoon I put the baby in its carriage for its morning nap and, as I have always done, left him in the back yard with the parasol lowered to keep the light out of his eyes and to prevent the admission of too much cold air. I had a man engaged to clean the house and was so occupied that I did not run out to look at the baby as often as I generally did to see that he was well covered and sleeping quietly.

"At noon when we were at luncheon, I left the table to look toward the baby's carriage and at that moment I saw the parasol moving. I thought the baby had awakened.

"He was so sweet and happy when he first awakened that I thought for fun I would run out and steal some of his smiles and play peek-a-boo at him to see the dear little thing's delight. I went to the kitchen door and, as I opened it and started down the steps, I saw the Maltese puss, the family pet, jump out on the other side of the carriage from under the parasol over the baby's face. I thought nothing of it, especially as the cat had often jumped into the foot of the carriage and lay there asleep while the baby was taking his nap.

"When I reached the carriage, pushed the parasol away and leaned down to look at the baby, there lay dead, his little mouth slightly opened. Not a mark of disfigurement was on his white face."

This part of Mrs. Brown's story is corroborated by Mrs. F. S. Knox, a neighbor, who also saw the cat jump down from the baby's carriage, and who ran over to the Brown yard when the mother's scream announced that something terrible had happened.

Dr. F. E. Waxham was hurriedly summoned, and two other neighbors helped their friend in the effort to restore life to the child by rubbing and by all the other methods they knew. Dr. Waxham's efforts proved equally fruitless. The child had probably been dead, he said, for some time.

Commenting on the neighborhood belief that the cat sucked the child's breath, Dr. Waxham said:

"It is my positive belief that death came to the baby in just this way, and to my own satisfaction the old saying is proved. I have heard of death having been caused in this way before, but I never believed it until now. This is the first instance that ever came under my observation or that I have ever heard directly."

The assigned cause for this strange tendency in the cat is that the smell of milk in the child's mouth first induces the cat to put its own mouth within that of the child. As it gets the taste of the milk it sucks the child's breath, and finally becomes overpowered by an unexplainable fascination.

Those who have heretofore scoffed at the old saying hold that the theory of Coroner Horan is the most reasonable. This is that the cat lay down upon the child's face, and the little one, unable to draw its breath, soon suffocated.

Against this must be placed the argument that a strong 8-months-old baby boy in a struggle for breath would easily displace an animal the size of a cat.

The most startling theory from a scientific standpoint is that the breath of all animals of the cat family acts as a chloroform to all other species. This theory is explained in an article published some years ago in a scientific magazine and preserved in a scrap book by Assistant District Attorney T. E. McIntyre, of Denver. The article says:

"A recently published story criticizes the notion that a cat sucks away a child's breath. This is merely an expression, erroneous in its form, of a physiological fact. All the felidae possess poisonous breaths, intended by nature to act as an anaesthetic on their prey. If a person cares to experiment by inhaling, for instance, a cat's breath, he can easily realize the truth of this statement. Carefully watch a cat playing with a mouse, you will discover that the mouse does not suffer, but is sort of stupefied as if by chloroform. In the 'Life of Livingston,' written by himself, of explorations in Africa, he states that once, when he was seized by a lion and his arm broken, the crunching of the broken arm gave him no pain, so benumbed were his senses by the animal's breath.

"A cat seeks the child, its soft bed, and the warmth of its body, and lies down on the chest of the infant. Its weight impedes respiration, its breath anaesthizes the child and death follows. This circumstance has actually occurred and medical records conclusively prove it."

ADVANCE IN WHEAT

The Market Has a Sudden Spurt Toward the Close.

Dragged Somewhat In the Early Part of the Session.

Conflicting Opinions as to Effect of Government Report.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 13.—The wheat market started out at an advance this morning, the government crop report being regarded as bullish, but the experts claim that it did not show as low a condition as had been expected and that, when the recent rains in the Southwest were taken into consideration, the condition would be much improved. It is almost invariably the rule that the market sells off after a government report and that was the case today for after the small advance after the opening it fell off again, below the closing price of yesterday. Afterward there was a rally and the close was higher than that of yesterday.

The Liverpool market closed at a decline of ¼d. Paris and Antwerp were unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 175,000 bus, last year 345,000 bus. Shipments 485,000 bus, last year 713,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 366,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,734,000 bus in the world's visible supply.

Corn was ½c higher in the Chicago market and oats ⅛@¼c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 258,000 bus, last year 375,000. Shipments 477,000 bus, last year 478,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 8000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 65 cars, and at Chicago, 58, a total of 123 cars, against 151 last week and 220 last year.

Trading in wheat was active on the Duluth board and the market higher early and then declining. It opened ½c up at 77⅝c, sold at 77⅝@78c at 9:34, fell to 77⅝c at 9:46, rallied to 77⅞c at 10:05 and fell off to 76⅝c at 11:07, continuing to 76⅜c at 11:55. From that point it rallied to 76⅞@77c at 12:18, fell again to 76¾c at 12:37 and then bulged sharply and closed at 77⅜@77½c. This was an advance of ¼@¾c. Chicago advanced 5c and Minneapolis ¼@⅝c.

Cash sales were 8000 bus at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and 3½c under for No. 3.

Flax trading was very quiet and the market rather steady, cash closing and the September option showing no change in price and October advancing ¾c. Corn advanced ½c and oats ⅝c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 77¾c; No. 2 northern, 75¾c; No. 3 spring, 73½c. To arrive, No. 1 hard, 80¾c; No. 1 northern, 77¾c; May, 77¼@78c; July, 77⅜@78c. Oats, cash, September, 30¾c. Rye, 56c. Flax, cash, $1.76½ to arrive, $1.76½; May, $1.76½; September, $1.48½; October, $1.46. Corn, 61¾c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 14; last year, 24; oats, 1; flax, 4.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Report of Wheat Area Reduction Starts Buying.

Chicago, May 13.—Wheat traders early in the session today put a bullish interpretation on the government crop report of the winter wheat condition. Much dissatisfaction, however, was expressed by some experts and bears at once began to argue against its value. The condition of 76.6 on May 1 as against 78.7 April 1 was not as low as had been expected and any bullish effect on this score had already been discounted. But the reduction of the winter area of 4,868,000 acres by plowing up or abandoning the fields was larger than had been expected and started considerable buying at better prices. On the other hand speculators were saying that had the recent rains in the Southwest been taken into consideration, the condition would be reported much improved. It was readily argued that even if the report showed a marked decrease of acreage under last year the condition indicated a larger harvesting area than any other time prior to last year. Under these variant influences July wheat opened ⅛@⅜c to ½@⅝c higher at 76¾c to 76⅞c and speedily sold up to 76⅞@77⅛c. Then the bears began selling and prices broke to last night's closing figures, 75⅜@75⅝c for July. Cables were indifferent, but there were continued rains in the Northwest and July advanced again under fair buying to 76¼@76⅜c where it stended.

The Illinois state report indicated a condition of 88 with an area of 1,700,000 acres and 9 per cent of old wheat in farmers' hands. Local receipts were small at 58 cars, 1 of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 65 cars, making a total for the three points of 123 cars, against 151 last week and 220 a year ago.

During the late part of the session wheat fluctuated irregularly. There was some Northwest selling and July sagged to 75¾@75⅝c but 2,734,000 bus reduction in the world's visible supply had a helping effect and after nervously haggling on the government report July closed firm, ⅝c up at 76⅝@¾c.

July corn opened ⅜c to ½c up at 62½c to 62⅝c on firm cables and the wheat influence. Trade was fair and the July options sold to 62⅞c on the bad weather in the Northwest. The Illinois state report stated that the corn reserves were only 39,000,000 bus—the smallest since 1890. Many of the corn traders were waiting to see what turn wheat would take. Receipts were 121 cars.

Corn continued as a scalping affair most of the session, working against a bearish mood and helped by wheat, July corn closed ½c higher at 62⅞c.

Oats were quiet but showed good strength on a fair demand both for old and new July. The strength in other grains had an influence in this pit. July new opened ¼@⅜c up at 37½c, advanced ½c and steadied near the opening figure. Receipts were 236 cars.

Provisions showed marked strength on the stronger tone in the hog market at the yards and on packers' support. Pork was the center of attraction. July pork opened unchanged to 7½c up at $17.42½ to $17.50, advanced to $17.55 and steadied at $17.47½. July lard started 2½@5c higher at $10.27½ to $10.30 and sold at $10.32½, and July ribs 2½c to 5c up at $9.65 to $9.67½ and sold at $9.70.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: The government report was bullish. It indicates a crop of 340,000,000 bus, or 75,000,000 bus below last month's estimate and 100,000,000 bus below the estimate of a year ago. On this the market opened higher but the tradition that wheat always sells off on the government report made selling pressure to a little more than lose the early advance. Most of the selling is, however, we think by shorts. Cables were somewhat disappointing. Bradstreet makes the world's visible supply decrease 2,700,000 bus, but this includes an increase of 1,400,000 bus in Europe and afloat. We are inclined to think there is a growing confidence in wheat among those in close touch not only with the conditions of supply and demand, but of the prospect of the growing crop. The visible supply of 35,000,000 bus is not burdensome and is likely to be still further reduced. Country speculators are the owners of this stock of wheat to a smaller extent than for many months past. We think the wheat is gradually getting into the ownership of the immediate trade. On the conditions we feel like buying wheat on the weak spots.

A. H. Farnum, of Chicago: In December the agricultural department estimated the acreage of winter wheat at 32,000,000 acres and a good many in the trade expected those figures to be raised. Instead of that they have cut off 5,000,000 acres, leaving the standing wheat only 27,000,000 acres and the market condition on those 27,000,000 only 76.4 per cent. This means in bushels $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 of winter wheat against 420,000,000 bus last year. The report is a very bullish one. Add to this our small visible, small receipts, conditions that will make the spring wheat acreage small, and you have the situation in this country. If there was active speculation in the market with prices as low as they rate, it would mean a 5c advance.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, May 13.—There was a large and active trade in wheat today and the market after opening firm on the government report issued last evening later declined on improved weather in the Northwest, reported rains in Kansas and absence of cash demand. Prices broke 1c a bus, but on the decline there was very good buying which absorbed the offerings and towards the end of the session when shorts tried to cover they found little for sale. Prices sharply reacted and the market closed firm, July ⅝c, September 1½c, December ⅝c higher than last night. Foreign markets were generally quiet. Liverpool, after opening higher, later lost the advance and closed ¼d lower for the day. Continental markets were irregular, some higher, some lower. The weather abroad continues favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 20 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in corn today and the market generally followed the course of wheat. After opening firm, later declined, but shortly before the end of the session recovered and closed firm, July and September ½c higher, July ¼c higher than last night. Foreign markets were steady. Liverpool closed ¼d higher. Country offerings moderate, cash demand rather quiet. Weather throughout the corn belt generally favorable. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 35 cars.

Trade in oats was light today and there was no special feature to the market, which looked firm in sympathy with wheat and closed May and September unchanged, July ¼c to ⅜c higher than last night. Country offerings were moderate, cash demand fairly good. The weather generally favorable for the growing crop. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 60 cars.

Provisions opened firm on higher hogs and was advanced as usual and stubbornly supported all day. There was selling by some of smaller longs and buying by packing concerns that was supposed to be short, closing with weaker feeling. Cash trade very slack and packers are making and storing ribs and it is estimated at the present rate we will increase stock about one and a half million weekly. Three years ago in the absence of cash trade in June our stock of ribs increased enormously. We consider the market as in a dangerous condition, the smaller trade would not take any of the big lines held by the ousiders without a bad break. Estimated receipts 28,000 hogs tomorrow.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Business In Lighter Volume Than For Many Weeks.

Prices Declined During Morning But Firmed Up Later.

Hardened In Last Hour and the Close Was Firm.

New York, May 13.—London sent higher prices for American stocks this morning, but the market here ignored this initiative and opened irregular. The changes were small and the trading dull. On the side of losses Delaware & Hudson and Sugar suffered to the extent of a point. Changes otherwise were restricted to fractions throughout.

Some of the high-priced stocks which were liquidated yesterday were sold again, Northwestern dropping 5 and General Electric 3. Some of the active stocks of each group lifted in sympathy, but offerings were small. Colorado Fuel, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Lake Erie & Western, St. Louis & San Francisco & Western, St. Louis & San Francisco and Fort Worth & Denver City Stumped lost a point each and Louisville & Nashville and Metropolitan Street railway gained 1. The grangers were bought later, Northwestern rallying 4 and Rock Island advancing 1½. This demand helped many stocks and there were general recoveries to above yesterday's close. Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis rose 1⅞ and Delaware & Hudson, Canadian Pacific, Colorado Fuel, Tennessee Coal and Manhattan rose 1 to 1⅜ over yesterday.

The impulse in the active quarter was stopped by realizing in St. Paul and Louisville and a decline in sympathy against the lowest. Other stocks did not yield to the low level of the first hour and there was a few minor properties that showed strength. General Electric recovered a point, Iowa Central 1½, Wisconsin Central, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo and Long Island gained 1¼@1½ and Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, 2⅛. Business was in lighter volume than for many weeks. The whole market rose again to the best on light transactions. Bonds were steady at noon.

The market became semi-stagnant and the movement in usually active stocks was scarcely perceptible. Louisville & Nashville got 2¼ over last night, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville 3⅛, North American, Westinghouse and Delaware & Hudson more than 2 points and Atchison, Amalgamated and some minor stocks a point or more. New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred lost 2, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred and Rubber Goods preferred a point.

Trading became slightly more active when Reading, New York Central and a few of the low priced specialties were bid up. Fluctuations aside from these were narrow and the market lapsed into dullness again but showed no pressure. Reading, New York Central, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Chicago Great Western and the Kansas City Southern stocks advanced a point or more, Lackawanna jumped 5 on one trade.

Prices continued to harden in a dull and uneven market. The close was dull and firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: I asked a prominent board member if the insiders were not selling. He replied by asking me who they were selling to. He meant that the insiders were not selling because there were no customers and that the trading was wholly among professionals who scalp for a couple of points. Most people think that but for fears of a general strike the bull market of April would still be in progress. The strong point of the situation is that the commission houses are carrying very little check on margin, there is no public to be shaken out. Stocks are mostly in the hands of big men who will not sell on a weak market. I look for a sharp rally today and think it would be well to get out of long stocks whereever you can at a profit. I don't expect any severe declines, but rather a trading market with purchases in order on breaks such as yesterday's and sales on bulges. I do not take the strike seriously. In any case it can only end in the discomfiture of the miners.

Waldorf hotel to Edwards, Wood & Co.: While bulls are discouraged over the decline in the stock market sentiment in high financial circles hopeful and in such quarters there are confident predictions that the outcome of the existing depression and manipuintion will be a material advance. Hence the followers of substantial interests of the street are advising the purchase of railroad stocks and the feeling tonight is that, barring accident, prices will not go much lower than the bottom quotations of today. Another day of 10 per cent money has failed to induce liquidation of securities by the public and the testimony of representative commission houses that outsiders show no disposition to be influenced by either tight money or labor strikes. In the anthracite situation there is nothing new. The heads of various companies tell their friends that this trouble will certainly be short lived.

The government crop report, showing a condition of 76.4 for winter wheat, is better than expected, notwithstanding the creased acreage, for there is little doubt, according to trustworthy authorities, that the crop has materially improved since the government figures were made up.

S. B. Dickinson to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Many banks yesterday called loans of years' standing because they did not like quality of collateral. It is thought liquidation must go considerably further. The market may rally somewhat from yesterday's decline.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market today was dull and the transactions were light. Early there was some pressure and prices sold off somewhat. In the middle of the day the market was stagnant. Short covering helped the market in the afternoon and prices stiffened up and there was some good buying. The situation was more hopeful in the strike. The close was strong.

Town topics: The stock market will probably have an irregular and heavy opening today. Conditions are not favorable for active trading. The depressing influence of the coal strike, the continuance of which will be decided tomorrow, coupled with the money market and the unfavorable crop report, causes us to advise conservatism in trading. The decline in sterling exchange yesterday is one favorable feature in the money situation. Do not take on too heavy a line of stocks, rather buy smaller lots of standard dividend-paying issues on a scalp and do not look for long pulls at present. Mahattan, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Detroit Southern, Wisconsin Central and the Wabash are purchases on declines. Be conservative on long side of the market. The absence of public following and the fact that strong interests are holders of stocks are two factors which oppose a serious reaction.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The price of Lake Copper has been advanced ¼ cent per pound. No large amounts are offered within a quarter of the advanced figure. The commercial situation is showing improvement. It was claimed that for the last three months the exports of copper from the United States exceeded 40 per cent of the total production of the country.

Liverpool to Paine, Webber & Co.—The monthly metal report of James Lewisohn says copper continues in good consumptive demand and a large business has been done in manufactured and ingots for export to India and China. Shipments from the United States have been chiefly to Germany and France and now exceed 200,000 tons per year by about 33,000 tons. Speculators have carried their shipments falling due for three months free of cost influenced by belief that Amalgamated will ere long become tired of producing copper at the rate of 160,000 tons per annum and exhausting their mines without profit.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.—Uncertainty as to what the New York market is going to do has apparently been the only thing in the way of a good advance in coppers today. Copper is already up ⅜c per pound and the market is very strong here and abroad. The outlook favors a further advance. There was ractically no pressure to sell today and there were good sized buying orders in the market. We believe coppers are a buy at this level.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 13.—Cotton opened firm with prices 4 to 7 points higher, following a firm lead by Liverpool. Trading was halting all the forenoon with the talent bearishly inclined in anticipation of the weekly crop report and weather report from Washington, due at midday. In the local ring, July advanced to 9.11 on the early buying, later cutting back to 9.07. Rallied to 9.10 bid and again fell off to 9.07. Other options followed a similar movement, with the exception of May, which ruled relatively firm pretty much all the morning.

Cotton spot closed ⅛ lower; middling uplands, 9¾; middling guif 9¾; sales, 985 bales. Cotton futures closed dull; May, 9.05; June, 8.90; July, 8.88; August 8.61; September, 8.14; October, 7.98; November, 7.86; December, 7.94; January, 7.94; February, 7.88.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 13.—Close, money on call firm at 4@8 per cent; closing offered at 4 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4½@5 per cent; sterling exchange steady at the decline with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86¾ for demand and $4.84½@4 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.85¼@4.86 and $4.88@4.88½; commercial bills, $4.83¾@4.84¾. Bar silver, 51¾c; Mexican dollars, 41½c. Government bonds, weak; dollars, 41½c. Government bonds, weak; steady.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 13.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $184,781,442; gold, $97,682,408; silver, $19,669,071; United States notes, $7,687,756; treasury notes of 1890, $147,834; national bank notes, $8,945,177; total receipts this day, $1,127,647; total receipts this month, $20,076,490; total receipts this year, $454,294,460; total expenditures this day, $1,095,000; total expenditures this month, $19,045,009; total expenditures this year, $417,699,999; deposits in national banks, $123,155,340.

DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED.

New York, May 13.—Stockholders of the Delaware & Hudson company held their annual meeting today and re-elected all the outgoing officers.

WELL PAID.

Young Woman Gets $18,000 For Loss of Beauty.

New York, May 13.—For the partial destruction of her facial beauty in the Park avenue tunnel disaster, Minnie J. Rice, of New Rochelle, has received from the railroad company $18,000. Miss Rice was caught between two seats and her nose was crushed flat. She also sustained severe cuts about the head. Her beauty was partly restored by skin grafting operations.

ON TRAIL OF MURDERERS.

St. Paul, May 13.—The police are on the trail of the two companions of Arthur Inman, the suspected murderer of Patrolman Mayer. Detective Murnane is not at Kansas City, and it is believed that he is in Omaha or thereabouts. Thomas O'Connor left again last night.

SACRIFICED

The Savings of a Lifetime to Right an Error.

New York, May 13.—Because of an error in bookkeeping committed twenty years ago, City Treasurer William Malcolm, of Passaic, N. J., has turned over to the county clerk at Paterson deeds and securities for every penny of his own and his wife's property. This property is valued at $91,000, including the Malcolm home, and represents the savings of a lifetime.

Mr. Malcolm gave as his reason for his act of sacrifice the wish to protect from loss the thousands of poor persons who had invested their savings in the Mutual Loan and Building association, in connection with which the error in bookkeeping occurred. The shortage caused by the error amounted to $61,000. It was made in Mr. Malcolm's first annual report when the amount of dues and fines against stockholders standing uncollected were credited as assets. This has been done every year until this present month, when the amount reached $61,000. The state board of examiners discovered the shortage and quickly ascertained the error responsible.

Mr. Malcolm was notified and the revelation nearly prostrated him. He immediately surrendered his property to President Streik of the city council and Mayor Bogart, who filed the deeds and documents with the county clerk.

Mr. Malcolm says the stockholders of the association have reaped the profits of the error by receiving larger dividends than their stock warranted.

INQUIRY

Into Alleged Fraudulent Registration Begins at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The grand jury this morning took up the investigation of the fraudulent registration at the primary election March 18.

Among the witnesses summoned were County Commissioner W. B. Webster, chairman of the Republican executive committee; Fred C. Schiffman, president of the Fourth Ward Republican organization; Fred M. Schutte, of the city and county committee; Phil Hass, of the Fourth Ward organization, and others. It is expected from the array of witnesses that the inquiry will be prolonged if the inquisitors unearth anything tangible from the first batch.

SOLOMAN SUICIDES.

Chicago, May 13.—Julius Soloman, former Northtown collector and well known in Democratic politics, committed suicide here today. Ill-health was the cause.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Independent Tugs Are Taking Care of Some Harbor Business.

Former Employes Standing Firm In Sympathy With Cleveland.

General Manager Sinclair Says Sixty-Two Men Have Signed.

Independent tugs entered the local harbor to do vessel-towing today, and they are relieving the situation a good deal so far as the vesselmen's side of it is concerned.

So far as the former employes are concerned the situation remains the same in Duluth. The Union Towing and Wrecking company has only the tug Abbot working so far, but the officers of the company say that there are good prospects of having one or two more tugs out immediately.

The local Typographical union, of which Capt. J. P. Thompson, who is master of the tug Abbot, is a member, yesterday sent a request to him to withdraw from the field, and cease working for the company, but he returned a refusal to the request.

The Stevens tugs and a number of tugs owned by individuals were towing vessels today, and with the Abbot they cared for the local business fairly well. All of these tugs have L. T. A. P. men aboard, either as masters or engineers or both, though the association has forbidden its men to tow vessels of companies that have contracts with the Great Lakes Towing company.

Word was received here today from General Manager Sinclair, of the Great Lakes Towing company, that sixty-two captains and engineers, all members of the L. T. P. A., had signed the contracts that are offered by the company. Word was also received from Local Manager Frank Root, of the Sault station of the Great Lakes Towing company, that all of the company's tugs there are in commission again.

MORE DEMAND FOR BOATS.

Chicago, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Grain freights were in somewhat better shape, with an improved demand for boats today. Rates were unchanged at 1⅛ cents on corn to Buffalo.

MOVING AN ELEVATOR.

Buffalo, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The work of removing the Dakota elevator tower from Main street slip is being hurried, but it will take several days to accomplish it. The steel plates have been removed and the frame work is now being taken down. It is estimated that the cost of replacing the leg will exceed $30,000. It is reported on the best authority that a new steel elevator is to be constructed at Black Rock. Details are withheld, but it is believed that the promoters are in close touch with the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific railroads.

DONALDSON AGROUND.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The barge Donaldson, in tow of the E. A. Shores, down bound, is aground at the dyke. Tugs are trying to release her.

CRETAN GOES ASHORE.

Amherstburg, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner Cretan in tow of the Roumania bound down with grain, parted her tow line in the Lime Kiln cut early today and her bow went on the east bank. The current quickly swung only thing in the way of a good advance the Cretan down stream. The vessel is now out 2½ feet forward, but is not leaking. The tugs Saginaw, Home Rule and Wales are lightering the cargo.

WORK OF RESCUING

Refugees From Martinique Is Proceeding Amid Danger.

Cable Ship Passed Through Clouds of Burning Cinders.

Path of the Volcanic Torrent Marked In Strange Manner.

Fort de France, May 13—The German cruiser Falke has just arrived here. The work of succoring the refugees continues incessantly. When the cable repair ship Pouyer-Quirier started on her mission she had to pass through clouds of burning cinders at the risk of catching fire, in order to reach the terror-stricken people ashore. But, as already announced, she succeeded in bringing to this port 456 people, mainly from residents of the village of Le Preucheur. This was on Saturday. Since then the steamer, as the result of other daring trips, has succeeded in bringing many other persons to Fort de France. On Sunday she rescued 923 persons, and piloted the French cruiser Suchet and the Danish cruiser Valkyrien, who took on board 1500 persons. The Quirier has distributed to the sufferers large quantities of biscuits, milk, wine and cheese.

The path of the volcanic torrent which swept over St. Pierre is marked out in a strange manner. The vicinity of the shore, where vessels anchored, was swept by a whirlwind of volcanic gas, which ripped, tore and shattered everything in its passage, but left few traces of cinders behind. On the other hand the fort, center and adjoining part of St. Pierre are buried under a thick layer of cinders, which consumed everything beneath it.

COMMITTEE

Appointed to Receive Funds For Volcano Sufferers.

Washington, May 13.—The following was issued from the White house this afternoon:

"The president has appointed a committee to receive funds for the relief of the sufferers from the recent catastrophes in Martinique and St. Incent. The gentlemen appointed from each city are asked to collect and receive the funds from their localities and neighborhoods as expeditiously as possible and forward them to Hon. Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the New York committee, which committee will act as central distributing point of the country. The president directs all the postmasters throughout the country and requests all presidents of national banks, to act as agents for the collection of funds and to forward same at once to Mr. Bliss. The postmasters are also directed to report to the postmaster general within ten days any funds collected on this account.

"The president appeals to the public to contribute generously for the relief of those upon whom this appalling calamity has fallen, and asks that contributions be sent in as speedily as possible. The gentlemen designated on the several committees, are requested to act at once."

The following are among the committees: Milwaukee, F. G. Bigelow, Charles F. Pfister, Fred Pabst. Minneapolis, Thomas Lowry, J. J. Shoville. St. Paul, Kenneth Clark, Theodore Schurmeir.

LICENSES

Must Be Renewed By All Minnesota Commission Firms.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Notices were sent out by the state railroad and warehouse commission today instructing commission firms in Minnesota, to file before June 1 applications for new licenses. The action is under a provision of the Grindeland law for state supervision of such firms.

Licenses cost a fee of $1 each year and are accompanied by bonds made in the average amount of balances due customers per month, averaged through a year.

Many of Our Boys and Girls Are Suffering This Month From the After Effects of Winter Grippe.

Wise Parents Provide

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

For Their Loved Ones.

The Wondrous Medicine Quickly Expels all Germ Poisons from the Blood and Fortifies the Weak and Run Down System.

A busy city physician, enjoying a large annual income, remarked the other day that a host of young people—boys and girls—were suffering this month from the after effects of winter grippe.

Dear parents, have any of your children suffered from an attack of the cruel monster, grippe, during the past winter months? Are your boys and girls irritable, feverish, pale or weak? Have they cold and clammy limbs? Is the blood watery, impure or sluggish? Is the appetite poor and digestion weak? Has the rose tint of health faded from the cheeks? If any of these conditions are noted, be assured the dregs of deadly grippe are implanted in the system.

If your children are not blithesome, happy, boisterous and strong in May, their condition calls for prompt action on your part. Their future—health and physical happiness or sufferings and early death—is in your hands, dear parents, and you alone are responsible to Heaven and the community of which you are a part.

When winter grippe has implanted seeds of virulent disease, the first and most important work is to expel from the blood every trace of poison. This is always successfully accomplished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound.

This marvelous medicine, after purifying the foul and stagnant blood, acts as a nerve food. It builds up the nervous system and nourishes all the bodily tissues.

Boys and girls with such a start in life as they always receive from Paine's Celery Compound, grow up as sturdy as forest oaks; they revel in strength and true life; they are fair to behold; they make the men and women most needed by our country. Do your part this month, dear parents, with promptness and honesty, and rest assured Paine's Celery Compound will not fail in its grand work of health building.

They range in amounts from $500 to $5000. The bonds are available as security to customers, in any failure to make proper returns for shipments. The total amount which the state yearly holds in bonds for the protection of shippers and farmers ranges from $175,000 to $200,000. There are at present 140 firms under state supervision, located mainly in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. These handle grain and agricultural produce chiefly. The grain firms are almost without exception either at Minneapolis or Duluth. The law has now been in effect two years and has been uniformly successful. But one firm has violated its provisions by failing to make proper returns and in this case the state license was immediately withdrawn. During the two years there has not been a complaint against any of the grain commission firms. The law was designed to stop the sharp practice of firms that formerly received shipments, sold them, and then either deferred making returns or failed to make them at all. This class has disappeared entirely.

ANTI-STRIKE

Sentiment Shows Unexpected Strength Among the Miners.

Scranton, Pa., May 13.—Accurate information is not obtainable concerning the results of the meetings of the mine workers' local unions which were held yesterday and last night in every district of the anthracite coal region for the purpose of instructing delegates to the Hazelton convention. It is semi-officially stated, however, that an unexpected anti-strike movement has developed in some quarters, particularly in the Lackawanna district. Of the forty-four "locals" in the Lackawanna field, it is said twenty-nine instructed their delegates against a continuance of the temporary strike and fifteen voted in favor of it. As there are 173 locals in the first district, which extends from Nanticoke to Forest City, and were supposed to be committed to a strike, the vote of the unions adjacent to the city cannot be said to be decisive. Tomorrow, as frequently before, President Mitchell's judgment may be thrown into the balance. He has said, however, that he will do or say nothing to influence the delegates. There are some who think that a compromise of some sort will be made. Many of the locals, it is said, will send their delegates uninstructed to the Hazelton convention.

WAS EXPECTED.

Minneapolis, May 13.—Mrs. James Smith of this city, sister-in-law of United States Consul Louis Ayme at Guadeloupe, was a guest of the family of United States Consul T. T. Prentis at St. Pierre, a year ago, being then on a tour of the islands with her brother. She says that Mrs. Prentis told her at that time that she and her husband did not expect to leave the island alive. Mr. Prentis and Mr. Ayme had made a critical examination of the volcanoes of the islands and agreed that a terrible disaster was inevitable at some time.

DULUTH CASE SUBMITTED.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of the city of Duluth against Gordon Abbott et al, appeal from the circuit court for the district of Minnesota, has been argued and submitted in the United States circuit court of appeals.

SENATE APPROVES

Of President's Request For Half Million Appropriation.

Washington, May 13.—Soon after the senate convened today, Mr. Cullom, from the committee on foreign relations, reported a joint resolution appropriating $500,000, including the $200,000 already appropriated, to be expended under direction of the president in such manner as will most promptly and efficiently relieve the stricken people of the French West Indies and St. Vincent. The resolution was adopted without comment.

Mr. Stewart, chairman of the Indian affairs committee, offered a joint resolution providing that such part of the Indian appropriation bill recently passed as related to the division of the northern district of the Indian territory into two districts should take effect on July 1, 1902. The resolution was passed.

At the request of Mr. Burrows, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, that committee was granted permission to sit during sessions of the senate.

The agricultural appropriation bill was then taken up and passed.

Mr. Stewart (Nev.) then addressed the senate in support of the Philippine government bill.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 13.—The conference report on the omnibus claims bill occupied considerable time at the opening of the house today. Mr. Underwood (Ala.) made the point of order against the report that the conferees had introduced matters not authorized by either branch of congress, and extended discussion followed on the point of order.

In making his ruling the speaker said there must be no abuse of the prerogatives of a conference committee, as that would open the dangerous pathway for the usurpation of the powers of congress by a committee. He held that three entirely new items had been introduced into the omnibus claims measure and he therefore sustained the point of order. This had the effect of rejecting the entire conference report.

Mr. Mahon (Pa.), chairman of the committee having charge of the measure, promptly appealed from the decision of the chair and Mr. Underwood moved to table the appeal. Coming from the Republican side of the chamber an appeal from the decision of the chair caused some surprise. On being appealed to by his associates, Mr. Mahon withdrew his appeal from the speaker's decision. The matter continued under discussion for some time in connection with the return of the omnibus bill to conference.

The omnibus claims bill was sent back to conference, but the debate was protracted by Mr. Underwood's amendment covering the findings of the Selfridge naval board for balances due on vessels built during the civil war. The motion to instruct prevailed on a rising vote, 67 to 54, whereupon a yea and nay vote was taken.

The vote resulted 113 to 70 in favor of the instructions to the conferees.

The naval appropriation bill was then taken up. It carries a total of $77,659,386 and includes provision for two new battleships, two armored cruisers and two gunboats, one of the larger ships to be built in a government navy yard.

Mr. Foss (Ill.) chairman of the naval committee, explained the measure in detail.

DEATH LIST.

St. Paul, May 13.—A Dassel, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: T. M. Jones, a well-known farmer and old settler, died here of heart failure, aged 49 years.

Louisville, May 13.—Walter N. Haldeman, president of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times company, died this morning from the effects of injuries received last Friday by being struck by a street car. Mr. Haldeman was over 81 years old.

Bloomington, Ill., May 13.—Dr. John L. White, one of the most prominent and widely known physicians of the state, died here today, aged 70. He was past grand commander of the Illinois Knights Templars and has served two terms in the state legislature.

Cleveland, May 13.—Charles Gordon, a prominent citizen of this city, and father of Mrs. Dan R. Hanna, died at his home in Gordon Park early today.

Akron, Ohio, May 13.—Hugo Schumacher, one of the best known capitalists of Akron, and nephew of Ferdinand Schumacher, the oatmeal king, died in Chicago today.

MRS. MUGGAH PROSTRATED.

New York, May 13.—Having been notified that further hope for the escape of her husband from death at St. Pierre was useless, Mrs. Muggah, wife of the captain of the steamer Roraima, is prostrated at her home in Brooklyn. Physicians are in attendance but there is said to be slight chance for her recovery.

EMMANUEL'S CONTRIBUTION.

Rome, May 13.—King Victor Emmanuel has contributed 25,000 lire to the fund being raised for the relief of the sufferers from the Martinique disaster.

ROBBERS AT BALDWIN, WIS.

St. Paul, May 13.—A Baldwin, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Last night robbers entered the general store of Charles Evan at Hersey, nine miles east of here, and secured several hundred dollars' worth of clothing and cutlery. They also secured about $75 from the postoffice. There is no clue.

DICKINSON ARRIVES.

New York, May 13.—Among the passengers who arrived today on the steamer Sicilia from Genoa and Naples was C. M. Dickinson, United States consul general at Constantinople. Mr. Dickinson conducted the negotiations for the release of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missionary who was captured by the brigands. He said he had come home on leave of absence but owing to the endeavor to fix the responsibility for the outrage he might be detained here.

NO PASSENGERS HURT.

Joliet, Ill., May 13.—The Prairie State express on the Chicago & Alton, leaving Chicago at 9 a. m. was wrecked near Ellwood, below Joliet. Four coaches were derailed by an open or defective switch and thrown against a high clay bank but none of the passengers were seriously hurt.

MAY TERM.

United States Circuit Court Opens, Judge Shiras Presiding.

The May term of United States circuit court in Duluth began this morning with Judge Oliver P. Shiras, of Iowa, presiding.

The day has been taken up with the hearing of motions and demurrers. A number of cases were continued over until the October term, among them being that of Marion Douglas against George T. Porter on stipulation of both parties; Arthur J. La Framboise against the Interstate Traction company, the motion being made by the defendant company and there being no opposition; Henry Snyder against the Glenmont Lumber company, by stipulation; all of the cases of the United States of America against T. R. Foley.

A decree for the defendants was entered in the case of the Midway company against Frank W. Eaton, et al, in the section 30 case. In the case of F. W. Eaton against the Midway company et al, an action brought to quiet title to forty acres not included in the section 30 case, a motion by the complainant to have the case remanded to the state court was overruled.

A motion to remand to the state court the case of the Duluth Match company against Levi E. Ewing and Marshall H. Alworth as president of the company, and O. H. Simonds as secretary, was sustained. This afternoon a motion was being argued to set aside the service of summons in the case of the Duluth Match company against Levi E. Ewing, on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction over the defendant Ewing. Objection was made to the hearing of the motion, by the plaintiff, on the ground that no notice had been given of the motion other than that filed with the clerk of court.

It is expected that the suit for damages of the Hines Lumber company against Comstock Brothers will come up for trial in United States circuit court tomorrow morning. It will probably be a trial by jury.

Clarence B. Miller, R. J. Montague, James B. French and J. B. Brigham were this morning admitted to practice in the United States circuit and district courts.

The grand jury went into session this morning, but up to 3 o'clock this afternoon no indictments had been returned. There are a number of cases concerning the sale of liquor to Indians, and one case against a letter carrier for abstracting the contents of a registered letter, to be considered by the grand jury.

RESIGNS.

Health Commissioner Ohage Sends In His Ultimatum.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Health Commissioner Ohage announced last evening that he had mailed his resignation to Mayor Smith to take effect as soon as possible. The resignation was received by Mayor Smith today. The doctor insists on his resignation but Mayor Smith today stated positively that he would not accept it. This action by Dr. Ohage resulted from the refusal of the St. Paul Commercial club to recommend the condemnation of the West Side land adjacent to the public baths, the plea being that the four manufacturing concerns located there would remove to Minneapolis.

GETS LAND.

Governor Executes Deeds For Duluth & Iron Range.

St. Paul, May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Van Sant has executed three deeds conveying about 175,000 acres of swamp lands to the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company, selected by the company in accordance with the grant of 1875, as amended in 1883, whereby the company was to receive ten sections of land for each mile of railroad from Duluth by the shortest and most feasible route to Tower. About 220,000 acres more will be required to fill the grant.

BOUGHT A DEPOT.

Northern Pacific Gets Union Station at Stillwater.

St. Paul, May 13.—A Stillwater, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The Northern Pacific Railroad company has purchased the Union Depot and Transfer railroad of Stillwater and took possession this morning. The Omaha and Milwaukee officials were today notified of the purchase, they having had joint use of the depot and yards in connection with the Northern Pacific heretofore. The property includes the union station, the Kitty ware house, track, terminals and sidings as well as some rolling stock. The property was formerly owned by Boston and Stillwater capitalists.

FINAL DISTRIBUTION

Of the Fair Estate Has Been Ordered.

San Francisco, May 13.—The final distribution of James G. Fair's estate has been ordered by Judge Troutt. By this decree Fair's three children, Charles L. Fair, Mrs. Virginia Vanderbilt, and Mrs. C. Oelrich are given about $7,000,000 worth of property. That is the remnant of the property. The larger part of the estate was given to them by partial distribution months ago. The final decree covers the personal property, which was kept by the executors to await the decision on whether the trust in Fair's will was valid as to personality, and also several pieces of real estate which were claimed by Mrs. Craven, who claimed to be Fair's widow, but who, it has been decided, has no standing in court.

VERY BAD NATIVES.

Washington, May 13.—George G. Boardman, formerly of the Twentieth infantry, continued his testimony before the senate Philippine committee today. He said that the natives in Batangas, where he was stationed, became very bad and threatening after the Balangiga massacre, and intimated that the troops would be served likewise. It needed an order such as Gen. Smith gave to make the natives realize that the United States meant business.

NOMINATIONS.

Washington, May 13.—The president today sent the following nominations to the senate: Clarence Hale, United States district judge, district of Maine. Consul—Benjamin Johnson, Iowa, at Gibraltar. Honduras. Consul general—Gordon Paddock, New York, at Seoul, Korea. Revenue cutter service—First Lieut. Alexander P. R. Hanks, of Wisconsin, to be captain.

CONNOR RENOMINATED.

GAME POSTPONED.

Philadelphia, May 13.—Philadelphia-Boston game postponed; rain.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

BIRTHS.

RUSSELL—A son has been born to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Russell, of No. 4 Lafayette flats.

LUNDING—A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Lunning, of 1422 East Second street.

DEATHS.

NEVILLE—Mary Neville, widow of the late Miles Neville, died this morning, (May 13), at her home, No. 612 East First street.

She was born in Ireland nearly ninety years ago, and since 1871 has lived in Duluth. She was the mother of Mrs. W. W. Johnson and Mrs. John McGillis, both of this city.

The funeral service will be held in the cathedral at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. Interment at Calvary cemetery.

HARRIS—The funeral of Henry Evans Harris was held at noon today from his late residence, 122 East First street. The service was conducted by Dr. A. W. Ryan, of St. Paul's Episcopal church, and attended by many friends of the deceased. The body was taken to St. Paul, immediately after the service, where it will be cremated tomorrow.

PETERSON—Elwin Peterson, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Peterson, died May 13, at the Peterson house, 136 Mesaba avenue, of diphtheria. The service and interment occurred this afternoon at Forest Hill cemetery.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST?

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY—
It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN—
It causes no discoloration of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE—
As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP—
By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

Your Rent is Going To Be Higher!
Why? Because the present rents paid does not cause any one to build to supply you with equal accommodations for the rent you are paying. The rent that caused the house to be built that you live in was considerably higher than you are paying now.
More people are coming to the city who will be willing to pay more than you are and the first thing you know you will be moving further from the center of the city than you are at present living.
Houses and lots are still being offered at less than it cost to build the house. It is not too late to buy at low figures.
We have about thirty houses and lots for sale which have been practically rebuilt in the last four years, taxes and assessments all paid, which we offer to sell for $100 to $150 down and the balance to be paid on terms that are as easy to pay as rent and you are in the way of getting a home. We refer you to those who have bought of us and are getting homes of their own. We have a list of over fifty at the office, at

A SHARP REFUSAL

By Coal Operators to Grant Miners' Demands.

Convention Will Decide Question of Strike.

New York, May 14.—President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers has been in communication again with Senator Hanna over the long distance telephone, says a Hazelton special to the World.

Senator Hanna wanted to know the very smallest concession the miners will agree to. President Mitchell is said to have evinced a willingness to call the strike off if any concession whatever were made by the operators. It is understood Senator Hanna afterward communicated with the leading operators and met with a curt refusal to grant any of the miners' demands.

Hazelton, Pa., May 14.—The general convention of the United Mine Workers of America, of the anthracite coal territory of Pennsylvania, began here this morning, and before it adjourns sine die, it will have reached a definite conclusion on the question of whether the temporary strike for higher wages, or shorter hours, which was inaugurated on Monday shall be made permanent, or whether the men shall return to work and await a more opportune time.

While there is an absolute lack of official information by reason of the decision of the miners not to talk, there is every indication that the delegates in convention will decide to strike. There is a strong sentiment, however, against a permanent suspension of work at this time, and it promises to make a decided stand. This minority is growing stronger with the passing of every hour.

President Mitchell and the district leaders say they are keeping hands off, an will insist that the delegates decide the issue themselves. Hundreds of the delegates who have been instructed to follow their own or Mr. Mitchell's judgment have sought the national leader for advice, but he has remained silent. There is not the slightest doubt that one word from President Mitchell could sway the convention either way, and it is not at all improbable that after all has been said by the delegates that he will be asked to consent to step into the breaches. There has been a lingering hope, which has now almost entirely disappeared, that the mine owners would make some slight concession

BATTLE IS EXPECTED

A Fierce Engagement Between the Revolutionists and the Haytian Troops Is Likely to Occur Very Shortly.

Port au Prince, Hayti, May 14.—Admiral Killicki, commander of the Haytian fleet, has started for Cape Haytien with the Haytian warships Crete-a-Periot and Tussaint Louverture, having declared himself in favor of Gen. Firman, the former minister of Hayti at Paris, who is the head of the revolutionary forces in the northern part of the island.

The northern revolutionists have seized the customs houses of Cape Haytien, Port de Paix and Gonaives and are collecting duties. Protests of the action on the part of Gen. Firman have been entered by the National bank and the diplomatic corps. A severe engagement between the Northern revolutionists and the Southern forces, meaning the troops from Port au Prince and the cities of its vicinity, is expected to take place tomorrow or the day after.

A steamer from Kingston, Jamaica, is expected here today or Thursday, bringing a number of Haytians who have been in exile. Among them are M. Fouchard and Seneque Pierre, two more candidates for the presidency.

The French steamer Olinde Rodriguez, on which ex-President Sam embarked yesterday, is still in the harbor of Port au Prince. She was to have sailed yesterday, but was detained by the French minister, M. Deprez. She will remain here until a foreign warship reaches Port au Prince.

The absence of a foreign warship is causing great uneasiness in the foreign colony here.

After the embarkation of Gen. Sam, all political prisoners here were released, and last night they, with groups of drunken soldiers, paraded the streets. Shots were fired from time to time, and it was feared that the plundering of stores and residences would follow. The provisional government constituted by M. Boisrond Canal, a former president, is attempting to control the situation, but Gen. Saint Folx Colin, the district commander; Gen. Kebreau, the chief of police, and M. Polynice, the communal magistrate, are the only officials who appear to be exercising authority. They formed a corps of respectable citizens yesterday evening and succeeded in disarming most of the dangerous characters. As a result the night was much quieter than it would otherwise have been.

HE WANTED HER MONEY

San Francisco Waiter Abstracts the Savings of a Woman Who Came From St. Louis to Marry Him.

San Francisco, May 14.—Mrs Julia Klein, who came here from St. Louis several days ago, has been robbed of $8800 by a waiter named Charley Marco, to whom she was engaged to be married. Marco has disappeared. The money stolen represented the savings of Mrs. Klein, who for fourteen months has kept a restaurant in St. Louis. Not many months ago Marco applied at her restaurant for work and was given employment. At the end of seven weeks the proprietress and waiter became engaged. Marco came to this city and Mrs. Klein sold out her business and followed him, expecting soon to become his wife. He went to her room, ripped open the mattress of her bed and took all of her money. He was already wearing her gold watch and chain.

STOP ARRESTING CHILDREN

Chicago, May 14.—Wholesale arrests of children and their imprisonment in police stations for trivial offenses have been ordered stopped by Mayor Harrison. The order was given to Chief of Police O'Neill to carry out suggestions to this effect made to the mayor by Judge R. S. Tuthill of the juvenile court.

According to Superintendent Bodine, of the department of compulsory education, 17,000 children under the age of 16, were arrested in Chicago last year, a large proportion of whom were exposed to the contaminating influences of the cell rooms of police stations. The mayor's attention was called to the law which makes it illegal to detain a child under 12 years old in a police station, or confine one under 18 years in the same building with adult prisoners.

PEACE IS RESTORED.

David B. Hill and Judge Herrick Friends Again.

Albany, N. Y., May 14.—Former Senator David B. Hill called upon Supreme Court Justice D. Cady Herrick yesterday and one of the most bitter political breaches in the history of the state is said to have been healed.

The conference between the two former foes lasted over an hour, and when Senator Hill departed there was an expression of serene satisfaction upon his countenance. Democratic harmony was the golden text of the talk, and already the politicians have announced that there is little doubt that the price of the forced peace is the nomination of Judge Herrick for governor.

FISH AND ARSENIC

James Doyle Partook and Likely to Die.

Dassell, Minn., May 14.—A carload of fish and a carload of arsenic were in a railroad wreck near Litchfield, both piled close to each other. James Doyle, of Darwin, a section man, ate some of the fish that had come in contact with the arsenic and his life is despaired of.

FIVE MILIONS OF ART.

New York, May 14.—Final appraisement of the estate left by Jacob S. Rogers, the locomotive builder, shows that, as its legacy, the Metropolitan Museum of Art will get $5,547,000.

SITUATION APPALLING

Streets of St. Pierre Obstructed By the Dead.

The Crater of Mount Pelee Continues Active.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, Tuesday, May 13.—The correspondent of the Associated Press here has visited St. Pierre, Martinique, by the relieving steamer Kenneth. The destruction there is appalling. The streets are two feet deep in ashes and cinders, which cover thousands of dead bodies, scorched black and shiny as if they had been plunged into boiling pitch. Many of the dead were never touched by the volcanic fire, and some of the houses and woodwork show no signs of burning.

At Moudlage, in the southwestern portion of St. Pierre, the town hall is still standing as high as the first story, while at the fort, in the northwestern part of St. Pierre, the most massive stone work is calcined.

The church tower, built by the Jesuits two centuries ago, of cyclopean mason work, is now like a huge heap of old metal.

Soldiers are guarding property from prowling ghouls who are robbing the dead. They meet with severe punishment when caught.

The stench throughout St. Pierre is terribly offensive. The streets are still obstructed by huge piles of debris and dead bodies. The work of clearing the thoroughfares will necessitate the employment of large numbers of men for many months.

Mouillage Rouge, near St. Pierre, is preserved, and Basse Pointe and Macouba are yet unhurt, but the crater is still active and smoke and ashes are blowing steadily northward.

The surviving inhabitants are trying to cross from St. Pierre to the island of Dominica in boats. Many drowning casualties are reported.

Assistance is constantly arriving at Fort de France from all the neighboring islands.

IN AN INSTANT

Were the People of St. Pierre Suffocated.

Fort de France, Martinique, May 14.—St. Pierre was destroyed, not by lava streams and not by showers of redhot rocks, but by an all-consuming blast of suffocating, poisonous, burning gases.

Death came to the inhabitants instantly. It was not a matter of hours or minutes. It was a matter of seconds. They did not burn to death. They died by breathing flame, and their bodies burned afterward.

It is not merely true that no person inside the limits of the town escaped, but it is probably a literal fact that no person lived long enough to take two steps toward escape.

These facts, which will go on record as the most astounding in the history of human catastrophes, have been practically established by the investigations of yesterday and Sunday at the site of the city, helped out in a slight degree by the scanty testimony of the few tortured sufferers on boats in the harbor who alone survived.

The manner of the annihilation of St. Pierre is unique in the history of the world. Pompeii was not a parallel, for Pompeii was eaten up by demoniac rivers of lava, and lava became its tomb. But where St. Pierre once stood there is not even a lava bed now. The city is gone from the earth.

The half-dead victims who escaped on the Roddam or were brought here by the Suchet talked of a "hurricane of flame" that had come upon them. It now appears that that phrase was no figure of speech, but a literal statement of what happened.

There are bodies lying in the streets of the city—or rather on the ground where streets once were, for in many places it is impossible to trace the line between streets and building sites—to which death came so suddenly that the smiles on the faces did not have time to change to the lines of agony.

That does not mean death by burning, though the bodies have been charred and half consumed, nor does it mean suffocation, for suffocation is slow. It can mean only the bath of burning fumes into which the city was plunged affected the victims like a terribly virulent poison when the first whiff of the gases entered their lungs.

There are many of the victims who died with their hands to their mouths. That one motion of the arm was probably the only one that they made before they became unconscious. Others fell to their faces and died with their lips pressed into the earth.

There was no time to run, perhaps no time even to cry out, no time to breathe a prayer. It was as if St. Pierre had been just dipped into an immense white-hot furnace and then set out to cool. Mont Pelee went sputtering on, but that made no longer any difference. In the city all life was destroyed.

Every combustible thing was burned. Animal bodies, full of moisture, glowed awhile and then remained charred wrecks. Wood and other easily combustible things burned to ashes.

On the ground lay the bodies, amidst heaps of ashes and piles of volcanic stones. That was all.

That St. Pierre and the strip of coast to the north and south of it were burned in an instant was probably due to the first break in the mountain coming on its western side and immediately above them, though the direction of the wind may have had a little to do with it.

In this way one can understand how the mountain resort of Morne Rouge, where about 600 people were staying, escaped annihilation.

Rocks and dust and boiling mud fell upon it, no doubt harming it, but they did not destroy it, for it was out of the pathway of the first awful blast.

Since Thursday, beginning indeed immediately after the explosion, the Mont Pelee has been sending lava streams in many directions. They have filled the ravines and followed river courses and made their way to the sea. They have done great destruction, but most of the inhabitants in their course have had some chance at least to escape.

From Le Precheur around the northern end of the island, to Grande Riviere, Macouba, and, perhaps, to Grande Anse, directly across the island from St. Pierre, the lava has been flowing. Great crevasses are opening from time to time in the hills. The earth is undulating like waves. Rivers are thrown out of their courses by the change in land levels. In some places they submerge the land and form lakes. In other places they are licked up by the lava that flows on them and turns them to steam.

Constant rumblings, thunder and lightning storms make the surroundings so terrible that many have actually died of fright.

SAID CITY WAS SAFE.

Mistaken Prediction of the Scientific Commission.

New York, May 14.—The Trans-Atlantic steamer Canada has arrived here with 138 refugees, twenty hours from Fort de France, Martinique, says the Port of Spain, Trinidad, dispatch to the Herald. She brings this account of an event which is alleged to have preceded the disaster at St. Pierre, told, it is stated, by a person who was aboard the schooner Gabrielle:

"A scientific commission, headed by the governor, M. Mouttet, assembled in St. Pierre on May 7, the day before the calamity, for the purpose of studying the phenomena of the volcanic disturbances of Mount Pelee.

"It was agreed by the members of this commission that the relative position of the craters and the valleys debouching on the sea were such that the scientists could affirm that the security of St. Pierre was complete, and this announcement was made to allay the fears of the frightened citizens.

"The sun rose clear over St. Pierre at 6 o'clock on the morning of May 8. Mount Pelee was smoking to the north and the wind was blowing westward.

"A few minutes before 7 o'clock a great white column of what seemed to be steam and gas belched forth from an apparently new crator on Mount Pelee, which seemed to be about 200 yards from the original crater, and which appeared to open up a deep rent from the top to the bottom of the mountain.

"This outbreak caused the utmost consternation and panic among the inhabitants of St. Pierre, who fled toward the seashore uttering frightful screams.

"Those on the Gabrielle observed a small yacht leave St. Pierre at ten minutes after 7 o'clock with the governor and members of the scientific commission on board. The yacht steamed toward Le Prechar."

NO DOCTORS REQUIRED.

There Are No Injured Persons at St. Pierre.

London, May 14.—Sir Frederick M. Hodgson, the governor of Barbadoes, forwarded to the colonial office today the report of the colonial secretary, who has just returned from a visit to St. Pierre, Martinique. It confirms the worst accounts of the disaster. The secretary compares the ignited matter which destroyed everything an area of ten miles long by six wide, to burning sealing wax. He adds significantly that the services of doctors are not required, as there are no wounded persons.

Governor Hodgson estimates that 2,000,000 tons of volcanic dust fell on the island of Bargadoes.

PELEE A SAFETY VALVE.

Its Activity Will Probably Save Other Islands.

New York, May 14.—Sir Henry T. Wrenfordsley, who has been chief justice for at least six of England's colonies among them the Leeward islands, is in this city. Regarding the volcanic outburst in the West Indies, he said: "I don't believe there will be any great destruction elsewhere. There is no doubt in my mind that there is a subterannean connection between that string of islands, but that fact will save the rest, perhaps. I look to see Mount Pelee take its place as an active volcano, at least during our lifetime, acting as a sort of safety valve for the other islands."

ST. THOMAS SHOCKED.

New York, May 14.—Much excitement was caused here, says a St. Thomas, D. W. I., dispatch to the Herald by a slight shock of earthquake, which was felt about half past 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The public was greatly excited and many persons rushed from their houses, but the tremors of the earth stopped before any actual damage was done.

RAIN IN KANSAS.

Wichita, Kas., May 14.—A substantial rain fell throughout this section last night, at Colwich, near Wichita, a fall of three inches was recorded. Wheat will fill out more fully, and corn has a beneficial start.

A LOAN FOR HAVANA.

New York, May 14.—Former Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle, who is here, says a Havana dispatch to the Tribune, is said to be making negotiations for placing a loan for the city of Havana. He is a large stockholder in the National Bank of Cuba.

The Palma loan amounts to $15,000,000, with the privilege of increasing it to $20,000,000.

WANT FOOD

For the Refugees.

Fifty Thousand Needy.

Washington, May 14.—The navy department this morning received a number of messages bearing on the Martinique disaster. Lieut. B. B. McCormack, commanding the Potomac, sent the following from Fort de France, dated yesterday: "Inhabitants of St. Pierre and sixteen vessels totally destroyed. Surrounding villages uninhabited. Island covered with destruction. Ashes within five miles of Fort de France. Provisions needed for 50,000 refugees within ten days. Donated extra stores. Inform commandant San Juan."

Commander McLean, of the Cincinnati, cabled from Fort de France under today's date as follows: 'Arrived at St. Pierre this morning. Came here on message to assist government of Martinique. News of disaster at St. Vincent. Have sent Potomac. Will follow, if necessary."

Admiral Barker, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yard, telegraphed as follows: "Bulk of freight removed to Buffalo. She can sail at any time within two hours' notice."

Secretary Hay today received the following cablegram from Consul Ayme in reply to the secretary's inquiry as to whether fresh water and supplies are needed: "Water not needed, but food imperative for 50,000 refugees. I have cabled this to the governor of Porto Rico, answering his query as to what was wanted. I shall stay here to distribute supplies. The Cincinnati is here."

Adjt. Gen. Corbin has received a cablegram from San Juan, saying that the collier Sterling will sail today with supplies for Martinique.

LIBERAL DONATIONS

Made at Paris For the Martinique Sufferers.

Paris, May 14.—The meeting today called by the American chamber of commerce to raise funds for the relief of the West Indian sufferers, was well attended and over 12,000 francs were subscribed in a few minutes to aid the destiute people at Martinique. The proceedings were brief and business-like. Henry Vignaud, the United States charge d'affaires, presided. President Francis Kimba, of the chamber of commerce, explained the object of the meeting, and H. B. Partee and M. Valois seconded a resolution expressing the sympathy of the Americans of Paris with France in her sorrow.

A committee was appointed to take charge of the American fund.

SHIPLOAD OF SUPPLIES

Will Reach Martinique on Next Monday.

New York, May 14.—With food enough on board to feed the entire population of Martinique for a week, the cruiser Dixie is expected to sail this afternoon from this port. She will arrive at her destination Monday.

Never, even during war time, did the army subsistence department make such a record in collecting a shipload of food supplies. It was done in twenty-four hours' time, Col. D. L. Brainerd bringing from Philadelphia three car loads of supplies to make up the shipment and purchasing the rest here.

The Dixie's cargo will comprise 900,000 rations. It contains: 200,000 pounds of bread, 85,000 pounds of flour, 900,000 pounds of rice, 200,000 pounds of codfish, 200 cases of chicken and beef soups, 100 cases of evaporated cream, 100 cases of condensed milk, 5000 pairs of trousers, 6000 pairs of shoes, 20,000 pairs of khaki trousers, 2000 pairs of barrack shoes, 2000 blouses, 1000 tents, 2000 pairs of balbriggan drawers, 4000 balbriggan shirts, 500 summer coats.

In addition there are large quantities of coffee, tea, sugar, vinegar, pepper and in the way of clothing a large amount of calico, under garments, etc.

There is $5000 worth of medicine in the cargo and three army surgeons, Dr. James Reilly, Dr. Bower and Dr. Clayton will accompany the party. They take along a plentiful supply of surgical instruments.

THE POPE CONTRIBUTES.

Rome, May 14.—The pope has contributed 20,000 lire to the fund being raised for relief of the sufferers from the Martinique disaster.

DR. AMES TO RETIRE.

Minneapolis Mayor Will Live In West Baden.

Minneapolis, May 14.—Dr. A. A. Ames, mayor of Minneapolis, is going to retire from politics.

He will become manager of a new hotel at West Baden, Ind., at a salary of $8000 a year.

Dr. Amer will leave in a few days for West Baden, where he will complete the deal. It will probably not become effective until his term as mayor expires in the fall.

DIFFENBAUGH INSANE.

Butte, Mont., May 14.—A special to the Miner from Helena says that J. A. Diffenbaugh, prominent in Masonic and Elk circles, has been adjudged insane. He was past exalted ruler of the Elks of Baltimore. Recently Mr. Diffenbaugh, while in a fit of insanity, attempted to commit suicide, cutting his throat and wrists with a razor.

ONE STRIKE SETTLED.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 14.—The strike of structural iron workers of the American Bridge company was settled here today on a compromise of 47½ cents per hour for an 8-hour day. The men struck for 50 cents per hour.

ERUPTION CONTINUES

Soufriere Vomiting Forth Fire and Smoke.

Northern Part of St. Vincent a Mass of Flame.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, Tuesday, May 13.—The Soufriere volcano on the island of St. Vincent is still in destructive eruption. A terrific cannonade can be heard 100 miles away. The reports are followed by columns of smoke, rising miles in the air. Immense balls of colored fire also issue from the crater. Lightning is playing fiercely in the upper sky, and the whole northern part of the island is one mass of traveling flame. It is impossible to reach the burning district by land or sea and there are no means of estimating the destruction wrought to life and property.

Kingstown, the capital of St. Vincent, is still safe, though showers of ashes and pebbles are continually falling down.

The volcano itself is invisible.

AFFAIRS MUCH WORSE

At St. Vincent Than Had Been Reported.

London, May 14.—The governor of the Windward islands, Sir Robert Llewelyn, telegraphs to the colonial office from the island of St. Vincent, under date of Tuesday, May 13, as follows:

"I arrived yesterday and found the state of affairs much worse than stated. The administrators reports show that the country on the east coast, between Robin Rock and Georgetown, was apparently struck and devastated in a manner similar to that which destroyed St. Pierre, and I fear that practically all living things in that radius were killed. Probably 1600 persons lost their lives. The exact number will never be known. Managers and owners of the estates, with their families, and several of the better class of people have been killed. A thousand bodies have been found and buried. One hundred and sixty persons are in the hospital at Georgetown. Probably only six of this number will recover.

"The details of the disaster are too harrowing for description.

"I got at St. Luica a coasting steamer which is running up and down the leeward coast with water and provisions. Twenty-two hundred persons have received relief.

"I have asked for medical officers from Trinidad and Grenada. All the neighboring British colonies are assisting generously. Every effort is being made to grapple with the awful calamity.

"All the best sugar farms are destroyed and the cattle are dead.

"The eruption continues, but is apparently moderating.

"All the officers and residents are cooperating with me. The ladies are making clothing."

FEARFUL EFFORTS

Of Soufriere to Relieve Itself of Interior Pressure.

New York, May 14.—In a dispatch from its correspondent on the island of St. Vincent, B. W. I., the Herald says: Admonitory rumblings and earthquakes in the vicinity of Soufriere came two weeks ago.

On Monday, May 5, the lake in the old crater became greatly disturbed. On Tuesday, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the mountain began a series of volcanic efforts. Severe earthquakes accompanied these terrible noises and detonations succeeded quickly. At 7 o'clock in the evening an immense column of steam issued from the crater and lasted until midnight.

Terrific explosions followed on Wednesday morning, and at 7 o'clock there was another sudden violent escape of steam. This ascended for three hours, when other material was ejected.

At noon three craters appeared to open and began to vomit lava. Six streams at once ran down the sides of the mountain, making an awful scene.

The mountain labored heavily for half an hour after the appearance of the lava. Fire flashed around the edges of the craters, and there were tremendous detonations in succession, rapidly merging into a continuous roar.

This lasted thorugh Wednesday night and until Friday morning. The thunderings of the volcana were heard throughout the Caribbean sea.

The eruption began Wednesday. A huge cloud in a dark and dense column, charged with volcanic matter, rose high above the mountain top. Darkness like midnight descended, and the sulphurous air was laden with fine dust.

A brief rain followed a rain of ashes and stones. There were bright flashes, numerous and marvellously rapid. These, with thunderings, the mountain shocks, the earthquake roar, the lava and falling stones, created a scene of horror.

Large areas of cultivation have been buried beneath the volcanic matter. On the Windward coast seven plantations are totally destroyed. Nothing green is visible.

Sixteen hundred and twenty deaths are already reported. There the 167 cases in the hospitals at Georgetown under treatment. The deaths have been caused chiefly by suffocation by the sulphurious gases, lightning and burning lava masses. Few of the cases in the hospitals are likely to recover. The crew of H. M. S. Indefatigable buried thirty peasants found dead on the Owia estate, north of Soufriere.

A new crater is reported formed on the Richmond estate near the seashore.

The country districts on the Windward coast are littered with dead bodies.

Kingstown, the capital, and the whole population are safe. There have been no accidents of deaths. Clouds of dust are blowing over the city. The Royal Mail steamer Wear is transporting food and water to the Leeward coasts; sailing vessels proceed to the Windward coast on the same errand. Doctors and nurses have gone to the scene of distress. The majority of the corpses being found are covered with ashes, decomposed and hardly approachable. The dead are being buried in trenches, thirty in each.

CONFERENCE

For Adjusting Labor Difficulties Continues at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Conferences between the Bricklayers' union and the bricklaying contractors and the Carpenters' union and the contracting carpenters were continued today. Committees of the masons' helpers and of the hoisting engineers are waiting until the bricklayers and carpenters have finished, so that the others may confer with the contractors.

The iron workers and steamfitters are anxious to get into conference and do not want to wait but not more than two sets of committees can be accommodated at the Builders' exchange at the same time. A stenographer attends each conference. It was said at the Builders' exchange today that men from out of town are still responding to the advertisements for mechanics at St. Paul. Union men say that all of these mechanics are being captured by union pickets and sent away.

JOINT INSPECTION

Of Cars to Be Maintained at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Interchange of freight traffic between the lines entering St. Paul and Minneapolis is to be facilitated by a system of joint inspection of cars, modeled on the plan which has been unusually successful at the Kansas City terminals. The interested lines have agreed on the main features and joint inspectors will be appointed within a few weeks.

The executive committee of the Northwest Railroad club yesterday considered rules of joint inspection formulated for use in St. Paul and Minneapolis. Their work will be submitted for approval of the Twin City lines, after which the system will be installed.

CASUALTY LIST GROWS

Number of Dead In the Naphtha Disaster Will Probably Reach Forty---Over Three Hundred and Fifty Injured.

Pittsburg, May 14.—The casualty list resulting from Monday's disaster at Sheraden, continues to grow. Two deaths were reported this morning. Albert Berry, aged 10 years, and Conrad Fick, aged 43 years, swelling the death list to twenty-six. It is believed this will be increased to forty before the last reports are received from the hospitals and homes. Dr. McCurdy, surgeon of the Pittsburg division of the Pan-Handle Railroad company, says that of those remaining in hospitals he fears from twelve to fifteen will die. Several are not expected to survive the day.

The number of injured is constantly increasing and the known list now exceeds 350. Many, however, are not serious. Six houses were totally destroyed by the explosions and it is estimated that 1500 other buildings were damaged. The property loss is placed at $175,000.

Traces of the wreck in the Pan Handle yards at Sheraden are rapidly disappearing and by tonight there will be practically no marks of the calamity of Monday evening. Still it will be weeks before the last evidences of the fury of the fire will be wiped out as houses in the vicinity, trees and even grass showing where the blazing oil fell.

An official investigation into the cause of the explosion will be made by officials of the Pan Handle company.

CASE ARGUED.

Controversy Over Taxation of Logging Railway Heard.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The controversy whether the logging railway in Carlton county, assessed at $30,000 and owned by the Mitchell & McClure Lumber company, of Duluth, shall be assessed in Carlton or St. Louis counties was argued yesterday before the state supreme court. St. Louis county claims the taxes because the headquarters is in Duluth, and Carlton county contends that it has the right to the taxes.

Traffic Men Discussed the Differential For Flour Export.

All But One Eastern Line Against the Proposition.

Lumber Rates to South and Southwest Raised Two Cents.

As far as can be learned here, none of the local representatives of the lake and rail lines have been advised of the results of yesterday's traffic meeting in Chicago. A Herald dispatch from Chicago says, however, that the various lines were unable to agree. It is reported that all but one Eastern line were against the proposition of giving the millers a differential for export flour. It is not known here what Eastern line is the exception, but it is suspected that it is the Baltimore & Ohio, for that line has already joined with the Northern Steamship company in a tariff on the 2½-cent differential basis from both Duluth and Minneapolis. It has until had none of the flour business, because the bar in front of Fairport harbor, where its lake terminals are located, has prevented heavily-laden boats from entering that port until recently.

At yesterday's meeting in Chicago all the lines represented in the lake and rail route were represented. The meeting was addressed by B. A. Eckrat, president of the Millers' National Federation, who declared that it would soon be impossible to export a barrel of flour to England. He claimed the railroad and English war tax differential against flour and in favor of wheat was equal to 8 cents a barrel.

The millers claim that flour can be loaded almost as cheaply as wheat and does not cost any more to transport. Their position is that the railroads and lake lines have been rutty in not seeking and finding a mechanical method of handling flour in both barrels and sacks. Their position is that it is just a feasible to handle packages of flour in this way, instead of handling each package by hand, as it is to handle boxes or bales of merchandise in the large jobbing houses by machinery.

It is understood that the millers proposed yesterday that the present differential against export flour be overcome by an advance in the tariff on export wheat, so that one would be on the same basis as the other. This proposed solution of the question is said to have been rejected by the Trunk and Central association territory, and practically all the lake lines.

The Milwaukee road, which was made the object of the hunt of yesterday's assault by the Eastern lines, stood its ground and refused to withdraw its rate of 20½ cents on export flour from Minneapolis. The Northern Steamship was re-enforcing its position, with the same rate out of Minneapolis, and 15½ cents out of Duluth.

Two committees on the question are said to have been appointed at yesterday's meeting. One reported in favor of maintaining the Milwaukee's position for a differential, and the other opposed it. The result was that the meeting failed yesterday to come to any agreement. It is understood that the other Western and Northern lines are standing pat with the Milwaukee and Northern Steamship company in the matter.

As long as one line succeeds in getting Eastern connections to maintain a low rate, it is considered impossible for the rest of the trunk lines to get any business on a higher rate. Unless they can force the one Eastern connection to recede from its protection of the differential rate, therefore, the trunk lines will have to acknowledge it or get no business.

HIGHER LUMBER RATES.

Two Cents Advance to South and Southwest.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lumber interests of Minneapolis and of the state at large are expected to protest when they learn that rates on lumber have been advanced 2 cents higher than ever before charged to Missouri and Ohio points. A quiet meeting of the executive officers of the Western Freight association, embracing all lines west of Chicago except the Northern Pacific and Great Northern, has been held and an advance of rates from all points in Minnesota to Chicago and all points west as far as Kansas City and St. Louis ordered.

This will not affect the 10-cent tariff from Duluth to Chicago, which was conceived with a view to meeting water competition. But it does increase the rate from Duluth to Minneapolis on all Southern and Southwestern shipments from 5 to 7 cents, thus adding 2 cents to the through tariffs to outside territory. At the time the interstate commerce commission showed activity and all special agreements were cancelled, Minneapolis-Duluth and Minneapolis-Chicago lines, which had been operating under secret tariffs to shippers, published them. No previous published tariffs made proportionate rates on the low through tariffs for intermediate points, however. The publication of the secret rates threatened to disrupt the Northwestern rate situation, and it was to avoid this that the roads claim to have advanced the lumber rates.

POLICE CONVENTION.

Chief Troyer Finds Louisville a Great Place.

Chief Troyer, of the police department, returned to Duluth this morning after attending the international convention of chiefs of police in Louisville.

He says the convention was very interesting, the chiefs receiving instruction in their duties from some of the greatest police authorities in the land. The meetings throughout were well attended and included about 200 men at the heads of police departments in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

"Louisville will always be associated in my mind with splendid Southern hospitality," said the chief today. "They tell a story down there about a man from the North that spent two days in Kentucky and became a colonel. He died shortly afterward and meeting St. Peter at the gates asked if a certain Col. Smith, of Kentucky, was in heaven.

"'No!'" replied St. Peter. "People from Kentucky don't come here."

"'Well, I don't blame them for wanting to stay at home. I was in Kentuck once myself,' said the Northerner."

"That is about the way I felt when leaving Louisville," continued Mr. Troyer.

PURE FOOD LAWS ENFORCED

More Grocers Fined For Selling Alum Baking Powder.

The St. Louis papers report several more grocers brought to trial upon the charge of selling baking powder containing alum in violation of the law. The parties were all convicted and each fined $100.

Several baking powders which have been found by analysis to contain alum have been offered in this market. They are called

There are several good powders on the market; housekeepers will help the authorities in their efforts to promote the sale of pure and wholesome food, if when buying baking powder they will insist upon having some one of the well known brands of cream of tartar powders, which are pure and healthful beyond a doubt.

BACK TO EUROPE.

Madame Nevada Will Go There Very Soon.

Mme. Nevada Palmer, the singer, and her husband and manager, Dr. Palmer, will leave this afternoon for Michigan, whence they go to New York and sail thence on a French liner for Paris. Mme. Nevada has just about concluded this season's engagements and has been registered at the Spalding since Monday night's concert. She is a charming woman and talks entertainingly and vivaciously of her home in Paris and of her plans for the summer, which include the witnessing of King Edward's coronation. The madame was the last singer to appear before the late Queen Victoria, and she has had the honor to meet the present king socially on numerous occasions prior to his accession to the throne.

"The last time I met the king," said Mme. Nevada today, "was on a Fourth of July. He had been out to a ball the night before and was plainly all worn out. Still he greeted all with his inevitable charm of manner which fascinates all that meet him.

"I have made my home in Paris for eighteen years, and religiously at the close of every season we sail back, though I am such a poor sailor that I have to take to my berth as soon as I go aboard. We are especially anxious to get back now, for our little girl has been very ill with typhoid fever, which seems to have had a considerable run on the continent this season."

BEEF TRUST

Methods Are Investigated By Indianapolis Grand Jury.

Indianapolis, May 14.—A federal grand jury in charge of District Attorney Keating began an investigation today of the methods of the beef trust in Indianapolis. Representatives of the Chicago packing houses and local concerns were summoned. It is understood that the investigation is the result not of official instructions from Washington, but of a suggestion of Attorney General Knox, who asked that all evidence possible be obtained for use in the federal suit against the trust. District Attorney Keating declined to give out any information concerning his part of the inquiry.

DOES NOT WANT IT

W. B. Henderson Not a Candidate For Chief of Police.

Claims Ability and Experience But Does Not Desire It.

Permitted His Name to Be Presented to the Mayor.

W. B. Henderson, president of the Garfield Republican club, declares with emphatic positiveness that he will not accept the office of chief of police, if tendered him.

It has been generally understood for several days past that prominent Republican politicians and members of the Garfield Republican club were urging his selection. In an interview today, Mr. Henderson said:

"I am not a candidate for chief of police, never was and never will be. Friends have urged me to be a candidate, but I have told them that I cannot consider the proposition for a moment.

"It is true that I permitted my name to be presented to the mayor along with three or four others, but I did so simply to find out whether or not the mayor was a man of honor.

"What is more of it, the Garfield Republican club does not work to get a man in office till he is the nominee of the party. As soon as the nominations are made, then we work, but the club is not pushing any particular person for the office of chief of police.

"In last evening's paper I noticed that a prominent West Superior street business man said that it was necessary to keep the office of chief of police out of politics in order to get good service. If this statement was given out as a reflection on myself, I merely wish to state that I served for a number of years on the Winnipeg police force and think that I know as much about police duties as any man connected with the Duluth department at present, not barring Mr. Troyer."

Mr. Henderson's statements were backed by other Republican politicians of prominence, many of whom were in favor of the retention of the present acting chief. Mr. Henderson does not say what he means by the statement that he wished to find out if the mayor "was a man of honor."

UNHEALTHY.

Much Plague and Other Diseases at Hong Kong.

Victoria, B. C., May 14.—Reports from Hong Kong received through the arrival of the steamer Empress of India indicate the health conditions of Hong Kong to be in a threatening state. The India left there April 22. During the two previous days three fresh cases of plague were reported in the colony, two of the victims being Chinese. The third was not specified as to nationality. This brings the total for the year up to eighteen cases. The cases of communicable disease in the colony for the week prior to the sailing of the India were: Plague, 7, with 6 deaths; cholera, 24, with 11 deaths; enteric fever, 1 fatal case; puerperal fever, 1 fatal case; smallpox, 4, with two deaths.

News was also brought that Macao had been declared an infected port, twelve cases of plague having been located there since the beginning of the year.

A Moukden dispatch says that a letter from Harbin reports the arrival of 50,000 Russian troops who have been brought over from the Russian side of the Amur river, en route for Port Arthur. These troops were dispatched at the rate of 1000 odd men daily, and the ammunition brought by them filled some eight or more freight cars. The rumor at the time in Harbin was that Russia was going to war with Japan and Great Britain and that 50,000 more men were to reach Harbin in a fortnight.

MEMORIAL BUILDING

Tendered to the Winona, Ind., Agricultural School.

Warsaw, Ind., May 14.—The Moody memorial building at Winona, erected by the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, has been tendered by him to the Winona Agricultural and Technical school, which is to open Sept. 1. The Patrons of Husbandry, of Indiana, will erect a building on the ground in memory of the late Governor Mount, and it will be located by the agricultural department of the school. Efforts are making to tion. The school is to be inter-denomisecure a government experiment stanational, and it is said enough funds have already been pledged to pay the faculty for five years.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Recommended For Dennis Who Killed Oscar Miller.

Clarinda, Iowa, May 14.—A jury last night found Edward Dennis guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing, Dec. 18 last, of Oscar M. Miller, and recommended life imprisonment. Miller was a workingman, who was found dead in the sand house of the Wabash railroad, his head being badly crushed. Dennis and two companions, Eugene Mason and Wesley Irwin, were arrested charged with the crime. The trials of Mason and Irwin began today.

PREFERRED DEATH.

St. Paul, May 14.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: Rather than serve a twelve years' sentence in the penitentiary imposed on conviction of a charge of burglary, Charles Fisher committed suicide in the Missoula jail yesterday by taking morphine. It is believed his right name is Jack Burton and that he once served time in Minnesota.

WHY? IS ELECTRIC LIGHT BEST

Because it is healthy, clean, pure and brilliant.

HEALTHY— It has no odor. Professor Thompson states that one cubic foot of gas consumes as much oxygen as four adults.

CLEAN— It causes no discoloration of furnishings and decorations in homes.

SAFE— As electric bell work, no danger of suffocation.

CHEAP— By using a little care in turning off lights when not in use it is cheaper than any other illuminant.

London, May 14.—A dispatch from Bangoun, British Burmah, says a lifeboat belonging to the British steamer Camorta, overdue at that port, from Madras, has been picked up in the bay of Bengal.

The Camorta was reported to have had 650 passengers on board.

JUDGE IS MERCIFUL

Herbert Craig Pleads Guilty to Forging Money Order Endorsement.

Sentence Passed But Suspended During His Good Behavior.

Milo D. Jones, Letter Carrier, Indicted and Pleads Not Guilty.

The federal grand jury, which has been working since yesterday morning, returned its first batch of indictments in United States district court this afternoon. Six true bills were returned and the grand jury again went into session to complete its work. Assistant United States District Attorney Dickson said this noon that the grand jury will probably finish its work by noon tomorrow.

A bill was returned against Herbert Craig, who was charged with forging the name of Mrs. Eva Reynoldson and collecting a money order for $25. When arraigned this afternoon, Craig entered a plea of guilty. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence should not be passed by the court, he replied that he realizes the enormity of his offense, but in view of the seven months that he has already spent in the county jail, he asked for clemency.

Judge Shiras referred to the seriousness of the offense by the severe penalty provided for it and sentenced Craig to hard labor at Stillwater for a period of eighteen months. The court, however, suspended execution of the sentence during the good behavior of the young man and stated that in doing so he exercised the prerogative after talking the matter over with Craig's friends. The court warned the defendant to shun all appearances of evil in the future and assert his manhood.

A bill was returned against Milo D. Jones, the former letter carrier, who is charged with tampering with registered letters. Jones, when arraigned, pleaded not guilty. His trial will take place during the present term of district court. Clarence B. Miller will be his legal representative.

Sylvester A. West, who is known as "Nigger" West, against whom a true bill was found on the charge of selling alcohol to Joe and Maggie Blair, of the Fond du Lac Indian reservation, pleaded guilty. Sentence was reserved.

Indictments were found against Oliver Beauregard, of Cass Lake, who is charged with selling liquor to Indians, on two counts. He pleaded not guilty. John Belonga and Dan Tucker, two Cass Lake Indians, were indicted for taking whisky on the reservation in March. When arraigned, both pleaded guilty.

This morning the case of the United States of America against James H. Walker, for selling liquor without a government license, was nolled. Walker was indicted last fall for smuggling liquor from Canada on one of the north shore boats, and with selling it without a license. He was convicted of the first charge and is now serving a year's sentence at Stillwater.

There was nothing doing in United States circuit court this morning, and Judge Shiras took occasion to bestow a mild roast on the attorneys for not having their cases ready. After several cases had been called and answer made that the attorneys were not ready, Judge Shiras said:

"Here we are on the second day of the term and no cases ready. The jury is excused until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the calendar will be called again. If there is no response, the cases will be disposed of in a manner that may not be satisfactory to the attorneys."

Decrees to remand the two cases of the Duluth Match company to the state court were filed this morning in circuit court, and Michael C. Hoinhan was granted full citizenship papers.

This afternoon the personal injury case of George Page against the Northern Pacific Railway company is being started in United States circuit court, a jury being impanelled shortly before 3 o'clock.

It was expected that the damage suit of the Edward Hines Lumber company against Comstock Bros. would be tried first, but as the case was the first on the calendar for trial this morning and was not ready, the court put it at the foot of the calendar, although all the parties were ready this afternoon.

Yesterday afternoon in United States circuit court a demurrer was sustained in the case of Philip Blais against the United States of America, and leave was granted the plaintiff to prepare and file an amended complaint within thirty days from date.

An Invited Guest.

Mayor Hugo, who is a member of the French-American Literary circle, with headquarters at New York City, has received an invitation to be present at the unveiling at Washington of a statue of Rochambeau, whose place in the history of the revolution is thoroughly well known to every student of American history. There will be present at that time, members of the Rochambeau and Lafayette families, representatives coming directly from France, representatives of the French government, coming by special man-of-war, as well as various officials of this country—President Roosevelt and others. The event promises to be one of unusual interest; and while Mayor Hugo has not fully made up his mind as to whether or not he can accept the invitation, it is under consideration.

PROWLERS

Make Their Appearance In Several Parts of the City.

A daylight house prowler was discovered working in front and back doors in the vicinity of Sixth avenue west and fourth street today.

He went to a number of front doors and rang the bell. If the call was responded to he would ask if some fictitious person lived there, but if the house inside was still he tried to open doors and windows.

A woman in the neighborhood noticed the man and telephoned to police headquarters. Sergt. Sam Thompson made an investigation but could not find any person.

About an hour after the prowler was seen on Fourth street, a bicycle was stolen from 1413 West Michigan street, while the woman of the house was out buying some milk. Up to a late hour this afternoon the police had not located the prowler.

George Hicks and William Fitzgerald did some lively mixing in a West Superior street saloon last evening, and later both slept in the police station. Hicks is a colored porter, and Fitzgerald, who had been reading press dispatches from the Los Angeles convention, recently objected to his color. The porter was allowed to go free, and Fitzgerald was assessed $10 and costs.

A man named Hamm, who is 60 years of age and cannot speak a word of English, was robbed of $7.20 in a Lake avenue lodging house last night. He is being cared for at police headquarters.

Frank Turner, a woodsman, was arrested on the Bowery this morning charged with stealing the currency and small change of another woodsman with whom he slept last night. The loss amounted to about $12. Turner denies the charge.

UNDER LEASE.

Local Mills Not Affected By Transfer Mentioned Today.

L. R. Hurd, president of the Duluth-Superior Milling company, says that the transfer of milling property formerly owned by the United States Flour Milling company to the Standard Milling company, which is reported in this morning's telegraphic reports, does not affect the control or probable operation of the flour mills here and at Superior. Mr. Hurd says that all that he knows about the transfer is that the title to the properties passed on the first of the present month.

As far as the local milling properties are concerned, they are held by the Duluth-Superior Milling company under long-term leases. The transfer, therefore, will have no bearing on the situation here, at least until the expiration of the leases.

Mr. Hurd says he expects to move here from Superior about the last of June. He has taken the E. P. Alexander house for the summer.

EASTERN STAR.

Meeting of the Grand Chapter at St. Paul.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—More than 500 members of the Order of the Eastern Star have assembled in St. Paul for the session of the grand chapter, held today and tomorrow, at Masonic Temple. All of the 147 lodges in Minnesota are represented, many by the full quota of three delegates, and others by but one or two delegates. Nearly all the worthy matrons of the state are here as exofficio delegates and a large number of the worthy patrons are in attendance in a like capacity.

The grand lodge was organized with the following officers: Mrs. Carrie McCauley, McCauleyville, worthy grand matron; A. D. Countryman, Appleton, worthy grand patron; Mrs. Harriet E. Moyer, Montevideo, associate grand matron; Wilford C. Wilson, Minneapolis, associate grand patron; Mrs. Mary C. Taylor, Minneapolis, grand secretary; Mrs. Sarah Milham, St. Paul, grand treasurer; Mrs. Lizzie Thomas, Minneapolis, grand conductress; Mrs. Edyth H. Simons, Cloquet, grand chaplain; Mrs. Rosa J. Ross, Minneapolis, grand marshal; Mrs. Flora Adams Pattee, St. Paul, grand lecturer; Mrs. Alice French, Ortonville, grand Adah; Mrs. Mattie Wruck, Winona, grand Ruth; Mrs. Love Braley, Crookston, grand Esther; Mrs. Frances Glover, Wells, Grand Martha; Mrs. Laura W. Warner, Anoka, grand Electa; Mrs. Lucy Behnke, New Ulm, grand warder; W. R. Edwards, St. Paul, grand sentinel; Mrs. Emily Czelkowitz, St. Paul, grand organist.

The morning was chiefly occupied with the report of the credential committee and roll call.

Mrs. Carrie B. Campbell, of Ivanhoe chapter, St. Paul, delivered the address of welcome and Mrs. Harriet G. Moyer, of Montevideo, associate grand matron, responded for the grand officers and delegates.

The most important features of the day were the address of the grand matron, Mrs. McCauley, and the address of the grand secretary, Mrs. Taylor.

Taxes Coming In.

The collections of real estate taxes are beginning to come in at a lively rate at the office of the county treasurer. The penalties go into effect June 1. Many are stepping up to the captain's office to settle. Beginning tomorrow night and continuing until the rush is over the force in the treasurer's office will work until 9:30 o'clock each evening instead of 6 o'clock. The office will only be kept open until 6 o'clock p. m., however.

PERSONALS.

W. E. Black and family of Fosston, were in Duluth yesterday on their way to Elmwood, Ont. Mr. Black is city clerk of Fosston.

Mrs. Victor Hugo, of St. Louis, is in the city for an extended visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Spear, of Marquette, are guests at the Spalding.

E. O. Balzell, the Cloquet lumberman, took this afternoon's Eastern Minnesota for St. Paul.

W. L. Jenks and Robert H. Jenks, the Port Huron and Cleveland shipbuilders and vesselmen, arrived at the Spalding this morning.

Thomas Gibson will leave on the South Shore this evening for a trip to Montreal.

J. G. Lawton, of Hibbing, superintendent of the Croxton mine, is in the city today.

George C. Stone will take the Fast Mail this afternoon for Chicago.

S. W. Brace, of Ashland, is a guest at the St. Louis.

A. W. Comstock, of Detroit, and W. B. Comstock, of Algonquin, are at the Spalding. They are well known lumbermen, who are interested in litigation now proceeding in federal court here.

J. P. Morrow will go to Ashland this afternoon.

George S. Burtis, of Munising, Mich., is at the Spalding. He was formerly in the sawmill business at Marquette.

John M. Schwartz, junior partner of the railroad contracting firm of A. Guthrie & Co., of St. Paul, was in the city today.

Frank B. Kellogg, the St. Paul railway attorney, was in the city yesterday.

Attorney M. O. Aubolec, of Two Harbors, is at the St. Louis.

A. R. Pike, of Chicago, a soda fountain crack, has arrived to take a position with Victor Huot.

Mrs. J. H. McFadzean has returned from an Eastern visit.

Bert Leston Taylor, whose "Line-o'-Type" column in the Chicago Tribune has made him famous, will be in Duluth in a few days on his way down the north shore. He has been ill, and has been granted a vacation until August, which, after getting a rest in the North Wisconsin woods, he will spend down the shore.

M. L. Derrig of the Moorcroft Oil Co., left yesterday morning for Houghton, Hancock, and other points in Upper Michigan. He will be absent about ten days.

INVOLVES RAISED CHECK.

Suit to Recover Amount Secured on Raise.

A raised check is involved in a suit on trial in district court today, the issue being the question of who is to stand the loss on it.

The Cloquet Tie and Post company is suing Daniel Horgan to recover $72. The company issued a check for $8, and somebody raised it to $80. The defendant got stuck with the check without knowing it and passed it on. It came back to the company, which stood the difference, $72. Now it is suing Mr. Horgan for the amount. William B. Phelps appears for the company and M. H. McMahon for the defendant. The case was taken up before Judge Cant in district court this morning and it was still on trial this afternoon.

The case of Samuel Thompson against John Runquist, to recover $15,000 damages for personal injuries, was still on trial this afternoon before Judge Dibell in room No. 3.

Yesterday afternoon the jury in the case of Selma Olson against the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company and the Minnesota & North Wisconsin railroad returned a verdict of 453 against the road, the case having been dismissed as against the lumber company because it was shown that it did not own the road.

The road entered upon the plaintiff's land without first condemning a right of-way, and the plaintiff claimed that it did damages amounting to $550. Claiming that the trespass was willful she sued for treble damages, or $1650. The jury found the actual damages to be $151, and gave treble damages, or $453.

A "BLIND PIGGER."

John Wallace Indicted By Grand Jury.

John Wallace was arraigned before Judge Ensign in district court this morning on a bench warrant charging him with selling liquor without a license. There are two indictments against him, and they were among those that were withheld when they were returned because the defendants were not in custody.

Wallace is accused of selling two pints of whisky at the village of Mesaba, May 1, without first having obtained a license to sell. He is accused of selling a pint to each of two men, and there is an indictment for each pint.

Post & LeTourneau, accused of having an indecent picture machine in their saloon, pleaded not guilty.

Anton Hribar, charged with assault in the second degree, entered a plea of guilty.

Michael J. Contos, a Greek, is on trial for a crime against nature. The case went to the jury this afternoon.

Sale Goes on Record.

Joshua W. Rhodes, of Pittsburg, has purchased mining lands in section 10, 58-18, for $60,000, several deeds making the conveyance having been filed this morning in the office of the register of deeds. The property includes the n½ of the ne¼, the sw¼ of the e¼ and the nw¼ of the se¼ of section 10.

Among those who made the sale are T. A. Merritt, the Bellitton Mountain Iron company and F. S. Brunt, of Pittsburg.

TWO YEARS FOR ROBBERY.

St. Paul, May 14.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: J. W. Francis, who robbed the postoffice at Blair, Trempeleau county, last November, securing $340 cash and $80 in stamps, and who recently made a desperate attempt to escape from jail, was today sent to the Stillwater prison for two years, from the federal court. He pleaded guilty.

MUST EAT SUGAR.

Why People Have a Strong Appetite That Way.

When food is properly digested and absorbed into the system diabetes, dyspepsia and such diseases do not occur, and if, after these diseases have attacked the stomach and kidneys, the right kind of food is used, it will generally cure unless the disease has made too much progress.

A merchant in Young, O., E. D. Leedom, says: "Last August, when I was in miserable health, I was visiting at my daughter's up in Indiana. She prepared Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food for me, the first I ever tasted.

I had diabetes and dyspepsia, with sour stomach from almost everything I ate. Of course the doctor kept me from eating sugar, but I had an almost ungovernable appetite for it. After I had been using Grape-Nuts every day for a short time my appetite for sugar was satisfied. I got the Grape Sugar from the food and it agreed with me perfectly.

My dyspepsia left and I began to sleep well at night. I have kept up the use of Grape-Nuts and feel like a new man all over. I liked it so much and it agreed with me so well that I said nothing to the doctor for fear he might make me stop it as he had most everything I tried to eat, but one day I told him it was the food I as using that improved me so much. He asked what it was, and when I told him 'Grape-Nuts,' he said there was no better food made. You are at liberty to make us of any part of this letter you desire, for I am more than grateful for the good the food has done me.."

FEW BOATS.

Ore Hauling Roads Finding It Difficult to Get Vessels.

Aside from the Duluth & Iron Range which had a fair supply of boats late yesterday and today, the ore-hauling roads are, therefore, handling less ore than they would like to move.

The Duluth & Iron Range will be in worse shape after today for a couple of days at least. It has but out boat scheduled to load tomorrow and but one for the day after tomorrow.

Nobody is looking for a total cessation of operations. Dockmen, vesselmen and everybody interested in the ore business have firm faith in the ability of vessels to handle themselves in particularly all harbors, but the result of getting about without tugs will be that the dispatch will be much slower, and in all probability many of the consorts will be tied up if the tug strike continues.

CARNEGIE

Says He Is a Bargain Maker, Not a Philanthropist.

London, May 14.—The freedom of the Plumbers' company was presented to Andrew Carnegie today at the Guild hall in a valuable casket of various metals. Replying to the presentation address, Mr. Carnegie declared he thought it more difficult to conscientiously distribute wealth than to accumulate it.

"It is the swimming tenth and not the submerged tenth which we can greatly benefit," said he. Any satisfaction which he had derived from his gifts arose from what he had induced individuals and communities to give.

"I think it will be found," he added, "that far from being a philanthropist, I am engaged in making the best bargains of my life. For instance, when New York had been given over £1,000,000 for seventy-two libraries, I succeeded in getting a pledge from her that she would furnish sites and maintain these libraries forever. Her investment (I hope this may not go across the Atlantic to alarm her) is greater than mine. This is not philanthropy. It is a clever stroke of business. I am open to propositions of a similar character from cities in any part of the English-speaking world."

Mr. Carnegie gave numerous instances of how, through the investive genius of Great Britain, her "giant child America owes her present position," adding that all the English could ever learn from America never could be compared with what America had received from England.

Dealing with international relations, Mr. Carnegie said he rejoiced to say that never in his day had the American people and government been so lovingly inclined towards the old home as at present, and never had the patriotism of the race, the coming force in international affairs, revealed itself so clearly. He concluded with saying that the possibility of the English-speaking peoples killing each other on the plea of civilized warfare was banished, and that in the event of a difference, "no government on either side of the Atlantic could resist the offer of the other of arbitration, and it can scarcely be believed that a serious quarrel can ever arise when that offer will not be made by one or the other."

SUBSTANTIAL SYMPATHY.

Paris, May 14.—Former President Kruger has sent a message of condolence to President Loubet in which he says that although handicapped by circumstances, he desires to emphasize his sympathy by contributing 600 francs toward the Martinique fund.

BUCKMAN A CANDIDATE.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senator Buckman, of Little Falls, at the office of the secretary of state today, filed the declaration of his candidacy for the Republican congressional nomination in the Sixth district.

BILLS TO BE ABANDONED.

Opposition Against Increasing Pay of Letter Carriers.

Washington, May 14.—The house committee on postoffices and post roads has practically decided to abandon further consideration of the bills pending before congress for the increase of pay of letter carriers, postoffice clerks and railway mail clerks.

Chairman Loud, of the committee, has been vigorously opposed to any and all of the bills and the majority of the committee has finally agreed to his view of the situation. The postoffice appropriation bill provided for an increase in the pay of railway mail clerks, which will increase the pay of 3000 or 4000 employes in the department. The strongest pressure has been brought to bear to secure an increase in the pay of letter carriers. Chairman Loud takes the position that the carriers are now paid well enough, the amount and character of their service being considered. He has estimated that any attempt to make the increases proposed would increase expenses of the department business several millions of dollars and that there is no warrant for this increased expense at this time. The members of the committee all feel that the postoffice clerks should be the next to receive additional pay. It is a matter of record that their hours of work are longer and the character of their duties more exacting than those of the letter carriers and yet, as a rule, their pay is considerably less. The objection to the increase of the pay of the clerks is based upon the claim that the entire postal business is being readjusted by the growth of the rural free delivery system and that it would not be wise to make any revision of the pay of clerks until the rural service has been fully established.

FUNERAL OF STONE

At Watertown, Wis., Was Very Largely Attended.

Watertown, Wis., May 14.—The funeral of Lieutenant Governor Jesse M. Stone was held this afternoon in the presence of a large concourse of people from all parts of the state. Among those in attendance were the state officers and a large representation of the state legislative body. Schools were closed and business suspended during the hours of the funeral. The services at the Congregational church and at the grave were conducted under the auspices of the Masons, of which body Mr. Stone was a very prominent member. There was an abundance of floral offerings.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

St. Paul, May 14.—Hanson, Rasmussen & Co., wholesale and retail clothing dealers of Albert Lea, incorporated today with a capital stock of $30,000. The Shawmut Iron company, of Duluth, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state today. Capital stock $50,000.

COOLIDGE TO CHINA.

Washington, May 14.—John Gardner Coolidge, of Masachusetts, has been selected for appointment as first secretary of legation at Pekin, succeeding Mr. Squiers, who is to be United States minister to Cuba. Mr. Coolidge is a great grandson of Thomas Jefferson. He was vice consul of the United States at Pretoria when Adelbert Hay filled the office of consul.

WOULD BE STATE SENATOR.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Warren Potter, of Aitkin, today filed with the secretary of state his declaration of candidacy for the Republican nomination as state senator from the Fifty-second district, composed of Aitkin, Carlton, Cass and Itasca counties. Mr. Potter is a prominent merchant at Aitkin, and was for many years a member of the state board of equalization.

CRUEL TREATMENT

Alleged By Runaway From State Training School.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chairman Leavitt of the state board of control, went to Faribault via Red Wing today. He will see Superintendent Brown, of the state training school, but Judge Gould, of the board, said the consultation had nothing to do with the escape of boys from the school. W. E. Lee of the board went to Minneapolis to investigate the statements made by Clarence Fogelstrom, one of the runaways captured in that city. Fogelstrom declared that he had run away on account of the cruel treatment accorded the inmates of the school.

AMATEUR ATHLETICS

Will Be Held In New York July Fourth.

New York, May 14.—The athletic championship committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, consisting of J. E. Sullivan, New York, chairman; Dr. B. Merrill Hopkinson, Baltimore; W. H. Ligini, Milwaukee; Harry McMillan, Philadelphia; Barlow S. Weeks, New York, and Thomas F. Riley, Cambridgeport, has decided to hold the all-around championships of the Amateur Athletic union in this city on July 4 under the aspices of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association.

BOUGHT A RAILROAD.

New York, May 14.—W. L. Stow and E. S. Hooley, of this city, said today that they had acquired a controlling interest in the Des Moines & Fort Dodge railroad. They declined to say for what interests they acted. The road is leased to the Rock Island until 1905.

TELEPHONE COMPANY SOLD.

Cleveland, May 14.—The People's Telephone company, of Jackson, Mich., one of the Everett-Moore syndicate properties, has been sold to Grand Rapids, Mich., capitalists, who are largely interested in the Independent Telephone company in the latter city.

ATTENDING TO HIS FENCE.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Auditor S. G. Iverson left today for a trip through the northern part of the state in the interest of his candidacy for the Republican nomination as state auditor.

HIS EYES OPENED

H. G. Hays, Sleepy Eye Editor, Delighted With Duluth.

Duluthians Are Too Modest and Should Assert Themselves.

Reminiscence of Col. Sheehan---Dar S. Hall Here Attending Court.

"I have had my eyes opened as to the standing, importance and future prospects of Duluth," said H. G. Hays, editor of the Sleepy Eye Dispatch, one of the brightest country papers in the state, at the St. Louis hotel last night. Mr. Hays is here on the United States court petit jury, and it is his first visit in sixteen years to this city.

"I am just sending an article to my paper that expresses my surprise and pleasure at what I have seen. I am telling my people that if they give the same consideration to the claims of Duluth as they do to those of the Twin Cities, Duluth will double discount the twins in no time at all. You have a great city, and you are going to have a very much greater one. I cannot help admiring the pluck, perseverance and enterprise that have built up such a city in the face of such natural obstacles as these rocks and hills, even though aided by the unparalleled natural advantages of one of the finest harbors in the world and unequalled transportation facilities connecting the markets of the East and your own markets with the growing empire of the spring wheat territory.

"When I was here years ago my impressions were not of the best. We struck the city on one of the days that I understand visit you occasionally in the spring time—though this was June—when fur overcoats and ear muffs are not uncomfortable. We hurried in, and we hurried out, and we were glad to get out. I thought Duluth was the dreariest place I had ever struck. Now, what a change! You have built up a large city here, and you are forging right on ahead to make a much larger one. The future is yours, and I am confident that your people will reach out and take it.

"If I might venture to offer a suggestion, it would be that Duluth reach out farther down into the state, disregarding the seeming obstacle that the Twin Cities present, and let herself be known more. Only a very small percentage of the people of the state have any idea of what you have up here. I don't believe they have much more idea about Duluthians than they have about Lapianders. Once in a while when some one falls into the lake or something of that sort happens we hear of you, and we hear of you again when you want something of the legislature. It is simply because you are a little modest and let the Twins overshadow you when there is that within your city that will in time make it overshadow the Twins.

"I am principally interested just now in running a newspaper, which it is my ambition to make the best country paper in the state, and in electing Odin Halden state auditor. Mr. Halden's strength is growing every day, and with your strength from the northern part of the state and ours from the southern part we will land him in the capitol next November."

Just then the picturesque figure of Col. T. J. Sheehan, deputy United States marshal, one of the sterling characters in the history of Minnesota, approached. As everyone knows, Col. Sheehan is as full of frontier experiences as any man living, having taken part in seventeen battles, five of them Indian fights, including famous Fort Ridgeley. He bears his laurels modestly, however, and it is seldom that he speaks of his experiences except when those who know them broach the subject. He was introduced by Mr. Hays as the man who, with eighty stalwart assistants, stemmed the red tide of insurrection at Fort Ridgeley at the time of the New Ulm massacre.

"Had it not been for this man and his troops," said Mr. Hays, "those howling hordes of savages would have pressed on down the valley of the Minnesota, cleaning out the settlements and slaughtering thousands of defenseless settlers clear to St. Paul. Minnesota owes him a debt of gratitude, and when they remember that incident at Fort Ridgely, when the gallant little command held the blockhouse against 1400 red devils under Little Crow, with that little band as the sole defense of the women and children that clung to Col. Sheehan for protection, and as the sole bulwark that held back the murderous flood of Dakotas from the settlers of the valley, people should take their hats off to him. I never see him but I think of that incident. As a measure of self-protection he fired the buildings around the blockhouse, and it must have been a stirring picture to see those flaming houses, with hundreds of red fiends leaping through the smoke all around, with the steady rattle of rifles on every hand until the ammunition of the little band in the blockhouse gave out, and with the weeping and shrieking women in the blockhouse. It is a picture that stands out prominently in the panorama of the history of Minnesota, and here is its central figure," concluded Mr. Hays, as he placed his hand on the shoulder of the white haired veteran.

Col. Sheehan waved his hand deprecatingly, but his eyes glistened at the recollection.

"Aside from my part in it," he said, "that is as well put as I ever heard it, for it is true that if the Indians had not been stopped where they were the whole Minnesota valley must have gone up in flames.

"But of all the fights I ever saw, I think there was nothing that touched the one at Bear Island in 1898, when Maj. Wilkinson and three soldiers were killed by Old Bug and his Pillagers, for hot firing. We had our Krag-Jorgensons, and the Indians had Winchesters, and there was a real hail of bullets during the time that battle lasted."

Dar. S. Hall, of Renville county, former congressman from Minnesota, former chairman of the Chippewa Indian commission, and probable member of the state senate next term, is also in the city on the United States court jury duty.

"I am a plain farmer just now," he said when seen at the St. Louis last evening. "I have settled on my farm in Renville county, and I am busily working there, raising stock and other farm products, so I do not get much chance to hear much about anything else. Politics are not particularly active down our way yet. About the only good, lively scrap on the state ticket that seems likely now is on state auditorship. Your candidate, Mr. Halden, seems to have lots of friends down that way, though naturally that would be considered Iverson territory.

"I have not been in Duluth in two years, and I can notice a marked difference in conditions here. Things are looking lively and prosperous, and the streets are busy in a way I like to see." Mr. Hall is a candidate for the state senate from Renville county, in the Twenty-second district.

Another interesting figure among the men who the United States court has brought together here is George Walsh, of Cass Lake, a practicing attorney of that village. Mr. Walsh was the author of the bill that resulted in moving the territorial capital of Dakota from Yankton to Bismarck. It was smuggled into the legislature at Yankton in a very smooth manner in Mr. Walsh's pocket, and he came near being mobbed when the people found out what was going on.

"The moving of the territorial capital of Dakota was an interesting episode," said a man at the St. Louis last evening who knew the circumstances. "A commission of legislators went about among the many towns that were candidates for the capital location, and hawked it to the highest bidder. There were all sorts of schemes. In one or two instances, syndicates were formed to lay out townsites almost in the wilderness to be offered as sites for the capital, and large sums were expended in surveying and in dickering for the honor. When Bismarck was finally decided upon Mr. Walsh drew up the bill and introduced it. It was pounded through the territorial council by only 4 votes. Bismarck was then a modest outpost in the prairie wastes, a most unlikely spot for the location of a capital, but it won out. One of North Dakota's counties is named after Mr. Walsh."

A NEW BOAT.

Anchor Line Building New Freight and Passenger Steamer.

The Anchor line is building a new steel steamer, which will be known as the Tionesta, and which will enter commission between Duluth and Buffalo as a passenger and freight vessel early in the season of 1903. The hull of the steamer, which is being built at the Detroit ship yards, will be of steel to the promenade deck, divided into nine water-tight compartments by eight bulkheads. There will be a double bottom with a capacity for 900 tons of water ballast. She will have a cargo capacity of 3500 tons, with a coal bunker capacity of 350 tons. The engines are to be quadruple-expansion, of 2500 horse power, four cylindrical boilers, using the Howden hot-draught system. The windlass, capstans and steering, will be worked by steam. The dimensions of the ship are as follows: Length on keel 340 feet, length over all 360 feet, beam 45 feet, depth 28 feet.

The passenger accommodations will be located above the freight deck and forward of the machinery. The passenger entrance will be on the main deck amidship, where a space twenty feet in length, the entire width of the steamer, arranged as a lobby, with ample baggage rooms, with a wide stairway leading to the berth deck, will be located. The berth deck will have four lines of staterooms, which, with the center hall, will occupy the full width of the steamer, and will extend from the smokestack to the forward bulkhead. Aft of the smokestack will be quarters for the officers and crew. No passenger rooms will be located over the machinery. Each room will be provided with two berths, a cushioned sofa, porcelain lavatory, supplied with water under pressure, electric lamps and bells. On the promenade deck will be the music room, library, dining saloon, galley and mess-room. The dining saloon will be located in the center of the ship, and will have seating accommodation for 136 passengers. On the promenade deck will be located eight parlor rooms, each with private bath. The smoking room, extreme aft on that deck. The fittings and furnishings of the boat will be strictly up to date.

It is intended that the Tionesta will be run for the season of 1903 on a ten-day schedule, making the same ports of call as the present service.

WORK BEGINS.

Construction of Herald Building on West First Street Underway.

Work was begun yesterday on the excavation for the new Herald building, which is to be located on the third lot east of Fifth avenue west, on First street.

Operations will proceed rapidly from this on, and the contracts call for the completion of the building by Sept. 1. The building will occupy the entire lot, 50 by 140 feet, and it will be a thoroughly up-to-date newspaper home. J. R. de Waard, the architect who designed it, visited a number of modern newspapers offices throughout the country, and he had the benefit of the ideas in use in those offices when he drew the plans for The Herald building.

George H. Lounsberry has the contract for the superstructure, and Henry Gazette for the plumbing and heating. The building will cost about $33,000. It will be practically a 3-story structure, with a high basement and two stories on First street. The front will be of Twin City brick, with brownstone trimmings. The building will be practically fireproof, and it will be occupied solely by The Herald, which will have ample quarters there, conveniently arranged for just the purpose for which they will be used.

To Milk Dealers.

Under law all persons selling milk are required to have yearly licenses. Licenses expire on May 1. After June 1 milk dealers who have not secured licenses will be prosecuted.

To Health and Usefulness Were These Two Grateful Women.

Mrs. Augusta Boettcher, 3042 Emerald avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"From youth I was troubled with leucorrhea, which grew worse, and as a result of hard work, I contracted a stubborn case of inflammation of the womb. I tried several doctors, but got no better. Upon the advice of friends I began the use of Peruna. I took nine bottles of this far-famed medicine, Peruna, and after many fruitless endeavors have finally regained my health. I can recommend Peruna to every person."

MRS. AUGUSTA BOETTCHER.

Mrs. John Kahring, Glidden, Wis., writes:

"I thank Dr. Hartman and Peruna next to God for my health, and whenever and wherever I have an opportunity I will recommend Peruna, and I shall never be without it in my house, for I know by experience that it is a good medicine, without which one should not be. I experience no pain as usual before menstruation, and I feel a great change in my condition, as I can do my own housework. May God keep you for a long time to help suffering mankind." MRS. JOHN KAHRING.

Women are subject to pelvic catarrh. This condition has been called all sorts of names and is often referred to under the general phrase, female diseases.

Peruna cures these cases.

Peruna cures them because it cures catarrh wherever located.

The nature of most of these ailments is catarrhal.

Catarrh is liable to attack any organ of the body.

It is especially liable to attack one or more organs of the female pelvis.

No wonder women talk about Peruna. No wonder they think it the greatest medicine in the world.

Peruna cures the catarrh wherever located.

Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty.

Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals.

Insist upon having Peruna.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

BUYERS HERE.

They Get Little Lumber, However---Not Much to Sell.

Quite a number of Chicago lumbermen arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and evening, and last night there was a gathering of the local shippers and vesselmen, together with the buyers, at the Spalding hotel, an incident which would give many the impression that there was "something doing." One of the local shippers, however, said there was no special significance in the gathering, but that the occasion seemed to offer a good opportunity for a general consultation regarding the lumber situation, and the local men were making the most of it. Said he:

"There have been many buyers in the city during the past week, but these have looked around and gone back without saying a word. We all know that the buyers do not come up here at this time of the year for fun, or for their health. The fact is that there are no desirable stocks here for them to buy. Considerable lumber is being manufactured, but the advance sales have been large and the buyers will have to wait. The lumber market is firm and the prospects never were brighter.

"There is nothing in the rumor regarding an advance in vessel rates. There is a feeling among the shippers that it would not take very much to break the present rate. There have been times when the shippers had to hustle to get boats, but the shoe is on the other foot now, and the vesselmen are doing the hustling to get their boats placed.

Catarrh

Invites Consumption

It weakens the delicate lung tissues, deranges the digestive organs, and breaks down the general health.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, and affects the voice.

Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy.

LITTLE DONE.

Weather Allowed Little Seeding Last Week In West.

The report of the Minnesota section of the crop service for the week ending Monday last shows that the seeding conditions in the Red River valley did not improve any last week and that little was done during the week. The report is as follows:

"The weather was moderately warm early in the week, and decidedly cool in the latter part, with frosts on the morning of the 9th, and temperatures low enough for frosts on the morning of the 10th. There were general rains on the 8th and 11th, and on the 9th there was considerable snow in the northern half of the state, reaching a depth of four inches in places; farther south the snow gave place to rain, which had sleet or hail mixed with it occasionally. The very wet conditions of previous weeks continue in the Red River valley, so that very little or no seeding has been possible. In other parts of the state, field work has been partly or entirely suspended because of the wet condition of the soil.

"In the southwest considerable corn has been planted, but elsewhere, except in small areas, warmer weather is being waited for before planting. Flax seeding and potato planting are generally well advanced, and the earliest are coming up; it is said that the soil is in splendid condition for sowing flax on newly turned sod. There seem to be poor stands in a few fields in the South where broadcasted wheat and oats were blown out, or buried by the wind storms of April, but generally all the small grains are in fine and healthy condition, the abundant moisture and cool weather being favorable to these grains. Stooling is going on satisfactorily in the early sown fields.

"Pastures are growing nicely, notwithstanding the cool weather. Clover and timothy promise well. The plum blossoms are nearly over, and apple and cherry trees are ready to burst into bloom. In the extreme southeast the heavy beating rains of the 3d packed the and some flax may have difficulty in breaking through the hard crust. The foliage on the trees has made rapid adsoil so firmly that corn land then ready to plant will have to be prepared again, vance during the week."

HE TRIED SUICIDE

Clerk of Court Northfoss of Wadena Hacked His Throat.

Proceedings Were Being Taken to Send Him to Asylum.

Slashed His Neck While In the Probate Office.

Wadena, Minn., May 14.—Clerk of Court W. L. Northfoss attempted to commit suicide yesterday morning in a highly sensational manner. Two or three years ago he sustained a stroke of paralysis and his mind became unbalanced. Last fall he was committed to the Fergus Falls hospital for treatment, improved steadily and his family secured his release.

For a few weeks he has been acting queerly, and his family and friends were fearful he would commit some rash act. It was decided to commit him again to the Fergus Falls hospital, and yesterday morning Sheriff Irwin went to his residence and got him and took him before Judge of Probate Whitney. He made no resistance, but inquired as to the particulars of the proceeding.

Arriving at Col. Whitney's office he asked what was to be done with him. He was informed as to the nature of the proceedings and forthwith jumped from his chair, pulled a sharp knife from his pocket and commenced hacking away at his throat. He cut both sides of his neck in a horrible manner.

It was all done so quickly no one present realized what he was doing or had time to interfere. Besides the sheriff and the judge, Drs. McKinnon and Babcock were present. After he cut himself, Northfoss made for Babcock with an oath, intending to finish him. Babcock protected himself with a chair, and in the scuffle they got out in the hall and Dr. Babcock slipped on the stairs and badly sprained his ankle.

The doctors are working over Northfoss and it is believed his life may be saved. He had often told his friends that before he would be taken he would end it all, but it was not thought he meant it. He was very much discouraged over his condition, and that is the cause of his act.

BICYCLIST KILLED.

Archie McEachern Collides With Motor Pacing Him.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 14.—Archie McEachern, the well-known champion bicycle rider of Toronto, Canada, while being paced by a motor tandem yesterday afternoon at the Coliseum track, met with an accident which resulted in his death twenty minutes later. The accident was the result of the breaking of the chain on the motor cycle.

The effort yesterday was to establish a new mile record. Several miles had been covered when the chain broke and in the sudden slowing up of the damaged tandem McEachern collided with it and shot in the air like a rocket. His head struck against a projecting board which cut a gash in his neck from which blood spurted in a stream. The jugular vein had been torn open. He expired shortly after his removal to a hospital. Boake and Thompson were uninjured.

NOTHING FOR CHARITY.

The Palmer Millions Remain In the Family.

Chicago, May 14.—By the terms of the will of the late Potter Palmer, his widow, Mrs. Bertha Honore Palmer, succeeds him as head of an estate conservatively estimated at $8,000,000. The property goes jointly to Mrs. Palmer and their sons, Honore and Potter, Jr., but Mrs. Palmer is given almost unlimited control of the ultimate disposition of it all.

It is said that the testator made this arrangement on account of the great confidence he had in Mrs. Palmer's ability and judgment and not through any lack of faith in their sons. He makes it clear that he wishes her to carry out the plans they had made together.

There are no bequests for public purposes or charity, save a provision by which Mrs. Palmer is authorized to expend $200,000 for a woman's memorial building, if a site shall be given by the city on the lake front.

Any further charity depends entirely upon the action of Mrs. Palmer.

With the filing of the will of the late Potter Palmer is made public an exceptionally interesting codicil relating to a remarkable project by which Chicago would have been very much benefited by certain contingencies. When the deceased and his family were leaving for a trip abroad about four years ago the testator contemplated the emergency that they might all meet death in some disaster. In this event, Mr. Palmer provided that one-half of his estate should go to establish an immense people's palace, where free opportunity should be given to the people of Chicago for entertainment and recreation, and for physical, mental and moral development through lectures and classes, and for instruction in the nature of our political institutions and the duties of citizenship and in the arts and sciences. The rest he bequeathed in equal proportion to his collateral heirs and Mrs. Palmer's collateral heirs. But there is no suggestion in the will that this scheme be now carried out.

Special Spring Sale Winter Blankets

THIS is certainly an extraordinary time to have a blanket sale—in May—but there are unavoidable exigencies that necessitate a reduction of stock at this time. In the first place we have too many blankets—in the second place we haven't the room to keep them all summer. Blankets are bulky, easily soiled, and during the building operations, the remodeling of the interior, and the changing about of departments, they are liable to much injury. So we've decided upon this sale—We are going to turn as much of the stock as possible into cash, and at a sacrifice. It is an odd time of year to buy blankets, but you'll find it the best time when prices are like these—it's the part of wisdom to make preparations for your winter's supply now, at this sale. We quote the following values for your inspection—

10-4 Cotton Blankets in grey or tan—full size—actual value, per pair, 65c—Alteration sale price, per pair..... 48c

11-4 Cotton Blankets full size—actual value, per pair, 98c—Alteration sale price, per pair..... 75c

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (Central time, May 14.—Barometric pressures continue high over the lake region and Northwest and low in the Rocky mountains. Cooler weather prevails this morning over the lower Ohio and middle Mississippi valleys and warmer in extreme Northwest Canada. Light rains fell during Tuesday or last night over the Ohio, middle Atlantic and Southeastern states, New Mexico and Pacific coast districts. The winds in the lake region are generally northeasterly and not over fresh in force.

Local forecast for twenty-four hours from 7 p. m. (Central time), today: Duluth, West Superior and vicinity: Partly cloudy and continued cool tonight and Thursday with possibly showers. Fresh to brisk northeast winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 14.—Forecast till 7 p. m., Thursday: Minnesota and the Dakotas—Partly cloudy with probably showers tonight and Thursday.

Wisconsin—Partly cloudy with possibly showers Thursday and in west portion tonight.

Upper lakes: Winds generally fresh to brisk northeast. Partly cloudy tonight, possibly showers Thursday.

Free Alcohol For the Arts.

The question of how to get free alcohol for the arts and industries without opening the door to fraud on the revenue is one which has long bothered the treasury department. Although there are several bills before a sub-committee of the ways and means committee bearing on this matter, it does not seem likely that any change will be made in the laws at this session. Just now, the representatives of manufacturing districts are trying to get a reduction of the tax from $1.10 a gallon to 70 cents. But in practically every country of Europe absolutely free alcohol for the arts is secured, and even in South Africa this is the case. The European countries go still further and promote by legislative means this use of alcohol; they offer prizes for alcohol motors and other devices for increasing its mechanical use. They are able to do this by a system of "de-naturing" so as to render the alcohol nauseating and unfit for drinking purposes. But our country is so spread out that the regulation of the use of methyl alcohol free of tax would be attended, it is asserted, by many administrative difficulties, and so the internal revenue office has always advised against it. The Wilson act contained a free alcohol amendment, introduced by Senator Hoar, which the treasury department declared itself unable to enforce. This led to claims against the government on the part of individual users of alcohol, which came up in the Dunlap hat case, finally decided against the claimants. Since then the government has done nothing more than to continue to investigate the subject, but as yet with no striking results. The neglect of the treasury department to act on the Wilson law caused great disappointment and loss to those who had faith in the passage of the act and believed that the intention of congress would be carried out. The treasury department was culpable and was deserving of censure at that time. There is no reason under heaven why alcohol used in the arts and industries should bear such an enormous tax, and the sooner it is removed the better.

Sanitation Plans For Cuba.

There is one thing the United States is determined shall be maintained by the republic of Cuba and that is the present high state of sanitation on the island. This is of as much advantage to Cuba as to this country, and for the benefit of both not only should due care be taken on shore but strict quarantine should be enforced on vessels from any infected ports. Under Spanish regime the miserable state of Havana and other harbors, and the prevalence of diseases of all sorts in the island, formed a constant menace to the Atlantic and gulf ports of this country. One of the provisions of the Platt amendment was that Cuba should be required to carry out the sanitation plans organized by the United States health officers in the island. According to plans drawn up by the United States marine hospital service there will be a United States marine hospital surgeon at each of the Cuban ports, where he will operate in conjunction with the American consul. The surgeon will inspect every vessel leaving the Cuban port for America, and will give bills of health where the conditions warrant it. Only vessels bearing such certificates will be admitted at American ports after May 20. The cost of this inspection is to be defrayed by the Cuban government or by the owners of the vessels. The marine hospital surgeons will also require the Cubans to keep the harbor of Havana in its present healthful state. Our engineers cleaned out the various curves and blockades in the harbor which formerly caused cul de sacs to form and gave birth to the disease germs which made this harbor one of the most dangerous in the world. The fact that the present reforms are to be maintained under Cuban administration will be a very important matter to those interested in American shipping, aside from its effect on the national health of this country. Inasmuch as the marine hospital officers have trained a number of bright young Cubans so that they are capable of carrying on the improvements already well under way, there seems to be no reason why the island should ever drift toward the deplorable conditions that once existed.

Several of the newspapers that seem to take delight in misrepresenting and assailing Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles recently published a story that he peremptorily declined to act as honorary pall-bearer for the remains of the late Rear Admiral W. T. Sampson and they criticized him severely for exhibiting ill-feeling toward the dead. It has developed that Gen. Nelson Miles consented, instead of declining, to act as pall-bearer. When the funeral arrangements were under consideration it was suggested that the army as well as the navy have representation among the honorary pall-bearers. Commander Nathan Sargent was requested to approach Lieut. Gen. Miles and ask him to serve. Lieut. Gen. Miles assented. Subsequently it was determined to confine the honorary pall-bearers to naval officers and the commanding general was notified. The general attended the funeral ceremonies.

That little bill of Secretary Root to place the National Guard in a closer relation to the national government has little prospect of getting through congress. Its avowed object is to develop an effective citizen soldiery force to form a nucleus for a large army in case of emergency. While there has been no pronounced opposition to the measure, except among certain of the Democratic members of congress, who claim to see in it a threat of militarism, conditions have been unfortunate for the measure. The men who support the general staff bill prepared by Mr. Root, and who were disappointed by the hostility toward it by the senate committee, are credited with opposition to the National Guard bill. They say if the general staff measure is not to receive favorable consideration by the senate at the present session they propose to see that similar treatment is accorded to the National Guard bill.

AID FOR THE SUFFERERS.

The appeal made by President Roosevelt to the American people for aid for the sufferers by the shocking catastrophes on the islands of Martinique and St. Vincent will undoubtedly meet with a liberal response. Congress has made an appropriation for this purpose, but the calamity is so great that much more assistance will be needed. The American people have always been prompt and generous in subscribing funds to relieve distress, wherever situated, and this will be no exception to the rule. The unfortunate survivors of the volcanic eruptions that have caused death and desolation in the West Indies will be made to feel the sincere sympathy of the great American republic.

The surviving people of both islands are destitute. There is need of immediate relief upon a large scale. Warships of the United States, France and England have been ordered to the stricken islands and these governments are rushing supplies to the scenes of the horrible calamity, but the work of relief will probably be necessary for some time, as the devastated districts are swept clean of houses and dwellings. There should be no lack of relief funds in a tragedy so great in magnitude and pathos.

Postmaster E. L. Fisher has been directed by President Roosevelt to act as treasurer for funds to be collected in Duluth for the sufferers and he will be pleased to receive contributions from all who desire to aid the unfortunate people. Duluth is never behind other cities in philanthropy, and a large fund should be raised here.

THE PATHFINDERS.

Ninety-eight years ago today the first and greatest of all the government's expeditions for the exploration of the great West set forth. The Northwest and the country farther towards the Pacific were practically a terra incognita at that time. On May 14, 1804, the party conducted by Lewis and Clark, which had prepared in St. Louis for its journey, entered the Missouri and went up the river. On Nov. 2 they reached the Mandan Indians' country, a little north of the present city of Bismarck, the capital of North Dakota, and there they remained until April 7, 1805. Then they pressed onward, proceeding up the Missouri to a point near its sources, crossed the continental divide, entered the Clearwater river, went down that stream to the Snake river, thence into the Columbia, and followed the Columbia onward to the Pacific, which they reached on Nov. 7, 1805, where they passed the winter. They started on their return on March 23, 1806, diverged from their former course at two or three points, followed up the Columbia and its tributaries, crossed the divide again, entered the Missouri and arrived at St. Louis on Sept. 23, 1806.

Of great significance for the United States was this trip of exploration. Lewis and Clark in their journal, under date of Sept. 23, 1806, remarked that when they sailed down the Mississippi to St. Louis they "went on shore and received the heartiest and most hospital welcome from the whole village." Jefferson, in his memoir of Merriwether Lewis, said, in referring to the exploration, that "never did a similar event excite more joy throughout the United States. The humblest of its citizens had taken a lively interest in the issue of this journal and looked forward with impatience for the information which it would furnish." It is easy to discover the reason for these demonstrations. All the locality traversed from the mouth of the Missouri to the Rocky mountains had just been purchased from France. The title to the region between the mountains and the Pacific, called a little while afterward the Oregon country, was in controversy between the United States and England. The expedition touched or passed through the present states of Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon. It traversed, in both directions, a distance of over 8000 miles, and witnessed and recorded marvels never seen by the eye of a civilized man until then. The social and political consequences of the journey were great and far-reaching and will endure as long as the republic lives.

The report and publication of the journals of members of the party first made known to the world the physical wonders and resources of this new empire stretching through the West to the Pacific. It was on the basis of this exploration along the course of the Columbus river and its tributaries, with the camp which Lewis and Clark established for many months near the mouth of the Columbia, that the United States founded one of the strongest of its claims to the Oregon country, whose undisputed possession came to this country in the treaty with England in 1846. The work of Lewis and Clark had a powerful influence in rounding out the United States' frontiers on the Northwest to its natural limits and in extending the country's boundaries to the Pacific.

It is said that the successor of Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, is likely to be Bishop John M. Farley, long vicar-general and now auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese, and whose services therein dates back to the time when he was secretary to Cardinal Archbishop McCloskey. Bishop McQuaid, of Rochester, the senior bishop of the archdiocese (who has in his possession the late prelate's will), says that the whole priesthood desire this appointment, and there is no doubt that Dr. Farley's name will lead among the three candidates who must be named.

"PINAFORE."

Large Audience Witnesses Fine Performance of the Tuneful Opera.

A large audience witnessed a very successful production of the opera, "Pinafore," at the Lyceum last evening. The entertainment was arranged by the ladies of the First Presbyterian church and represented many weeks of arduous labor, both on the part of those engaged in the performance and those who had in their care the arrangement of the numberless details which are always connected with such an undertaking. That it was successful from a financial as well as from an artistic standpoint is gratifying to them and to all who believe that earnest effort should be rewarded.

"Pinafore" is a pretty and tuneful opera and well adapted to amateur production. Its popularity has continued through many years and there are those who insist that it represents the brightest and best that ever emanated from Gilbert & Sullivan, but that view will not be accepted by all. The story in song of the lass that loved the sailor is always pleasing, however, and will ever have its staunch supporters.

Mrs. James McAuliffe made a charming Josephine, the lass who finally allowed her heart to conquer her pride and accepted the humble sailor. Her acting was pleasing, her appearance charming and her singing delightful. Her solos, one in the first and one in the last act, were beautifully sung and brought well-deserved recalls. Miss Antoinette West as Buttercup was excellent, acting with spirit and singing effectively. Miss Jane Everington made a fine Hebe. Her sining voice was not given much opportunity in the opera, but a number that was interpolated between the acts displayed it to fine advantage. She sang "Is There a Maid?" from "The Explorers," one of the operatic successes of the past winter, which, by the way, is the work of Bert Leston Taylor, a former Duluth newspaper man, now of Chicago. It is a very pretty song, one of those catchy numbers that a whole nation will take up, and Miss Everington rendered it very effectively. Her voice is a high soprano, strong and well controlled. The number made a fine hit.

Miss Hazel Runge, of Minneapolis, gave a sailor's dance that quite took the house by storm. She is a very clever dancer.

Cyril Tyler was Ralph Rackstraw, and he played, sang and acted with ease and effectiveness. Philip G. Brown was a fine Capt. Corcoran, his singing being especially good. His voice is a baritone of fine power and quality. Robert Cox as Sir Joseph Porter, K. C. B., who woes the fair Josephine but without success, was very clever as to make-up and acting. Charles Applehagen was the Dick Deadeye of the cast and played the part well. His singing was very good. Roy Prytz as Bill Bobstay and Arthur Sabin as Bob Beckett, seamen, were excellent.

The work of the chorus was, on the whole, excellent. There was a little indecision now and then in attack, but the best of them will show that on the first appearance.

Lansing R. Robinson was in charge of the stage and the drilling of the performers and the arrangement of stage details fell upon his shoulders. The manner in which the opera was presented entitles him to much credit. Harry Howell, of Superior, was the musical director and filled that trying position satisfactorily. The business management has been in the hands of Mrs. William White, and that her work was well done was shown by the size of the audience.

Tonight the performance will be repeated and another large audience is assured by the sale of seats.

AT THE HOTELS

Among the guests at the Spalding are W. H. Barrows, Jr., of Sharpsville, Pa., and Aruthr L. Potter, of Pittsburg. Mr. Barrows is manager of the Sharpsville furnace of the Oliver Snyder Steel company, one of the largest independent steel manufacturing concerns in the country. The company is now opening up the Oliver Snyder mine on the Mesaba range under the direction of Capt. James Trezona, and the property will shortly become a shipper. Mr. Potter formerly lived in Du——, but has since located in Pittsburg in the iron and general land brokerage business. It is said that he has a deal under way for a new iron property on the range.

S. T. Johnson, of Minneapolis, state public examiner, came up from Minneapolis this morning, and is at the St. Louis.

The McKay is entertaining a couple of medical men—Dr. C. D. Harrington, of Cloquet, and Dr. G. W. Balkcom, of Tower.

Charles L. Kennedy, of Chicago, the new commercial agent here of the Milwaukee road, arrived at the Spalding this morning. His appointment here becomes effective tomorrow, when Frank Otis will go to St. Paul in a similar capacity. Mr. Kennedy has been assistant chief clerk in the general freight department at Chicago, a very important position with a large system like the Milwaukee. Another railroad man at the Spalding is W. B. Dixon, traveling passenger agent of the Milwaukee.

H. B. Hungerford, of Walkerville, Ont., who travels about the country checking up retail liquor dealers to see that they do not palm off a substitute for his own brand of whisky under a fraudulent label, is at the St. Louis. Some years ago, it is said there was more counterfeit whisky sold here under imitation labels for the real stuff than there was of the genuine article. The result was that Mr. Hungerford was appointed to see that the brand was not improperly used. He is also a dog fancier well known all over the country.

Perly Lance and wife of St. Paul, are at the McKay. Mr. Lance is a postoffice inspector and is called here to attend the current term of federal court.

Capt. M. M. Lea, a well known Iron River lumberman, is at the Spalding. Then there are John O'Brien, of Chicago, head of the John O'Brien Lumber company, and Thomas Madden, of Bay City, a Michigan vessel owner and lumberman.

Among the Mesaba range people at the St. Louis are: Jod Tornquist, a well known character and mining man, and H. B. Rossom, also of Virginia.

A. G. Smith, of Port Arthur, came down on the Iroquois yesterday, and is stopping at the Spalding.

M. F. Ruprecht, of Albert Lea, is at the McKay. Mr. Ruprecht owns the brickyard at Albert Lea, which furnishes considerable building material for Duluth contractors.

C. L. How, of St. Louis, a well known traveling man of long experience on the road, is at the Spalding. He is always glad to get to Duluth, though he admits that it usually snows when he is here.

Today's guests at the St. Louis embrace: W. E. Black, Fosston; E. A. Elliott and wife, Winnipeg; E. M. Manton, Cass Lake; O. E. Pardee, Chicago; Francis Kelly, Stillwater; Z. H. Hutchinson, Muscatine, Iowa; H. C. Koerner, Minneapolis; C. H. Dickinson, Grand Rapids, and D. L. McKay, Chippewa Falls.

At the Spalding this morning were: William H. Sherman, Minneapolis; E. M. Horn, Little Falls; Nat C. Coulter, Cincinnati; Charles T. Ledden, New York; G. M. Prentiss, Philadelphia; R. C. Martin, New York; N. H. Chase, Minneapolis; Henry D. Nathan, Cincinnati; W. L. Gorrie, Minneapolis, and M. I. Barnard, New York.

Explosion of Old Celluloid Wrecked a Norway Kitchen.

Norway—To get rid of a batch of old celluloid cuffs and collars, Mrs. L. Blommaert, of this city, put them in the kitchen range. She left the room but had hardly passed through the door when there was a loud explosion that wrecked the kitchen. One window was blown out, the doors and covers of the stove were scattered all about the room, as were also kitchen utensils of all descriptions, and the ceiling and walls were cracked. The explosion is attributed to gases generated by the burning celluloid.

Sault Ste. Marie—Gold has been discovered in a gravel pit owned by R. J. Stuart, three miles from the city. Several days ago the workmen uncovered an apparently large deposit of black sand heavily mineralized with iron pyrites, and a test has now developed the fact that the precious metal is also present in liberal quantities.

Iron Mountain—The construction of fifty dwelling houses for employes has been started by the Kimberly-Clark Co. at the paper mill town of Niagara, near here. One hundred others will be built later in the year.

Every butcher in the city has discovered that he has cashed a forged check for $10. The name of F. C. Cole, manager of the City lumber yard, was forged. The police have no clue.

Manistique—The tannery which the Federated Leather company, recently incorporated with $200,000 capital, will establish here, will occupy a site of fifteen acres. Its capacity will be 500 hides of sole leather daily and it will give employment to 450 men. The plant will consist of four large buildings, ranging from 300 by 40 feet to 666 by 50 feet in size.

RAILROAD BUILDING

Wisconsin Central Supposed to Be Surveying Several Routes.

Other Roads Believed to Be Planning Entrances to Duluth.

Summer Passenger Rates to the East Effective Tomorrow.

Persistent reports about the intention of the Wisconsin Central to build into Duluth are accepted by railway men as quite conclusive evidence that surveys are being made over various routes that have suggested themselves to the interests in control of the road.

The first report had it that a line would be built from Prentice, ninety miles south of Ashland, to Duluth. Then it was said that a line had been run from Abbotsford, 132 miles from Ashland. The latest report involves Phillips, seventy-seven miles south of Ashland, as the point at which the new extension may leave the main line. The report adds that a line 100 miles long will be built. Such an extension would leave the terminus about twenty-five miles distant from Duluth. The Abbotsford line would make the shortest route and best line, as far as opening new territory is concerned, but it would require the building of more road than either of the other routes.

The Phillips route would probably make the Wisconsin Central's line to Chicago in the neighborhood of 490 miles long. It might be somewhat shorter, but it is doubtful if the Omaha's present mileage could be bettered without cutting off the corner as far south as Abbotsford, as well as shortening the main line south of Abbotsford. It would put the Wisconsin Central in a position, however, to put on equal service.

Any of the extensions that have been discussed would, however, open up a new country to Duluth that would be of invaluable aid in building up the mercantile interests of this city. The line would run northwest through the rich country in the Upper Chippewa River valley, passing well below the Gogebic range belt of mountains. The country in the vicinity of Phillips is becoming noted for its dairying and stock interests. It is said the cut-over land in the Chippewa valley and to the west of there would soon be settled up after a railroad was built through it. A line running northwest through this section of country would be of particular importance just now, in view of the Omaha's present construction of a road northeasterly through the same square of country.

Reports about proposed new lines from the Twin Cities to Duluth may originate from the plans of either the Rock Island, Chicago-Great Western or Illinois Central. The first is considered to be the line most likely to want a Duluth connection. It has just built the Burlington & Cedar Rapids road into the Twin Cities, and since the Moores obtained control has been reaching out in all directions instead of maintaining its former conservative policy. The Great Western is also asserting an aggressive policy in extensions, but the Illinois Central has been more conservative since it obtained control of the Minneapolis & St. Louis several years ago.

THE SUMMER RATES.

Passenger Tariff to Eastern Points Effective Tomorrow.

If you want to go East this summer you can go as cheap as ever, beginning tomorrow. The summer passenger rates to New York, Boston and Montreal become effective on May 15. By rail they are $1 less than in the winter season. By lake the lake line agents claim they are cheaper than the rail figures.

The same low rates will prevail this summer, in spite of all of the hullabaloo raised by some of the St. Paul-Chicago lines about raising them over the winter basis. Mr. Hibbard, of the South Shore, said in a more polished but none the less effective way, "Dis goes—see?" And all the rest have seen him, but have not gone one better.

Passenger agents of all the east-bound lines here have been advised that they are to quote $24 first-class and $22 second-class to New York, via differential lines. This is the basis the South Shore will name. The result will be that you can travel out of Duluth on any road making connections with east-bound lines on that scale of rates.

If you want to pay more money, you can travel from Chicago east over the Lake Shore, Michigan Central or Pennsylvania, and pay first-class fare c. $26 and second-class of $23. The difference is that these three roads, which are known as the standard lines, are supposed to furnish you with a little better quality of equipment to travel in.

The $24 and $22 rate pays for passage over the South Shore and C. P. R. or via Chicago over the Panhandle, Erie, Nickle Plate, Wabash, Grand Trunk or Baltimore. These are supposed to be the differential lines.

If you want to travel by lake, you can go to New York first-class for $35.35. In this case you are routed from Buffalo east via the Erie road. Or if you want to travel in a little more style over the New York Central, it will cost you $38.35. This difference of $11.35 or $14.35, as the case may be, over the cost of a ticket by rail covers the cost of meals and berth from Duluth to Buffalo, or wherever you may be landed at the other end.

The rate to Boston over the differential lines will be $29 first-class and $27 second-class. Over the standard lines it will be $32 first-class and $29 second-class.

According to the best information the local passenger men have, the Minneapolis-New York rate will open $3.50 higher than the Duluth rate. This would make the Minneapolis rate $27.50 first-class and $25.50 second-class over the differential lines and $29.50 first-class and $26.50 second-class over the standard lines. This is such an anomalous condition, however—the largest charge for the shortest haul—that it is considered unlikely that it will continue.

NOT AT ALL LIKELY.

Ten-Hour Service to Chicago Not Probable.

An Omaha railway man says all talk of a 10-hour service between Duluth and Chicago for a number of years to come is bosh. More luxurious train equipment is likely to come first.

"As a matter of fact," he continued, "the Omaha would not be able to afford the present fast service between Duluth and Chicago if it were not for the fact that it is part of the Twin City fast service, which is kept on to compete with the Milwaukee's fast mail train.

"It may not be known, but it is a fact that Duluth and Superior do not furnish over half enough through passengers on the average to pay the running cost of a train like the Omaha's fast mail. It costs 65 cents a mile to run such a train, and the distance from Duluth to Chicago is 472 miles. That means a running cost of $307 for each train, to say nothing of interest on investment in right-of-way and track, etc.

"Of course the time is approaching when it will be possible to run Duluth-Chicago service regardless of the Twin Cities, at least as regards through service. But my opinion is that the Omaha will seek to put on limited service out of Duluth before it seeks to reduce its running time. The tendency nowadays is to improve the equipment and put on traffic equipment having buffet, compartment and regular dining cars, as well as three or four sleepers before increasing the running time above 35 or 40 miles an hour, allowing for stops.

"I haven't heard anybody that is familiar with fast train service all over the country complain of the Omaha's fast service to Chicago. The only people there are likely to complain with any cause are those that live at local stations. A railroad has got to take care of these small stations. Everybody knows that every railroad in the West is seeking now to develop the territory between its terminal points. It can't do this by leaving this territory without passenger service."

Good enough for anybody!

SHATTERED

Were Romantic Plans of Two High School Girls.

Columbus, Ohio, May 14.—When the father of Elsie Dill, a 15-year-old student at the Columbus East high school, intercepted a note addressed to his daughter he learned for the first time of a plot by which Elsie and her friend, Lena Martin, aged 14, were to elope to Cincinnati with William Mitchell and Ralph Hessong. The result of the delivery of the note into the wrong hands was the arrest of three of the youthful conspirators. Hessong, who has been working in Cincinnati, returned to Columbus several days ago and outlined a plan to the girls by which they would go to the Queen City and obtain good positions. Later, he met Mitchell, who is also under age, and took him into the arrangement. Mitchell was introduced to the girls, and the program for the elopement was complete.

The girls pawned their school books and the family Bibles and got enough money to fill a small trunk with clothes. They succeeded in slipping the trunk from the house. Sessong took it to the Union station and left it until the afternoon, when they were to take the train for Cincinnati.

Meanwhile Mitchell had been studying over the escapade, and some of its dangers began to dawn on his brain. He indited a note to Elsie Dill, telling her that he was afraid to take the risk and wanted to withdraw. The note fell into the hands of the girl's father, and he at once confronted her with the document. She confessed all the details. It was then learned that the Martin girl had disappeared from home. After a long search she was located in a High-street restaurant waiting the appearance of her companions.

She was taken in charge by the police and later turned over to her relatives. The young men were locked up at the city prison and charges will be preferred against them by the fathers of the two girls.

The families of the girls are quite prominent and they have stood well in their classes at school. Mitchell is 19 years of age, while the Hessong boy is a year older.

The girls said the arrangements was for them to be married in Covington and then they expected to go to housekeeping in Cincinnati, where the boys hoped to find work, but the delivery of the note to the wrong person spoiled their little romance.

FOLEY MINES

In Rainy Lake District to Be Reopened.

Houghton, Mich., May 14.—Capitalists have secured control of the Foley mines in the Rainy Lake district of the Algoma district, Ontario, and will immediately re-open the property on a large scale. The Foley was the first mine opened in the district and became famous for the big gold bricks turned out from its stamp mill, but passed into possession of an English company which immediately closed the mill and confined operations to stock jobbing with the result of bankruptcy.

The present owners will try the other tack. Fred J. Bawden, president of the Houghton county street car system, will probably be made president of the mining company, which will be organized under laws of Ontario with provision for ample working capital.

IS AT WORK.

Secretary Preston of Commercial Club Is Now Established.

Secretary A. L. Preston of the Duluth Commercial club is now busy in the new temporary quarters of the club at 1010 Torrey building. Mr. Preston is making an effort to get the affairs of the club in methodical shape as soon as possible. He is sending out circulars calling for the payment of the membership fee by all parties that have signed the charter list.

Mr. Preston is anxious to prepare a membership roll as soon as possible for publication together with the constitution and by-laws. To this end he urges all members in making remittances for fees to give plainly their addresses, nature of the business and firm, so that the membership roll may show these details.

The directors have decided that no call for dues will be made during the quarter from April 1 to June 30. The dues will probably be omitted until the club is located in its permanent quarters in the Frerker building, when the fixed expense of maintaining club rooms will begin.

It is now hoped that the Frerker building may be completed by August and that the club will be enabled to occupy its new quarters some time that month. The fact that party walls on both sides were put up when the adjoining buildings were erected makes this much easier of accomplishment, it is said. It is especially desired that returns be received in the form of membership dues, because the directors are powerless to close a contract for the new quarters until at least 600 paid memberships have been secured.

A meeting of the directors was held yesterday afternoon at which revised preliminary designs for the club floors in the new Frerker building were presented by Architect John De Waard. The plans are now practically acceptable to the directors. The arrangement of the floors as decided upon is practically as outlined in The Herald last week, except that plans for the upper floor have been outlined a little more definitely. The assembly room, library and reading room will occupy the Michigan street front on the upper floor. A billiard room containing seven tables will front on Superior street on the same floor, and in the middle will be one large card room and several small card rooms.

HAVE TAKEN LEASE.

Messrs. Hubbell and Merritt to Explore Champion.

The Rainier Investment company, which is controled by A. C. Hubbell and Tom Merritt, has taken an option for a lease of the property of the Champion Mining company. This property is situated in sections 10 and 11-58-18. It adjoins the Jeffries mine, which the Rainier company recently optioned to some Eastern people. This company made some pretty good finds on the Jeffries property, and believe that the Champion may make a like showing. The ore on both are said to be of low grade, and the royalty in each instance is 15 cents. In the case of the Champion, the minimum output if a lease is closed, is to be 100,000 tons a year. It is said that Hubbell & Merritt have negotiations already under way for the disposal of their option to Eastern parties.

AT WEST DULUTH

West Duluthians are beginning to feel assured again that some new industries are really under negotiation for this part of the city. Following the announcement that a deal may be closed for the transfer of the blast furnace property to parties who will operate it, comes the news that Goodwille Bros., of Wassau, prominent box manufacturers of Wisconsin, are negotiating for a site in West Duluth for another large box factory.

The Wisconsin men are said to be considering two sites, one being the old car works and the other a bay front property in Oneota, belonging to Elton & Britts, of the West End. Both of the properties have been in Duluth recently, and were out looking over the sites. It cannot be learned definitely that a deal has been closed, but it is reported from reliable resources that the negotiations are likely to go through.

Not only have the Wisconsin box manufacturers been looking toward Duluth as a promising location for a factory, but while the Goodwille Brothers were here considering the matter of a site, a Michigan box manufacturer arrived in Duluth for the same purpose. This manufacturer is supposed to be L. H. Munson, of Bay Mills, Mich., from the fact that Mr. Munson is in the business and has been here several times this spring.

This city has two box factories at the present time that are running to their full capacity, C. J. Retruske's plant, at West Duluth, and the New Duluth Box company's factory, at New Duluth, yet the visiting box manufacturers believe the field here is a good one from the proximity of the lumber.

MRS. BROTHERTON DEAD.

Mrs. S. J. Brotherton, of 222 Fifty-third avenue west, died yesterday afternoon after an illness of about six weeks. Her death was due to heart disease. Until Sunday morning her condition was not considered serious, but since that time she failed rapidly. Mrs. Brotherton was born in Canada sixty-four years ago, and has been a resident of West Duluth for the past eleven years. She was widely known and respected in this part of the city. She leaves, besides her husband, five sons and four daughters. The sons are S. J. Brotherton, T. A. Brotherton, J. E. Brotherton, L. J. Brotherton and W. F. Brotherton. The daughters are Mrs. George Bothwell, Mrs. William Segulan, Mrs. Napoleon Seguien and Mrs. J. C. O'Brien, all of whom reside in West Duluth. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon from the St. James Catholic church. Interment will be made at Calvary cemetery.

DULUTH TRIBE WINS.

The team from the Wa-ke-me-wup tribe of Redmen defeated a team from Sitting Bull tribe of West Duluth, Monday evening, in the first of a series of progressive pedro games between the two tribes. The game was played in Duluth and the uptown tribe won by a narrow margin. The West Duluthians claim that the defeat was due to a mistake in signs between McDonald and Uldhan. The next game will be played at West Duluth Thursday evening and will probably settle the question of championship among the teams from the three tribes in the city.

SMALLPOX CASE.

A woodsman suffering with a well-developed case of smallpox was taken from West Duluth this morning. The man came in from a logging camp to see a physician. The latter at once pronounced his disease to be smallpox, and the man was kept in quarantine on one side of Central avenue until the ambulance arrived from the emergency hospital. Nobody was exposed, as the woodsman kept away from everybody except the doctor, until he found out what was the matter with him.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The park board is said to contemplate the establishing of a pound at Fairmount park. There has been some complaint of cows straying into the park, and the idea of the commissioners is to have the park policeman impound all animals that are doing damage to the park. It is thought that a few fines would go a long way toward making people careful about letting their cattle stray into the park.

AMUSEMENTS.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN."

Stetson's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, with two Topsies and two Marks and everything up-to-date without destroying the venerable earmarks of this wonderfully attractive dramatization of Harriet Beecher Stowe's great work, will be presented Friday evening at the Lyceum. Grandfathers who saw this play years ago will be there with their grandchildren, and there will be no difference in the heartiness of their applause. The same old procession, Topsies, Marks, Uncle Tom and Little Eva will be there, but it is a procession that will march right into the heart despite its tramp of half a century. The Stetson company, its scenery, specialties and accessories will be found to be the best and the largest numerically in America.

"NATHAN HALE."

"Nathan Hale," Clyde Fitch's revolutionary war play, which was seen here a few months ago, will be at the Lyceum Saturday afternoon and evening, and Howard Kyle will again be seen in the leading role. He has been playing it with great success throughout the country. The company will be the same and the same beautiful scenic equipment is carried.

NEEDS RAIN.

J. W. Reynolds Says Kansas Crops Are Threatened.

J. W. Reynolds has returned from a trip to Topeka, Kan. Mr. Reynolds says that when he left Kansas the people were apprehensive of another dry season.

"As far as I could see," said Mr. Reynolds this morning, "crops looked fine. However, the spring has been a very dry one, and while the growing plant has been nurtured by the winter moisture in the ground thus far, people were becoming alarmed lest their traditional good luck of the past few years regarding weather should have turned against them. A good, soaking rain about a week ago relieved the situation very much, however.

"Last year the Kansas corn crop was practically a failure, the first crop failure they have had in the Southwest for a number of years. Still, I don't hear much complaint of hard times. There seemed to be plenty in the country.

"While corn was a failure, apples were a big success. One man told me that he cleaned up $2100 off from an apple orchard of thirty acres area. He had a good yield, and the Eastern crop was such a failure that he could take his good product down in New York and sell it for $4.50 a barrel.

"I didn't hear any startling political news while in the Southwest. I stopped at the political headquarters hotel in Topeka while there, and the Republican politicians told me that they thought Governor Stanley should have another term in the executive office.

"Topeka is a pretty place, about as nice a city for almost a purely farming country town, I imagine, as one could wish to find, but I don't suppose there is a factory in the place. They have most modern utilities. Topeka has some jobbing interests, but the houses are small and almost local in their trade. The location of the city, about midway between Kansas City and Wichita, two jobbing and live stock markets, precludes very much hope of its ever becoming a pronounced success in a commercial way."

WESTERN RANGE.

Some Lignite Coal Found Near Grand Rapids.

Some lignite coal has been found on the Clair property in section 2, 55-25, near Grand Rapids, which is now being testpitted and drilled for iron ore. The samples are said to be similar, however, to many others found in this part of the country.

One drill on the John Lewis forty in 29-56-24 has gone through 100 feet of ore and another is into 150 feet of ore. The property is under option to Capt. Carlson, the buyer of the fee to pay $25,000 for seven-eighths interest. It is about five miles from Grand Rapids.

Archie Chisholm, of this city, is said to have secured an option for a lease on the A. L. Gross homestead in section 18, 19 and 20-56-23. It is said that some pits that have been sunk show up good indications.

WILL BE PURSUED

City Striving to Make Duluth Poor Place For Transients.

Will Seek to Bar Out Itinerant Merchants and Fakirs.

Some Talk of Raising the License Price For Circuses.

Gradually Duluth is shutting down on transient concerns and fakirs.

For several years past this city has been a Mecca for such persons to the detriment of property owners and taxpayers in legitimate business.

The scheme proposed to rid the city of this transient traffic, includes a general revision of the licensing ordinances now on the city statute books.

These ordinances at present are so conflicting as to be practically useless in many instances. City Attorney Mitchell has been instructed to draw up a suitable ordinance imposing a high, if not prohibitory, license on transient business and auctioneering.

A number of the aldermen have expressed their willingness to vote for a license that will bar out every transient merchant that seeks a footing in this city.

It is claimed the people that patronize these establishments in preference to home merchants live to regret it and the movement on the part of the city officers is as much from a demand of the citizens as of the merchants.

There is some talk of putting a prohibitory license on circus exhibits, but to this there is strenuous opposition. The aldermen that are backing it say that too much good Duluth money is taken out of town by the big shows. One alderman in an argument against having the shows come to Duluth said:

"Why frequently a circus will draw a crowd of 10,000 people."

That is a recognized truth, but the very fact that 10,000 people attend a circus makes it pointed out as making it apparent that the people desire such entertainments and there is likely to be a popular demand for unchanged license in case the prohibitory license is proposed in this case.

It is recalled also that Superior tried the high license circus proposition about three years ago and has not had a decent show since. The people of Superior have to cross to Duluth to see the show and at one circus it was estimated that out of 7500 that attended the afternoon performance at least 3000 were from Superior.

Another argument made against the high license for a circus is the fact that it brings excursions in from the range towns and these excursionists spend money freely with the Duluth merchants. Circus men say that if Duluth pushes up the price of the license they will have to miss making this territory. They claim that despite the fact that the high circus, there is very little money here for as a show that has to make a jump of 200 miles or more for two performances and that is what is required when playing Duluth. The railroad fare is something immense in this part of the country. In the more thickly settled portions of the country a performance is given for every fifteen miles of travel as against 200 and sometimes 300 miles in this part of the country.

THE DAKOTAS.

Third Attorney Debarred By North Dakota Supreme Court.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—The disbarment of Attorney Martin C. Feerks, of Wahpeton, makes the third attorney disbarred by the court. Freeks was charged with formulating an order of the court deparing himself entitled to the sum of $66.20 for taxes, illegally collected on a piece of property. The supreme court holds that he was guilty of deceit and artifice and suspends him until the September term of court in 1903, when it will grant a motion for his reinstatement, provided he refunds the amount stated to the county of Richland within thirty days and obeys the suspension order of the court.

Jamestown—A runaway accident here resulted in Mrs. John Fergus receiving severe injuries by being thrown from her buggy while crossing the Northern Pacific tracks.

Claim Agent Taylor, of the Northern Pacific, says the company settled the Lou Cadieux damage case in full for $1400, and that the newspaper report that the company paid the plaintiff $4800 is incorrect.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Rosebud—Mrs. Sarah Ghostface has been shot and killed by Allen Walking Shield, an Indian of the Rosebud tribe, forty miles north of this city. After shooting the woman, Shield forcibly carried off her 17-year-old daughter, who later escaped. An Indian named Fred Hair, who feared Shield would visit his house, armed himself with a shotgun, which he accidentally discharged, shooting off one of his legs.

Scotland—The annual meeting of the South Dakota Medical society will be held at Scotland, commencing on June 4.

Emery—A special election will be held on the 24th to vote upon a proposition to bond the town for $2500 for a new school building.

Fort Meade—A desertion epidemic has struck this post. Since Friday eight men have left without leave, and in two months twenty deserted from a single cavalry troop.

Sioux Falls—Papers were served in a libel suit instituted by Dr. L. J. Hass, a dentist, against the Sioux Falls Journal, a weekly newspaper published by Mark D. Scott. The plaintiff asks damages of $10,000.

Hartford—Business men have been greatly surprised by discovering, as the result of lines run by a surveyor, that almost all of the business houses on the west side of the principal business street encroach upon the land of adjoining property owners.

Minneapolis, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last meeting before the summer vacation of the Minnesota commandery of the Loyal Legion was held at the West hotel last night and ended in a banquet. The evening was a pleasant one. The following are the newly elected and installed officers:

Commander, Maj. R. H. Henderson, Minneapolis; vice commanders, Edward Simonton, St Paul; Thomas N. Pressnell, Duluth; record, David L. Kingsbury, St. Paul; registrar, Col. A. W. Edwards, Fargo; treasurer, Judson Shepard, St. Paul; chancellor, Thomas Montgomery, St. Paul; chaplain, Robert N. Adams, Minneapolis; members of the council, J. C. Donahower, Kenneth Clark, St. Paul; L. W. Campbell, F. B. Hart, Minneapolis; L. G. Baird, Austin.

FARMER KILLED.

Wisconsin Man Run Over By a Train.

Sparta, Wis., May 14.—A freight crew found the remains of a man lying by the railroad near Tunnel City, which were identified as John Shutter, a prominent farmer in that vicinity. Shutter left Tomah on foot for home Monday night, and it is supposed he was run down by a passenger train. The head was severed and the body torn to pieces.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

TWO LIVES WRECKED

By Fairy Bark Designed to Sail Around the World.

How Bigamist McCallum Lured His Victim to Matrimony.

Cupid Failed But Neptune Won, and She Said "Yes."

St. Louis, May 14.—When the divorce petition which has just been filed by Mrs. Endora C. McCallum shall have passed through the courts, two women will have received all the reparation which the law can give them for the wrecking of their lives.

Anna Mae Belle Lawton, who bore the name of Mrs. McCallum until she learned that it was rightfully held by another, was given redress for her wrongs last January, when a Jefferson county jury sent to the penitentiary for six years the man who had deceived her.

There is another figure—an inanimate one—in the tragedy which has linked the two women of widely differing ages in a common grievance.

It is the hull of a steel boat, almost finished, which rusts in a yard near the city wharf at the foot of Madison street.

Into the building of this boat went the property of the first wife and the savings of her years of school teaching. That it might be built she wore threadbare garments and ate the coarsest of food, hoping that when it would be ready for its long-promised world voyage it might carry her, with her husband, away from poverty.

For the younger woman the boat was the fairy bark which was to take her on a glorious honeymoon around the world. It was the strongest allurement which her suitor, who was twice her own age, held out when he pleaded with her to be his wife.

The promise that the journey would be commenced as soon as the boat was finished left her to consent to a secret runaway marriage and to keep her secret for weeks afterward.

While the older woman, McCallum's rightful wife, passed her days in a bare room at 2003 North Twelfth street, the man paid court to the girl of 18, whom he had first met when she applied to him for a place as secretary in answer to an advertisement.

The idea of becoming the secretary of a man whose business was not clearly defined was not an attractive one to the girl, and she declined the employment offered her. But the man pursued his new acquaintance. He was not encouraged, nor was he repelled. The girl was simply indifferent.

When, after a few months' acquaintance, McCallum proposed marriage to Anna Mae Belle Lawton her answer was prompt and, as she thought, decisive. She was not in love, and she would not marry anyone until she had seen more of the world.

To see the world! This was the man's clew to the dearest desire of the girl's heart. He had never told her of the boat he was building. Then he told her the story of his romantic purpose, and taking her to his little shipyard showed her the hull of the vessel.

To her eyes all was in readiness, but sail and oars. There was just room for two in the cozy shell.

As she looked at the boat's trim figure the girl seemed to smell the aromas of strange seas, where she spelled out the wonderful tales of the "Arabian Nights." Neptune won where Cupid had failed, and she said "yes" to her suitor.

The secret wedding in Hillsboro, Jefferson county, and the return to St. Louis before the girls' parents suspected what had happened was carried out just as McCallum planned it. She went to her home, 4664 Kennerly avenue, and he went back, for the last time, to the neglected wife on North Twelfth street.

Three weeks the bride kept her secret. Then, unable to keep her happy anticipations to herself, she told her parents that she was Mrs. McCallum. The clandestine marriage was forgiven and its details published and McCallum and his wife settled at 2708 Locust street. This was on Oct. 6, 1901.

Two days later a collection of anonymous letters came to the Lawton family. All stated that McCallum had a wife living in St. Louis and gave her address on Twelfth street.

At first McCallum denied everything. Then he said that he had never been married.

The bride's father was not satisfied, and the house on Twelfth street was visited.

The first Mrs. McCallum was found in a dark, almost unfurnished room. She was faded and gray with years and care. The younger woman tremblingly told the purpose of the visit.

Then came the supreme sacrifice of love. The elder woman hesitated a moment, then said: "No, I was never married to him."

Then she wept on the shoulder of the girl who, believing her to be more deeply wronged than herself, had placed her arms about her.

Relatives of the rightful Mrs. McCallum took a less sentimental view of the matter, and furnished records to show that she had been married to McCallum in Owensboro, Ky., in September, 1897.

The bigamist was arrested on Oct. 11, and on Jan. 23, 1902, in the county where the second marriage occurred, he was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary.

While McCallum was a prisoner in the St. Louis jail, his second wife, desiring to get his signature to some papers, but unwilling to be known to the frequenters of the Four Courts as the girl whom he had duped, cut off her long black hair and dressed in a faded wrapper, and sought an interview with him.

Her visit was a fruitless one, as he refused to sign the papers, and the girl wept bitterly as she thought of the sacrifice of her hair upon the impulse of the moment.

Before the bigamist was taken to Jefferson City a charge was made, which he did not deny, that he had a third wife, Mrs. McCallum, living in Fort Worth, Texas. The woman did not appear to press the charge and it was not investigated.

WELL LAID

Were the Government's Plans For Relief of Antilles.

Washington, May 13.—So comprehensively laid were the plans of the war department yesterday, even before the passage of the joint resolution providing for the relief of the volcano sufferers that there was really very little remaining for the officials to do today. The plans of the commissary department, made after careful consideration of the news dispatches from the Antilles, contemplate the supply of 40,000 rations for fourteen days. The quartermaster's department is purchasing clothing supplies for 40,000 people, and the medical department is working in proportion in its purchases. In the navy department the carefully planned relief measures were being carried forward systematically and rapidly.

The Buffalo has been ordered to be put in readiness for immediate use as a food and supply transport in case it should be decided to send more food supplies than the Dixie will carry. Action has not been taken yet upon Admiral Bradford's sugestion that water tenders be sent to Martinique to relieve the pressing need for fresh water. The admiral is anticipating the acceptance of the plan, and has accordingly telegraphed to Pensacola and Norfolk to have the tenders at those places made ready for immediate service. The admiral has also tendered the use of his coal navy as food and passenger transports. The equipment bureau, of which he is the head, has a small but excellent fleet of large colliers, and the admiral has suggested to Secretary Moody that these ships are, by virtue of their great carrying capacity, excellently adapted to relief work. Each of the ships carries from 2000 to 3000 tons of supplies.

There are no lack of indications of spontaneous offerings from all parts of the country.

WHY NOT?

Parliament Should Do Something For Its Own Colonists.

London, May 13.—The munificent appropriation yesterday of the United States congress for the relief of the sufferers by the Martinique disaster and President Roosevelt's message recommending a vote of half a million dollars for that purpose, the action of the United States government in dispatching warships and food supplies to Martinique, etc., were drawn attention to in the house of commons today by John Dillon, Irish Nationalist, who asked the government leader, A. J. Balfour, whether in view of the action of the United States and the fact that a British colony suffered so greatly Great Britain intended to adopt some similar relief measures.

Mr. Balfour said the matter had been under consideration by the cabinet, but he had no statement to make. Mr. Balfour had never heard of a vote of such a character being suggested in parliament. Every assistance that could be given locally by the government would be given.

Mr. Dillon gave notice that he would recur to the subject tomorrow. His suggestion was warmly approved by the house.

"Five years ago dyspepsia took such hold of me I could scarcely go," writes George S. Marsh, Nocona, Tex. "I took quantities of medicine but nothing helped me. As a drowning man grabs at a straw I grabbed at Kodol. Dieting is unnecessary. After a few bottles I am sound and well." Kodol digests any good food and cures any form of stomach trouble. Max Wirth.

DIXIE WILL SAIL

Loaded Down With Supplies For Martinique Sufferers.

New York, May 13.—The United States steamer Dixie will begin towing stores today for the Martinique sufferers. The work will be done as rapidly as possible. Most of the $20,000 alloted to the quartermaster's department was spent for women's and children's clothing and for tents. Maj. D. L. Brainerd, of the subsistence department, has expended the $75,000 given to his department for food supplies. There are about 100 tons, consisting of tea, coffee, codfish, hard bread, chicken soup, milk, bacon, meats, sugar, hams and vinegar. About $5000 worth of medicines from the medical department also will be taken. The French chamber of commerce of this city has raised $3000, which will be sent direct to Martinique.

Made In the Knox Bill Against the Beef Trust.

Large Loophole For the Packers Has Been Left.

A Strange Error In the Language of the Complaint.

Chicago, May 14.—"For my own part, I am strongly inclined to believe in the strenuous honesty of President Roosevelt, but every one will not be so charitable as I am, and there will inevitably be those who will charge that the president, who is an avowed candidate for reelection, brought this suit against the members of the beef trust with a view of captivating the common people and left a loophole in the bill for the escape of the trust."

Thus Judge M. F. Tuley, Nestor of the Chicago bar, expressed himself in regard to the government's injunction suit against the beef trust, its chances for success in the federal courts and its probable connection with the presidential politics. The jurist thinks the motion for a temporary injunction is exceedingly lame, and likely to fail altogether, and condemns the whole suit as a manifestation of imperialism and as a resumption of "government by injunction."

For all these reasons he regards the action of President Roosevelt as somewhat reckless, and as likely to bring upon him a popular suspicion of using the machinery of government and the powers of the courts to further his political ambition. Judge Tuley gives the packers important advice in regard to the motion for a temporary injunction, which, considering that it is not prayed in the bill, is unprecedented so far as he knows.

"I have read the bill against the beef trust carefully," said Judge Tuley, "and it presents one striking peculiarity. In all my experience at the bar and on the bench I never before knew of a temporary injunction being asked for in when it had not been prayed for in the bill. The usual method is to pray a temporary injunction and then pray that on the final hearing it may be made permanent. Why such a universal usage was disregarded in this case I do not know, but the consequences may be serious.

"I have serious doubts whether or not the court has the right to grant a temporary injunction that is not prayed for in the bill, and, of course, I doubt that the court will grant it. You may be sure the defendants will stubbornly oppose it on this ground, and I cannot see how they are to be answered.

"But the failure of the temporary injunction, though a matter of considerable importance, is not nearly so important as the construction they may put on the adoption of such an irregular proceeding by the president and the attorney general: If the omission of the prayer from the bill should be followed by a refusal of the temporary injunction the inference will be irresistible to many minds that the failrue to enjoin was intentional.

"The permanent injunction, if granted, will do the trust no immediate harm. An appeal will be taken to the supreme court, and it will be three years at least before a decision will be reached. In the meanwhile the next presidential election will have occurred.

"I am, however, doubtful whether the case can be proved up against the trust. The strength of the case must rest largely on the documentary evidence furnished by the defendants. It is intended, I believe, to compel them to produce their books and papers for inspection, and without this evidence I do not see how the government can make out its case.

"Now, in my opinion, that will be unconstitutional. You cannot compel a man, even in a civil suit, to produce evidence against himself which may lead to his being indicted for crime.

"I have no doubt whatever that the bill is true from beginning to end, but I am utterly opposed to the whole proceeding. I am the sworn enemy of imperialism and of government by injunction, and the suit is only a repetition of what we saw at the time of the great railroad strike, when Debs was sent to jail without a trial by jury, and I am opposed to the practice now, just as I was then.

"Government by injunction is one of the most dangerous forms that imperialism takes, and imperialism is the greatest peril that threatens this country at the present time. I believe in trial by jury, and I am bitterly opposed to the summary and arbitrary methods of our federal courts. I would rather let the beef trust do its worst than see government by injunction established in this country."

CHASING A MADMAN.

Sensational Pursuit of Maniac at Chicago.

Chicago, May 13.—A life and death struggle of a precipitous bluff sixty feet high, a three-mile race on a handcar from Lake Bluff to Fort Sheridan, and a panic among soldiers at the army post, were incidents in an exciting chase of a madman yesterday afternoon, which began at Pettibone's creek, two miles north of the town of Lake Bluff, and culminated, after three hours, in the capture of the madman and his lodgment in a solitary cell in the Fort Sheridan guardhouse.

Residents of Lake Bluff discovered the madman early in the afternoon. Frank Pierce, marshal of Lake Bluff, was notified, and with D. M. Warman, a trustee of Lake Bluff, George Gartley, and A. Mihan, of North Chicago, went in search of the man. They came upon the fugitive at the top of a high bluff, which ran precipitously down to the water. Here a fierce struggle ensued, the three endeavoring to overpower the maniac. His strength, however, proved equal to their combined efforts, and several times they narrowly escaped being dashed over the edge of the bluff.

The would-be captors, in order to save themselves, released their hold, and the madman, drawing a knife, gave a demoniacel laugh and darted away. He ran west toward the Northwestern railway tracks, and reaching them, turned and ran south between the car tracks.

Chase was again given by Marshal Pierce and his men. At Lake Bluff a handcar, which was found beside the tracks, was boarded, and the pursuing party began a desperate race to overtake the madman before he should accomplish any harm. After a race of three miles the latter lay down beside the tracks and allowed his pursuers to seize him.

Binding him securely, the captors placed the man on the handcar and rode the rest of the distance to Fort Sheridan. Just before reaching the guardhouse the maniac broke away from his captors and created a panic among the soldiers by rushing into the guard room and announcing himself a murderer and the bearer of strange messages from Gen. Miles.

The madman gave his name as Edward Louis Haskell, of Indiana.

REORGANIZED.

Property of Flour Trust Transferred to New Company.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 14.—All of the property formerly owned by the United States Flour Milling company, which includes the Consolidated company's mills and other plants in Minneapolis and elsewhere, has been formally transferred to the Standard Milling company, Vice President Jacob Amos, of the United States company signing the deed in Syracuse, N. Y., yesterday.

This completes the reorganization of the milling interests owned by the combination. A. C. Loring, as one of the receivers, signed the deed last week and forwarded it East for the signatures of the officers of the old company.

The members of the Standard company will meet in New York next week and elect officers. George Urban, Jr., of Buffalo, president of the old United States Flour Milling company, has been asked to take the presidency of the new concern.

The Standard company is financed on more conservative lines than the old organization. It will perform the office of a holding company, much on the same lines as the United States Steel corporation, the various plants being operated by lessees. The United States company endeavored to operate most of the mills direct, a policy which did not prove successful.

All of the constituent companies of the United States Flour Milling company are in the new concern, including the Hecker-Jones-Jewell company of New York, which was the subject of litigation for some time.

The nineteen mills are located at Buffalo, Duluth, Superior, West Superior, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Syracuse, Baldwinville, New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City. The total daily capacity is about 50,000 barrels, and the men connected with it say the new company is amply financed.

LOVE WON THE DAY.

Millionaire's Daughter Marries Man of Her Choice.

Salt Lake, Utah, May 13.—Miss Jacketta McCune, young daughter of A. W. McCune, a millionaire mining man of Salt Lake City, was given the choice of a fortune or the man she loved. Cupid won.

A telegram has been received from New York, saying that Miss McCune, despite her father's threats of disinheritance, was married there Friday to Phillip Ernest Green, of Salt Lake City, and that the bridal pair were preparing to take a European trip.

Twice they had been foiled in their attempts to wed. Once an elder brother intervened and took the prospective bride off the train. Another time the father packed his daughter off to Peru, where he is engaged in developing the famous Cerro de Pasco mine, with J. B. Haggin, of New York, and other capitalists.

It was upon her return from Peru that Miss McCune was met by her sweetheart and the wedding resulted. Mr. McCune is a former partner of Marcus Daly, and is largely interested in mines in Utah and Montana, besides owning heavily in the Cerro de Pasco mine in Peru, and having large interests of other kinds. Green is a youthful mining stock broker.

Within the last few days petitions against the removal of American troops have been received from sixteen towns and villages in Luzon. The reason for these petitions is said to be the fear of bandits after the troops have left. It is believed in some quarters that the petitioners are more probably influenced by a desire to retain the trade of the American soldiers in the places in question than by fear of robber depredations.

Eczema THE ITCH-KING

The name Itch King rightfully belongs to Eczema, for no other disease can approach it in the intensity and fierceness of its itching. It is an irresistible and overpowering itch, unlike that produced by any other disease, or from any other cause. Eczema's itch is torture, and, at times, so distracting that the sufferer scratches till the skin is broken and streaked with blood. Scratching does harm, of course, but the eczema patient is deaf to reason and reckless of consequences when the itching begins.

Eczema is caused by a too acid blood and the retention in the system of uratic and other waste matters which the proper organs have failed to remove, and, through the circulation, these irritating poisons are carried to the surface of the body, producing inflammation and redness of the skin, pimples, pustules and blisters, discharging a gummy, sticky fluid, which dries and hardens into scales or bran-like particles, or forms into great sores or scabs. These highly inflammatory poisons break down the pores and glands of the skin, and cause it to harden, crack and bleed. This is one of the most inveterate and painful forms of this disease.

Eczema attacks the head, face, arms, chest, back, legs and feet—in fact, any and every part of the body. It may come in sparcely scattered patches or break out in large spots, but whatever the form, or wherever located, the itching at times, especially after retiring or when the body is overheated, is almost unbearable. In Eczema the blood must be treated, and not the skin, if a permanent cure is effected. Local applications of washes, ointments or salves allay the itching aud burning to some extent, but do not reach the acid-laden blood, or cleanse the circulation of the accumulated waste, but S. S. S. does, and by thus removing the cause, the irritating eruption disappears, the itching and burning ceases and the unhealthy skin becomes soft and smooth again. S. S. S. cures Eczema and all skin diseases of the Uric Acid type, restoring to the thin, sour blood all of its lost properties, making it rich and pure again. All parts of the system take on new life, and all inflammation subsides under the influence of the nourishing, cooling blood.

AN UNENDURABLE ITCHING.

I suffered for three years with Eczema on the lower part of my leg and ankle, and it became so badly swollen that I could not wear my shoe and was practically a cripple most of the time. I spent a good deal of money without relief, and had about given up hope of ever getting rid of the tormenting disease, which at times itched almost beyond endurance. When my attention was called to S. S. S. I decided to try it and began to improve at once, and in a short time was cured. The S. S. S. also built up my general health, and I feel better in every way. I am convinced S. S. S. is the greatest known remedy for Eczema.

TORMENTED FOR FIVE YEARS.

The doctors said I had pustular Eczema; it would break out in small white pustules, mostly on my face and hands, discharging a sticky fluid; crusts would form and drop off, leaving the skin red and inflamed. I was tormented with the itching and burning characteristic of the disease for five years, and during the time used various medicated soaps, ointments and washes, but these applications seemed to make me worse. After taking S. S. S a short time I began to improve; the itching did not worry me so much. I continued the medicine, and soon all the ugly eruptions disappeared and my skin is now as clear as anybody's; I have not been troubled with it since.

Miss Nellie Drake

MISS NELLIE DRAKE

A Young Society Lady of Memphis, Tenn., Secured Health by Taking Wine of Cardui.

Miss Nellie Drake, No. 81 Madison St., Memphis, Tenn., took cold in this way with serious results. But she was promptly relieved by taking Wine of Cardui at the advice of a friend. That friend was truly a friend indeed. Miss Drake feels deeply grateful to Wine of Cardui for her deliverance from suffering. She says:

"Experience is a severe teacher sometimes, as I have learned. Two years ago I attended an evening reception and ball and leaving it I became suddenly chilled and the consequences which followed were very serious. Headaches and pains in my sides and shoulder blades were a very common occurrence. I lost my appetite and soon ceased to enjoy life. A good neighbor advised me to try Wine of Cardui and I sent for some. It is certainly a wonderful remedy. In a few weeks I was well and have not had a pain since. You deserve success and I certainly hope you will have it."

Miss Drake has learned what thousands of other young ladies have learned, that actual experience is a severe teacher and she wishes other girls to profit by her example. She knows what it is to suffer and she also knows that Wine of Cardui brings relief. Her letter is a convincing one, but if she could have made it more convincing she would have done so. She has shown every young girl the way to health and if they do not accept it they refuse health itself.

The regularity of the menstruation is the most important matter for a young woman to consider. Mothers should see to it that their daughters pass to womanhood in health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine to correct disordered menses. It can be depended on without fail in uncomplicated cases. A million suffering women besides Miss Drake owe life and health to Wine of Cardui. If you could see Miss Drake and hear her tell the story of her cure you would not hesitate to secure a bottle from your druggist immediately. This pure Wine can be taken in the privacy of the home. You need not see a doctor nor be examined nor take advice. Just buy a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take them in private at home. That is how Miss Drake and hundreds of thousands of other young women have been cured. We have never known of a case that has not been greatly benefited by this treatment and few that have failed of a permanent cure. If you are suffering and need advice write to The Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a letter of advice will cost you nothing. Go to your druggist and get a bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

MARKET IS LOWER

Wheat Started Weak and Lower and Declined Further.

Favorable Weather For the Growing Crops Is Reported.

Flax Trading Very Light and the Market Steady.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 14.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning and declined under the depressing influence of fine weather for the growing crops and indifferent cables. The rains in the Northwest have ceased, while much-wanted showers have fallen in Kansas and Nebraska.

The Liverpool market closed at an advance of 5d. Paris was unchanged to ¼c higher and Antwerp ⅝c higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 248,000 bus, last year 326,000 bus. Shipments 410,000 bus, last year 1,220,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 166,000 bus.

Corn advanced ⅞c in the Chicago market and oats fell off 3@3½c. Primary receipts of corn were 216,000 bus, last year 177,000 bus. Shipments 371,000 bus, last year 724,000 bus. Clearances were 13,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 124 cars, and at Chicago, 22, a total of 146 cars, against 140 last week, and 198 last year.

There was fairly active trading in wheat on the Duluth board. The market opened off at 77¼c, sold down to 76⅝c at 9:35 at 76⅝c at 10:15, fell again to 76¾c at 10:26, sold up to 77c at 11:32 and then fell off to 76½@¾c at 1:07 and closed there. This was a decline of ¾@1c. Chicago and Minneapolis declined ⅞c.

Cash sales were practically nothing and prices nominal at July price for No. 1 northern, 2c under for No. 2 and 3½c under for No. 3.

Flax trading was fairly active and the market slightly stronger. Cash seed advanced ¼c, the September option ½c and the October option declined ½c. Corn advanced ⅝c as did also oats and cash oats fell off ⅛c and the September option ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 1 northern, 76½c; No. 2 northern, 74½c; No. 3 spring, 73c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 1 northern, 76½c; May, 76⅝c; July, 76¾c; September, 74c; Manitoba No. 1 northern, cash, 75½c; May, 00½c; No. 2 northern, 73c. Oats, cash, September, 30c; rye, 56@56c; flax, cash, $1.76½; to arrive, $1.76½; May $1.76¾; September, $1.40; October, $1.44½. Corn, 62c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 10; last year, 9; corn, 2; oats, 6; flax, 2.

Receipts—Wheat, 5214; oats, 5381; flax, 2710.

Shipments—Wheat, 197,900; flax, 130,877.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Growing Weather Depressed Wheat at Opening.

Chicago, May 14.—Indifferent cables and favorable growing weather for crops depressed wheat at the opening today. The rains in the Northwest spring country had ceased and copious falls were reported where most needed in Kansas and Nebraska. Liquidation by late buyers of yesterday also set in somewhat liberally and prices dropped. July started a shade to ¾@½c lower, at 76⅝@76c, declined to 75⅝@¾c, and later steadied near 75¾c. Trade early was rather tame. Local receipts were only 22 cars, none of contract grade. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 124 cars, making a total for the three points of 146 cars against 140 last week and 198 a year ago.

Some strength in corn and fair cash sales to the seaboard influenced July wheat to top 76¾c, but the recovery was not held. The statistician for the board made a report indicating a winter yield of 410,000,000 bus and all the crowd forgot yesterday's bullish government report and unloaded until July closed weak ⅞c lower, at 75½@⅝c.

Corn trade early was of a quiet and hesitating nature. Cables were indifferent but receipts were very small and some light buying of fair character set in. July opened ¼c up to unchanged at 63c to 63¾c, but showed a disposition to ease with wheat. Most of the trade was local. Speculators are beginning to fight shy of this pit because of the fear many express over the dangerous possibilities of manipulation by a leading house that is heavily long of July and September stuff. July fluctuated very narrowly the first hour and hung around 62¾c. Receipts were 27 cars.

There was some fair corn buying as the session advanced and the crowd was inclined to bull prices on the very small estimate of 25 carse to arrive here tomorrow. July sold sharply to 65⅞c, but closed only firm, ⅜c up, at 63¼c.

Oats were quiet with no early noticeable features. The tendency of the pit was to ease with wheat and corn. Harvesting was reported in North Carolina and fields ripening in Texas. Some old July stuff was offered and prices slipped off a trifle. July new started ¼c lower, at 37c and eased to 36¾@37c. Receipts were only 56 cars.

Fairly active buying by the same interests that have bulled provisions of late influenced strength in hog products again. Hogs also were commanding better prices and on a fair demand for pork in particular prices advanced. July pork opened 2½@2½c up at $17.50@17.60; July lard, 2½@5c higher, at $10.37½, and July ribs, 5@7½c up, at $9.75.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago—The Orange Judd Farmer's crop report for May 1 puts the condition of winter wheat at 85.6 against 84.1 a month ago and 91.5 last year. East of the Missouri river low averages are largely due to the fact that the plant growth is late, but west of that stream the low condition represents permanent and irreparable damage. The area sown last fall was increased by 10 per cent, but this increased loss from the winter killing, leaving the total acreage now standing at 32,185,000 acres, against 31,915,000 acres harvested last fall. These figures for both years have been revised in accordance with the recent census returns. The nub of the question is that the acreage now standing for harvest is fully as large as that harvested last year.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Here the feeling was easy. The morning weather map showed good rains in Kansas and fair weather in the Northwest. This with indifferent cables made some selling pressure. This developed into further weakness later in the day. Snow's report makes the winter wheat condition 78.6 on an average of 32,000,000 acres. His figures have been revised to accord with the census bureau. It indicates a crop of 410,000,000 winter wheat. He does not explain if the census figures of last year were correct, what has become of wheat. There was a fair cash demand here, but the market having been strong for the past four days, traders were disposed to play for a reaction and business was not large enough to counteract it. We still think the speculative holdings of wheat are in good hands and the situation, both immediate and prospective, is not bearish.

MARKET REPORT.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, 507 Board of Trade, Duluth, Minn.

Chicago, May 14.—There was a fairly large trade in wheat, but mostly all of a local professional character. Good general rains in Kansas and quiet cables from abroad caused the market to open weak. Later there was a rally on reported good cash demand and in sympathy with the strength in corn, but good selling on the advance caused prices to weaken again and the close was heavy, July ⅞c, September 1⅛c, December 1⅜c lower than last night. Liverpool reported their market as being quiet, ½d higher for the day. Continental markets were irregular, some higher and some lower. There was a good demand for cash wheat by millers and a good business reported to go to the seaboard. Export demand was rather quiet. The weather throughout the winter wheat belt is all that could be desired, and the rains in Kansas have put an end to all talk of drouth, and will undoubtedly improve the crop prospects materially.

Conditions in the Northwest are generally favorable. Weather and crop prospects abroad continue very favorable. Our Rosa Rio friends cable us today that heavy rains have fallen in Argentine and the ground is in the best shape, and seeding will begin early next month. The light receipts and small stocks have a tendency to keep the nearby futures firm, but we think the deferred options are a sale on hard spots especially if the world's crop prospects keep as good as they are at present. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 15 cars.

There was a fairly large trade in corn today and the market during the greater part of the session ruled firmer. There was a better cash demand, but towards the close prices eased off in sympathy with wheat. May and July closed ⅝c higher than last night. September practically unchanged. Country acceptances in bids sent out last night were somewhat larger, and a much freer movement is expected from Illinois, where farmers are said to be offering more freely. Foreign markets were quiet. Liverpool closed ½d higher for the day. The weather throughout the corn belt is all that could be desired, and the crop is making a splendid start. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 25 cars.

Trade in oats were light today and the market ruled easier in sympathy with wheat, closing May and July ⅜c lower. September closed ¼c lower than last night. Country offerings were somewhat larger, cash demand fairly good. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 100 cars.

Provisions opened higher on advance in hogs, although receipts were above estimates. There was good buying by commission houses and by one at least of the leaders, but all day there was free offerings of July product, closing rather tame on pork and ribs, and strong on lard. There was some buying by outsiders on the bullish feeling shown by the leaders and their friends, but its a very small market considering the fluctuations. Packers are making ribs freely and Western packers were said to be free sellers here today. Short sellers are driven out and the leaders have control and the market is in a nervous and very unsettled condition. Estimated receipts tomorrow, 26,000 hogs.

before the convention adjourned. Mr. Mitchell has had several telephone talks with persons at distant points, but he refuses to say anything regarding these conversations. If the convention decides to continue the strike, it is believed that the struggle will be long and bitter.

In an interview with a correspondent of the Associated Press just before he entered the convention, President Mitchell plainly indicated that he had a definite plan in view, but he refused to say what it was. In reply to a question he said that he had finally decided that he would, if necessary, advise the men what should be done.

He was asked if it were true that a canvass of the delegates showed that most of them were in favor of a strike, and he replied:

"There is no doubt that the sentiment of the men is for a strike."

"Will you advise them what to do?"

"I will advise them if necessary when the proper time comes."

"Will you advise them against their sentiment?"

To the last question he hesitated for a moment and finally replied:

"I would rather not answer that question."

In view of the fact that Mr. Mitchell is averse to strikes, this refusal to definitely answer the last question would indicate that he may advise against radical measures.

In answer to other questions Mr. Mitchell said that all hope of any concessions from the operators was gone. He has had no communication, he said, with the mine owners, Senator Hanna or any other members of the Civic federation.

The delegates were called to order shortly after 10 o'clock by President Duffy, of District No. 1, the middle district. Mr. Mitchell was elected chairman of the convention. He made a brief speech, in which he said the delegates have a great responsibility, and they should act wisely in whatever they do. They will be called upon, he said, to decide one of the greatest questions that ever came before any labor convention. He admonished them to stand together, whatever their decision may be.

W. B. Wilson, national secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers, was elected secretary. Deputy Secretaries Dempsey, Gallagher and Hartlein were appointed a committee on credentials, after which the convention took a recess until 1:30 this afternoon.

The total sales were 366,200 shares.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.—I have several times called attention to the similarity between the markets of 1881-82 and 1901-02. In the spring of '81 prices were boomed up beyond all reason. The shooting of Garfield, a crop failure, a railroad rate war and a collapse in the stock market all followed later. The boom of '82 occurred in the summer, following a succession of winter bull and bear waves through the winter and spring. Prices went higher than in 1881 and hung around the top until November. The final collapse in values came as a result of over production in steel and other commodities, too many new railroads, not enough business to go around, cut rates and a sudden and unexpected advance in call money from 5 to 25 per cent. Surplus bank reserves had vanished and been replaced by a $3,000,000 deficit. As nearly as can be figured out there should be another boom in June, August and September of 1902, always assuming that crops are good. The great decline is likely to be delayed until the insiders now have vastly more stock to distribute now than they had then and that because conditions are in better shape. A collapse in the steel trade for example is hardly possible within a year. As to the intention of the "giant allied manipulators," we all know that the big men intend to make another boom just as soon as conditions will stand it. They intend to put up stocks for the purpose of selling them. What we have to consider is to what extent they will be successful. There seems to be really good buying of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. I hear both are going very much higher. A scale system will surely prove profitable. Keep long on Brooklyn Rapid Transit.

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: It is understood that the holders of Twin City will be given the privilege of subscribing to the $1,500,000 of new common stock from June 5 to July 1 inclusive, at the rate of 10 per cent of their holdings as registered on the company's books on June 2. The subscription will be payable in four equal instalments. The new stock will carry the dividend for the first quarter of this year. A circular giving full details regarding the new issue of stock will be mailed to stockholders shortly.

Waldorf to Edwards, Wood & Co.: Easier money is responsible for increased confidence in the stock market and notwithstanding a somewhat doubtful feeling as to the result of the miners meeting tomorrow at which the question of making the anthracite strike permanent will be voted on, sentiment favors the long side. But the money stringency is regarded by larger operators as a greater drawback speculatively than the labor troubles and now that the banks and trust companies are free lenders at 6 per cent for the first time in a week, they believe the highest rates have been seen. Apropos of this, is is worth while to note a remark made tonight by one of the most experienced brokers in the street: "In twenty-five years I cannot recall a time when money did not work easy in New York after the middle of May. If it does not now then this year will be an exception." There is a strong impression that by forcing moderate liquidation the banks have accomplished their purpose of readjusting loans.

DULLNESS IN STOCKS

Prices Started Higher But Fell Off Slightly Later.

Undertone Was Firm But the Market Was Sluggish.

Decline Near Close Which Was Dull and Steady.

New York, May 14.—Prices opened higher on a well distributed demand, gains reaching about a point in Reading, Northwestern, Kansas City Southern, Sugar and Hocking Coal. A higher range of prices from London was an incentive to the buying. Colorado Fuel fell 1¾ which was the only notable exception to the gains.

Leading stocks fell away slightly from their opening prices, but their relapse was counterbalanced by sharp advances elsewhere. Reading and Louisville & Nashville were the leaders in the decline but they soon met support. New York Air Brake advanced 4½, General Electric 3½, Northwestern 3, North American 3¼ and Sugar preferred, Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, Chicago Terminal Transfer preferred, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Wheeling & Lake Erie common and preferred, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Westinghouse Electric and the Wabash stocks 1@2. Colorado Fuel rallied to 1@2 and there was a point rise before 11 o'clock in Union Pacific, Kansas & Texas preferred, Manhattan and Amalgamated which rallied some stocks to the opening level.

Prices dropped again and the reaction reached a point or more in Louisville, Tennessee Coal, Chicago Terminal Transfer preferred, North American and Evansville & Terre Haute, Amalgamated, Reading and St. Paul touched the lowest of the morning. Some large blocks of Union Pacific were bought later and when it recovered to the top other railroads hardened slightly on very dull trading. Hocking Valley, Cleveland, Columbus, Chicago & St. Louis, Pressed Steel Car preferred and Long Island were 1@1½ higher. Westinghouse Electric increased its rise to 5 points and Northwestern to 6. Bonds were firm.

But few of the active stocks exceeded ¼ point range during the noon hour, and many issues were not dealt in at all. The market generally showed a firm undertone and ruled close to the prices. Evansville & Terre Haute pfd declined 5 and Western Union 2½, while Ann Arbor pfd, New York, New Haven & Hartford, New York, Chicago & St. Louis 2nd pfd and St. Louis Southwestern pfd improved 1 to 1¼. Canada Southern and International Paper rose a point, Twin City Rapid Transit, 1½ and Ann Aror pfd, 2½. Rock Island reacted a point and Louisville & Nashville, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Columbus & St. Louis and General Electric, 1¼. The semi-stagnation of the market was unrelieved.

Prices generally went sluggishly lower. St. Paul receding to 168¾. International Power fell 1. Exceptions were the Ann Arbor stocks, the common rising 6 and the preferred 3½, Westinghouse Electric 7½, the first preferred 7, Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred 2 and St. Joe & Grand Island a point. The closing was dull and steady.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Jesse Lewisohn says: "The consumption of copper is in greater demand than at any time since 1900. The dealers in the manufactured article throughout the world under the stimulus of the present low price are stocking up their shelves. The ship-building industry is increasing the use of copper and there is an unusual demand from the electric field. While I do not anticipate an improvement over the standard of 1901, I look for a steady advance in price. Production of copper is steadily increasing notwithstanding the lower price and will continue to do so to the limit of the borrowing capacity of the operators."

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co: John Stanton says: "The issue of stock of the Atlantic Mining company has come into the hands of the Boston engravers and will be ready for signing and exchanging a short time hence. The rate of exchange will be two and one-half shares of new stock for one of old, making the outstanding issue 100,000 instead of 40,000 shares. The issue will be exchanged through the American Loan and Trust company of Boston."

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.: By reason of heavy sales of copper by Calumet & Hecla at 124@5 for lake, and the advance of ¼c per pound in the prices of lake copper by independent companies, the United Smelting company and American Metal company advanced the price of electrolytic copper ¼c to ½c.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 14.—Cotton opened firm with prices 4 to 7 points higher on a better showing by Liverpool, light receipts at the ports and interior towns and reports that rain was needed in the central belt. Lacking support the whole list declined rapidly. July sold off to 8.85 and August to 8.68. Then the local market turned abruptly on active general buying, advancing 10 to 13 points to 8.98 for July and 8.68 for August.

European buying, feverish demand from the shorts was the chief active cause for this sudden advance. Trading was active all the early session. Prices tapered off somewhat at 11 o'clock under profit taking and absence of strong outside buying.

Cotton spot closed quiet. Middling uplands, 9¼c; middling gulf, 9¾c; sales, 402 bales. Cotton futures closed steady. May, 9.26; June, 9.24; July, 9.04; August, 8.74; September, 8.27; October, 8.08; November, 8.05; December, 8.01; January, 8.00; February, 7.99.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 14.—Close: Money on call, firm at 4@6 per cent; closed offered at 4 per cent; prime mercantile paper, 4½@6 per cent; sterling exchange weak with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86⅝ for demand and $4.84 for 60 days; posted rates, $4.85@4.85¼ and $4.87½@4.88; commercial bills, $4.83@4.84¾; bar silver, 51½c; Mexican dollars, 41½c. Government bonds, easy; state bonds, inactive; railroad bonds, easy.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 14.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $185,221,470; gold, $97,365,293; silver, $20,000,315; United States notes, $7,539,664; treasury notes of 1890, $136,872; national bank notes, $8,765,541; total receipts this day, $2,285,784; total receipts this month, $12,742,576; total receipts this year, $486,560,545. Total expenditures this day, $2,165,000; total expenditures this month, $21,240,000; total expenditures this year, $416,864,999. Deposits in national banks, $123,102,690.

BOERS MEET

At Vereening to Consider the Question Of Peace.

Lonon, May 14.—Lord Kitchener has notified the war office that representatives of all the bodies of Boers throughout the Transvaal and Orange River colonies are gathering at Vereening for the conference, which begins tomorrow, and that he has arranged that the delegates shall not be impeded in reaching the rendezvous. Consequently the assemblage is expected to be large. The decision reached regarding the pence terms will later be submitted to the British. A delegation, consisting probably of the same Boer leaders who went to Pretoria recently will be deputized to convey the decision to Lord Kitchener."

ASPHALT PLANT BURNED.

St. Louis, May 14.—The plant of the Gilson Asphaltum company, at Madison, Ill., was burned to the ground today, causing a loss estimated at $100,000, which is only partly covered by insurance. P. D. Summers, superintendent of the plant, was burned about the head while fighting the flames. The fire was caused by the boiling over of three vats containing rosin. The substance ignited the floor and the flames rapidly spread to the roof.

NEWS OF THE LAKES

Local Tug Company Gets Another Tug In Commission.

The only changes in the strike situation today are that the tug Helm has been added to the working force of tugs in the trust fleet, making two altogether, and that all the independent tugs have been pulled out of the field by the association.

The tug Helm was started out this morning, but she is not understood to be manned by L. T. P. A. men. She and the Abbott are working the field as best they may, now that it has been deserted by all the independent tugs that were working yesterday. The crews of the independent tugs, as well as those who left the employ of the Union Towing and Wrecking company, are members of the association, and yesterday afternoon they were notified by the association to cease towing vessels. They obeyed the command, and the field was left to the Abbott alone until the Helm was brought out today.

Reports as to the conditions elsewhere differ. The telegrams from General Manager Lonclair are to the effect that tugs at a number of ports are working, and that nearly seventy captains and engineers have signed contracts. The members of the L. T. P. A. in Duluth say that they have been receiving telegrams daily from all the various ports, and that the only places where tugs are working are at the Sault and Duluth. They say that not a trust tug is working at any other ports.

They believe it to be only a question of time before the vesselmen who have contracts with the Great Lakes Towing company for towing service will compel the company to settle the strike and resume operations.

Capt. W. J. Cayo, who has been running a tug at Ashland for the trust, came in last night, and he says that everything there is tied up, the log-towing crews having refused to do any vessel-towing.

If conditions remain as they are now much longer this strike is likely to prove one of the bitterest struggles in the history of the lakes. It is already assuming the proportions of a death struggle between the Great Lakes Towing company, which includes practically all of the vessel-towing business of the lakes, and the L. T. P. A., which includes practically all of the licensed tug masters and engineers of the lakes.

CORN FREIGHT CLEARANCES.

Chicago, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The diversion of vessels from the Chicago river has had its effect in an advance in rates to 1¼ cents on corn to Lake Erie today. That figure was freely bid by shippers, but it did not bring the boats and a further advance was considered probable.

CONGESTED AT CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The situation at the iron ore docks is as bad now as it was at any time last year. Some ships arriving today will not have a dock at which to unload cargoes before Saturday.

GREGG IS DEAD.

Buffalo, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. N. Gregg, superintendent of the Minnesota ore docks, who was run down by a train of cars on the Erie tracks early Monday morning, died at the Emergency hospital today of his injuries.

ALGOMA SANK.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ferry steamer Algoma was overloaded with freight last night and sank alongside the dock. The boat was not damaged and will be raised at once.

TWO TUGS AT MILWAUKEE.

Milwaukee, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Of all the local fleet of tugs, only two are running today, through an odd series of accidents. The Welcome had her wheel house knocked off last night by State street bridge. The steering gear of the Coer and Myers is out of service and on the Hagerman a boiler head was blown out.

TESTIMONY VALUELESS

Unless You Can Reach the Writer of the Letter

AND HAVE THE STATEMENTS VERIFIED

We Publish Testimony Which Means Something!

We are agents for SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR, and from time to time the owners of this splendid remedy send us for publication copies of letters which they receive from people who have been cured by its use.

The truth of these statements can be proved by any reader who desires to write the parties who are authors of the testimonials.

We have just received the following remarkable letter, and we believe that such words are far more convincing than anything we could say for this time-tried remedy:

285 Lincoln Avenue,
Cliftondale, Mass.,
April 28, 1902.

St. Albans Remedy Co.,
St. Albans, Vt.

Gentlemen: I am 80 years old, and since I was 18 have been subject to bilious attacks and costiveness. At 70 I began to feel a lameness in my limbs and it kept growing worse. I began to have dizzy spells and my legs felt weak and sore. I could not walk twenty rods without resting. I saw an advertisement for SMITH'S GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR, and reading that it was especially for rheumatism, procured a bottle and took it as directed. I did not feel much relief from my rheumatics, but the dizziness was gone in part. After the second bottle I was certainly better, and I continued taking it until I had used five bottles. I then stopped it for six months and took three bottles more.

For the past year I have been as free from rheumatism as I have ever been in my life, and want to tell suffering people what GREEN MOUNTAIN RENOVATOR has done for me, and say that a trial will do the same for any one. Yours gratefully, (Signed) EPHRAIM PIERCE.

Write Mr. Pierce if you desire these facts verified. Enclose a stamp and the above letter and ask him if it is true. This is the kind of advertising which means something.

We sell every bottle of the RENOVATOR under the absolute guarantee to benefit blood diseases, rheumatism, shattered nerves, kidney and liver troubles, dyspepsia or indigestion and malaria. If you are not satisfied with its effect, we will gladly refund your money.

WAIT AND SEE

If $200,000 Is Not Enough, Says the House Committee.

Washington, May 14.—Members of the house appropriations committee are adverse to calling a special meeting of the committee for the purpose of considering an appropriation for relief of the people of Martinique. They say that until it is demonstrated that the amount of $200,000 already appropriated is not sufficient to meet the needs of the sufferers, it will be inadvisable to appropriate an additional amount, in view of the widespread donations now being made and the relief work that is being done to succor the living and care for the dead.

Practically all those who were named by the president to serve on the relief committee have wired their acceptance and have indicated a willingness to enter heartily into the work of raising and receiving contributions in aid of the sufferers. Already large amounts are reported as having been received, and the president is much gratified at the prompt response to his appeal.

Maj. M. G. Brainerd, commissary of subsistence, U. S. A., purchasing commissary, Army building, New York city, is designated by the secretary of war to take charge of any contributions tha tmight be made by citizens of New York an other cities for the sufferers in the French West Indies, and which the citizens' committee may wish forwarded through the war department. All stuff should be turned over to Maj. Brainerd, who will prepare the same for shipment, giving receipts and rendering account to the commissary general of subsistence of all stores received and disposition made.

New York, May 14.—The chamber of commerce met today in special session to ratify the action taken by its president, Morris K. Jessup, for the immediate relief of the survivors of the Martinique disaster by the purchase of tch food supplies on the steamer Madiana, and the sending of additional supplies on the steamer Fontabello on Saturday and to take further action for the relief of the sufferers.

President Jessup presided and reported what he had done. Abram S. Hewitt offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling upon members to provide the means for immediate succor, and constituting a committee of sixty to be named by the president of the chamber, whose duty it shall be to provide at once for the forwarding of the necessary supplies to be secured by contributions.

The resolution endorses the recommendation of President Roosevelt to congress for a large appropriation of money for the relief of the stricken people. The secretary of the chamber is authorized to receive contributions for the relief work. Mr. Jessup named the committee of sixty, and announced that it would hold a meeting tomorrow to organize.

Cornelius N. Bliss announced the action of the president of the United States in appointing a national relief committee, and said that the chamber's committee would work in harmony with the national committee.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS

Senate Gives Its Attention to the Fortifications Bill.

Given Right of Way Over the Philippine Bill.

House Agrees to Close Debate On Naval Measure.

Washington, May 14.—Soon after the senate convened today a bill was passed providing that the circuit court of appeals of the fifth judicial circuit of the United States shall hold at least one term annually at Atlanta, Ga., beginning on the first Monday of October of each year.

The conference report on the omnibus claims bill was called up. The house asked for a further conference but instructed its conferees not to agree to the Selfridge board findings.

Mr. Hale said he had no doubt that the house had a right to instruct its conferees. As the house had thrown out these claims by vote the only remedy the house had was to instruct its conferees. After discussion of the matter the senate agreed to a further conference and Messrs. Warren, Teller and Mason were appointed as conferees. The fortifications appropriation bill was taken up. The measure carries appropriations aggregating $7,946,461. The committee amendment provided for the payment of $35,000 to the Bethlehem Steel company was amended by Mr. Penrose, continuing the contracts to the Bethlehem Steel company.

Mr. Platt (Conn.), offered an amendment providing for the cession to the state of Connecticut of the Fort Griswold tract on the east shore of New London for use as a public park. The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. Proctor (Vt.), offered an amendment providing that no part of the appropriation should be for constructing or procuring disappearing gun carriages in emplacements or magazines.

At 2 o'clock, the Philippine government bill was called up, but was laid aside in order that the fortifications bill might be completed.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 14.—The chaplain of the house, Dr. Couden, made reference in his opening invocation today to the calamity in Martinique, asking mercy for the stricken and suffering people and that out of the great tragedy might come a larger and deeper spirit of fraternity throughout the world.

Consideration of the naval appropriation bill was resumed. It was agreed to close debate at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Mr. Mahon (Pa.), chairman of the committee on war claims spoke upon a question of personal privilege.

Mr. Drayton (W. Va.), spoke in support of the bill and in this connection, paid high tribute to Secretary Long's administration of the navy department, and to the late Representative Cummings, who was an active member of the naval committee.

Paris, May 14.—A dispatch from Naples to the Journal says: Mount Vesuvius shows signs of activity. Lava is flowing from the crater on the Pompeii side while hot cinders are thrown up from time to time.

THOUSAND POUNDS

Contributed By Kingston For the Volcano Sufferers.

Kingston, May 14.—The legislature today appropriated £1000 for the sufferers of St. Vincent and Martinique. During the debate, Secretary Oliver said it was not certain the imperial government even now would see the desirability in the interests of the inhabitanets of evacuating the island of St. Vincent. He knew Great Britain years ago considered a statement for distributing the inhabitants among the other islands and thought the recent hurricane and present calamity should decide the course of the government.

Castries, Island of St. Lucia, May 14.—The St. Lucia signal station here reports having seen a conflagration last night in the direction of Fort de France, Martinique.

TWO NEW STRIKES.

Three Hundred Chicago Glass Workers Go Out.

Chicago, May 14.—Two new strikes began here today. Three hundred glass workers walked out, practically tieing up all the glass plants in the city, and 200 of the 800 employes of the American Bridge company struck. The glass workers were promised the 9-hour day and the 10 per cent advance in wages which they demand, but recognition of the union was refused. The structural iron workers and helpers who left the bridge company demanded an increase in wages.

COLORED PREACHER

Sentenced to Three Years in Jail For Murder.

Emporia, Kan., May 14.—Rev. W. H. Pollett, a colored preacher, who last month shot and killed Isaiah Edmundson, a negro laborer, as a result of family troubles was today found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree and will be given three years in the penitentiary. Pollett expressed satisfaction at the verdict. Since his arrest Pollett has converted four of his fellow prisoners.

UNAVAILING

Were the Conferences to End St. Paul Strike.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The strike of the building trades workmen will continue for some time at least. Conferences between the committees of the Builders' Exchange and the Bricklayers' and Carpenters' unions broke up today without having accomplished anything.

No negotiations are on for the future. The committees failed even to agree to arbitrate their differences. Both sides were reticent as to the rock upon which the conference split. The Builders' Exchange members said that it was the demand of the men for the recognition of the Building Trades' council, with its rules and its authority.

NO NEED OF ALARM.

Italian Deputies Discuss Morgan Shipping Combine.

Rome, May 14.—Replying to a question in the chamber of deputies today on the subject of the Morgan shipping combine and its effects on Italian emigration to the United States, the under secretary of state, Signor Bartelli, said that increased dividends and advantage to American trade would naturally result from the combination. It was needless, however, to borrow alarm regarding an arbitrary increase of rates. As to emigrants, if the combine desired to carry them it would have to secure the necessary license and agree to the emigrant rates which the Italian government had the power to limit.

FIVE HUNDRED

Sent From St. Paul as a Starter.

St. Paul, May 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theodore Schurmeier and Kenneth Clark, appointed by President Roosevelt to receive donations for relief of West Indian sufferers, were at work early today and wired $500 to Washington as a first installment after seeing a few members of the St. Paul Jobbers' union. President J. J. Hill of the Great Northern personally sent $500 to Washington as soon as he learned that the government would use it.

BROOKS INQUEST.

Begun at New York by Coroner Brown.

New York, May 14.—The inquest into the death of Walter Brooks, the young commission merchant, who was shot in the Glen Island hotel on Feb. 14, was begun today by Coroner Brown. Florence Burns, who was arrested on suspicion of being responsible fr his death, but was discharged from custody at the conclusion of the police magistrate's hearing, was represented by counsel. Her lawyer said Miss Burns could easily be found if wanted.

BANKERS' MEETING

At Kansas City Listens to Addresses on Asset Currency.

Former Comptroller of the Currency Dawes Opposes It.

He Favors an Emergency Circulation Unsecured By Bonds.

Kansas City, May 14.—The Interstate Bankers' convention held two sessions again today, the Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma and Indian Territory associations gathering in separate meetings in the forenoon and all convening in final joint session in the afternoon. In the forenoon, before the Kansas bankers, President Scott Hopkins, of Horton, delivered his annual address and addresses on various subjects were given by E. N. Morrill, exgovernor of Kansas, Morton Albaugh, bank commissioner for Kansas, and others.

Before the Missourians, numerous reports were read. T. M. Davis, of Aurora, delivered an address on "Missouri at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition," and W. T. Jones, of St. Louis, talked on "The Federal Bankruptcy Law." Delegates were also elected to the American Bankers' association convention at New Orleans in November.

"Asset Currency" was the topic discussed at the joint meeting held at the Grand Opera house in the afternoon. James H. Eckels, of Chicago, president of the Commercial National bank, was scheduled for the first address, and Charles G. Dawes, former comptroller of the currency, who spoke next, was assigned the text "Asset Currency and Branch Banking." A discussion of the papers followed.

Mr. Dawes spoke against asset currency. He said in part: "As opposed to the plans for asset currency and in order that safeguarding credits may be protected in times of panic by a greater elasticity in our circulation, I favor an emergency circulation, unsecured by bonds, but subject to so large a tax that it will not only be made safe but cannot be used as an instrument of current business. This currency will appear only when needed in a panic, and will be returned when the emergency is over on account of the heavy tax.

"Confidence in the stability and safety of our medium of exchange is one of the foundation stones of prosperity. Any change calculated to decrease confidence in our currency by decreasing to any extent its safety is fraught with danger to existing business conditions.

"Asset currency subject to only a small tax will become an instrument of current business, and add to the amount of credits in existence to be cared for in a panic. The more issued in ordinary times, the less could be issued in times of panic.

"It is not safe to base arguments for asset currency upon the experience of the great central government banks of the continent, when we consider a banking system consisting of over 4000 banks widely scattered and surrounded by most varying conditions of customers, collaterals, and business. It is no time to indulge in radical experiment with our currency in this country. We do not want an asset currency that will help us into a panic when we are out of one, but an emergency circulation which will help us out of a panic when we are in one."

Important Change of Time.

On and after May 11 the Twilight Limited over "The North-Western Line" will leave Duluth daily at 4 p. m., arriving in St. Paul at 9 p. m., making connections in Union depot with the Omaha & Kansas City limited for Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, San Francisco, Los Angeles and points West.

AURORA BOREALIS

May Be a Signal From People at the Pole.

The Ingenious Theory of a Kansas City Novelist.

Land Thought to Be Beautiful, With Mild Climate.

St. Louis, May 13.—C. Josephine Barton, the Kansas City authoress, has evolved an ingenious theory concerning the Aurora Borealis. She believes it is a signal from people who live at the north pole, and whose knowledge of electricity is far beyond our own because of the greater need which has existed for it in that faraway land of the midnight sun.

The Symmes Hole, dread, black and bottomless, becomes an Edenic garden in the theory of Miss Barton. There is no hole at all, but a country nestling in the mountains of ice as an oyster stowed away in its pattie. Greater in area than Greenland, tempered in clime by the Gulf stream and the tropical winds which here deposit their burdens of warmth, and inhabited by a genial and gentle people (for people are less vicious as they are more distant from the equator) is this poetic polaris land of Miss Barton, who prophsies that we are near unta its discovery and are not for long to be divorced from its joys.

The borders of this beautiful land, whose people signal in the long nighttime and produce what we know as the Northern Lights and Aurora Borealis, are not 200 miles removed from the farthest north of some of the great polar explorers. Nansen has stood closer to it than the city of Chicago is to St. Louis; so, too, have Peary and the duke of Abruzi, and Baldwin is near it today.

Miss Barton has written her theory for the Sunday Post-Dispatch. Her garden mind may evanesce like the spring Ponce de Leonic, or the golden city of Coronado, but it is none the less beautiful for that, and who, pray, may gainsay her when none have been to see?

Miss Barton says:

"We must respond to the signal of the Aurora Borealis.

"Electricity, bountiful everywhere, and now obedient to man's intricate and splendid plans, is our means of proving to the people of the pole that at last we have awakened to their call for recognition.

"At the north pole there is not, as has been supposed, 'an open Polar sea,' but a vast area of fertile land covered with verdure, improved and populated.

"A little reasonable theorizing will sufficiently prove this to be a well-supported statement. All reasoning is syllogistic. Theory is inquiry after the right premises, and lays the foundation for their discovery. With the true form one cannot reason wrong. It is by this method we become familiar with the modes of indicating the yet unknown, which are followed by any special sphere of scientific inquiry.

"The wave 'theory' of motion was discovered through inquiry after the major and minor premises of the chain of argument that led to the conclusion. To theorize is to feel after a truth. Franklin thus found out the air surrounding the earth is full of the electric fluid, waiting to be used; Edison thus harnessed this fluid to a score of splendid contrivances to direct them as he will. The common air is so charged with electricity the turning of a screw sets it aflame and changes night into day.

"The discovery of the north pole is a thing of the near future. The earnest wishes of so many have not centered upon this search in vain. Baldwin, Peary, Sverdrup, Capt. Cagni, who reached as far north as 86 degrees 33 minutes, and other men of most wonderful fortitude, have not subjected themselves to such hardships for naught. An important point will be gained which will open up the way for discovery of other important truths. The electric and magnetic forces will be better understood. Seismology and the full cause of volcanoes will be made plain. Let us see what kind of lights those at the north pole must be:

"Pure sunlight is white. Any substance reflecting none of the sun's rays, really unseen, seems black. This is the color of darkness, where we see nothing. The decomposition of sunlight into the ordinary colors may be seen in the rainbow, in ice, or in the prism. The moon reflects the colors so faintly it is difficult to distinguish them; hence, perfect refraction is presented only by the sun's own light.

"Since this is true, and also the fact that the northern lights present all the colors of the rainbow, we can but conclude they are sustained by the rays of a pure white light, or sunlight. Here where it is daylight for six months and night for as long, during the interval of ten weeks of midnight—when even twilight is withdrawn, and only the pale moon (which is then constantly above the horizon) is shedding its reflected rays, void of either warmth or actinism, upon the inhabitants—why would not the earnest desire for light open first to them the possibility and means of flooding their country with a blaze of electric fire?

"Why should it always be during this ten weeks of midnight darkness that these wonderful displays occur? Is it not because after the long periods of twilight these people enjoy—seven weeks of autumn and seven of springtime twilight—when the sun is below the horizon all day (as in our own delightful evenings when the sun, hid behind the Rockies, still sends up a mellow light to break his departure gently), may not stern necessity, the mother of invention, have introduced to these people of the north end the wider uses of magnetism and electricity, earlier than it was made known to the less needy people of further south? Bereft of light, after tasting of its wholesome, life-giving qualities, would not these inhabitants be diligent in their search for relief from the long, mid-winter darkness?

"These lights are doubtless within the earth's atmosphere. If they were outside, like the stars, they would seem to have an hourly motion westward, as all the other celestial objects of the earth, and also sustain relation to the magnetic poles of the earth. The inexhaustible electricity of the air, and terrestrial magnetism are doubtless the source of these lights. One noticeable fact, the middle of the arch of the Aurora is not in the direction of the true north (if we know where that is), but in that of the observer's magnetic needle. During unusual displays of the northern lights the magnetic needle manifests great uneasiness, and continues unsettled until they begin to subside. Thus are the polar lights in actual touch with the instrument I hold in my hand. We do not yet understand the nature of all the invisible substances; the vibrations of a wave of light more than 10,000 miles away set in agitation the ethers that fan our cheeks; an ocean wave starting at Valdivia, Chili, after the volcanic eruption, traveled 6000 miles and deluged the shores of Hawaii; and we may know that a true, loving thought spoken in the heart simultaneously thrills the beloved one at the antipodes, with the power of its vibrations. Power is invisible because boundless.

"Who shall say that these great lights, sent up so high they illumine a hemisphere, are not purposely sent as an appeal, or as a sign to us that we have interesting neighbors at the north end, and that, though surrounded by an ice-belt many miles wide, they enjoy a mild, valley climate—thirteen miles nearer to the center of the earth than are the people at the equator—undisturbed by trade winds, storms or wars with foreign countries. May it not be a garden spot—an Eden—whose 'flaming sword' keeps out all those who have 'done this thing,' and have so become the victims of the knowledge of good and evil?

"Upon state occasions the lights are increased to a display whose magnificence cannot be equaled by any practical means now known in the temperate zones. But the time is near at hand when science will answer them in round, red letters, spelled out on the sky.

"When first turned on the Aurora presents a dull, irregular light. Then increasing, it mounts toward the zenith with the inconceivable swiftness of lightning. There the rays play for a while, then disappear or change places, much as the jets in our electric fountains act, on a miniature scale.

"The inhabitants are then 'playing the colors' to improve or vary the spectacle.

"Let us take a look at the physical condition at the North pole. The great ocean currents, flowing ceaselessly, are kept in motion by the influence of the sun, the moon and planets, and by the motion of the earth upon its axis. The mobile waters thus always disturbed are forever trying to re-establish equilibrium, but without effect. 'Unstable as water' is a proverb to negative people, a quality in water which renders it constantly subject to the positive elements. The greatest disturber of all is:

"The difference of temperature between the equator and the poles. Aside from the general transfer movement of the tropical ocean waters from east to west all around the globe, there is a regular exchange movement between the cold waters of the north and the warm waters of the south. The cold waters of the Arctic ocean, laden with their awful freight of icebergs, move steadily southward, while above their own current the warm gulf stream flows steadily northward, counter-current to it. Off Cape Hatteras the gulf stream measures more than 3000 feet deep. It distributes its volume of warmth to all the shores along its course, lessening the climate of Sweden and Norway and the British islands, as they continue their northbound journey.

"Meantime the warm waters of the Pacific ocean, also flowing northward, pass Bering's strait and enter the Arctic ocean to temper its waters, and to carry yearly immense quantities of debris to increase the land at the pole. This volume of warm water, continuing its course northward, breaks through the ice-belt, thus forming wide gaps, dislodging glaciers and icebergs, and never halting until it breaks upon the shores of Aurora land. Baffled for the first time, it here halts, turns backward, beats a retreat, and once more starts southward, ice-laden, and transformed into the 'Arctic current.'

"As constantly and surely as the southern waters flow north, so must the Arctic ocean constantly send down its frozen waters south. Thus oscillation is the law of ocean currents, one of the greatest phenomena in the realm of nature.

"The Arctic waters encircling the land at the pole are studded upon their southern or outer border with mountains of ice. Together they are the great fosterer of glaciers and mother of icebergs. This ridge of ice-mountains, surrounding the waters and the continent, marks the point in the earth's curve where it changes from its roundness into the flatness at the poles. This is also the place explorers call the 'ice-drift' region, over which they have not yet succeeded in making headway. But the brave soul who will penetrate 200 miles beyond the 86th degree will feel the breath of a milder climate, the Aurora land, where the southern currents deposit their warmth before returning southward. And when he discovers the pole he will find that it was discovered ages ago. He will be delighted to find great cities, vast forests and plains, and a peculiar people fenced in from the bulk of the world by a chain of mountains of ice heretofore impenetrable.

"This is a scientific age. In physics, electricity is the great means for heat, light and locomotion. The route to the North pole will ere long be a familiar highway. Depots with large electric supplies of heat and light will stretch to the north—like a string of beads—through ice-tunnels, gaps or over frozen barriers to the land of the midnight Aurora. And we bold Americans will go upon excursions there and come back and tell how lovely the people are, how amiable, and how affectionately interested in us they are! And we will persuade them to have an Aurora Polaris building at our World's fair at St. Louis, and introduce themselves as the progressive people from the North End, who drink no stimulants and have no wars nor contentions, but let sweet nature shine forth as in little children.

"The Eskimos are noted for gentleness and unselfish kindness. The passions and selfish indulgencies are more noticeable at the South.

"All the grand divisions of earth are appendixed by a smaller or inferior division and an archipelago. From North America hangs South America and the West Indies; south of Europe is Africa and the Mediterranean with the Grecian archipelago; south of Asia is Australia and Malaysia; south of Aurora Polaris is Greenland with Independence Bay islands to the west, including an archipelago upon the west and Franz Joseph Land and islands upon the east. Greenland is larger than Great Britain, or as large as Spain and France put together. There is room at the North pole for a continent as large in extent as all three of these countries."

STYLISH SPRING COSTUMES

Handsome Reception Gown—New Long-Shoulder Effect.

The waist of this handsome reception gown of buff veiling is made with the fashionable drooping or long shoulder effect and has a tucked yoke, framed with a scolloped berthe handsomely embroidered with Corticelli silk. The sleeves are tucked, springing out into large puffs strapped with embroidered bands. The skirt is tucked in clusters and shows strap garniture in addition to narrow velvet ribbon, which also appears on the round yoke.

Each week seems to reveal some new feature in the cotton dress fabrics, one of which is grass cloth in white, with a stripe of close weave. Then there are new fine lace insertions woven stripe fashion into the material. Most beautiful are the embroidered batistes which come in handsome all-over designs as well as in robes, either white or beige colr.
